Joseph Grierson was instantly killed this afternoon about 3 o'clock, at the residence of Miss A. E. Thompson, 165 Smith Street, when struck on the head by a large limb from a tree which was being trimmed. Mr. Grierson, who is a professional gardner, was directing the work, with his son, Joseph Junior, up in the tree doing the actual cutting. When the limb fell, it struck Mr. Grierson on the forehead and face, inflicting instant death.

Men, You Ought To Read This Unless You Think You Are So Wise There Is Nothing Left For You To Learn . . .

This is a smoking car story, told a few days ago by the district manager of one of the insurance companies that have branch offices in Peterborough.

"There's no news in that," he protested to an Examiner man, "but if you do print it, for heaven's sake don't use my name."

If the letter of the promise that was given may not be violated, at least the spirit may be strained a bit in the interest of truth and authenticity. And the clue to his identity is simply this, that if he was not born in Peterborough, he has perhaps lived here longer than any of the other insurance managers in the city. But it doesn't matter much whether you put your finger on him or not, his story rings true.

"I was going to be in Toronto early this month," he said, "and at home the previous evening I was struck with the big, splashing advertisements of men's wear stores in a Toronto newspaper. Honestly, you'd think Santa Claus was swinging back on a return trip, and would be located for a couple of days at the clothing stores instead of the top shops.

"Bargains all over Yonge and King Streets, so it seemed! I remember a big double-page 'ad.' of a big house on Yonge Street. I had often seen those kind of ads. before, and wished that I could be there to get a share of the cream. So I said, here's my chance; I ought to get something real good to-morrow."

He Knows More Than His Groceries.

Apparently this insurance man is a shopper, in the sense that he knows what he wants, what he should pay, what he is willing to pay, also the quality of men's clothes, and finally no salesman can load him up against his will. At any rate, he spent several hours in three big Toronto men's shops that were offering post-Christmas bargains. He gave the names of them, but it is not necessary to mention them here.

"When I was in head office I told a friend that I was going out to buy an overcoat. He says, 'I'm going with you down to —— on King Street (west of Yonge). I know the manager and will introduce him to you.'

"So down we went. I had visions of those bargains I had read about at home the night before. Well, I got attention anyway. They showed me the whole works, but I couldn't see anything that I couldn't buy for ten or fifteen dollars cheaper at home. I stayed there quite a while, and went around to ——, on Yonge Street. Same result there. Then I crossed over and went up a block or so to ——, and I was there maybe three-quarters of an hour. After a once-over, I was coming out when one of the clerks asked if I got what I wanted. I told him I had not.

"'We have some special salesmen on for this big sale,' he told me, 'and you were probably not shown all the stock. Come up with me and we'll see what we can do.'

Back Home With His Money.

That chap was a good salesman, courteous, eager to please, but not too insistent. What I started to tell you was this, that in those three shops I saw overcoats ranging from $65.00 to $70.00 to $85.00 that I knew I could buy in Peterborough at from $50.00 to say $65.00. And this was bargain day. I wore the old coat home that night, and this is what I bought at home," he remarked, taking a new coat off the hook above the seat. "And I am satisfied I saved anywhere from fifteen to twenty dollars in passing up the so-called Toronto bargains."

Now, there's a buy-at-home story that is true and striking, but it is only one of many that could be repeated over and over, applying to nearly all kinds of merchandise that men and women send out of town for, under a sort of hypnotic spell by which they persuade themselves there are no bargains, no values here in Peterborough. The chief difference between most of them and this insurance man is that he knew values in the goods he was buying, and most folks do not. And the weird, incredible aspect of such purchases is this, that the goods are not only not known as to value, but they are not even seen.

A Lesson For Us All Here.

The moral in this insurance man's experience should be plain to the men of Peterborough, and for merchants, is there not, that more educational effort is needed to demonstrate to the public the advantages of buying at home. If this insurance man were not wiser than nine out of every ten men he would in all probability have succumbed to the lure of the Toronto advertising, salesmanship, and also that intangible and intrinsically worthless notion that far off fields look greener and far off coats look better or something, vague and hazy, which on examination proves to be nothing, and even less than nothing, if you pay fifteen or twenty dollars more in Toronto than in Peterborough.

That insurance man's message to the men of Peterborough is this, that if he had bought one of those so-called Toronto bargains he would have actually been out of pocket to the extent of fifteen or twenty dollars.

REV. J. W. GORDON IS LEAVING CITY

Will Ask Presbytery For Release at Meeting Next Month.

Rev. J. W. Gordon, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, has intimated to his congregation that at the next meeting of the Presbytery, on February 9, he will ask to be released from his present pastoral charge at the end of the current Conference year, June, 1928.

Mr. Gordon came to St. Andrew's Church four years ago, and was with the congregation during the difficult and trying days of the culmination of church union. His new field of labor has yet to be decided upon.

REVENUE BOARD IS ADVOCATED BY COMMISSION

Report Tabled in House To-day Advises Formation of Preventive Force.

OTTAWA, January 27 (Canadian Press).—The final report of the Royal Commission on Customs and Excise was tabled in the House of Commons this afternoon. It is contained in a printed book of twenty-three pages. A score of recommendations, some of great importance to the business world of Canada as well as the private individual, are scattered through the book. There is no mention of specific cases, firms or individuals which figured in the exhaustive investigation conducted by the Commission during the many months it toured the Dominion. The specific cases which the Commissioners considered of sufficient importance to report on are dealt with in a number of interim reports made to the Minister of National Revenue.

1—Appointment of a national revenue board of three members, headed by a chairman with all the qualifications of a Justice of the Superior Courts. One of the other members should be experienced in Customs matters and the other possessed of business training. The board to sit in different provinces of the Dominion.

2—Reduction in the number of points at which goods may be entered and revenue collected through Canada.

3—Promptitude and efficiency in enforcement of the laws relating to national revenue.

4—Amendment to Section 206 of the Customs Act so as to provide alternative punishment to imprisonment.

5—Appointment of a staff of Dominion appraisers possessing expert and technical knowledge of the commodities which they are called upon to appraise. Appointments of appraisers should be made by the Minister after examination of the applicants by the Dominion Board of Appraisers.

6—Revision and consolidation of the Departmental regulations.

7—Establishment of an information bureau to keep officials advised of changes in regulations, etc.

9—More expeditious disposition of seizures.

10—Appointment of preventive officers by the Minister of National Revenue on the recommendation of the regional chiefs of the preventive service. The preventive service should not be subject to the Civil Service Act.

11—Creation of an investigation branch of the Department of National Revenue.

12—Enactment of legislation to provide for seizure outside territorial waters of any vessel registered in Canada engaged or suspected of being engaged in smuggling operations in Canada.

13—Prohibition of the issuance of clearances to vessels or vehicles of any kinds carrying a cargo of liquor to the United States contrary to the laws of that country.

14—Creation of an organization adequate to cope with frauds of under and over valuation.

The report is dated October 15, 1927, and bears the signatures of the three judges who comprised the Commission. The chief Commissioner was Judge J. T. Brown, Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench, Saskatchewan, and the two other Commissioners were Judge W. H. Wright, of the Supreme Court of Ontario, and Judge Ernest Roy, of the Quebec Superior Court. Some of the recommendations have already been acted upon in the re-organization of the Department of National Revenue, which has been in progress for some time.

In advocating the appointment of a board of national revenue, the Commissioners suggest that the constitution of the present Board of Railway Commissioners might be adopted to a large extent with such changes as the nature of work might require.

"The Board of Customs as at present constituted does not appear to operate satisfactorily," states the report. All the present members of the Board are Customs officers. Their duties are in some respects judicial and the members should be removed from departmental influence and have all authority and independence of court."

Changes Recommended

The Commission points out as defects of the present system that no written record is kept of evidence submitted and that evidence is not now taken under oath. Also the present Board sits only in Ottawa even though it decides upon matters arising in various parts of the Dominion. The jurisdiction of the new Board

OTONABEE AND SOUTH MONAGHAN RATEPAYERS PRESENT PETITION FOR NEW BRIDGE ACROSS RIVER

Seek Co-operation Game Conservation

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press)—International co-operation in game conservation occupied the attention of the concluding session yesterday of Dominion-Provincial game officials, in annual conference here. Visiting delegates from the United States and Newfoundland took part in yesterday's debates on game protection.

The conference passed a resolution favoring the fencing of larger game areas and also went on record as urging the pressing need of biological investigation of details of the life histories of Canadian animals. The setting aside of certain suitable areas wherein Indians alone may trap, was the subject of another resolution approved by the government.

MUNICIPALITIES DISCUSS LAWS

Whip Into Shape Resolutions to be Presented to Ontario Legislature.

CITY REPRESENTED

Alderman J. M. Greene has returned from London, Ontario, where where he was in attendance as Peterborough's delegate to the conference of the Ontario section, Union of Canadian Municipalities. Mr. Greene is emphatic in his approval of the work of the conference which dealt with several matters of interest to Ontario.

The conference which was held on Wednesday, was well attended, Controller Tully of Ottawa, being elected the temporary chairman. Under his direction many important items were whipped into practical shape in the form of resolutions which will be presented to the provincial premier and cabinet at an early date. It requested that a large deputation meet the premier to present these resolutions.

Following the conference, the delegates were entertained most royally by the mayor and council of London.

In discussing the conference with The Examiner, Alderman Greene declared: "You can take it from me that this union, having secured the support and co-operation of the municipalities, is doing a wonderful work and its benefits to such communities cannot be over-estimated. I consider it one of the best, if not the best avenues of endeavor that has ever been organized for a similar purpose." He further stated his intention of presenting a report of the conference at the next meeting of the city council.

CHAIRMAN VISITS LOCAL COMMISSION

Hon. David Jamieson To Meet Mothers' Allowance Board.

On Saturday, 28th inst., Hon. David Jamieson, M.D., M.C.P.S., chairman of the Mothers' Allowance Commission of Ontario, accompanied by the secretary of the Provincial Board, J. M. McCullough, will meet the members of the City and County Local Boards, at the Empress Hotel, where luncheon will be served. The Warden of the county, and Mayor of the City, have been asked to favor the meeting with attendance.

This is the first time the Hon. Chairman has visited this city in connection with his administrative duties, and he will be able to inform the Local Boards as to any changes in rules or procedure growing out of the last year's experience in the work.

As affecting the general procedure of the work, he may indicate any legislation that has been asked for in connection with the Department in which the management of the Commission is placed. It is quite true that each succeeding twelve months of experience discloses features that may be subject to remedial amendments in the Act under which the work is carried on.

The Weather

The temperature last night was down to 7 degrees below zero, though by daybreak it had risen 3 degrees. A heavy hoar frost indicated much milder conditions coming, and probably some more snow.—W. P.

Would Build New Bridge Across the Otonabee South of Locks.

HEAR THREE DEPUTATIONS

Plowmen's Association and Board of Health Ask Grants From Council.

The Peterborough County Council spent a large part of yesterday in finance committee with Reeve Breckenridge in the chair. Three deputations were heard. The Plowman's Association asked for a grant of $150, the Peterborough Board of Health asked for $117 as the county's share in keeping the Provincial Laboratory in this city, and the ratepayers of Otonabee and South Monaghan presented a petition asking that a new bridge be built south of the Locks bridge.

J. J. Duffus, V. Eastwood and T. Graham represented the Plowman's Association and were granted, on motion of Clark and McIntyre, the $150 asked for.

Mayor Denne and Alderman Ackerman, chairman of the Local Board of Health, appeared on behalf of that body and explained to the council the position the city was in, in regards to the Provincial Laboratory. "According to last year's figures the county share is 4.19 per cent, which is $117," said Ald. Ackerman. Reeve Curtis spoke in favor of giving the required grant, as he thought that the Provincial Laboratory in the city of Peterborough was a decided asset from the standpoint of health of the country. The grant was referred to the finance committee.

Reeve Windsor of Burleigh and Anstruther asked for a grant to the Apsley Agricultural Society which has recently been organized and has a membership of 125. This was referred to the finance committee to be brought up when the other exhibition grants are under discussion.

Present Petition

A deputation headed by H. Dawson, E. Deyell and ex-Reeve Robinson of South Monaghan presented a petition that was signed by about 300 ratepayers in the two townships asking that a bridge be built across the Otonabee River south of the Locks bridge joining the 13th Concession of Otonabee with George Street.

As pointed out by members of the delegation, the suggestion is not a new one for in 1912 plans were made and tenders called for, but the work was not gone on with on account of the war. The idea of the deputation was to have the 13th Concession made a county highway, thus joining South Monaghan via Bensford Bridge with the City of Peterborough and as the Locks bridge is too narrow and soon will need to be rebuilt they suggested building the new bridge in a different place. Out of the discussion arose the question of the Township of South Monaghan joining the County of Peterborough, as the making of this round a county one would benefit the ratepayers of that township more than those of Otonabee. In the construction of a new bridge the Dominion Government would be expected to build two piers and the swing, and the remaining cost of the bridge would be divided between the county and province. Deputy Reeve McIntyre of Otonabee spoke in favor of the proposition, but Reeve Aye of North Monaghan thought the county would be ill-advised to take such a step at this time on account of the large highway account to be met. Warden Smithson thought the idea of making the road a county road was a good one, for in the past the Township of Otonabee has been expected to keep up a through road from Bensford bridge to Peterborough, but in regards to the bridge he said he would not ask the county to build such a bridge; for this year the man on 100 acres can expect his tax bill to be increased $25 on account of provincial highway construction and from all accounts a similar bill may be expected next year.

Authorize By-laws

The finance committee authorized by-laws to be prepared for $40,000 to be borrowed for road construction; $35,000 for maintenance; $10,094 for bridge building; $50,000 to meet the provincial highway demand, and $15,000 as the county's share of the new addition to the court house.

Highway Cost

During the summer a black base was laid by the Department of Provincial Highways on the Port Hope-Peterborough highway from this city to Fraserville, a distance of 9.33 miles at a total cost of $239,917.85 or $25,714.66 a mile. Of this amount the county is called upon to pay $49,711.53 or 20 per cent of the cost of building the road from Peterborough to Scott's Corners, a distance of 5.67 miles and 10 per cent of the coast from Scott's Corners to Fraserville, as the United Counties pay the other ten per cent.

Maintenance charges on the Port Hope highway were low this year; the county's share being $3,044.36 and on the Peterborough-Lindsay highway $6,595.47.

STEWART WILL GIVE EVIDENCE NEXT TUESDAY

TEAPOT DOME INQUIRY.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 27. — Canadian Press. — An overnight change of attitude by Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, promises new developments next week in the new Teapot Dome Oil investigation.

Stewart yesterday notified Chairman Nye of the Senate Lands committee that he would forego business engagements in Mexico for the time being to return from Havana and testify when the committee resumes its inquiry on Tuesday. Previously Stewart had indicated that the committee would have to await completion of his business trip in South and Central America.

The committee desires to inquire of the Standard Oil of Indiana official what he knows about the operations of the Continental Trading Company, Limited of Canada, which bought and sold oil in this country and converted its profits into Liberty bonds, $233,000 of which Harry F. Sinclair paid over to Albert B. Fall after the former interior secretary had leased the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve in Wyoming to the New York oil operator.

Stewart and Sinclair joined with Henry M. Blackmer, former chairman of the board of the Midwest Refining Company, and James H. O'Neil, former president of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, in guaranteeing the contract of the Continental Company in purchasing 33,333,333 barrels of oil from the late A. E. Humphreys of Denver.

Blackmer and O'Neil fled to France after the Senate committee first uncovered the oil scandal four years ago and efforts of the government to obtain their testimany have been unavailing.

Testified Before.

Stewart testified here before the Grand Jury which indicted Sinclair and Hall on a criminal conspiracy charge, but when the civil suit in which the government recovered Tea pot Dome was tried in Cheyenne Stewart was in South America on business for his company.

Besides the testimony of Stewart, the Senate Oil Committee also desires that of Henry S. Osler of Toronto, president of the Continental Company, which went out of business in 1923, after assigning its contract with Humphreys to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company of Tulsa, Okla.

A commission to take Osler's testimony was appointed yesterday by Vice-President Dawes at the request of the committee, but subsequently the committee learned that the Canadian lawyer was in Europe.

Special government oil counsel sought Osler's testimony at the trial of the civil suit for the recovery of Teapot Dome at Cheyenne in 1925, but he refused to make a deposition to a special committee sent to Canada for that purpose. The case was taken into the Canadian courts, which finally ruled that Osler would have to give testimony. This decision came, however, after the Cheyenne trial had been concluded and Osler never was called upon to testify.

Evidence in the criminal conspiracy trial of Fall and Sinclair was that the Continental Company made a total of approximately $3,000,000 in profits and that Osler converted this into Liberty bonds which the Senate committee hopes to be able to trace.

FIRE DESTROYS LAKEFIELD HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Collins Suffer Severe Loss When House Destroyed.

FIREMEN INJURED

LAKEFIELD, January 27.— The home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Collins at the corner of Concession and Albert Street, was completely gutted by fire at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

When the firemen arrived the flames had secured a hold inside the partitions, and in other parts of the building, making the task of the Brigade very difficult. Some of the furniture was saved and the firemen did good work in preventing the blaze from spreading to nearby buildings. There is no insurance.

Three of the firemen were injured during the fire. Arthur Webster received a broken rib, and William Hendren and Thomas Hampton were badly burned.

ASSUME CHARGE OF SMITH CASE

FOLLOWING NEW CLUE.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. Jan. 27. Canadian Press. — Definite action in the search for Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College student was promised by Geneal Alfred F. Foote state commissioner of public safety when he arrived here yesterday and took command of the investigation.

He refused to comment on the case any further than to say that the most important move yet in the search was on foot. With General Foote came Thomas E. Bligh, chief of the detective bureau of the state police, and Detective Joseph L. Farrari.

These men with State Detective John Stokes, who arrived on Wednesday, solved the Tyngsboro suitcase mystery in 1923, when the body of Mrs. George Kolchandorf was dissected and thrown into the Merrimac River. Their presence in the case indicated that the State of Massachusetts was detemined to solve one of the most perplexing mysteries on its records.

It became known yesterday that the state detectives learned from officers of the Savannah Line's 'City of Atlanta" that a girl answering Miss Smith's description boarded the vessel in New York on the night of Jan. 13 when she disappeared from Smith College.

This girl, the liner's officers reported, came aboard with baggage and registered as "Miss C. J.Bourque, of 460 Eighty-fifth street, Brooklyn."

Spent $95,000,000 For Imported Eggs

LONDON, Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The United Kingdom spent £19,000,000 per annum for imported eggs in both the year 1925 and 1926, states the report of the imperial economic committee on the marketing of poultry and eggs. It is estimated that the United Kingdom annually requires 5,700,000,000 eggs from British Empire sources. Of every thousand eggs used 433 are produced in the United Kingdom, 93 in the Irish Free State, five in Canada and five in South Africa.

The committee urged the need of grading and the rapid and economical handling of the produce in Canada. As an instance of how grading had increased the consumption of eggs. the report points out that both consumption and production of eggs had increased in Canada with each extension of compulsory grading legislation so that consumption is now 2?7 eggs for each person per annum, compared with 181 in 1901, and although local production of eggs in Canada in 1926 was more than thrice what it was in 1901 the export of eggs had fallen and imports had increased.

CARDINAL ROULEAU ARRIVES ON SUNDAY

Canadian Churchman To Visit New York Before Returning to Quebec.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 27.—(Canadian Press.)—The warmth of a Canadian welcome will greet His Eminence, Raymond, Cardinal Rouleau when the archbishop of the Quebec diocese, who was made a prince of the Roman Catholic Church while in Rome, disembarks at New York on Sunday for a stay of two days before returning to Quebec. The Empress of Scotland, on which the cardinal and his travelling companion, Mgr. Amedes Gosselin, and Rev. Abbe Edgar Chouinard, are journeying from Cherbourg, will be met at the dock by several Canadian members of the Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament, at whose rectory His Eminence will be given hospitality, representatives of the Quebec archdiocese, among whom will be Vicar-General Mgr. Omer Cloutier, and Captain J. E. Webber. executuive secretary of the Canadian Club of New York.

The cardinal has been given the freedom of the port of New York, and will be free from the necessity of going through customs formalities. Dinner at the Catholic Club, presided over by Judge Monton T. Manton, of the New York Circuit Court of Appeals, will open the list of functions to be given for Cardinal Rouleau in New York, should the Empress of Scotland dock at the expected hour on Sunday forenoon.

In the evening, a reception will be held in the school hall of the Blessed Sacrament Rectory, at which many New York Canadians, both laymen and clergy, will be present. Father Alphonse Pelletier, superior of the Order, is an old acquaintance of the cardinal, and is a native of Quebec. Other Canadians who are of the New York order are the Rev. Fathers Fernando Gaudet, Montreal; Vercelas Giasson, formerly of Levis; Leo Shaienks, Quebec; George Brisette, Montreal; Omer Herbert, Nicolet, and Honore Brousseau, Quebec.

PREMIER KING WELCOMES NEW TORY CHIEFTAIN

Pays Warm Tribute to Conservative Leader's Qualifications for Post.

GUTHRIE HONORED.

Bennett Replies Opposition Will Endeavor to be Constructive in its Criticism.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 27. —(Canadian Press.)— A felicitous atmosphere pervaded the House of Commons when Parliament opened yesterday afternoon, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister, embracing the occasion to welcome Hon. R. B. Bennett, the new leader of the Opposition, and in doing so paying warm tribute to Mr. Bennett's qualifications for the post. "The member from West Calgary, through his scholarship, great natural endowments, ability in business and politics is qualified for the position he now holds, and he will at all times have my best wishes," declared the Prime Minister. Mr. Mackenzie King felt sure that Mr. Bennett would cooperate in upholding those ancient traditions of parliament which meant so much to its proceedings.

In the same strain, Robert Gardiner (Progressive, Acadia), speaking for the Progressive party, welcomed Mr. Bennett and voiced the appreciation of Western Canada at the choice of the Conservative party in its leader. He drew attention to the fact that Mr. Bennett represented an Alberta constituency, and declared that this fact would "probably create a very strong sentiment between Eastern and Western Canada." Mr. Gardiner entered a plea for co-operation in the House. "We are of the opinion that co-operation in parliamentary work is just as essential for the welware of the Canadian people as is co-operation in other lines of endeavor," he said.

Tribute To Guthrie.

Mr. Gardiner also paid tribute to Hon. Hugh Guthrie, who had led the Opposition in the Commons last session. "While I have not been a member of the House for very long, in the few years I have been a member, I have noticed a great difference in the temper of the House last session, primarily due to the very able leadership of the hon. member for South Wellington." Mr. Gardiner hoped that the "splendid attitude which the temporary leader assumed last year" would be adopted by the present Opposition leader.

Hon. Mr. Bennett thanked the Prime Minister and Mr. Gardiner for their congratulations. The kindly spirit to which expression had been given was characteristic of the spirit he had found in every part of Canada since last spring. No man had been more kindly received by his political opponents.

"Fearless and courageous criticism must always be tempered with constructive suggestion," he said. "and a desire that, whatever may happen, the Opposition itself may serve some useful purpose in the direction of the affairs of the country, and to that end I will devote my best energies," said Mr. Bennett. He would endeavor to discharge the duties of the difficult task which he had undertaken with a desire to be of some service to Canada, and to make it easier to conduct business than "if we took a merely partizan view for the purpose of interposing objections and opposition for its own sake."

Hon. Hugh Guthrie thanked the Prime Minister and Mr. Gardiner.

Customary Ceremonies.

Parliament opened yesterday with its customary ceremonial, and the Senate Chamber was crowded with high dignitaries of the state and of notables representing the ecclesiastical and public life of the country. The Governor-General, escorted by a troop of Lancers, was received on Parliament Hill by a guard of honor and a salute of 19 guns. Proceeding to the Red Chamber, His Excellency summoned the Commoners, and after the procession from the Lower to the Upper House, the Speech from the Throne was read. Some new legislation was forecast and the announcement made that, additional to an interchange of diplomatic representatives between Canada and France, there would be ministers appointed between this country and Japan. Some of the "more important matters" discussed at the Dominion-Provincial conference here last November would be drawn to the attention of Parliament this session. With regard to the Maritime Provinces it was recommended that the money

Immigration Shows Increase For 1927

OTTAWA, Ont. Jan. 27. Canadian Press. — Immigration to Canada for the first nine months of the current fiscal year, ending December 31, 1927, totalled 128,928, an increase over the corresponding period in 1926 of 14,893, or 13 per cent. of the total 123,928. The immigration of British United States, French, Belgian, Swiss, Scandinavian, Dutch or German origin amounted to 92,955.

In the nine months under review 33,722 Canadians returned to live in the Dominion from the United States where they had gone with the declared intention of residing there permanently.

Immigration during the month of December, 1927, totalled 4,566, of which 937 were British, 1,284 from the United States and 2,345 from other countries.

MAYOR'S FRIENDS' HOUSES BOMBED

Terrorists Open Fire On Chicago City Administration.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27. (Canadian Press).—Terrorists opened fire on the city administration today with dynamite bombs, exploding them almost simultaneously against the homes of two of Mayor of Mayor Thompson's close political aides.

One bomb, carrying an unusually large quantity of dynamite, tore away a portion of the residence of Charles Fitzmorris, City Comptroller and former Chief of Police. Other smashed windows in the home of Dr. William Reid, Commissioner of Public Service during the earlier Thompson administration. No one was injured in either explosion.

OVERCOME BY GAS.

Aylmer Street Resident Taken To Hospital But Is Recovering.

Anthony Barnett, of 64 Aylmer Street, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital at 6.30 this morning, having been overcome by gas from a furnace in his home. However, it was learned from hospital authorities this afternoon that his condition is considerably improved, and his complete recovery may be expected within a short while.

Millbrook

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26.—Mrs. H.R. Scott received formally for the first time since coming to the village to reside, on Friday, January 20, from 4 to 6 o'clock, a large number of guests taking advantage of the opportunity of making the acquaintance of the hostess, though the unfavorable state of roads and weather undoubtedly prevented many others from having their names included in the list of those who called. Receiving with Mrs. Scott, who wore a dainty dress of peach georgette, lace-trimmed, was her sister, Mrs. Campwell, of Toronto, her costume being of black and gold. Mrs. McLeod greeted the incoming guests in the hall and introduced them to Mrs. Scott and her sister. The rooms were most attractive with fragrant daffodils and carnations, softly-shaded lights and candles in silver holders, giving to the pleasant interior an added charm in delightful contrast to the wintry atmosphere out of doors. Assisting in the tea room were Mrs. Scott's mother, Mrs. Gray, of Lindsay, and Mrs. H. A. Fallis, who poured tea, while waiting upon the guests were Misses Ruth Thorndyke, Marcella and Marguerite Lang and Alvira Davis. The daintily-laid table was centred with golden daffodils bringing an impression of spring in the mid-winter season.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Lang were host and hostess for a very pleasant gathering on Friday evening, when the "Seventh Line Group," met at their home for a social time together.

This group is the one which functioned at the "church nights" last winter, the organization having been retained, and the social gatherings continued at the various homes, at intervals, ever since.

Games, contests and community singing kept everyone happily employed, the service of refreshments about midnight being only a pleasant interruption in the program of entertainment which was continued for some time afterward.

There were about fifty guests present, in spite of unfavorable weather and roads, and the gatherings will be continued at other homes connected with the group, during the winter months.

Among those who have entertained the group last season and this are: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. H. Argue, Mr. and Mrs. W. Williamson and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fallis.

Rev. F. H. and Mrs. Howard, Misses Margaret Howard and Jean Stinson motored over from Millbrook for Friday night's gathering.

Members of Millbrook Lodge, O.I.O.F. No. 308, who motored to Pontypool on Friday evening and assisted in putting on the ritual of the second degree were Messrs. J. A. Vance, D. Sheppard, E. Morden, V. R. Hunter, L. Fallis, H. A. Fallis and Arthur Fallis. The brethren from Peterborough were present and conducted the ceremony of installation.

Reeves W. T. Wood and G. Hootan and deputy-reeve R. J. McKnight are in Cobourg this week for the inaugural meeting of the Counties Council.

Miss Margaret Wood is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. B. Lefroy, in Toronto, leaving on Tuesday morning.

Miss Simpson, of Peterborough, was the guest of Councillor and Mrs. J. R. Eakins last week.

Mrs. James Dawson, of Peterborough, was the guest of Mrs. W. O'Brien, and Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Dawson last week Mrs. Dawson also visited her son, Mr Harry Dawson, Seventh Line, Cavan for a short stay.

Miss Elinor Fallis was the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vance, Franklin, over the week end.

TWO DOGS KILL NINETEEN SHEEP

CULPRITS TRACED.

Wholesale slaughter of sheep by two dogs was described to The Examiner yesterday by Humane Inspector R. C. Smith, returning from a visit to the farm of Steven Scott, on the Warsaw Road.

Several nights ago the two dogs, presumably from this city, attacked a flock of twenty-five valuable sheep in the laneway with the result that seventeen were killed outright, two were so badly mangled that it was found necessary to kill them, and two others had the ears torn off them. Mr. Scott immediately summoned Inspector Smith, who later successfully traced one of the dogs to the city.

Some time ago he suffered the loss of fourteen sheep, while the dogs blamed are identified as having killed several geese in the same district last summer.

REPORTS TO COUNTY COUNCIL

INSPECTOR LEES.

Gentlemen. I beg, respectfully, to present the following report on educational conditions in the Inspectorate of Peterborough East for the year 1927.

During the year, there were in operation 70 rural schools with 74 teachers, and four urban schools with 25 teachers. These were all visited at least twice as required by regulation of the Department of Education and a number of extra visits were made as conditions seemed to require.

Of the teachers in the rural schools, nine held first-class certificates; 64 second-class and one a permanent third-class certificate. All in the urban schools were holders of second-class certificates, with the exception of one first at No. 2, North Monaghan. The first-class certificates were distributed thus. one each in Belmont, Burleigh, Anstruther, Chandos, Douro, and Dummer, and three in Otonabee. Of male teachers there were 22, and women, 77.

Changes were not quite so numerous as in some former years, but still too numerous for sustained efficiency. Thirty-two schools changed teachers during the year and three at the end of the year in the 70 rural schools. The schools making changes were located as follows. In Asphodel, 2; Belmont and Methuen, 9; Burleigh and Anstruther, 4; Chandos, 4; Douro, 4; Dummer, 3, and Otonabee, 9. At No. 2, North Monaghan, which is considered an urban school, though technically rural, there was one change and two additional teachers were added to the staff at midsummer. At Lakefield, there were two changes. As usual, some of the changes were for the better, but in most cases, it meant the substitution of an inexperienced and untried teacher for one with experience, and, in many cases, the result was just what might be expected. In several cases, the new teachers are receiving salaries considerably lower than were paid to their predecessors. There will, however, be little gain to the sections as the reduced grants will, in most cases, almost equal the reduction in salary.

A change has been made in the Normal School regulations, by which graduates of these institutions will be required to spend a second year in training, after having had some experience, and before being granted permanent certificates. What effect this will have on the rural schools, it is difficult, at this stage, to predict. It is likely, at least, to decrease the number of qualified teachers and make it necessary again for trustees to exert themselves in order to secure properly qualified teachers. Another probable result is that most of the teachers with full Normal School course and permanent certificates, will find employment in the urban, graded schools and there will be left for the country schools, chiefly those who hold only interim certificates, with but one year's training and little experience. In view of that possibility, it may be interesting to note that of the 74 teachers, at present, employed in the rural schools of this inspectorate, exactly half hold permanent certificates.

From School Section No. 2, North Monaghan, about a hundred children have been attending the city schools, and paying only a nominal fee. At the opening of schools in September, the Board of Education of the City of Peterborough decided to exercise their right and impose a fee equal to the average cost of maintenance. The trustees of S. S. No. 2 made a compromise proposition to the city which was rejected. The ratepayers of the section then decided that it would be in the interests of education as well as of economy to provide their own accommodation. Accordingly, steps were taken for the erection of an additional school building in the section. This building was completed and opened at the beginning of the present term. It contains four class rooms, teachers' room, and well appointed basement. Three of the class rooms are now occupied. This building, which cost with the lot, in the neighborhood of $30,000, is a credit to the enterprise of the community as well as to the faithfulness of all concerned with its construction. The accommodation now available is sufficient to meet the needs of this section for the immediate future at least.

The question of attendance continues to be of the utmost importance. It matters not how efficient the teachers may be or how complete the equipment, progress is impossible if the children are not at school. For the years 1926 and 1927, according to figures in the school registers, the actual attendance at the schools of the inspectorate ranged from 75 per cent to 92 per cent of the possible. This would indicate that from 15 per cent to 20 per cent of the total expenditure for education was wasted. The waste, however, was really much greater than the figures would indicate, for the irregularity of one pupil in a class retards the progress of all the others to an extent that is difficult to estimate but is undoubtedly considerable.

There would seem to have been a slight improvement in 1927 over 1926 as the following figures show.

	Enrolled	Average	Enrolled	Average
Asphodel	201	132.6	214	151.2
Belmont and Methuen	449	266.2	415	266.5
Burleigh and Anstruther	85	52.5	86	53.2
Chandos	176	85.	178	98.3
Douro	339	217.3	330	220.2
Dummer	295	187.6	312	192.
N. Monaghan	401	258.6	483	297.2
Otonabee	485	325.8	484	338.7
Havelock	314	223.	283	234.2
Lakefield	267	179.	299	207.2
Norwood	166	136.6	156	141.

The percentage that the actual attendance was of the possible for both years is as follows.

Asphodel	82.2	83.
Belmont and Methuen	80.2	82.7
Burleigh and Anstruther	82.1	81.
Chandos	75.5	76.5
Douro	82.5	86.4
Dummer	82.	81.8
North Monaghan	85.2	89.9
Otonabee	88.2	89.7
Havelock	92.5	90.9
Lakefield	88.	91.
Norwood	89.5	90.7

The teaching of agriculture is carried on to some extent in all the schools as the new course of study now makes a minimum in this subject compulsory. Where the complete course is taken and the work formally endorsed by the trustees, expenditures incurred in this connection are refunded from a grant made by the legislature for this purpose. It is matter for regret that there are still a few trustee boards that refuse this endorsation. In these cases, the work is hampered by the lack of necessary equipment.

The work of the local Department of Agriculture, in connection with the school fairs, is worthy of high commendation. Recent extensions have made it possible to include all the schools in the southern part of the county. There is probably some hope that, in the near future, it may be possible to extend this privilege to the schools of the northern townships as well.

INSPECTOR DOWNEY.

Gentlemen. I have the honour of presenting my annual report for your consideration.

During the year all the schools have been visited twice and additional visits have been made to some of them. Early in September I made a hurried call to several of my schools—especially to those where inexperienced teachers were beginning their work. An endeavour was made to assist in the organization of the classes, to suggest improvements in the time-table and to help the teacher out of any other difficulties which gave her trouble.

All the schools of Peterborough West have been kept open during the past year under fully qualified teachers. In view of the higher qualifications of the teachers, improvement is noticeable in the character of the teaching and in the proficiency of the pupils. On the other hand, in my judgment, too many teachers fail to give pupils sufficient opportunity to really think things out for themselves. The new course of study makes provision for supervised seat work, where boys and girls are expected to grapple with real problems which have been assigned by the teacher. Here, too, they should find time and opportunity to do some independent reading and thinking. Teachers are expected to provide for these study periods on their own time-tables.

Often, too, young, inexperienced teachers find difficulty in disciplining their schools. They need the encouragement of the trustees in maintaining good discipline. Local interference, petty jealousies in the section and the general irresponsibility of children to authority all tend to make the teacher's task more trying and difficult. If children were made to obey at home, the teacher might find less trouble in managing her school.

Over 50 per cent of the teachers of West Peterborough sought a change of school during the year. Better results would come from an uninterrupted service covering several years in the same school. Trustees are urged to endeavour to retain the service of capable and efficient teachers.

As pointed out last year, I strongly recommend trustees to insist on personal applications when vacancies are to be filled in their schools. Trustees should make careful investigation as to applicant's success in her former school, if she has taught at all. Especially should enquiry be made as to her ability to discipline her pupils, and as to her capability to fit into the rural life of the section. A teacher who flits every Friday evening till Monday morning is not a good prospect for a rural school. To find the best teacher available for a particular school is a serious problem for trustees; to have found her will bring incalculable benefits to the section; when such a teacher is found her services should be retained.

Too many young, inexperienced teachers, in many cases, endeavour to secure positions where they really prove misfits. During the past fall, several of my beginners have practically failed because of their inability to control their schools.

As was pointed out last year, teachers are very often seriously handicapped in their work by the continued irregularity of certain pupils in the section. To establish a high standard of efficiency all pupils must be regular in attendance and diligent in their studies. A comparison of the aggregate and possible attendance of the pupils reveals some rather startling situations. Parents, teacher, attendance officer and inspector must be impressed with the importance of this point, and a united campaign must be waged against irregularity of attendance. I often wonder whether the attendance officer recognizes the responsibility of his important office.

No new buildings have been erected during the past year, but I am hopeful that some of the trustees are beginning to realize that the old, out-of-date buildings will soon need replacing. A few of the schools have been painted and re-decorated. Very little has been undertaken towards beautifying the school grounds. The trustees of two or three sections are making inquiries as to the advisability of improving the closets—even to the extent of installing inside the school buildings. Those in control of the school affairs cannot be too careful of the health of the pupils. To my mind this is foundational and fundamental. The school nurse and the school doctor make a real contribution where they are given an opportunity to serve.

Some of the schools in my inspecorate are fairly well equipped in maps, charts, and in good libraries; some are not. I wish to point out again that the Education Department makes a special grant to boards of trustees who expend at least ten dollars in books during any year. Peterborough Collegiate Institute, Lakefield High School, Ennismore, Bobcaygeon and Kinmount Continuation Schools offer High School work to those desirous of taking it. These schools accept the boys and girls who succeed in passing the entrance examinations from year to year and a large percentage of our entrance candidates were again successful last June.

In addition to the opportunities available for High School work as mentioned above, a few Public Schools are attempting to carry on High School work in fifth classes locally. Many trustees seem to think that they need not support fifth classes in their Public Schools. This is a mistake. If pupils who have passed the entrance examinations present themselves for instruction, the trustees must make provision for the work and the teacher must teach it, unless the school is situated in a High School area. The Education Department looks to the inspector to see that this work is undertaken and the regulations covering this branch of education are observed.

The work in agriculture in the schools merits my recommendation. The importance of this subject is growing and the prejudices of trustees and ratepayers are fast disappearing. Pupils enjoy the work in agriculture and manifest a deep interest in the school fair of their community. The exhibits at the school fairs last fall were creditable and, in many cases, the competition was keen. Pupils were often heard to comment on the merits of the prize-winning exhibits.

I attended as many of the school fairs in my inspectorate last fall as possible and here I found an opportunity to meet personally many of the trustees and ratepayers of the inspectorate and also the parents and friends of the children. The District Representative always gave me an opportunity to say a few words to those present.

Let me mention a noteworthy feature in Victoria County growing out of the school fairs—the bringing together of the junior and senior champion school fair orator for a final competition in Lindsay Collegiate Institute. This was a big event for the orators, their parents and their friends. Splendid addresses were given by the contestants and the cause of agriculture received a real stimulus by the young folk. This plan might prove worthwhile for Peterborough County.

During the past year the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation was duly observed in the schools of Peterborough County (West). Not only did the teachers stress the historical parts connected with the Diamond Jubilee, but also did the inspector take occasion to further emphasize the work done by the teachers. Then, too, there was the presenting of medals to all those boys and girls who contributed in any way to the public demonstrations which were held in the larger centres. Nor can I pass over the essay contest conducted throughout the inspectorate to find the four best informed Public School pupils on "The History of Confederation." These four winning contestants received suitable medals for their splendid achievements.

CLOCK PRESENTED MILLBROOK PEOPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Robison Are Leaving Village—Surprise Party Held.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 27. — A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Robison, Millbrook, on Monday night, when friends and neighbors gathered with them as a surprise to spend the evening before leaving for their new home. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Robison were presented with a mantel clock and pipe. Mr. William O'Brian and Mr. W. Belch made the presentation, and the following address was read by Mr. Joe Thompson:

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Robison,—

"Having learned with regret that you are soon leaving our community, we, a few of your neighbors and friends, have gathered here this evening to show to you the high esteem in which you are held in our midst.

"During your short stay in this neighborhood we have always found in you a good neighbor, always ready and willing to lend a helping hand in time of trouble. We have always appreciated the kindness and hospitality shown us in your home. As a token of respect, we ask you to accept this mantel clock and pipe.

"The wish of all is that you may be long spared to enjoy them, and hope they will be a constant reminder of your friends in Millbrook.

Mr. Robison made a suitable reply on behalf of Mrs. Robison and himself, thanking the neighbors for their beautiful gifts which had been presented.

All joined in singing, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," after which a social time was spent by those present.

Winter temperatures low enough to freeze mercury have been recorded as far south as Colorado, Nebraska and Wisconsin.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM C. TULLY.

OMEMEE, Jan. 27.—The funeral of the late William C. Tully was held on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 18, from the home of his sister, Mrs. Isabella Magee, Victoria street, Omemee. The service was conducted by the Rev. A. T. Weir, rector of the Anglican Church, who read as a Scripture lesson the 90th Psalm and spoke from the words in the first verse, "Lord, Thou hast been our refuge from one generation to another." At the close of this service the members of the Masonic Order, of which the deceased was a member, took charge of the funeral and the remains were tenderly laid in their last resting-place in Emily Cemetery by the following brethren: Messrs. Henry Bradley, L. A. Southworth, Robert J. Grandy, Abram Laidley, Hugh Murray and W. J. Thorn.

The late Mr. Tully, who had not been enjoying the best of health for some time, passed away suddenly at the Canadian General Electric plant, Peterborough, on Monday morning, Jan. 16. He was born and spent his early life and manhood in Omemee. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Tully, whose home stood on the ground where Coronation Hall now stands. When a young man he was mployed as clerk in Mr. McNeely's general store, after which he moved to Peterborough where he opened up a grocery store, which business he conducted successfully for many years. His wife, who was Miss Minnie Lamb, of Omemee, predeceased him fourteen years ago, and since that time he has made numerous visits to his home town, where he had many warm friends. In religion the deceased was a Presbyterian.

He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Bick of Bobcaygeon, Mrs. Junkin of Fenelon Falls, Mrs. Isabella Magee of Omemee; also one brother, Mr. James Tully of Toronto, and to these is extended the deep sympathy of a host of friends.

Many floral tributes were placed around the casket by loving relatives and friends.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. James Tully, of Toronto; Mrs. Bick, Sr., and Mrs. W. E. Bick. Jr., of Bobcaygeon; Mr. Randolph Junkin, Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Junkin, Sr., of Fenelon Falls; Mrs. Thomas, of Red Rock; Mrs. J. B. Capstick, of Lindsay; Mr. William Corneil and Mr. S. Richardson, of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Melville Elliott, of Orange Corners; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Murray and Miss Muriel Morrison, of Peterborough.

MRS. GEORGE RAY.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 27. — The funeral of the late Mrs. George Ray took place from her late residence, Reid street, on Thursday afternoon, at 1.30, and proceeded to the Lakefield cemetery.

Rev. S. A. Kemp, pastor of the Regent street United Church, of which the deceased lady had been a member during her residence in Lakefield, conducted the funeral service.

Mrs. Ray was a resident of the village for more than twenty years and had made many friends who regret her passing, and who will long remember her alert energy and her willingness to lend a helping hand when need aose.

DAVID H. GREENLEY.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 27. —On Thursday morning one of Havelock's most highly respected citizens passed into the great beyond in the person of David Henry Greenley, in his 57th year.

The decaesed, who had been ill only a week from pneumonia, was born in Warkworth, but of the past eighteen years has resided in town and vicinity. In 1928 he married Miss Jean Langford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Langford, of Magnêtawan. He was a member of Knox Presbyterian church and also a member of the Havelock Lodge, A.F. & A.M. No. 435, under whose auspices the funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon. Besides his wife there are left to mourn his loss his mother, Mrs. Sarah Greenley, one daughter, Edith, and one son, Philip, two sisters, Mrs. Agnes Russell of town, and Mrs. Fred Scott. of Trent River; three brothers, Matthew of town, Charles of Brighton and George of Toronto.

IT TAKES ALL-BRAN TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

More and more people are eating bran for "health's sake" these days. And it's a fine thing. But not everybody realizes what a difference there is in so-called "brans." Doctors say it takes 100% bran to supply enough roughage to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best. can only be partly effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. It does a work part-bran products cannot hope to equal. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN often. With milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's though—in the red-and-green package. Use it in cooking. Sprinkle into soups. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in London. Ontario.

FRIDAY; JANUARY 27, 1928.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

There is every reason to expect that the County Council will recognize the claim of the Children's Aid Society for a substantial grant as legitimate and deserving of every consideration.

The Society has the power to collect 75c a day from either county or city as the case may be for each child under its care, and also an additional amount covering some of its overhead, but it has never chosen to exert its power, preferring to trust to the sense of justice of the municipality authorities, and to the certainty that the worthiness of the work carried on would appeal to the generosity of the general public.

This course has been vindicated each year by the passing of grants by the City and County Councils and by a worthwhile response on the occasion of the annual tag day, and it is not expected that there will be any difference during the present year, although the expense of the Society's activities continues to increase.

The work carried on by the Children's Aid Society is one that is most necessary and desirable.

It has opened the door of hope to many children whose prospects in life appeared to be dark as night, and this reclamation of unfortunate and neglected youngsters is a most valuable community effort that deserves support.

KEEP THE GOO. .CHERS.

School trustees should not overlook the significance of the emphasis placed by County School Inspectors Richard Lees and R. F. Downey on the desirability of endeavouring to retain the services of capable teachers.

It is noticeable that both Inspectors in their annual reports to the County Council stress this point and view with some concern the frequent changes made in the schools within their jurisdiction.

Mr. Lees reports that in thirty-two schools in Peterborough East teachers were changed during the year, with three more changes at the end of the year, and adds that while this condition is not quite as bad as that of the previous year, the shift in personnel were "too numerous for sustained efficiency."

Mr. Downey, Inspector for Peterborough West, states that there were new teachers appointed in over 50 per cent. of the schools in that district.

He, too, maintains that better results would come from an uninterrupted service, and urges that trustees should endeavor to retain the services of capable and efficient teachers.

Of the wisdom of such advice there is not the least doubt.

What they are doing amounts to a considerable waste of public funds, as it is impossible to get full value for the money expended if rural schools are compelled to try out new teachers each year instead of keeping those who have proved their worth.

STOP THE SLAUGHTER.

In regard to the slaughter of Rice Lake fish to which The Examiner referred the other night and which Reeve Rye of North Monaghan strongly condemned in a speech to the County Council, it is evident that the only remedy lies in a change in the regulations.

At present neither the taking of pickerel through the ice nor the sale of these fish, so long as they are at least fifteen inches in length, is illegal under the Ontario game and fisheries laws.

Is it desirable that this condition should be allowed to continue?

Is it in the general interest that fish should be killed by the tow during the winter when it is certain that such wholesale slaughter is bound to interfere seriously with the supply and harm the fishing that offers so much pleasure to our people in the summer, and is a magnet that brings many thousands dollars of tourist money into the district each year?

There are many citizens who believe that fishing through the ice should be prohibited, and that the closed season for pickerel should be the same as that for maskinonge and bass, i.e., from the 1st day of December to the 30th day of June following, both days inclusive, inasmuch as it is undoubtedly the case that numbers of these game fish are killed during the taking of pickerel.

Organizations like the Trent Waterway Development Association and the Fish and Game Protective Association should give this matter some earnest attention.

THE SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

The Speech from the Throne delivered at the opening of Parliament yesterday was a variation from the usual form, inasmuch as it contained a more complete outline of the legislation to be expected during the session than is generally the case.

Often indeed the Speech is more notable for what it does not say than for what it says.

Important announcements made in yesterday's Speech included a statement that Canada is to send Ministers to France and to Japan. The appointing of a legation to France had been foreshadowed, but Ottawa advices in regard to the sending of a Minister to Japan left the impression that such an appointment was not being considered.

The attitude of the opposition to this particular question will be awaited with some interest.

The Government proposes also to continue the money grants made to the Maritime Provinces last session until the financial arrangements recommended by the Duncan report are completed.

Negotiations are to be continued with the Provinces in regard to the return of natural resources; railway problems of the various Provinces are to be considered; trade treaties with "certain former countries are to be submitted to Parliament; the Departments of Health and Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment are to be amalgamated in a single department, that of National Health and Veterans' Welfare, and other matters of importance are to be introduced.

The session promises to be one of unusual interest, even if the St. Lawrence waterway, the tariff changes, and Hon. Charles Marcil's resolution in regard to Mexico are not mentioned in the Speech.

"DRINKING" EVIDENCE.

Jury service being no great sport at best, the Los Angeles judge who has assailed jurors for "drinking" the evidence perhaps carries zeal too far. Apparently the pint bottle placed before the nine jurors in the case in question came before them as an exhibit in evidence. They owned to consuming the pint, but contended that they did this with worthy and warrantable motive. They felt it their duty to study the exhibit, supposing as they did that it had been brought them for that purpose, and that it was not made just to look at. Besides, they left the bottle.

Had not the jurors consumed the contents some suspicion might have lingered in their minds that it contained something for which the accused ought to go to jail. Having actually consumed, the jurors felt satisfied—of the contrary—and acquitted. It apparently weighed strongly with them that the stuff, whatever it might contain, was smooth, mellow and innocent of even so little as a headache to the gallon.

Some may profess to see in the judge's objection to this proceeding a covert attack on the jury system, which protects us against the excesses of judicial literalism. This may do him an injustice. He may have felt, perfectly sincerely, that the jury should have left the disposal of the pint of whatever it might be to the Court. And on this point he might offer a plausible argument. For with the Court rests the interpretation of the law bearing on the case, and an adequate study of the contents of the pint bottle, or of an appreciable portion thereof, might have helped the Court to decide whether the legal prohibition of more than a certain percentage of alcohol should apply in this instance.

The jurors, considering this side of the matter, might wisely have left enough to save the Court from repeating the despairing cry of Juliet: "What, churl, and left'st no kindly drop for me?" As but a pint of the evidence existed, this is perhaps a counsel of perfection. Two bottles, rather than one, would no doubt best serve the interests of justice as apparently administered in Los Angeles.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

A BRITISH APOSTLE.

Leopold Charles Maurice Stennett Amery, Ottawa's distinguished guest this week, is one of those widely-read, widely-travelled indefatigable Englishmen of insatiable curiosity who have carried British name and influence all over the face of the earth. Journalist, author, lawyer, soldier and politician, Amery has done most everything, been mostly everywhere, knows nearly everybody in the world worth knowing, and appears to know something about everything.

Mr. Amery started life with an Oxford education, no money, and a reporter's note book. He was a good reporter. Father Vaughan, the noted Jesuit, once said that if he were a street cleaner, he would sweep so conscientiously and so cleanly that everybody would say, "come and see Vaughan's corner." Amery is like that. He was such a good news gatherer that in 1899 the Times put him in charge of its war correspondence in South Africa; and Amery emerged from that job (he was studying law the while) with a seven-volume history of the Boer War and a book on "The Problems of the Army."

Next came politics. Conservatism, demoralized by the debacle of 1906, wanted fighters; and Amery could fight. He wrote and fought and talked; turned out leaflets; produced a book on the "Fallacies of Free Trade;" got beaten in three by-elections within three years; failed a fourth time; was victorious in Birminghom, finally. Then came the war. Amery got into that; was in Flanders, Salonika and the Balkans; got mentioned in despatches; was summoned home to take a responsible post. It was a post in the Coalition that had thrown over Asquith for Lloyd George; and later on, when Lloyd George was thrown over by the Torries for Bonar Law, and Law carried the 1922 election, Amery became First Lord of the Admiralty.

Today he is Secretary of State for the Dominions. It is a post vastly different from the old portfolio of Secretary of State for the Colonies; different problems, issues. But Amery knows his work. There isn't a part of the Empire that he hasn't visited. He was in India years ago, and has just been back there. He was in Canada more than twenty years ago; went up to the Hudson Bay, and wrote a book about it; broke his leg in the Rockies.

Amery, in fact, knows Canada better than most Canadians. He married a Canadian girl—a sister of Sir Hamar Greenwood—; has travelled over the Dominion from Halifax to Vancouver; knows all about our problems and our people.

Under medium height, but with square shoulders and an aggressive jaw, Amery looks more a pugilist than a politician. And he can fight with his fists as well as with his pen and tongue. He once blooded the nose of a Laborite in the House; has been in fist fights on the hustings; climbs mountains; fond of a trip on skis. On the platform he is more efficient than pleasing. With a wide knowledge, an amazing memory, and a pugnacious style, he is one of Baldwin's best skirmishers on the hustings. He may never be Prime Minister of England; but he will always be a considerable factor in England's public life.—Ottawa Journal.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—Trade was almost at a complete standstill yesterday morning, with a carry over of about 60 cattle from the earlier markets. Buyers were apparently not interested and there was practically no bidding. Sellers in most cases decided to hold their cattle, on the chances of a better market at next week's opening.

Prices were steady and unchanged from Wednesday's declines, averaging 50c to 75c on all grades, excepting a small proportion of light butcher steers, heifers and baby beeves. These latter have been in good demand all week.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, January 27 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in wheat here yesterday was dull owing to the indifferent attitude of buyers in the United Kingdom and the Continent. Locally there was a steady demand from country buyers for car lots of oats and the market in this respect was a little more active. The undertone was firm.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained under a good demand. A moderate amount of business was done in standard grades of rolled oats and values were unchanged.

The trade in potatoes was a little more active, and the tone of the market was firm. Sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were made at $1.20 per bag of 90 pounds; Prince Edward Island White potatoes at $1.15 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk; New Brunswick White potatoes at $1.05 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, and Quebec varieties at 95c to $1.00 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

There was no change in prices for imported beans and a moderate trade was done in car lots of choice white hand-picked at $2.80 per bushel ex-track, and smaller quantities at $2.90 per bushel, ex-store.

The volume of business transacted in butter showed no improvement, but the undertone was steady. The receipts were 243 packages.

The cheese trade was dull and without any new feature to note owing to the fact that there was practically no demand from any source for supplies. Prices were unchanged. The receipts were 66 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, January 27 (Canadian Press). — Owing largely to the Canadian Government crop report showing 4,000,000 bushels decrease of wheat yield compared with the latest previous estimate, wheat values overaged higher yesterday. On the other hand, prospects of a liberal run of corn next week pulled down the corn market yesterday at the last.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ¼c to ½c net higher, corn ¼c to ⅝c off, oats unchanged to ¼c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 12 cents.

Most wheat traders here had been expecting an increase rather than a reduction in the Canadian estimate of wheat yield. Moreover, according to some authorities the new Canadian official crop figures indicate that there is only 66,000,000 bushels of wheat at present in the hands of Canadian farmers, including 25,000,000 bushels still unthreshed.

Unabated dryness and low temperatures in domestic winter wheat territory contributed also to firmness of the wheat market, notice being generally taken that there is practically an entire absence of snow protection everywhere.

Corn developed much weakness in the late trade, sellers counting on big receipts for at least the next week or so. Commission house buying, which earlier was much in evidence, faded away and left the market without adequate support. The early demand was based a good deal on the announcement of corn export business yesterday amounting to about 200,000 bushels. Oats were governed by the action of corn.

Provisions turned downward on account of selling for cash interests and because of liberal arrivals of hogs.

Dr. Frank Crane's Daily Editorial

A GOOD MOVE FROM A BAD MOVER.

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

It offered to destroy her own land, sea and air forces provided other nations would do the same.

It seems all right to make cautious moves in the direction of peace, but when somebody comes right out with a definite proposal to abandon war entirely that is another matter.

At the same time let us put this proposition down to the credit of Russia. Even the devil should have his due. We have all lambasted Russia enough for various things, but when she does good we ought to compliment her.

We will say that our only regret was that this Russian proposition did not come from the United States.

War will never cease until some nation thoroughly prepared for war, if it should come, says to the other nations of the world, "I will quit if you will."

The only trouble with Russia's proposition is that it comes from a nation thoroughly discredited, a nation that is too poor to go to war and a nation whose other proposals were regarded as not being in good faith.

But it is a good proposal just the same, and what a forward step would have been taken if Great Britain and France had said, in effect, that Russia's idea was a good one and they would join in!

Other nations may have begrudged giving Russia the credit for beginning universal peace, but that is an unworthy feeling, for what does the credit amount to provided we get the goods? The idea is a good one, whatever source it comes from.

This world would spring forward with an enormous bound toward prosperity and universal welfare, it would make the greatest move for progress ever made in history if all nations simultaneously would agree never to go to war and not to get ready for war.

Simply to cross war off as one of the possibilities of the future would mean eliminating the limit to economical prosperity and all the world will advance as it never has advanced before.

EXPLOITATION OF MINES IS NEEDED

Should Be Forced On Backward Countries, Says Wisconsin Geologist.

KINGSTON, Jan. 25.— (Canadian Press.) — That the exploitation of mineral resources of backward countries was a necessary thing, is the view expressed by Prof. C. K. Leith, of the University of Wisconsin, who is conducting a series of lectures at Queen's University under the Dr. W. G. Miller Memorial Foundation. He even suggested political pressure if commercial exploitation failed.

Prof. Leith, who is recognized as one of the outstanding geologists of the continent, states that a big factor in the mining situation is the inter-dependence of all countries in connection with the supply of the essential minerals. He does not expect to see any country or group of countries oust the North Atlantic countries such as England, Germany, and the United States, from their control of the mining industry. He has little fear of the yellow peril for the points out that the Far Eastern countries have not a sufficient supply of the essential minerals to carry on a protracted struggle against western nations.

The visiting geologist expressed his approval of the attitude taken by Canada in extending extreme freedom to outside countries in exploiting its resources.

CALIFORNIA LURE.

At the first it was gold which incited the pioneer-adventurer to round the Horn or take the trail of the covered wagon. There was gold to be discovered, gold to be claimed, gold to be possessed. One man stumbled over it, another saw it and the two words "gold" and "California" rang throughout the world. From the genesis of known Californian history the stream of humanity pouring into its borders steadily increased. As it increased, transportation demands became greater until now, when Royal trains may cater to the eager numbers with ease and comfort. Teck Hughes Leads Drop On Mine Market To-day

TORONTO, January 27. — Canadian Press. — Renewed weakness in Teck Hughes led the market downward again this morning on the Standard Mining Exchange. Teck began the day at 9.15, up 10c, but broke to 8.40 and at noon was selling at 8.60, a loss of 45 points. The majority of the issues started firm, but weakened when Teck fell off. Kirkland Lake,, after touching 2.40, was carried down to 2.30. McIntyre fimed around 28.00 and Wright Hargreaves held steady at 5.65. Noranda fell back below 21.00 for a loss of 30 points. Mining Corporation softened to 4.90 and Gold Hill, Bidgood and Barry Hollinger all eased at 30, 90 and 93. Howey was a strong spot, gaining 6 points at 1.57, then falling off slightly. Pioneer was firmer at 57½. In the newer stocks, Treadwell Yukon climbed sharply to 30.50, a gain of two dollars. Hudson Bay Smelting gained 50 at 21.50. Sudbury and Sherritt each lost five but Towagmac sold up 25 at 3.65. Trading was not much below the million share mark.

Upward Movement Resumed At New York

NEW YORK, January 27 (Canadian Press). — The recovery in stock prices continued with increased vigor to-day as pools resumed operations in a wide assortment of industrials and specialties. Early gains in many instances ran from three to nearly twelve points, with more than a score of issues lifted to new high levels since 1926, or longer. Trading showed a substantial increase in volume. With fears of an increase in the New York Federal Reserve Bank re-discount rate allayed, at least for another week, and the increase in brokers' loans relatively insignificant, speculators for the advance resumed their operations with confidencfe. The money market, however, showed a slightly firmer undertone. Call money renewed unchanged at four per cent., but the banks called about $30,000,000 in loans, presumably for out of town accounts. The time money and commercial paper were slightly higher.

Toronto Market Firm In Lighter Trading

TORONTO, Jan. 27. — (Canadian Press.)— Marked firmness was shown in the regular list on the Toronto stock exchange to-day, but some easiness crept into the unlisted stocks in lighter trading. British American Oil suffered a fractional loss at 37¾. International Petroleum at 39 5-8 was also fractionally lower. A jump of seven points in Loblaw at 115 was the outstanding gain of the morning. Smelters sold up three at 286 and Dominion Stores advanced four at 123, while Brompton gained more than three points at 66¼. International Nickel touched 100, a point higher than yesterday, and eased back only an eighth at noon. Seagrams, the active leader, was steady. In the liquors, Walkers and Carlings eased fractionally. Northern Bakeries on a big turnover gained 1 1-8 at 48 7-8 and Tobacco was steady at 10.

Corn Moves Higher While Wheat Falls

CHICAGO, Jan. 27. — (Canadian Press.)—Activity and strength developed in the corn market early to-day, whereas wheat inclined downward. Good export business in Corn was apparently in progress and official estimates were current that sixty per cent of all the Kansas corn which will be sold has already been shipped. Opening unchanged to ½c. higher, Corn subsequently scored a general advance. Wheat started ¼ to ½c. off and held at about the initial figures. Oats were easy. Opening prices were:

Wheat, March 129 5-8, May 130. Corn, March 86 7-8, May 89 7-8. Oats, March unquoted, May 54⅜.

GOOD PROGRAM FOR KIWANIS

Address, Humor, and Typewriting Exhibition Given at Noon To-day.

COUNTY COUNCIL PRESENT.

A splendid address by the Rev. Fred Mallott, Kiwanian, of Belleville, a few minutes of humor with Jack Primeau, and an astounding mastery of the typewriter exhibited by Miss Irma Wright, Canadian champion and world's amateur champion, were features of the regular weekly luncheon of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club at the Empress Hotel today. Prepared by the educational committee of the club, the day's program was one of especial merit and was accorded complete approval of every member or friend of the club present.

The luncheon today was graced by the presence of the Warden and Council of the County of Peterborough ,as well as many other guests from distant points and in so successfully entertaining them all the local Kiwanians afforded them a bigger and better conception of what Kiwanis stands for.

Among those present were Warden M. Smithson of Otonabee; Councillors J. Scott of Asphodel; F. Breckenridge of Belmont and Methuen; V. Windsor of Burleigh and Anstruther; A. Caldwell of Chandos; James Hawthorne of Dummer; John Leahy of Douro; T. Cavanagh of Ennismore; John Clarke of Galway and Cavendish; H. B. Parker of Harvey; H. V. Rye and W. Waterman of North Monaghan; F. McIntyre of Otonabee; J. A. Middleton and H. Coons of Smith; C. Tanner of Lakefield; W. H. Montgomery of Norwood; W. T. Curtis of Havelock. A. S. Baetz, manager of the local branch of the Underwood Typewriters; Miss Irma Wright, Canadian Champion Typist of Toronto; Mrs. J. R. McKone of Peterborough; Miss T. J. Hurley of Peterborough Business College, and Fred Jarrett, former typing champion, of Toronto. His Honor Judge Huycke; R. H. McCartney of Cornwall; James Hawthorne of Warsaw; B. A. Reid of Peterborough; Jack Primeau of Peterborough; C. M. Fellows, and Robert C. Muir of the Highways Department, Toronto; W. C. Beemer of the Bell Telephone Company.

Rev. Fred Mallott.

"Kiwanis is a Training School for Citizenship" was the subject of Rev. Fred Mallott's address, which proved a most inspiring discourse.

"This month we have been observing the thirteenth anniversary of Kiwanis, but there are still some men in whose mind there lingers the question, 'What is Kiwanis?'

"The traditional explanation grows out of a little meeting of Detroit business men who had gathered for social intercourse from which they conceived the idea of extending their circle. While visiting in Montreal, one of their number, in conversation with an Indian, had learned of the word Kiwanis, which means 'We Build,' and since that time 'We Build' has been the motto of this great service organization which has grown up.

"What do we build? Kiwanis builds men, selecting its material as carefully as the sculptor chooses his material, and many a man has been developed along lines, talents for which he had not realized possession of until joining his club.

"Kiwanis is a training school for citizenship, for in regular schools of training there is no provision for this. All that is at present required of a citizen is that he be twentyl-one years of age and a number of other minor requirements and this should not be. Democracy is dangerous unless those in power are public spirited and educated to believe that citizenship is something to be prized. We should thank God that we are alive and living in Canada.

The need of Canada is 100 per cent Canadians. To be an ideal citizen of Canada, a man should be intelligent, know something of the Canada in which he lives, and should cherish the good, old-fashioned virtue of Honesty. He should also be loyal, observing the laws of the land as they should be obeyed. Kiwanis is building men along these lines and Peterborough should be better for having a club, and Canada for the dozens of clubs within her boundaries. Business integrity, service to humanity, friendship and good citiship. All these things Kiwanis stands for. The speaker closed by extending the greetings of the Belleville club.

Warden Smithson

Warden Smithson, on behalf of the County Council expressed appreciation of that body for the privilege of attending the club annually and bespoke his belief that there is plenty of room for many more such clubs.

AMERY ANSWERS MANY QUESTIONS

Says Lloyd George, Seeking Political Capital in His Speeches.

MONTREAL, Jan. 27. — Canadian Press. — Chatting informally with a group of Montreal newspaper men here to-day, Lieut. Colonel the Right Hon. L. C. S. Emery, British Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, answered a wide range of questions."A fine dignified ceremony" was his comment on the opening of the Federal Parliament at Ottawa yesterday, which he saw for the first time.

His attention drawn to recent cabled criticisms made by Mr. Lloyd George of a speech made in Canada by Col. Amery, he said that "Mr. Lloyd George is evidently anxious to snatch some party capital. He had better wait until he reads my speeches more fully."

Mr. Amery had not heard of any protests from the United States in regard to British preferential tariffs working against the United States shipping but pointed out that it was impossible for British ships to enter the steamer traffic between for instance Hawaii and San Francisco."

DIRIGIBLE LEAVES ON ALL-DAY FLIGHT

Los Angeles Sets Out From Lakehurst For Training Trip.

LAKEHURST N. J. Jan. 27. Canadian Press. — The navy dirigible Los Angeles took off from its training station here at four o'clock this morning on a training flight that was expected to keep the ship in the air all day.

Aviator Arrested For Breach of Flying Laws Wanted For Larceny.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. Jan. 27. — Canadian Press. — Release from the New Haven County Jail, was sought to-day for Bert Acousta, the renowned pilot, who was sentenced yesterday to serve five days behind the bers for violation of the state aircraft laws. A warrant charging him with the larceny of the plane 'Splitdorf' from Teterboro, N. J., flying field was left with the jail authorities last night by New Jersey officers. This will be served on the flier when he leaves the jail.

Bets Underwriters He Will Live 10 Years

SALINA, Kansas, Jan. 27. — Caandian Press. — A person living on "borrowed time" can extend his credit by activity, W. Watson, an eighty year old capitalist, said to-day, as he told how he expected to win a $100,000 bet with an insurance company that he will live five years longer and probably ten. In his latest venture, he accepted an insurance proposition, paying $100,000, for which he will receive "$1500 a month as long as he lives." "As I have arranged to live ten years longer I will have $100,000 back in five years and for the next five will receive $50.00 a day profit," he says.

HICKMAN SPOILS LAWYER'S PLANS

Defies Them To Keep Him Off Stand to Tell His Own Story.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.— (Canadian Press.)—William Hickman upset the plans of his defense attorneys today, defied them to keep him off the witness stand, and declared that in the face of their opposition he would tell to the jury his story of the killing of Marian Parker.

Discussing with his lawyers the programme for the third day of the hearing on his plea of "not guilty by reason of insanity," the youth who has confessed the kidnapping and killing of the twelve-year-old girl, announced his own plan which his counsel, Jerome Walsh and Richard Cantillon, said would seriously hamper the defense.

"We do not want Hickman to take the witness stand in view of his insanity defense and we have told him so," said Walsh. "Of course, if he is determined to talk we cannot stop him. Such a move would seriously injure the defense plans."

W. I. MEETS FEB. 1

Place of Meeting of Mount Pleasant Branch Has Been Changed.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Jan. 27.—The February meeting of the Women's Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. Hubert Gardiner on Wednesday, Feb. 1, at 2.30, with Mrs. Norman Fee and Miss Finley responsible for the program, and Mrs. Garnet Shield and Miss Finley to assist with the refreshments.

This meeting has been changed owing to the illness of Mrs. John Handley, at whose home it was to have been held.

IBANEZ ILL.

Noted Spanish Author, Now In Exile, is in Critical Condition.

MENTONE, France, Jan. 27. Canadian Press. — Vincent Blasco Ibanez, noted Spanish author, is seriously ill here at his villa.. He is suffering from a grave complication of broncho pneumonia and diabetes. The condition of the author, who is now in exile from his native land because of his opposition to the present political regime, is regarded as critical, and several physicians have been called to his bedside.

CHURCH CHANGES GOVERNING BOARD

George Street United Church Names Session of 28 Members at Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of George Street United Church was held on Wednesday evening. In spite of the storm there was a large gathering of the people to hear the reports of the various organizations for the past nine months.

A strong note of optimism was the most noticeable feature of the many reports presented, practically all showing a marked increase over the same period the preceding year. During the year the new Sunday School building was completed and opened for use, providing ample accommodation for the multitude of activities carried on there through the week. In view of this new memorial Sunday School the people have been called on for increased contributions to which they have responded in large measure.

A departure was made from the form of government under which George Street Church has heretofore carried on its business. A recommendation was presented to the congregation from the official board by G. L. Carruthers, the recording steward, that hereafter a committee to be called the Session, composed of twenty-eight members, and a committee called the Stewards, composed of eight members, undertake the management of the interests of the church. After S. R. Armstrong had very briefly explained the entire workings of the new form of government, it was enthusiastically adopted by a standing vote of the congregation.

A motion was presented by A. Mowat, seconded by H. G. Walker, expressing appreciation for the services of the minister, Rev. J. E. Todd, both in and out of the pulpit; also expressing the wish that the pastoral relation might continue, as it was felt that the best work of his ministry was still to be. This motion was heartily endorsed by the meeting.

There were a couple of musical numbers delightfully rendered, Mr. G. F. Liddle at the piano; a duet by Mrs. G. F. Liddle and Mr. G. D. Carlisle; also a solo by Mr. Carlisle. Rev. J. E. Todd was chairman of the meeting.

After the business session a social hour was spent, light refreshments being served by the Ladies' Aid. The evening closed by all joining in the singing of the Doxology.

For the first time in more than 200 years visitors to the old Cooper's Hall, London, are not being received by a man named Boyer, the last of that name to serve as clerk, E. Lawrence Boyer, having died at the age of 70, recently.

SKETCHES SHOWN AT CONSERVATORY

Miss Jane Hatton Exhibits Drawings Made in Canada, England, and France.

An exhibit of water-color sketches made by Miss Jane Hatton during several years spent abroad, opened yesterday in the studio, at the Conservatory of Music, under the auspices of the Women's Art Association and will continue until tomorrow evening.

Prior to Miss Hatton's departure for the Old Country, she visited in British Columbia, and while there, studied with Madame Uhthoff of Victoria. Later, in England, she also studied with Edward M. Neatby, R.M.S., A.R.C.A. The sketches shown, comprising a large number of unframed, mounted water-color pictures which are hung on the walls of the studio at the Conservatory, were taken while in British Columbia, in England, and in France. They are distinguished mainly for a very attractive use of soft color, a fine sense of perspective and a pleasing atmospheric quality that is noticeable in the reproductions of trees and isolated bits of landscape beauty, like the little sketch of the snow-clad peaks called "The Lions," near Vancouver, and the picture of "Heather," with its soft mauves, blue and greens.

The treatment of trees is very good. "An Old Timer" is the captivating title of an aged Douglas fir, standing up, staunch and sturdy, against the sky-line. There is a splash of softly vivid color in the yellow broom that encircles the foot of a gigantic oak in Beacon's Hill Park at Victoria and there is a good sense of proportion in the tree that occupies the foreground in a Parisian sketch that shows the outlines of Notre Dame Cathedral in the rear.

Black and white are the mediums used for a trio of sketches of architectural beauty that are almost photographic in effect. These include the Parliament Buildings at Victoria, B.C., the Bishop's Bridge at Norwich, England, and the Church of St. Julien le Pauvre at Paris.

The English scenes are softly colored and give an intimate glimpse of some of the quiet streets and environs of the Mother Country. There is a sixteen century farmhouse at Wycombe, the Pilgrims' Hall at West Wickham, sketches of Bridgewater and Norwich, with one very interesting bit from the latter place in the "Ethelbert Gate" of the Cathedral Close, showing a nice sense of detail in its construction. St. Mary's Church at Bridgewater and a little sketch of the Tudor Font in the same building, are interesting.

The French sketches include some little-known bits from Brittany, from Dinan and from Hyeres, in the south. The fifteenth centry Chateau de la Coninnais shows the Old Land atmosphere, with the unicorn's head crest of the family projecting from the stable tower, while the sketch of the Hotel de la Poste, at Dinan, is an outstanding instance of soft use of color, with a lovely treatment of the bronze red shades of the Virginia creeper that climbs over its portal. Again, in the sharp accenting of the central note in "L'Arc du Carrousel" is an instance of fine clearness of color and balance of form which is absent in some of the other sketches.

BURDEN PILED UPON DEFENCE

State Will Rest Its Case After Reading Hickman Indictment.

EVIDENCE FOR REBUTTAL.

LOS ANGELES, January 27 (Canadian Press). — The burden of the offensive in the sanity trial of William Hickman will be piled upon the shoulders of the defence attorney. This became known to-day when District Attorney Asa Keyes revealed that the prosecution in the trial now in progress would read the indictment charging Hickman with the kidnapping and murder of little Marian Parker, and then rest its case. Under this procedure, all of the State's evidence, the testimony of the seven allenists, and numerous other witnesses and the confessions of Hickman to the crime, would be presented in rebuttal.

BOYS' PREMIER HERE TUESDAY

Howard Scharfe, of Kingston, To Give Address in St Andrew's Hall.

ON BOYS' WORK.

Peterborough boys and those interested in boys' work are to have an opportunity of hearing Howard Scharfe, of Kingston, Premier of the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament. Mr. Scharfe will be here on Tuesday evening and arrangements have been made to hold an open meeting in St. Andrew's Sunday School Hall at which all boys of the city will be welcomed. This has been arranged by Howard Macdonald, member for Peterborough in the Boys' Parliament.

Mr. Scharfe, who is a university student, is a clever speaker, and he will discuss various phases of the boys' work. The annual bond-selling campaign will be explained, and the decisions of the recent parliament set forth.

The Great Adventure

THIS year, again, five hundred Peterborough youngsters will stride gallantly forth to meet and conquer the threatening ogre of living expenses.

Without experience, with few set preferences in merchandise—and with enthusiasm as their only ally—they will demand from the merchants of Peterborough the inevitable requisites of home-making.

Two hundred and fifty boys will set off for two hundred and fifty jobs with high purpose and renewed determination.

Two hundred and fifty girls, wondering a little, will plan two hundred and fifty homes . . . . and seven hundred and fifty meals a day.

Together, they will excitedly ponder the spending of thousands of dollars.

What kitchen utensils? What furniture? Which curtains? The selection of a rug becomes a problem of infinite dimensions. The buying of a vacuum cleaner is a great adventure! Silverware. Linen. China. Glassware. New food products to meet their divergent tastes . . . . which they stoutly maintain are exactly alike!

Young hopefuls. More alert than any generation the world has ever produced. A generation of readers, trained to recognize advertising as a source of information and a guide to values.

They want two hundred and fifty talking machines . . . . pianos . . . . radios . . . . cars. Some will be able to buy them now. The rest will choose them now.

During this year, the first of wedded life, advertising will give them established preferences in merchandise and in places where they buy it. Familiar store names will spring to their lips . . . . laying the foundation for the buying habits of a lifetime. Next year they will be added to those other thousands who patronize advertising stores as a matter of course.

And The Peterborough Examiner, supreme in its field, is the only medium by which Peterborough merchants can reach these young people just starting The Great Adventure.

HOSPITAL INSPECTED

United Counties Councillors Pay Visit to Cobourg Institution.

GUESTS OF STAFF.

COBOURG, Jan. 27.—Having accepted the generous invitation of the staff of the Cobourg Hospital, the majority of the member of the County Council when the session had adjourned, took possession of the motor vehicles provided for the purpose and journeyed to that institution where they were served a most delightful afternoon tea by the matron, Miss Walsh, and several nurses of the staff.

When tea had been served, J. D. Hayden, president of the Hospital Board exposed the joker of the deck when he made known to the councillors that the hospital would ask for the usual grant from the Council again this year. His remarks were made in good season and sprinkled with sufficient humor to make them very appealing to the councillor guests. Warden Davidson expressed the pleasure and gratitude of the Council but did not commit himself in any way regarding the usual grant.

After tea, the members of the Council were shown through the various places of interest in the building. Accompanying them, The Examiner noticed that the hospital contained some thirty-five beds and maintained a staff of fifteen nurses and nurses-in-training. There are no doctors actually on the staff but all the local medical men are associated with the institution. It is recognized training school for nurses and is not endowed in any way. Many, in fact, most of the patients' rooms have been furnished by voluntary contribution, and a very appreciable part of the equipment has been likewise acquired since the hospital opened in 1914 over 5,300 patients have been treated, many of them gratis. This is not surprising when it is recalled that Cobourg Hospital is one of the only three county institutions in the United Counties. In order to attend to the charity cases, each doctor takes his turn of one month as physician in charge of this work.

The heating plant is of the steam variety and is most efficient. One pound of steam will heat the entire building to 90 degrees. Besides the boiler stands the garbage burner and water heater. All soiled dressings and refuse are disposed of in this manner.

The ventilating system too is worthy of note. The clear cold air is taken from under the front steps, passed over a coil of one hundred radiators and forced to all parts, or any desired part of the building. Thus the temperature is under absolute control and clean, fresh air is being constantly sent through the building.

The X-ray development machine and the X-ray itself are the very latest and most efficient procurable. A machine for examining the progress of cancer is another late addition to the medical equipment. The operating room is most up to date in every detail from the "scrub up" rooms to the operating light which casts no shadow anywhere. And this path takes in the sterilizers, anaesthetic machine, instrument cabinets, operating table, etc.

The matron's and nurses' quarters are on the third floor. Each nurse has her own neatly and comfortably furnished room. There is as well a "common room" with its home-like atmosphere. For those musically inclined, a radio and gramophone, both of expensive makes and luxurious design, are there to be used. There is also a library of over five hundred volumes. In fact there is everything necessary for solid comfort and it would not be great exaggeration were one to say luxury.

The latest item of equipment must be mentioned. This is the new Packard ambulance. It is more correctly termed, invalid coach, and is valued at approximately $5,000.00. Any patient in the county is entitled to use the ambulance for his or her conveyance to or from the hospital.

To the inexperienced mind of the lay visitors, the institution, though not overly large, is a model of efficiency. The president of the society, asked about the building of the new wing which has been proposed, said several thousand dollars were still lacking to make up the required amount and operations would not be commenced till the money to pay the entire cost was in the bank.

Following is the 1927 record of Northumberland and Durham's three hospitals:

Cobourg—552 patients, 64 births, 21 deaths. Days' stay, 5,483; Cost, $16,219; patients paid, $13,333.

DISTRICT CHURCHES.

GILMOUR MEMORIAL

Rev. W. S. Edgar preached from the text Isaiah 42-4.-"He shall not fail nor be discouraged till he have set judgment in the earth; and the isles shall wait for his law," in the Gilmour Memorial Church on Sunday morning.

Mr. Edgar said, "We do not need to enter into any argument to prove that this passage of Scripture refers to Jesus Christ, and His great work in the world. We feel instinctively that these words could refer to no other, and we are not surprised that they are quoted by Matthew and expressly applied to our Lord. We may take it then that the prophecy refers to the whole work and government of the Messiah, alike in the humiliation of His incarnate life, in the progress of His Gospel through the ages, and in His future enthronement as the earth's universal King. Now, our text tells us that nothing shall happen to discourage Him during the course of His great work or cause Him to fail in the achievement of His ultimate purpose, namely—the establishment of the Kingdom of God on earth, which Kingdom shall be inhabited by a redeemed and regenerate humanity. It doesn't mean that He will not meet with any obstacles to the setting up of His Kingdom during the course of the centuries; for no cause has ever met with more opposition or had greater difficulties to overcome than the cause to which Jesus Christ stands committed, and to which He has called all those who have named His name. But it means that no difficulty shall be great enough, to turn Him aside from His lofty purpose, no opposition from men or devils shall succeed in discouraging Him or in detering Him from carrying His glorious project to a triumphant and successful issue. If there was one thing more than another that characterized our Lord while here on earth, it was His calm confidence in the ultimate triumph of the cause for which He was about to lay down His life. In the supreme hour of crisis, when He hung on the cross, seemingly a defeated man, and His cause an apparently hopeless one, yet He spoke with confidence of the coming Kingdom. The disciples had become discouraged, and lost faith, but the Master Himself had not. He was as calm and as confident as ever.

"Many times since then the cause of Christ has seemed on the verge of a collapse, the light has flickered down until it seemed to be on the point of, being completely extinguished; but it has revived again in a wonderful manner. The period immediately preceding the Reformation was a critical one for Christianity. The church of that day had given place very largely to the world and the devil, and had become persecutor in chief of all who sought to render to Christ true service or give Him real spiritual worship. But Christ had His man ready to carry His church past that dangerous point, in the person of Martin Luther. Men may as well try to stop the march of the sun or cause the law of gravitation to cease, as to attempt to arrest the progress of the Church of Jesus Christ. He shall not fail nor be discouraged till He have set judgment in the earth. During the war, many were saying, in view of all that was happening in the professedly Christian countries of Europe that Christ had failed. After two thousand years of His teaching, men were no further removed from savagery than they were before He came. They seemed as capable of devilishness then, as ever they were. And so these people got down hearted and lost their faith, and gave way to despair. Now a text of this kind comes to all such like a breeze from the hills and is able to revive drooping faith and to impart new hope and courage. 'He shall not fail nor be discouraged, till he have set judgment on the earth. Things that tend to discourage us in our work for God—(a) Now we have to admit that the aspects of spiritual work are often such as to make it difficult to believe in the divine presence and superintendence. Viewing the world at large it is often impossible to see in the events that happen any distinct tendency towards a given end, any harmonious working, any real progress to an assignable result. How many of your efforts and even those efforts that seem more wise and generous, fall out awkwardly, unhappily, unsuccessfully.

"When we feel like being discouraged, because the development of our spiritual enterprise seems so slow and insecure, let us look away from the provincial, the intermediate, the sectional, and take deeper views. Christ is calm because He takes the wider view and knows how the partial discord is lost in the larger music.

"(b) The presence of the Kingdom of God is largely obscured by its worldly accompaniments; this is a trial to our faith. We believe that the main motive and working of history is spiritual, but how little does this appear to the carnal eye; how entirely is the Kingdom of God hidden by the kingdoms of this world. Yet let us not be discouraged because of this, for the Master Himself said, "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation.' It belongs to the invisible impereeptible and inscrutable—but none the less it comes.

" (c) The meagre results of our spiritual work is another source of disheartenment. The minister, missionary and Sunday school teacher, in fact, all Christian workers, feel this, and their hearts are well nigh broken, but again we are in the wrong—there are greater results than we know of.

" (d) The slow progress of the cause of Christ among the nations is another frequent cause of dispondency. We are distressed by failure and delay; our work starts in poetry and ends in prose, and after years it looks as if little or nothing had been gained. We ought to know better than this. It may easily be that we fail to appreciate the growth in the spiritual realm, it slowly and silently grows, although it may seem to stand still or even recede.

"Here is a twofold quality in Christ that meets a twofold need of man; the twofold quality being gentleness and power, the bruised reed will He not break, the smoking flax will He not quench. Let us therefore set about our work, strong in faith, joyful through hope. May we share our Master's confidence in the victory of right over wrong, truth over error, and that His Kingdom will ultimately sway the whole wide world."

SPRINGVILLE UNITED CHURCH.

SPRINGVILLE, Jan. 27.—Regular morning service was held in Springville United Church Sunday, Jan. 22, with the pastor, Rev. A. H. McConnachie, in charge.

Some time ago Mr. McConnachie began the study of the Lord's Prayer especially for the benefit of the children at the services. This study has, however, been both profitable and enjoyable to the grown-ups as well as the children. The young people were reminded on Sunday morning that their minister would be glad to receive essays from as many as should like to write a short account of all that they have learned through these educational short studies. The text for the morning, "For Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever, Amen," completed the series.

The Lord's Prayer is made up of six petitions, and this final ending as stated in the text by which are urged certain pleas that God may hear the prayer. After having offered the previous petitions of the prayer we ask God to grant these things, for His is the kingdom, He has the power, and by doing so He is increasing His glory. "Forever and ever" is to remind God that His kingdom is everlasting.

The Greek translation of the word "Amen"—Let it be so, Lord—makes this prayer our own, and when said with earnestness in voice or thought it forms the right conclusion for all prayers.

By the Lord's Prayer we are taught to live as well as to pray.

The text of the sermon was taken from Proverbs 25:2, "It is the glory of God to conceal a thing; but the honor of kings is to search out a matter."

It is interesting to note that it is a fact of human physiology that in every eye there is a blind spot. This is located at the point where the optic nerve enters the eye before it is again distributed in the retina.

Let us use this simple fact as a parable. We have oftimes heard the story of the use Admiral Nelson made of his blind eye, and can picture him deliberately turning about so that his blind eye looked upon the signal that had been run up by the superior officer, notifying him to cease firing and retreat. By continuing the battle a great victory was won.

It is good that there is a blind spot in every eye. By this fact we learn something of both moral and spiritual life.

Is it possible that God is blind to some things? Herein lies part of our hope—that God does overlook some things or we had all long since perished if this were not true. He is not quick to mark our sins. It is part of His goodness and glory to conceal certain things. He does not see our sins to write them down and mark them carefully for immediate judgment. At some time every year God casts a mantle of snow over the earth to hide its deformities, covering the leafless bushes, bare fields and weedy gardens, thus reminding us that some day all ugliness will be smoothed out and changed at God's good pleasure. Paul in pleading with the Athenian idol worshippers tells them, "The times of your ignorance God winked at." In view of better days He overlooked their mistakes. God does not make light of human sin, but there is none more charitable than He.

How much it means to us to know that when God has forgiven our sins He has put them behind His back forever and will see them no more. It is His glory to conceal them, not cast up our weaknesses or frailties to us. "Casting our sins into the sea of God's forgetfulness" is a true saying.

God is blind to certain actions that do not correspond to our good intentions that were miscarried on the way. Sometimes we are sore provoked and fall into minor faults. Are not those who laid the trap greater sinners than those that fell? God has infinite charity to those of good intentions, who have good mind, good will and good purpose, but their actions oftimes do not correspond. He does not reckon their trespasses unto them.

To obtain goodwill and harmony in any church and neighborhood the blind spot in every eye might well be magnified so that good might be seen in one another. We would then be following the divine example, considering circumstances, provocations and weaknesses. It is the highest form of civility, gentleness and good taste not to search into some personal matters too closely. It is un-Christ-like to do so.

Admiral Nelson's life was not free from fault, but he was so great and noble that with all his frailty he was a giant among men.

We must not condone or make light of actual or habitual wrong-doing, but in its own place, its own time and its own way it is good to turn the blind spot in our eye on the faults of our fellowman. If a Christian begins day after day with high resolves and finally realizes that he has failed, are we to "rub it in?" This would not be Christ-like—let him try again!

Low aim, not failure, is crime!

Every day is a fresh beginning. God Himself says, "I will remember their sins no more."

The sermon was concluded by the recitation of an appropriate poem, having as its theme, "It's a very good thing to forget it."

COMPACT SEVEN-ROOM HOME

(Jules Caron, Architect.)

The delightful home illustrated here follows, in general form, the Dutch Colonial style, and possesses in full measure the quaint charm usually found in houses of this ever-popular style. A cosier and more home-like feeling than usual is expressed by the entrance design, which, because of its rather radical differences from the expected type, imparts distinctiveness to the whole exterior.

An unusually effective color scheme has been employed. This comprises rustic red brick walls, roof of variegated grey, blue, and red shingles, buff stucco gables and dormers, and white woodwork. Returning to the entrance for a moment, imagine the plain white door set amid the beautifully contrasting brickwork mentioned.

The first feature noticed on examination of the plans is the skilful inclusion of the seven good size main rooms, and the necessary additional accommodation on the two floors of a simple rectangle only 24 feet by 32 ft. without any projections or irregularities, thus assuring an easily heated home.

Entry is made directly into the ground floor hall, which is amply and well proportioned. It contains a coat closet, and wide archways to the living room and dining room, and would immediately create a favorable impression on the visitor.

To the right is the living room which is exceptionally pleasant even in this day of pleasing living rooms. A worth while feature is the little balcony, reached by a pair of French doors, which seems to definitely connect the room and the outdoors. A door is thoughtfully provided direct from the kitchen, and would provide a convenient and often appreciated alternative route to that of passing through the dining room, when answering the front door bell.

In addition to this the kitchen, which is bright and attractive, gives access to the pantry, dining alcove, and dining room. Notice particularly the provision of both dining room and alcove, indicating the growing recognition of the latter not as a substitute for the dining room, but, where possible, as a very desirable adjunct.

Readers desiring further information regarding a house of this design should communicate with MacLean Builders' Guide, 345 Adelaide St. West, Toronto, Ont., who will see that it is supplied. When writing, please mention design number 108. Copyright, 1928.

AUDITORS' REPORT TO SHAREHOLDERS

WE REPORT TO THE SHAREHOLDERS OF THE DOMINION BANK:—

That we have audited the above Balance Sheet as at December 31st, 1927, and compared it with the books and vouchers at Head Office and with the certified returns from the Branches. We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required, and in our opinion the transactions of the Bank which have come under our notice have been within the powers of the Bank.

In our opinion the Balance Sheet discloses the true condition of the Bank and is as shown by the books of the Bank.

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH

BY DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

© 1926 McCOY HEALTH SERVICE - LOS ANGELES - CAL.

A NEW VIEWPOINT

These daily health articles will take you only about five minutes to read. Only a thought or two can be given you each day, and they will always be written in a style you will be able to easily digest.

Today I wish to urge you to acquire a new point of view about food.

Today I wish to urge you to acquire a new point of view about food.

You have probably selected your food principally because of its agreeable taste, or because it filled you with a comfortable feeling of contentment. Or, perhaps, also because having these filling and tasty properties, it could be secured at a nominal price. If the "pleasures" of the table were the only things to consider, this way of selecting food would be as good as any, but the same caution must be applied to the use of food that you would use in regulating any other acts of your life.

Although we do not often pause to philosophize as we are doing now, it is, nevertheless, true that our ordinary acts of everyday life are governed by deepseated conscious or unconscious principles which are often called laws of nature. The first of these has been aptly called the law of self-preservation. You are constantly on the alert to protect yourself against bodily harm, but you do not often stop to consider that you may be slowly eating yourself to death.

You avoid drinking a strong poison because you know of its immediate dangerous effect. If you make a thorough study of the effects of food upon the body you will soon learn that slow poisons are being constantly developed by dietetic errors and, although the results are slow in action, they are none the less sure. Study then, how to select and proportion your food so as to avoid this food poisoning and thus preserve and prolong your life.

The desire to achieve success is an ever-present longing which may be realized only through having a sound mind in a sound body. The successful man will always achieve more if he lives a prudent life. The early deaths of these same successful men are brought about when they become self-satisfied and turn themselves over to injudicious gormandizing.

If the same sensible rules they have applied to business were used in the regulation of their physical habits, those dynamic leaders in our commercial world would find equal success in the cultivation of good health.

A special article that I have already written entitled "Fasting and Dieting for Health" will prove helpful to readers seeking further information on this subject. I will be pleased to send this article to you, and you may write to me for it, addressing me care of this newspaper.

Consider as carefully the quality, quantity, and mixtures of your foods as you do the quality, quantity, and mixture of the gasoline supply for your automobile. The flavor of the right food is just as delicious as that of wrong food. Eating the proper quantity will leave you with a more lasting feeling of contentment than comes from stuffing. The use of correct combinations of food will increase your assimilative functions, and you will avoid the distress attendant upon food battles in your alimentary canal.

A few minutes' daily study of these diet problems will bring you rich rewards in increased health and vitality with which to carry on your life work.

Questions and Answers.

Question Mary H. writes "My chest—that part exposed where the dress is cut low—is always red, although sometimes I do not go out for days. Do you think it is from nervousness or indigestion?"

Answer When the skin is very red on the chest above the dress line it is sometimes an indication of the systemic acidosis caused by an overacidity of the stomach, but of course sometimes it is only due to exposure because of the skin being thin and sensitive.

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

THE CLUB OF LONG AGO

A man will join a lot of clubs,
  And even some attend,
Because, perhaps, his elbow rubs
  Some influential friend.
And yet, when all is said and done,
  And told the final yarn,
No club is ever like the one
  That met in someone's barn.

They never thought of friends at all,
  The friends of long ago,
Yet how the heart will still recall
  The boys we used to know.
The influential we'll forget,
  The men we hope to use,
But one old gang is with us yet
  Each night we sit and muse.

The weekly dues were just a cent,
  And often hard to pay.
Though one of us was president,
  Each fellow had a say.
We had no regulations then,
  No rules of order there,
And yet I often wish that men
  Were even half as fair.

The leather chairs around the fire
  Are soft as eiderdown,
But even then I often tire
  Of every club in town.
And every club could shut its door,
  I wouldn't care a darn,
If I could join the club once more
  That met in someone's barn.

MRS. KEITH LAID TO REST

St. Andrew's Church, Winnipeg, Filled With Mourners This Afternoon.

TOUCHING REFERENCE MADE

WINNIPEG, Man., January 27 (Special to The Examiner). — With the church filled for the occasion, the funeral of Mrs. Keith, wife of Rev. Henry J. Keith, D.D., pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, River Heights, was held in that edifice this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, following a private service held at the family residence, 211 Oak Street. Mrs. Keith died on Tuesday at her home.

In addition to the congregation, many friends of the family were present, and there was almost a full attendance of the United Church Presbytery of Winnipeg. At the service the prayer was said by Rev. C. W. Gordon, D.D., while the Scripture reading was given by Rev. David Christie, D.D., minister of Westminster United Church. Rev. George A. Woodside, D.D., pastor of St. Stephen's-Broadway, and a life-long friend of both Dr. and Mrs. Keith, who was in charge of the service, spoke feelingly of Mrs. Keith's death, and the splendid character of her life's work. The full church choir sang and a solo was rendered by Mrs. Burton L. Kurth, accompanied by sympathetic organ music by Mrs. Kennedy. The hymn sung by the congregation was "For all the Saints who from their labors rest."

Burial took place in Old Kildonan Cemetery, the ceremony being conducted by Rev. Dr. Woodside. Many beautiful floral tributes tangibly expressing the sympathy of relatives and friends, rested in large numbers on the grave. The following acted as pall-bearers: J. H. Duke, T. J. Lytle, W. McQuaker, A. E. Esling, J. Flemming, and J. F. Mutch.

HAILWOOD FAILS TO DEFEAT TORIES

FAVERSHAM, England, January 27 (Canadian Press). — The efforts of Ernest Hailwood, Independent Conservative, to force another upset for an official Conservative candidate as he did at Northampton on January 10, failed yesterday when the Conservatives returned their seat at the by-election here necessitated by the death of Sir G. Wheeler. The result of the poll was as follows:

Adam Maitland, Conservative, who was elected, 12,997; Major Dudley Adam, Labor, 11,313; John Dunn, Liberal, 5,813; and Hailwood, Independent Conservative, 1,090.

For what is believed to be the first time in the history of the world an actress has been sentenced to be hanged. Doris McDonald, whose appearance in the films under the name of Doris Malone, has been sentenced by a Montreal judge to die on the gallows, March 23rd for the murder of Adelarde Bouchard, a Lachine taxi driver. Her husband, George McDonald, whom she had married recently, was sentenced to die with her. The above photo shows Doris McDonald.

57TH CHAPTER HEARS ADDRESS

I.O.D.E. Members Make Donations to Two Memorial Funds.

WILL HOLD BRIDGE.

The regular meeting of the 57th Regimental Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held in the Armories with a good attendance. The Regent, Mrs. R. G. Cottrell, presided.

After the opening exercises, the secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and adopted and the secretary, Mrs. D. Loomis, read the correspondance. Letters were received asking for donations for a memorial to the late Mrs. Clarke Murray, founder of the Order, and also for a brass tablet in memory of the late Mrs. Fessenden, founder of Empire Day, this tablet to be erected at Ancaster, Ontario. It was decided to send donations to each fund.

Mrs. W. G. Hall gave a splendid report of relief work, clothing and groceries having been supplied to several families and baskets of Christmas cheer sent to a couple of families.

Mrs. G. Helson reported for the Sick and Visiting committee. She and Mrs. Sharpe had made over 100 visits at the hospital. They were congratulated on their good work.

Arrangements were discussed for a bridge party which will be held in the Armories on Wednesday, February 15th. It is anticipated that this will be a large affair as two groups are uniting to make it a success.

Nomination of officers then took place.

A very interesting address on "Women as Pioneers" was given by Miss Evelyn Miller. Miss. Miller, who is now a student at the Normal schoou, gave this speech last year at the oratorical contest at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. A vote of thanks from the Chapter was extended to the speaker by Mrs. Cottrell.

On the conclusion of the business meeting tea was served by Mrs. S. Newhall and Mrs. James Fanning, assisted by Miss Price and Mrs. A. W. Clysdale.

LADIES SING FOR HOME RESIDENTS

Female Voice Choir Gives Concert at House of Providence.

The Female Voice Choir paid a visit to the House of Providence last evening and entertained the residents with a delightful concert of vocal and instrumental music. At the conclusion, Sister St. Bridget thanked Mrs. Bugg and the members for the splendid entertainment afforded the old people and asked them to return again. Dainty refreshments were then served.

The program was as follows: Piano duet by Mrs. E. Heard and little Ardyth Richardson; solo with choir, "Till We Meet Again," by Miss B. Cain; solo, "Sweet Mother of Mine," by Miss E. Harrison; solo, "Mother Machree," by Miss M. Allen; solo and choir, "Blue Eyes," and "I Passed by Your Window," by Mrs. L. Groombridge; recitation, "Washing Dishes," by Annie Fletcher; piano solo, "Harp of Tara," by Miss Chrissie Milby; solo, "Maggie," by Mrs. F. Rathbone; solo with choir, "Tell Me That You Love Me," by Miss A. Barton; duet with choir, by Mrs. F. McKinley and Miss P. Smith; solo, "I Never See Maggie Alone," by Miss E. Harrison; solo, "Irish Eyes" and "Believe Me, if all Those Endearing Young Charms," by Miss Allen; solo, "Nursery Rhymes," by Miss A. Fletcher; piano duet, "Parade Review," by Mrs. E. Heard and Miss Chrissie Milby; solo, Zuyder Zee," by Mrs. Rathbone; solo, "In a Monastery Garden," by Mrs. Groombridge; solo with choir, "Bells of St. Mary's," by Miss B. Cain.

Mrs. R. Bugg acted as choir leader and Mrs. S. Buckton as accompanist. The following ladies were present: Mesdames R. Bugg, S. Buckton, F. Rathbone, M. Stott, Bethune, F. McKinley, L. Groombridge, and the Misses M. Allen, E. Harrison, P. Smith, B. Cain, A. Barton, A. Fletcher and E. Reynolds.

Legion Notes

Word has been received that the Federal Appeal Board will sit at the City Hall on February 16th and 17th, when several local cases will be submitted for consideration.

Members are reminded that the regular monthly meetings are held on the third Monday of every month, and one will be held next month on the 20th inst.

Per Capitation Stamps have been received this wee k from Ottawa. Members are requested to bring their books to the office and get them stamped.

The following officers and committee of the Southsea branch of the British Legion were elected at the last monthly meeting, and many of the comrades living in Peterborough and who hail from that district will recognize the names of the officers who take such an active part in Legion matters in the Old Land:

The chair was occupied by Brig.-General Sir R. A. W. Colleton, Bart., C.B., President, Sir, H. R. Cayzer, Bart., M.P., J.P.; vice-presidents, Lt.-Col. C. E. Flowers, T.D., Major C. H. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the retiring officers and committee, to which Sir Robert Colleton, who has been re-elected chairman for the eighth successive year, responded.

SALVATION ARMY SOLDIERS GATHER

Hear Reports of Corps' Efforts and Those of Societies.

The annual meetings of the soldiery of the Salvation Army, Peterborough Corps was held last night, under the leadership of Commandant Frank Ham, the commanding officer, in charge.

Preceding the meeting the annual soldiers' tea was held The arrangements for this happy event was in the able hands of the wives of the local officers and the women local officers. The children were also not forgotten, and under the direction of the Band of Love Leader, Miss C. Gilmour, and her assistants, were all cared for.

The statistics for the year were read by the Commandant, each department of work showing encouraging increases.

The Young People's membership is as follows. Names on Sunday school register, 329; number of Junior Soldiers 117; number on the cradle roll 89.

The rolls representing Young People's week-night activities are as follows: Corps Cadet Study Class, 16; Band of Love members, 41; Young People's Legion membership, 31; Life Saving Boy Scouts, 42; Life Saving Boy Chums, 20; Life Saving Girl Guards, 49; Young People's Band, 33.

Other adult activities, such as the well known Temple Band, and Songster's Brigade and the Women's Home League, all presented reports indicating a year of progress.

Reports on Attendance.

These all showed increases. The number of indoor services held 418; total Sunday meeting attendances, 31,780; total week-night attendances, 12,579; extra meeting attendances, 4703. Hours of visitation by Commandant Ham, notwithstanding the absence of the Commandant in England for eight weeks, 855.

The sales of the official organ of the Salvation Army, the War Cry, was 14,290 copies, while the sales of the junior organ, The Young Soldier, came to 11,350 copies.

Two hundred and twenty open-air meetings were held at which Salvationists made an attendance of 8106.

The statistics of the League of Mercy will be of interest to the public. It is a work as its name implies of mercy. Imagine yourself lying upon a hospital cot sick and lonely, and then a Salvation Army sister enters, speaks to you, gives you a copy of the War Cry and if you desire, prays with you. During the year 1927, the League of Mercy sisters made 47 weekly visits to the Nicholls Hospital, visited 1688 patients, prayed with 660 patients, gave to patients 1276 copies of the War Cry, and 109 copies of the Young Soldier, and spent 223 hours in visitation. At the Protestant Home the League of Mercy sisters conducted 41 meetings at which 460 were present and gave to the inmates 540 War Crys. At the jail 233 copies of the War Crys were given. At the County House of Refuge, Lakefield, seven meetings were held with an attendance of 143, and 120 copies of the War Cry were distributed. They visited 304 homes.

Four hundred and ninety-three meetings were conducted in the interests of the Young People with an attendance at all Young People's meetings of 21,655.

The social service campaign for the upkeep of the many Salvation Army Social Service centres, known as the Self Denial Fund, reached the splendid total of $2280.92.

The fall financial effort for the upkeep of the Canadian work, such as the training of officers, the officers' assistance fund, the Sick and Wounded funds etc., realized the sum of $358.06.

Special Campaigns.

Many special efforts were mande by the local corps during the past year. These activities include the visits of prominent Salvation Army Officers, including Commissioner and Mrs. Maxwell, Colonel and Mrs. Henry, Colonel Southall, Brigadier and Mrs. Bloss, Staff Captain Ritchie. The visits of the Lindsay and Cobourg Bands, the visit of the Dovercourt Y. P. band, the special series of meetings held at Chemong Park, Lakefield, Warsaw Lang, Keene, Millbrook, and the Salvation Motorcade that visited Lakefield, Warsaw, Havelock and Norwood, were also in this class, as was the visit of the Peterborough Temple Band to Picton, Bloomfield and Wellington.

Sister Florence Williams has entered the Training College for officers.

Ensign Carrie Lang is the missionary representative entering the service from Peterborough.

Two comrades have been "Promoted to Glory" during the year—Sister Mrs. Moyns and Brother Harry Edmundson.

The annual audit and inspection was held Oct. 7, 1927.

The Senior Census Local Officers are as follows: Treasurer, J. J. Cunningham; Secretay, R. J. Leggett; Bandmaster Robinson; Corps Cadet Guardian, Mrs. T. Lang; Y. P. S. M., R. C. Braund.

The Young People's Census Board is comprised of Young People' Sergt.-Major R. C. Braund; Y. P. Treasurer, George Robinson; Record Sergeant, Mrs. Hedge; Assistant Y. P. S. M., Leggett and Boorman; Y. P. S. M., Lashbrook and Y. P. Record Sergt., George Collins of Brownton; Y. P. Band Leader, Joseph Halcrow, Band of Love Leader, C. Gilmour; Young People's Legion Secretary, Mrs. W. G. Robinson; Life Saving Guard Leader, Mrs. W. Jones; Life S[illegible] Leader Harold B[illegible]ton, and Corps Cadet Guardian, Mrs. T. Lang.

Adjutant Amy Wood is the Social Service officer, giving the whole of her time to this work, in conjunction with her duties as the police matron for the city.

Hundreds of garments and shoes have been given out to deserving poor and the relief work has supplied many families with the necessities of life, and this in addition to the work at the Christmastide, notice of which has already appeared. Much of this work is carried on in a quiet but efficient manner. Many garments have been made over by the Women's Home League and given to needy folks.

Commandant and Mrs. Frank Ham and the local officers of the Peterboro corps desire to express through the medium of The Examiner, many thanks to all the kind friends of every class and creed, who have helped to make possible such a record of service to the community. For the year 1928 Salvationists take as their motto, "Saved to serve."

REVENUE BOARD IS ADVOCATED

as outlined by the Commission should be:

(A) To hear all appeals from rulings in Customs matters except as to the question of values, which will be finally decided upon by the Board of Appraisers.

(B) To hear all appeals under the Income Tax Act, Special War Revenue Act, and all other Acts administered by the Department of National Revenue.

(C) To adjudicate upon all seizures made by the Department or its officers.

(D) To hear and determine all other matters that are now within the jurisdiction of the Board of Customs.

(E) And generally to hear and determine such matters as might be assigned to it.

The decision of the new board should be final on all questions except matters of law, in which case there should be an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Dealing with the number of ports of entry in Canada, the Commission points out that a reduction in these was recommended by the Special Committee of the House which dealt with Customs matters.

Penalties Heavy.

One of the most important recommendations of the Commission is that which refers to Section 206 of the Customs Act. This section makes smuggling an indictable offence when the value of the smuggled goods is $200 or over. Under this section a person smuggling goods into Canada which are worth $200 or over is liable in addition to any other penalty, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years and not less than one year for the first offence. For the second offence, the minimum term of imprisonment is three years and the maximum ten years. There is no alternative.

The smuggling of cigarettes and liquor was found to be on a very extensive scale, the report states.

"Evidence was given in regard to cigarettes, that the price in Canada was so much higher than elsewhere, that it offered an inducement or incentive to smuggling of this line of goods. The difficulty of detection of the smuggling of these goods is another reason for the prevalence of the practice, and even with an efficient preventive force, this condition would still obtain to some extent."

"One of the factors in the price of cigarettes in this country is the high excise duty levied on the same. There was evidence given before us that would indicate that a material reduction in the excise duty would materially diminish smuggling without seriously affecting revenue."

Much Liquor Smuggled.

"In seeking cause for smuggling of liquor on such an extensive scale as we found to exist, we had evidence presented to us which indicated that one of the reasons was the present high price of liquor in Canada, owing to some extent to the high Customs tariff on imported liquor and the high excise duty on liquor manufactured in Canada."

"An incentive to the smuggling of liquor is the possibility of very large profits to the smuggler. This is possible because of the great difference in price between liquor legally manufactured or imported and that smuggled. This difference in price is due to a material degree to the high tariff on imported liquors and the high excise duty on liquors manufactured in Canada, the Customs duty being $10 per gallon, while the excise duty is $9 per gallon. It may well be that with the profit to the smuggler substantially reduced he will be loath to take the risks incidental to his operations."

CHINESE RUG INDUSTRY NEW

Craft Does Not Share Antiquity of Most in That Land.

IMPORTANT BUSINESS.

"The Romance of the Chinese Rug" was the title of the interesting paper read at the last meeting of the Art Study Club by Miss Grace Reinhardt, who commenced with a reference to the comparatively modern aspect of rugs in China, where for many centuries they played a negligible part in the life of the people. An occasional example is found which antedates the seventeenth century, but these are very rare. From the beginning of the seventeenth century to the end of the eighteenth, the art progressed, culminating in the glorious epoch of Ch'ien Lung, 1736-1795, when all the arts flourished mightily. After this period the art of rug-making in China gradually declined, until 1864, when Pekin received an impetus from Thibet. Since then the making of the modern rug has been advanced from a home craft, given over to women and children, to an industry which in Pekin and Tientsin alone now counts some six hundred factories, each employing from 20 to 300 men and boys.

Camel's hair from Mongolia, goat's hair and sheep's wool of varying grades and color, are all used in the making of the rugs; with wool most extensively employed. This comes by a strange route to the hand of the weaver. At Tsinghai, the great ropes of twisted wool from farther inland, bound and packed into the skins of sheep and the hides of cattle, are fastened together and lashed to the framework of poles. These form a raft which may comprise as many as thirty skins, and they make a month-long trip to a port where the wool is taken from the casings and sent to its ultimate destination in Pekin or tientsin. There after a thorough cleansing, the fleece is sent to lowly homes to be spun into yarn by women.

The next step is the dyeing and then the loom work, on a frame with two uprights between which are two large beams. The weaver strings a line of heavy thread between the beams, using cotton thread, instead of the woollen thread employed by the Persian weaver. Then the design is outlined by the master designer, and the apprentices, small boys from eight to sixteen years of age, each complete about six square inches of weaving in a working day of many long hours. Following the shades in the design which the artist has set for them, they seize yarn which hangs in balls above their heads, pass it around two of the upright warp strings with a peculiar twist, and cut off the ends with a heavy knife. These severed ends of yarns, multiplied indefinitely, form the pile of the carpet.

Simplicity in color and design distinguish the Chinese rugs, particularly those of older times, and they have narrow borders. The popular dragon, flowers and fruits and symbols of primitive religions, all form a portion of the designs. The swastika, or mystic cross, is used a great deal. In China, it signifies Buddha's heart. The dragon denotes imperial sovereignty, and with the phoenix, the unicorn and the tortoise, is considered one of the Four Sacred Animals. The bat spreads his wings for happiness, the kylin, or fierce, four footed beast means long life and good government, while the Foo dog, the leopard, the elephant and the stork all have different meanings. Eight precious objects, which tradition declares were left imprinted in the dust by Buddha's foot, are much used also, and the Wheel of the Law, the Canopy, the State Umbrella, the Knot, the Conch Shell, the Lotus, the Relic Jar and the Fish.

An expert on rugs declares that the vogue for Chinese rugs is due to the artistic sense of the late Stanford White, who had accumulated a few old pieces. He placed them in the hall of the late William C. Whitney's house and from that moment the demand for them and consequently, their market value, advanced at a prodigious rate.

Later, Helen Fette, an educated American woman, went to China to inspire the designers with a more intelligent selectivity of pattern and color. She gained the confidence of the foremost rug weaver of China, and together they produced rugs more adaptable and suitable for the American home. An article which refers to Helen Fette's work says:

"Art lovers of China know very well what she is doing for the Chinese rug. Not only is she adapting it in size, variety of shapes and colorings to the American home, but she is developing it as a typical Chinese product. . . . Under her wise and appreciative eye, intelligent selectivity is being exercised so that these rugs now rank as things of beauty alongside of Chinese porcelains, no less worthy than are the rare old temple rugs and the palace rugs of the Ming Dynasty, but incomparably enriched."

BIBLE SOCIETY PLANS CANVAS

Local Campaign For Funds Discussed By Representatives at Meeting.

SPEAKERS COMING.

Plans for the annual canvas of the Bible Society here were completed at a meeting of representatives from various churches in the Y.M.C.A. Next Sunday will be Bible Sunday, when local or visiting speakers will set forth the good work of the society in the various churches of the city. On Monday evening there will be an open meeting in Murray Street Baptist Church to be addressed by the Rev. T. Smetham, who has retired recently after some thirty-five years as one of the District Secretaries of the British and Foreign Bible Society. Mr. Smetham is known as an interesting speaker and his talk on the work of the society in translating and distributing whole bibles, testaments, and single books will be well worth hearing.

As has been the custom for years, the annual meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society will be held on the afternoon of Bible Sunday in the Y.M.C.A. Each church is entitled to two representatives on the board of directors.

For the purposes of the canvas to be undertaken next week the city was divided into districts, each church being responsible for a district. The districts are:

Smith street, south side, McDonnel street north side, Park street, east side, and all territory within these boundaries, St. Paul's Presbyterian.

McDonnel street, south side, Park street, east side, Hunter street, north side, and all territory between, west of the river, Murray Street Baptist.

Hunter street, south side, Park street, east side, Charlotte street, north side, and all territory within these boudaries, St. John's Anglican.

King street, south side, Dalhousie street, north side, Park street, east side, and all streets within these boundaries, All Saints' Anglican.

Dalhousie street, south side, Park street, east side, Perry street, north side, and all streets within these boundaries, Knox United.

South side of Perry street, Albert street, both sides, Chamberlain street both sides and territory between, Lundy's Lane, and Lake street, north side, Park Street Baptist.

South side of Lake street, Monaghan road to river, both sides of Lansdowne street, and all territory between, St. James' United.

All streets south of Lansdowne, St. George's Anglican.

Gilmour street, south side, Park street, west side, Wolfe street, north side, and all territory between, Trinity United.

All streets south of Hunter street, including south side of Hunter street, east of the river, St. Luke's Anglican.

All streets north of Hunter street, including north side of Hunter street, east of the river, Mark Street United.

BELL RINGING CAUSES ALARM

MOUSE THE CULPRIT.

BRIGHTON, Ont., Jan. 27.—Even before "spooks" began to strike terror or amusement into the breasts of Campbellford residents, it has been learned, East Northumberland was almost on the verge of another ghost mystery. This eerie business had its origin in Brighton, the stamping ground of Proctor's Ghost, to which so much reference was made during the Campbellford excitement.

Brighton has its public and high schools housed in the same building. Each one has its own section, but as is to be expected, there is one general fire alarm system for the whole building. In each room is a button which rings the alarm and turns the students of both schools out.

About a week before Campbellford began to attract attention, fire-drill was held at the Brighton school. All the bells rang, and the students marched out in an orderly manner. When they had returned, the teachers began inquiring among themselves who had rung the alarm. The drills are generally arranged by the principals of the high and public schools, but neither had given authority for this particular drill, and all the teachers, as well as the janitor, denied responsibility.

Thought It a Joke.

This looked rather mysterious, but not much attention was paid to the incident. The staff showed more interest, however, when, about five minutes later, the fire alarm again clanged. Once again the pupils marched out and were called back to their classes. Then a real investigation took place. There were recriminations between the high and public school staffs, each suspecting that the other had suddenly taken to practical joking. Every member of the staff, however, still denied ringing the bells. Some of the nervous women teachers began to shiver a little.

The teachers were sent back to their rooms, with orders to watch for a third alarm. Perhaps, it was thought, some student was in some way managing to reach the electric button in one of the rooms, and was arranging little recesses for himself and his comrades.

The third alarm did come. It came about ten minutes after the second. The students marched outdoors, and again the staff investigation went on. Each teacher was sure the bell button in his room had not been touched.

Then came the janitor with the explanation of the mystery. He had been keeping watch in his basement quarters and he had found the solution. He had left a broom leaning against the wall, just beside the button there. As he sat watching the button, as all the teachers were doing, he saw a mouse emerge from a hole near the floor. Up the broom handle it crept, and reaching the top, it began nibbling at the white bell button, evidently thinking it was some new kind of cheese.

The mystery was solved, the broom was moved away from the vicinity of the button, and there were no more impromptu fire drills.

U.F.O. HOLDS ANNUAL SUPPER

ADDRESS GIVEN

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 27.—The Cavan and South Monaghan U.F.O. held their annual oyster supper at the Centreville Sunday school hall on Friday evening.

Despite the most disagreeable weather which prevailed there was an attendance of approximately two hundred people present, and a bountiful supper of oysters and other delicacies such as the ladies of the community are noted for providing, was placed before the gathering.

At the conclusion of the supper the crowd left the Sunday school hall and adjourned to the U.F.O. rooms, where an interesting program was prepared.

Mr. Fred Wood, president of the Shipping Board, acted as chairman during the program and made an appropriate address before the entertainment. Miss Daisy Murray, of Springville was present and added greatly to the program by rendering several beautiful solos, all of which received a hearty encore.

Mr. Gilroy, chairman of the United Farmers Co-operative Co. Ltd., wheat pool of Toronto, was present, and spoke for an hour and a half on the pooling of wheat through the company. Mr. Gilroy told of how the wheat pool was gaining popularity in the Western provinces, also of the rapid growth in the east, of the advantage of such a grain pool and why the farmers should fall in line with their western brothers and get the top notch prices for the product that costs the farmer so much hard toil. The speaker stated within the next few years he actually believed all of Canada's wheat would be handled, and sold, through the United Farmers Co-operative Co.

Mr. Gilroy also spoke for a time on marketing live stock through the Toronto Co-operative Co. and advised the farmers to stand by the company, who had placed dollars in their pockets, and who when they received the volume of business would not take anything out of the farmers, but would be in a position to give them higher prices for their farm produce. The speaker stated that the company was absolutely non-political. That the leading men in both parties were among the first to sign the contracts, men such as Hon. Mr. Martin, Ontario's Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Mr. Motherwell, Canada's Minister of Agriculture. He also stated he asked Premier Ferguson the other day if he would sign a contract when the committee went into his district to organize. The Premier stated to come along and he would be the first to give them his signature.

At the conclusion of the program the benches were removed from the hall, while Mr. and Mrs. Way Byers, of Peterborough provided music for an old-time dance. The merry event continued until about two o'clock.

DISTRICT CHURCHES.

TRENT RIVER UNITED CHURCH

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 27.—There was a large attendance at the service Sunday afternoon, Rev. W. R. Archer taking the word "Faith" as found in the 11th chapter of Hebrews, the topic of his address.

By our eye we form judgment and see wonderful things, unite weak man with omnipotent faith and power—no man can obtain righteousness without divine power. David escaped the edge of the sword of Goliath because of faith,—the minister gave many references of "Faith." What faith stood better test than the early martyrs? Little children love one another—love to God with all our hearts and strength, and love one another, look every day for an opportunity to do good for somebody and it will make every day a glad day if we start early enough in the morning and putting in Christianity a desire to send out happiness. We ought to run the race (as referred to in Hebrews, 11th chapter), looking unto Jesus. A great ball player must go into training to put his best into the game, so in the Christian life we must do a lot of training.

Christians in our church ought to make great sacrifices. We must not offer the Lord something which costs us nothing. Sometimes it's a chronic crankiness in a home—we want a Christianity that is attractive and helps us to run the race. Let faith in our earthly father be transferred to our heavenly Father. The minister continued. By faith, iron which goes to build our big ships could float, and by the human voice being heard thousands of miles away. No man needs to be told the sin that so easily besets us. The minister referred to Longfellow's poem—"Excelsior" (To The Highest). Before us are foothills of peace and a path leads to it where eternal sun is shining. In conclusion he said: let us safeguard young men for the climb of life.

HAVELOCK CHURCH POSITION IS GOOD

Knox Congregation Holds Annual Meeting—Votes of Thanks Expressed.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 27.—The annual congregational meeting of Knox church was held on Wednesday evening, with the minister, Rev. G. E. Lougheed, presiding. The church treasurer, H. F. McNichol acted as secretary and the reports presented showed a most successful year. For all purposes the givings by the congregation totalled $2,969.88, an increase of $174.43 over 1926.

The receipts from each society as reported were as follows: Sunday school, $169.34; Ladies' Aid, $294.90; Y.W.A., $14.82; Mission Band, $42.51; W.M.S., $38.81; Managers' Report, $2,088.44; Y.P.A., $327.06.

The session report showed eighty-five families in the congregation, with one hundred and fifty-four communicants on the roll. The Sunday school has eighty-eight scholars registered, and 9 teachers and officers. During the year forty-four new members were added to the church roll, thirty-two on profession of faith and twelve by certificate, also three communicants were removed. There were also six marriages and ten funerals and sixteen infants were baptized.

On motion by W. G. Martin and A. M. Buchanan the following managers were elected for a term of three years: D. H. Greenley, Alf. Spencer, W. G. McLaughlin.

H. F. McNichol was appointed secretary-treasurer for 1928, on motion by A. M. Buchanan and R. A. Buchanan.

Mr. McNichol reported that $2,000 insurance had been placed on the manse.

On motion by Mrs. W. Hitchins and Mrs. J. Diaper, a vote of thanks was tendered to the secretary-treasurer.

On motion by Mrs. W. Hitchins and Mrs. W. Clarke, a vote of thanks was extended to the organist, choir and organ blower.

On motion by S. S. Joyce and R. A. Buchanan, Mrs. A. Hubble was given a vote of thanks for her services to the church.

On motion by H. F. McNichol and Mrs. (Rev.) G. E. Lougheed, a vote of thanks was given to P. Yuill as superintendent of the Sunday school.

On motion by W. G. Martin and A. M. Buchanan a vote of thanks was extended to the Ladies' Aid, W.M.S., and Mission Band.

On motion by Mrs. C. Dewey and Mrs. R. A. Buchanan, a vote of thanks was extended to the Young People's and the Y.W.A.

Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bolton, Douro, held a benefit basket social for little Gordon Hill, who has been very ill for several weeks in St. Joseph's Hospital, on Wednesday evening last at their spacious home on the River Road. There was a large attendance and a creditable sum was realized.

The latest winter sport is Broonalvo, and the Canada Cement Co. staff has organized a league of four teams, which are playing in the Lakefield rink. It is a new game here and provides lots of fun and apparently is as much fun to play as it is to watch. There may be a village league organized before the season is over.

The weekly euchre party of the A.Y.P.A. was held on Thursday evening, with twelve tables played. Mr and Mrs. C. F. Webster won the first prizes and Miss Grace Watson and Mr. C. Lake the consolation prizes.

Mrs. Fred S. Brown entertained a few friends at the tea hour on Wednesday in honor of her mother and sister who are visiting her.

While exports of iron and steel from the British Isles are increasing, imports are decreasing.

CANADA'S MATERNAL MORTALITY RANKS SECOND AMONG NATIONS

Report Shows Rate 5.9 Per 1,000 of Living Births.

U.S.A. HIGHEST.

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—(CP)— Special inquiry into maternal mortality in Canada, an inquiry which was asked for by the medical profession and which took three years to complete, has just been brought to a close. The investigation was conducted by the Federal Department of Health, with the co-operation of the medical profession.

The report, clearly shows that the heavy toll of maternal mortality in the past was largely unnecessary, that the fatal sacrifice could in most cases have been prevented. A lesson on the report is that the cause of high maternal mortality lies not in biological unfitness alone but in preventable ignorance.

In the report are incorporated the views of a number of authorities.

"In short," says an old, experienced country doctor from the Province of Quebec, "maternal life is held in too light esteem. This I believe to be a very common cause of maternal deaths."

Repeatedly, these words are to be found in letters received by the Department from doctors. "Doctors do not take these cases seriously enough."

The report shows that during one year covered by the inquiry, 1,532 Canadian mothers added their names to the roll of maternal mortality. This works out at a death rate of four women a day from this cause alone. The 1,532 mothers left behind them 5,073 motherless children.

Of the children born in that year as the mother died, almost one-half succumbed within the first month for the report shows that infant and maternal mortality bear a very close relationship.

And while there is a tendency towards the gradual lengthening of human life, the rate of maternal mortality in Canada, according to the report, remains virtually the same. The rate is considerably higher than that of Great Britain where the strain of industrial competition is greater than it is in Canada. In Canada, the maternal mortality rate, as shown by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, was for the year 1926, 5.9 per 1,000 living births; for England and Wales, 4.1; for Denmark, 2.4; for France, 2.4; for Germany, 5.3; for Italy, 2.7; Japan, 3; Norway, 2. United States returns show a maternal mortality rate of 6.6 for every 1,000 living births.

Canada's High Rate.

The report, however, shows a rate for Canada still higher than that given by the Bureau. The maternal mortality rate for Canada, as revealed by the report for the period July, 1925 to July, 1926, is 6.4 per thousand living births.

"There is no reason to believe," says the report, "that the figures for 1928 will be any more encouraging.

"These mothers died young. The youngest was fifteen years old. The average age was 31. Their loss was the greatest bereavement that their home and country suffered that year. If these homes had been in Denmark instead of Canada, a thousand of the mothers would not have died."

Of Canadian provinces, Manitoba is shown to have the highest maternal mortality rate. For Manitoba the rate is given in the report as 7.7 per thousand living births. The rate for the other provinces is, British Columbia, 7.5; Ontario, 7.2; New Brunswick, 7; Alberta, 6.2; Saskatchewan, 6.1; Nova Scotia, 6; Quebec, 5.7; Prince Edward Island, 4.7.

Denmark Cited as Example.

The report indicates what has been done in other countries to reduce the rate of maternal mortality. In Denmark, the rate has been reduced by the employment of a well-trained corps of nurses and the provision of first-class public health facilities. In Huddersfield, Yorkshire, an active public health campaign brought the rate down from 5.6 to 1.8.

Means suggested in the report for improving present conditions in Canada are. Better education on the subject; more specialized training for doctors; better medical facilities for pioneer posts; establishment of more hospitals.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

SECRET OF JESUS' FAME

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for January 29: The Secret of Jesus' Fame. Mark 3:7-12; 6:53-56.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.

Text: Mark 3-7-12; 6:53-56.

But Jesus withdrew himself with his disciples to the sea and a great multitude from Gaillee followed him, and from Judea.

And from Jerusalem, and from Idumea, and from beyond Jordan; and they about Tyre and Sidon, a great multitude, when they had heard what great things he did, came unto him.

And he spake to his disciples, that a small ship should wait on him because of the multitude, lest they should throng him.

For he had healed many; insomuch that they pressed upon him for to touch him, as many as had plagues.

And unclean spirits, when they saw him, fell down before him, and cried, saying, Thou art the Son of God.

And he straitly charged them that they should not make him known.

And when they had passed over, they came into the land of Gennesaret, and drew to the shore.

And when they were come out of the ship, straightway they knew him.

And ran through that whole region round about, and began to carry about in beds those that were sick, where they heard he was.

And whithersoever he entered, into villages, or cities, or country, they laid the sick in the streets, and besought him that they might touch if it were but the border of his garment and as many as touched him were made whole.

The Gospels deal with a very short period in the life of Jesus.

We have the story of his babyhood, then a glimpse of his boyhood as he is found discoursing with the doctors in Jerusalem, and one brief reference to his normal growth as he increases in wisdom, in stature, and in favor with God and man.

Then there is a lapse of the record until he nears his thirties, when suddenly we have the story of the beginning of his distinctive ministry.

The record would suggest that the name and fame of Jesus were established with great rapidity. That he could not have been thought of as remarkable prior to the beginning of his ministry would seem to be implied in the great surprise with which those whom he first addressed listened to his teachings. They were amazed at his wisdom and wondered whence he could have had the knowledge as they had thought of him only as a carpenter.

Story Spreads.

Along with this fame of his teachings there spread the story of his wonderful works. When one thinks of all that can happen in a modern city in the sudden emergence of someone into fame, one can begin to appreciate the nature and extent of the sensation that the ministry of Jesus caused in Galilee and Judea, which were small provinces and so thickly populated that they approached more the urban conditions of modern times than the rural aspect which we have usually associated with the environment of the ministry of Jesus.

The name and fame of Jesus, however, are all the more remarkable inasmuch as he carefully and persistently sought to avoid all the methods and practices which are used to promote publicity.

A leading advertising expert in America, who has written a popular book on the life of Jesus, emphasizes the advertising associated with his ministry; but it is worth while to point out that is the most specific way Jesus sought to avoid the very things that a teacher or prophet in the modern world, seeking popularity and publicity, would the most studiously strive to develop.

Here in our lesson we are told that Jesus charged those who were healed "that they should not make him known." Again and again just at what seemed the very climax of his sensational place in the minds of the people he avoided the crowd and went off to the mountain or the desert.

His Reasons?

Why was Jesus so anxious to avoid this undue publicity of a sort that so many other people who seek to be influential have been so anxious to secure? Apparently there were two reasons First, Jesus wished the supreme emphasis to be upon his teaching and upon the spiritual truth he came to impart rather than upon himself; and secondly, he was anxious that the emphasis upon all that he supremely represented in his mission and in his teaching should not be misplaced. He coveted not the adulation of the multitudes for himself as a wonder-worker, but the humble quest of the salvation that he had come to bring.

Hence it was that Jesus sought to avoid too much emphasis upon the mighty works or upon the material aspect of his ministry. When people came seeking signs and wonders he immediately suggested to them that the truth that he had to give was the supreme sign.

I have heard ministers who have occupied a large place in the public mind say that they did not care what the newspapers said about them as long as they said something. I have known men who did not care how seriously their sermons were misrepresented in newspaper reports as long as a fair amount of space was given to them.

All that would have been thoroughly repugnant to Jesus as it is thoroughly repugnant to every minister who is profoundly honest and whose concern is far more for accuracy in the statement of truth and for soundly spiritual influence, than for any mere aggrandizement of his own position or the external "success" of his church.

The Nuisance of Noise.

We might all learn profoundly along this line from the methods of Jesus, both from his example in doing good and his zeal for doing good unostentatiously. Even good works are sometimes marred by the blare and flourish of trumpets with which they are accomplished, but all truly great saints have had in their lives an element of spiritual restraint.

There are things that are influential because of an intense sacredness that keeps them from gross and calculated publicity. What a different world it would be if all name and fame were established upon the sound and holy basis upon which the name and fame of Jesus have been built through 19 centuries into the fabric of human life.

PERSONNEL OF COUNTY BOARDS

Members of Various Committees Name Chairmen For Year.

At five minutes past four the session was resumed, and the business of appointing chairmen for the several committees proceeded with despatch. There are seven in number: Road and Bridge, Finance, Schools, Legislative and By-law, Contingency, County Property, and Agriculture. The usual custom of electing three chairmen for the Roads and Bridges Committee was continued. There is the general chairman and also a chairman for each of the counties, Northumberland and Durham. W. C. Wood, chairman of the committee to appoint the standing committees, called the names of each member of each committee in turn. As the committees were called, they withdrew to the committee room to appoint their leaders.

COLORED BUTTER

Apple butter gets a rich color and a new, spicy flavor if you put some old-fashioned cinnamon drops in while it is cooking.

BOILING OVER

If you add butter to rice or macaroni when it is cooking, it will prevent its boiling over.

As a rule, plants are more easily injured by low temperatures in the spring, as they contain more water than they do in the fall.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

So it was that when Bob Hathaway entered Faith's hospital room, his face glorified with joy, he found his wife sitting up in bed, her great brown eyes fixed upon Cherry in horrified protest.

"Oh, Cherry!" Faith was crying, "you haven't mailed the letter, have you?"

"What's up now?" Bob demanded almost irritably, a frown drawing a curtain over his joy. Would there never be any privacy for him and Faith? His sacred moment was shattered.

"Cherry has written Nils that she can't marry him because she doesn't love him," Faith told him, her eyes meeting his with a new, deep, sweet intimacy. She had known, from his flushed, radiant face, as soon as he had had opened the door, that the doctor had told him the incredible good news, and she sympathized with him in his sulky impatience to be alone with her. But it was so terribly important that Cherry be made happy, too. "She's pretending, even to me, that she doesn't love him, darling," and she laughed softly. "She's doing it for my sake, Bob, so that her selfish sister can go on monopolizing her baby. Shall we —tell her now, Bob?"

Bob looked bewildered, and then at the joyous, deeply significant look in his wife's eyes, his face cleared, glowed again. "Of course we want Cherry to be the first to know," he agreed. He crossed to his sister-in-law and hugged her close. "You've been a peach, honey, but there's no use in your going on with this self-sacrifice business —is there, Faith?"

"You two can't pretend that Faith doesn't want Hope," Cherry cried, telltale tears welling up in her eyes. "The very thought of losing the baby nearly killed her."

"Darling little idiot!" Faith laughed shakily, stretching out her sister. "Can't you guess? I'm going to have a baby of my own to take Hope's place."

Miss Sutton, who had been busily pretending not to listen, tiptoed from the room as Cherry's excited voice shrilled:

"Oh, Faith! Honestly? You're not fooling me?"

Bob sat down upon the edge of the bed and put his arms about Faith. Cheek to cheek, blue eyes and brown glistening with tears of joy, they faced Cherry, who could doubt no longer.

The beautiful little face, which had been so pale, bloomed with sudden richness. "I'm glad for you both, darlings, so frightfully glad that I think I'll have to cry a bit myself!"

"Not glad for yourself, honey?" Faith reminded her. "It was my 'condition' as the doctor calls it, that made me behave so crazily. You know I want you to be happy, that I couldn't be happy myself if I knew I had cheated you. You haven't mailed that letter to Nils, have you?"

"No," Cherry admitted reluctantly. "And I won't mail it now, but I'm afraid you two will have to put up with Hope and me indefinitely."

"Put up with you!" Faith scoffed. "But what do you mean, darling? You weren't really telling the truth when you said you didn't love Nils, were you? I can't believe it—"

"Of course she's in love with him," Bob reassured her. "If you had listened to as many of her agonized confessions as I have—"

"But I don't think he loves me!" Cherry broke in with a desolate cry. 'I haven't had a line from him since he left."

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

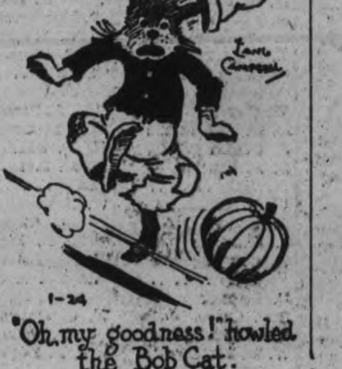
(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S LAUGHING LANTERN

Uncle Wiggily crouched down behind the bush in the dark with the cold pumpkin beside him. As I told you before, the rabbit gentleman, on his way home with a pound of sugar and some candles, had found a half frozen pumpkin and was rolling it to his bungalow to let the poor thing get warm. And then, all of a sudden, the Bob Cat had popped out.

"Is he coming to get you?" asked the pumpkin of the rabbit gentleman who was peering through the blackness of the night, trying to see which way the bad chap was slinking along.

"I think he is," said Mr. Longears, giving his pink nose an extra twinkle to make him feel more brave. "Yes, I can see him slinking toward me. You said you were going to save me, but how are you, Mr. Pumpkin? "How can you save me from the Bob Cat?"



"Oh, my goodness!" howled the Bob Cat.

"Very easily," answered the yellow vegetable in a low voice. "As soon as the Bob Cat gets close enough, you give me a hard push. I'll roll right over his toes, and I am so hard and heavy that I will hurt him. Then the Bob Cat will howl and run away."

"That's a good trick!" said Mr. Longears, "I'll do it."

Nearer and nearer crept the Bob Cat, rubbing his red tongue over his white teeth to sharpen them for nibbling ears. The Bob Cat could see quite well in the dark, and he noticed where Uncle Wiggily was crouching behind the bush. But the Bob Cat didn't see the pumpkin.

"Yes, and here I come!" cried the pumpkin. For just then Uncle Wiggily gave the big, round, yellow vegetable a hard shove and straight at the Bob Cat he rolled.

"Oh, my goodness! Gurr! Wow! Scowsie!" howled the Bob Cat as the pumpkin rolled over his toes. "Oh, what is this, a steam roller? Oh, my tootsie wootsies! Wow!" and then, howling and yowling, the bad chap ran off down the hill, leaving Uncle Wiggily safe and sound.

"Thank you, yellow pumpkin," said the rabbit gentleman. "And if you are not cracked, by the hard push I gave you, I'll start once moreto roll you to my bungalow to get warm."

"Please do," begged the pumpkin. "I'm not in the least hurt by the shove you gave me. But I am still very cold. Burr-r-r-r! How I shiver!"

"You shall soon be warm," promised the rabbit gentleman. "Here we go! Tra la la!"

Off he started again, rolling the pumpkin and making sure he had the candles in his pocket. But Uncle Wiggily had not gone far in the darkness of the night before, all of a sudden there was another noise behind the bushes and a voice growled:

"There he is! I see him now!"

"Who is that?" whispered the pumpkin as Uncle Wiggily stopped rolling it "Who is that?"

"This time it is the Fox coming after me," sadly answered the rabbit. "I do not believe we can scare away the Fox, as we scared the Bob Cat, by rolling you on his toes."

"Perhaps not," said the pumpkin. "But I know another trick. Have you a knife, Uncle Wiggily?"

"Yes, Mr. Pumpkin, I have a knife."

"Quickly, then, make a jack o'lantern of me!" cried the pumpkin. "Cut on one side of me a laughing, grinning face. You said you had some candles: so after you make a jack o'lantern of me, stick a candle down inside. I will laugh at the Fox and he will be frightened and run away."

"Oh, but won't it hurt you if I cut a face on you?" asked the rabbit.

"Not much," the pumpkin answered. "Besides, I shall have to be cut up later, anyhow, to go into pies. So go on, make a laughing lantern of me."

No sooner said than done! Quickly Uncle Wiggily cut a grinning face on the pumpkin. A lighted candle was set inside and when the Fox came slinking along the path, Uncle Wiggily suddenly held the pumpkin lantern out in front of the bad chap, and cried: "Boo! Boo! Boo hoo!"

"Oh, my goodness! Oh, dear me! Oh popcorn and molasses!" howled the Fox and he was so surprised that he turned a somersault and ran away without nibbling Uncle Wiggily's ears at all.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the rabbit. "That was jolly fun for me!"

"And for me too!" laughed the pumpkin. "For the candle inside me has made me as warm as toast. Now I am ready to be baked into pies."

Laughing and chuckling over the way they had fooled the Fox, the bunny and pumpkin went on to the hollow stump bungalow. And there, next day, after a warm night's sleep, the pumpkin was made into pies.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, JANUARY 28, 1928.

Kindly stars today rule affairs on the planet Earth, according to astrology. It is a time for energetic action.

There is an especially promising sign for those who deal in real estate —it encourages the desire to possess lands.

The year will be marked by the purchase and the construction of new homes in all parts of the country, it is foretold, for Americans will realize the importance of holding real property.

Agriculturists have much that is encouraging in the positing of the stars, for laws will aid them, despite unfavorable apprehensions.

Food prices are to rise again and there will be an increase in exports of staples, the seers prophesy.

The aspects which affect prices of grains also are read as indicating renewed interest in diet and wiser methods of assuring the right sort of sustenance for the human needs.

Astrologers prophesy that increase of nervous diseases, as well as many forms of kidney trouble will be traced to fashions in clothing and diet.

This should be a favorable rule for newspapers and it presages an immense amount of advertising and personal publicity.

Surprises are indicated for politicians and the seers forecast for the presidency a man of extraordinary ability. He will have a broad knowledge of international affairs, it is prophesied.

Age is to have a renewed value in the eyes of the world, which has been in the thrall of the youth movement astrologers announce.

Girls will assume the modes and manners of their grandmothers, it is prognosticated, as one of the outward signs of the general reaction against certain standards of behavior in the last decade.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have a year of increased wealth, for the stars presage gains through wills and lucky investments.

Children born on this day have the augury of lives of great prosperity. The church lures many subjects of this sign.

Hints on Etiquette

1. If visiting a metropolis apartment dweller who takes her meals outside, what should you be careful to do?
2. If visiting a friend who goes to business each day, how can you relieve her of the strain of having to entertain you?
3. Are there any other ways of making yourself a welcome guest?

The Answers.

1. Pay for your own meals.
2. By sight-seeing, visiting galleries, shopping or in other ways take care of yourself while she is away.
3. By planning an evening for yourself once in a while to give her a chance to be alone.

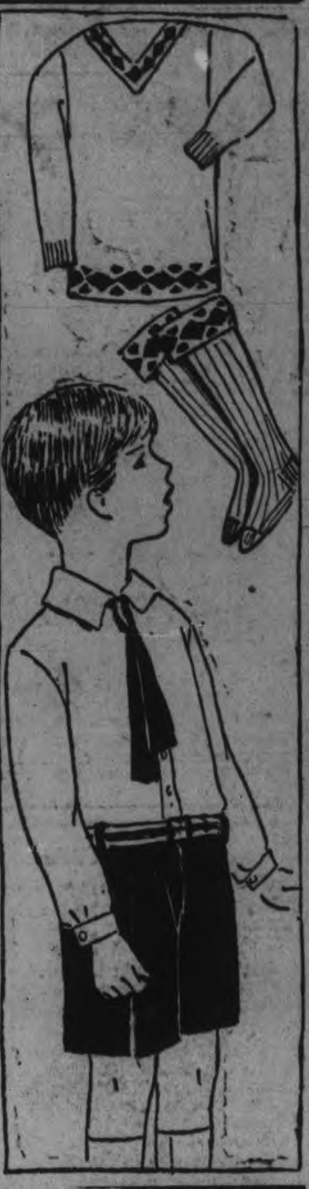
GAS IN THE STOMACH HURTS THE HEART

Gas Pressure from a Sour, Acid, Upset Stomach is not only highly uncomfortable, but some day may prove fatal!

When your meals are followed by bloating, a feeling of fulness and pains around the Heart—you may be sure that STOMACH GAS is pushing and crowding upwards. That's the reason for the shortness of breath and sharp, shooting pains. To quickly banish this Gas, neutralize the acidity and cleanse and sweeten the stomach—nothing is better than the simple use of Bisurated Magnesia (powder or tablets), which gives almost instant relief. Pleasant, harmless and inexpensive Bisurated Magnesia has been used and recommended by Doctors and Druggists for more than fifteen years. Any good druggist can supply you—try it today!

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



Knitted woolen sweaters for boys are especially good looking when worn with woolen stockings to match.

"It's so much easier to dress a little girl than a little boy," exclaims one mother, and another mother is pretty sure to say

Opinion on the subject is about evenly divided and you will usually notice that the women who find it easier to dress their daughters than their sons are those who like to make clothes themselves. "Little girls can have so many more clothes because you can make some of them yourself at very small cost," they say.

Most people take it for granted that boys' clothes have to be bought ready made, unless you are well-to-do enough to have them made to order. They don't think of making them themselves. Still thrifty French mothers often make clothes for their small boys and some American mothers do the same. It would perhaps be foolish to attempt a regulation suit coat, but short straight trousers or even knickerbockers may be given a perfectly tailored finish by the home dressmaker and now that the separate pull-on sweater is so generally chosen for school and play wear a boy can easily get along with only one regulation jacket suit.

Suits for younger boys who have not reached the age where they must have a regulation jacket suit are really quite easy to make and many of them offer just as much opportunity for the originality of the dressmaker as the frocks for little girls.

Have you ever noticed how very generally, in this country at least young boys go about with clothes much too large for them? It is easier to adjust clothes to the requirements of a growing girl. A deep hem to begin with keeps a little girl's frock from looking too large. But most mothers of young boys buy their clothes large enough to allow for a year's growth and let it go at that. They do not realize how grotesque they look, and they do not realize that a temporary taking up of sleeves or trousers is not a really difficult task.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Good Water.

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; make a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidneys complications.

COSTUME BALL MARKS DEBUT

When Miss Yvette McKenna, grand daughter of Hon. Narcisse Perodeau, lieutenant-governor of Quebec, made her debut, over 1,200 guests, all in historic costumes, gathered in the parliament buildings, Quebec, for the event. Here are seen, left to right: Sir Henry Thornton as Thomas Howard; Mlle. Magdaleine Herbert as Marie Therese de France; and Hon. H. S. Beland as Rubens and Mme. Beland as Isabella Brandt.

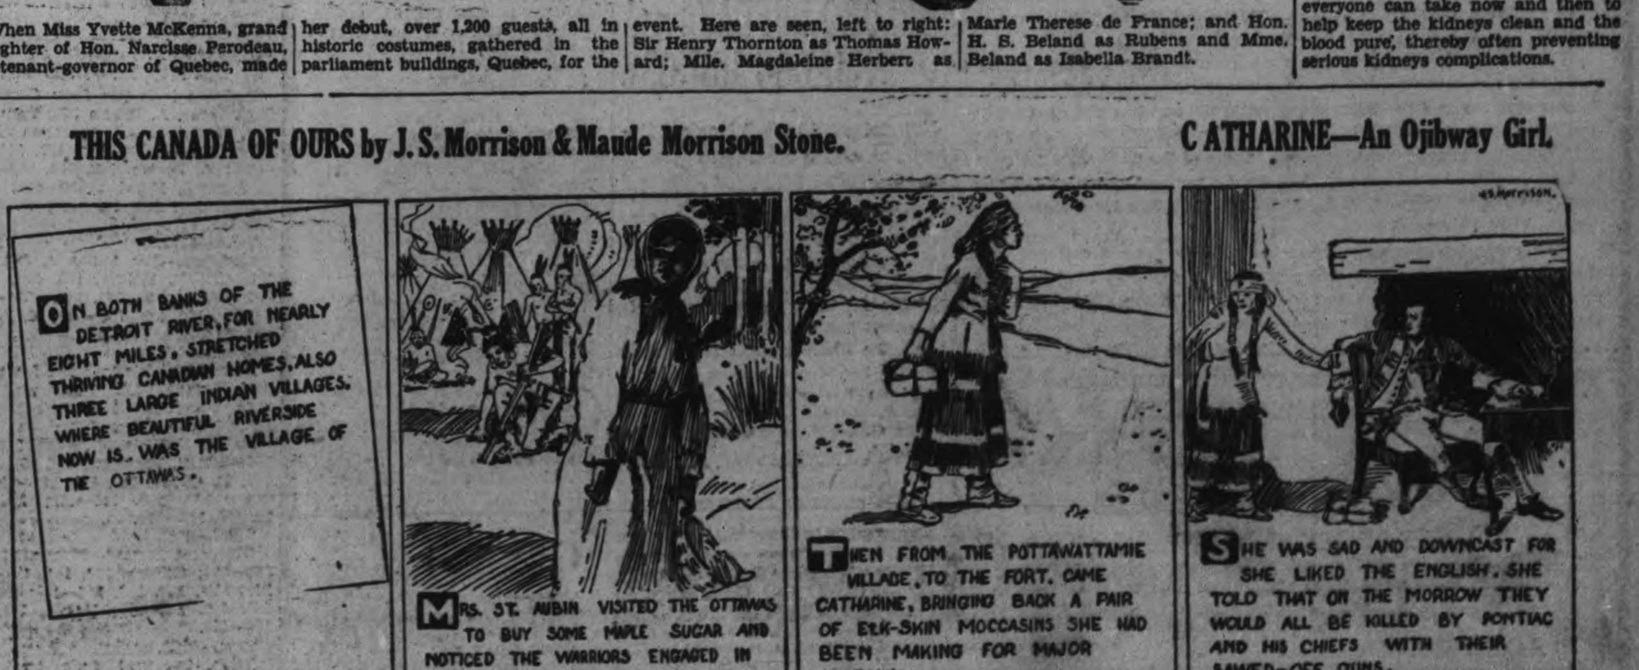
CATHARINE—An Ojibway Girl.



ON BOTH BANKS OF THE DETROIT RIVER, FOR NEARLY EIGHT MILES, STRETCHED THRIVING CANADIAN HOMES, ALSO THREE LARGE INDIAN VILLAGES. WHERE BEAUTIFUL RIVERSIDE NOW IS, WAS THE VILLAGE OF THE OTTAWAS.
MRS. ST. AUBIN VISITED THE OTTAWAS TO BUY SOME MAPLE SUGAR AND NOTICED THE WARRIORS ENGAGED IN FILING OFF THEIR GUNS.
THEN FROM THE POTTAWATTAMIE VILLAGE, TO THE FORT, CAME CATHARINE, BRINGING BACK A PAIR OF ELK-SKIN MOCCASINS SHE HAD BEEN MAKING FOR MAJOR GLADWYN.
SHE WAS SAD AND DOWNCAST FOR SHE LIKED THE ENGLISH. SHE TOLD THAT ON THE MORROW THEY WOULD ALL BE KILLED BY PONTIAC AND HIS CHIEFS WITH THEIR SAWED-OFF GUNS.

Cup Competitions Will Feature Soccer Fixtures

FOURTH ROUND GAMES PLAYED ON SATURDAY

Will be Big Week-End Football Attractions for Fans in England.

FEW MINOR TEAMS

Great Attraction of Round Will Probably be Cardiff City Versus Liverpool.

LONDON, England, Jan. 27.—Cup tie competitions will again hold the attention of soccer fans in England and Wales on Saturday next when the fourth round of the matches for the English Football Association trophy is staged. While a few of the minor league teams are left in the running the competition has resolved itself very largely into a battle of the football giants.

The great attractions of the round will probably be: Cardiff City versus Liverpool on the cupholders' Welsh terrain: Huddersfield Town versus West Ham United at Huddersfield, and Arsenal versus Everton in London. If the football axiom, that ground advantage is worth a couple of goals holds good the home teams should win in each instance in these games. The full draw follows:

Bury versus Manchester United.
Exeter versus Blackburn Rovers.
Cardiff City versus Liverpool.
Port Vale versus New Brighton.
Swindon versus The Wednesday.
Southport versus Middlesbrough.
Derby versus Notts Forrest.
Wrexham versus Birmingham.
Sunderland versus Manchester C.
Huddersfield T. v. West Ham U.
Aston Villa v. Crewe Alexandra.
Stoke versus Bolton Wanderers.
Tottenham Hotspurs v. Oldham.
Arsenal versus Everton.
Sheffield U. v. Wolverhampton.
Reading versus Leicester.

Games will be played on the grounds of the first-named clubs.

PRIVATE RINKS MAY BE FLOODED

City Employees Will Flood Any Rink Properly Prepared.

The City Council in its program for the developing of sport in this city will have skating rinks flooded for groups of boys or any people wishing to have one. The mildness of the season has so far prevented any great amount of this work being done but now with the cold weather any wishing a rink flooded may have it done. A call to Alderman Cotton, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, Alderman Greene, Chairman of the Parks Committee, or Fire Chief Gimblett will result in the matter being looked after. All that is required before the flooding is that those who are going to operate the rink clear a suitable space and have the banks well frozen in order to hold the water. Rinks will be flooded tonight if the proper requests are made, as immediate service can be rendered.

Champion Dog Teams For Quebec Derby

QUEBEC, Jan. 27.—Leonard Seppala, Alaskan dog racing wizard and hero of the serum dash to Nome, who last week won the dog derby at Lake Placid, will drive his Siberian dog team from the Brown Corporation in the Eastern International Dog Sled Derby, to be run at Quebec February 20-22, it was announced yesterday.

This makes the sixth entry to date for the race. Others include last year's winner, Emil St. Godard, driving for the Ontario Paper Company; Paddy Nolan, the schoolboy musher, for the Lake St. Joseph Lumber Company; Joseph Therin, trapper and hunter from Loretteville, for the Holt Renfrew Company; Raymond Pouliot, for the Taverne Royale and Cyrille Pouliot. It is expected Channing of Boston, Molloy of Berlin, N.H., Shorty Russick of Chicago, and G. Chevrette will be entrants in the near future.

In connection with this event, the Chateur Frontenac has issued an illustrated souvenir booklet covering the highlights of the race and depicting, for the most part, features of the 1927 derby.

ONE-MINUTE INTERVIEWS

B. B. JOHNSON SAYS:

There is no reason why baseball should not continue to progress and annually afford good, clean amusement to millions of enthusiasts all over the country.

It was my great pleasure to spend most of my life in trying to further the interests of the great national game. When I launched the American League as a competitor to the National, the organization drew but ridicule in most quarters.

I thought there was room for two big leagues, that a keen rivalry would result and tend to increase interest and swell gate receipts.

Back in 1900 a park that would seat 10,000 was regarded as a mammoth stadium. I made the prediction that inside of 25 years crowds of more than 50,000 would be attending ball games. This also drew a smirk from certain quarters.

I feel proud that my prophesy has been more than fulfilled. Close to 70,000 people on many occasions during the past five years have packed the Yankee stadium in New York to see not only world series games, but regular contests as well.

Baseball at present is well situated. Some of the unpleasant features of recent years have been forgotten. The drastic punishment meted out should serve as a lesson for years. Yet, baseball should never for a moment grow careless as to its supervision.

Into every business there creeps undesirable persons and happenings that must be weeded out as they arise. This can only be done by the strictest sort of supervision and careful investigation. Baseball is the greatest of sports and should forever remain so, if properly handled.

MAROONS TAKE SECOND PLACE

Hooley Smith Badly Cut on the Face and Cheek During the Game.

HIGH SCORE FEATURES.

MONTREAL, Jan. 27.—The Montreal Maroons accomplished much more than just beating the Toronto Maple Leafs when they downed Conny Smythe's combination at the Forum last night, 1—0. They broke the deadlock which existed between the Leafs and themselves on the second rung of the Canadian section ladder in the N.H.L., and took sole possession of the runner-up berth. They pushed the Leafs down into a tie with Ottawa for third place in the race. They also maintained the hypnotic spell they have exercised over Toronto for three seasons, except for one little flash of will power shown here by the Leafs at the end of last Winter.

Above all, the Maroons added to their reputation as wreckers. Not satisfied with blocking the way for Canadiens in their record-smashing career through the N.H.L. last Saturday, the Maroons nipped a streak of success which bid fair to run into formidable proportions. Toronto had won four straight games before they landed here yesterday. Now they will have to start over again.

Hooley Smith Injured

The victory almost cost Maroons a valuable player. Two minutes before the end of the game Hooley Smith, whose hook-check had been a heartbreaking obstacle in the way of the Leafs throughout the contest, met a rush by Bill Carson full on. Smith crouched in characteristic fashion to halt the dashing dentist. Smith went down and Carson with him. The Maroon centre got to his feet with blood streaming from a wound below the left ear. He signalled the bench that he could go on for the two final minutes, but both Referees Ion and O'Hara waved him off the ice when he prepared to take his place for a face-off and he was replaced.

Examination revealed a deep cut on his cheek, which continued in a line down the left side of the neck. Fortunately the gash on the neck, which was directly over the jugular vein, was not deep, otherwise the injury might have been decidedly serious. As it was, it required four stitches to close.

Season's Best Score

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (Canadian Press).—Ottawa Senators defeated the Chicago Black Hawks here last night in a free scoring game by a score of 9 to 6 and advanced into a tie with Toronto Maple Leafs for third place in the International section of the N.H.L.

The game, while not featured by brilliant hockey, was such a wide open affair that interest was kept apace through the multitude of counters that flipped by the rival goalies. The Ottawas fattened their scoring average at the expense of Hughie Lehman, who guarded the goal for the Hawks. The Senators all played well, with Finnigan, Kilrea, Clancy, Smith, Nighbor and Grosvenor best. Sammy Godin, their latest recruit, made his first appearance locally, and while somewhat nervous, played a useful game and showed promise.

Hawks came to life in the last two periods, and made it interesting for the champions. The game was very clean, only one penalty being handed out.

RANGERS TAKE LEAD.

NEW YORK, N.Y., January 27 — The New York Rangers resumed the leadership of the American group of the National Hockey League by blanking the Detroit Cougars by 3 goals to 0, here last night. The idle Bruins tag the Rangers by a single point.

Frank Boucher opened the scoring in the second period, and Billy Cook and Bunny Cook tallied in the final frame, Lorn Chabot, Ranger goalkeeper, and Johnny Sheppard, Detroit spare, were injured in spills. Sheppard sustained a cut over the right eye when he crashed in the boards of the rink, while Shabot wrenched his back in a collision with Reg. Noble.

DELORO DEFEATS MADOC JUNIORS

Homesters Win 3-2 Hockey Decision at Deloro Rink.

MARMORA, Jan. 27. — A good game of hockey was witnessed on the Deloro rink on Monday between the Juniors of the village and the Madoc Juniors. Scoring a goal in the first period and two in the second, the homesters ran out winners by 3-2 the visitors beating Callery in goal on two occasions in the final period. Scorers for the local team were G. O'Neill, C. Clemens and A. Phillips.

J. Ethier refereed the game.

A return game, it is understood, will be played in Madoc next week.

BELANGER WINS LEGAL FIGHT

N. Y. Board Changes Front Completely — Genaro Box Champion on Feb. 6th.

CONTRACT ON WAY

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—Everything is hunky dory and the goose hangs high in Frenchy Belanger's camp. The flyweight champion may not whip Frankie Genaro in the return bout with the former holder of the American title, but he can be credited with a notable victory over the New York State Boxing Commission judging by the following wire which his manager Dave Garrity received yesterday from Jas. A. Farley, chairman of that autocratic body.

The message read: Regret action of commission in suspending Frenchy Belanger indefinitely for failing to appear before the board. Action due to mistake in confusing him with boxer of similar name in this city. Belanger not suspended indefinitely but only for thirty days when application for reinstatement will be considered." Signed Jas. A. Farley.

On top of this wire another was received from Joe Jacobs, manager of Jack Delaney by Playfair Brown, matchmaker of the Shamrock club as follows: "Everything O.K. for bout with Belanger on Feb. 6th. New York Commission will not take action against Belanger. Mailing contracts and forfeit for Genaro's match with Belanger for world's championship on Feb. 6th. Frankie in fine shape." Signed Joe Jacobs.

There is nothing now to prevent the Shamrock club under whose auspices the bout will be held at the Coliseum to go ahead with their preparations to stage the titular affair. As was predicted the New York Commission discovered to its cost that it had bitten off a little more than it could masticate with comfort in trying to buck both the Natitonal Boxing Association and the Ontario Athletic Commission. The explanation given by Secretary Farley regarding the "indefinite suspension" imposed on Belanger is considered to be in the nature of a complete crawl by those acquainted with the situation. If the New York crowd had gone ahead with their original plans there is little doubt but that Jacobs who has Jack Delaney under his wing as well as Genaro and Sammy Vogel would have withdrawn from Tex Rickard's tourney and New York would have been deprived of a great drawing card.

WILL PLAY-OFF IN SEMI-FINALS

Four Meet in Singles of Covered Court Tennis Championships.

AT MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 7 (Canadian Press).—George Lott of Chicago will meet P. Kyanston of New York, and Frank Shields of New York will play Jack Wright, Montreal, today in the semi-finals of the singles of the Canadian covered court tennis championships. Lott advanced to the semi-final round yesterday by defeating L. Boucher and then he disposed of a formidable opponent in Allen Behr, of New York. Jack Wright earned a place in today's draw by turning back his Davis Cup teammate, Dr. Art Ham of Toronto, in straight sets, while Shields beat D. P. Hatch and G. K. Wanstall, both of Montreal, without a third set being necessary.

The best match of the afternoon was the one between P. Kynaston of New York and Marcel Rainville of Montreal. The match was won by Kynaston after three hard-fought sets, 3—6, 9—7, 7—5, but it took everything the New Yorker had to win out over the aggressive local player.

The match was easily the most exciting one of the tournament and held the gallery tense as the battle swayed in favor of one player and then to the other. Rainville captured the first set, 6—3, and was leading 5—3 in the second when Kyanston staged a rally that evened matters and then sent the New Yorker ahead 7—6. In the fourteenth game of this set, while Rainville serving and training 15—40, the local played scored two aces in succession to make it deuce. He won his advantage point after a long rally, served a fault and then aced out to tie the set up again, Kynaston finally winning, 9—7. Again in the third set, Rainville was leading 5—4 and had the tenth game at 15 love only to see Kynaston pull through, win that game and the next, to win the set, and the match at 7—5.

In the doubles, both semi-finals will be played today after the singles have been completed. In the first match, two local pairs are pitted against each other, D. P. Hatch and A. W. Brown meeting Jack Wright and E. H. Laframboise. The second match brings together Shields and Rainville and George Lott and Dr. Art Ham.

OPPONENTS FOR THREE CHAMPIONS

Foremost Contenders for Three World Title Matches Picked Out.

NEW LONDON, Conn., January 24 (Canadian Press). — The honor roll of logical contenders, from which three world champions must pick opponents for title fights before February 16 or be declared null and void by the National Boxing Association, was disclosed yesterday by Thomas E. Donohue, head of the fistic union that controls boxing in 26 member states.

Failing to fight at championship weight within the past month brought warning of N.B.A. discipline to Mickey Walker, head of the middleweight division; Joe Dundee, welterweight king, and Sammy Mandell, lightweight title holder, ten days ago. Amplifying the earlier statement, the association's executive served notice yesterday that recognition will be given only to bouts "to a decision at the stipulated poundage in each class, with certain moxers recognized by the Association as challeners."

Middleweights named as foremost contenders for Walker's title are Jack McVey, New York negro; Dave Shade, of California; Joe Anderson, of Kentucky; George Courtney, Oklahoma cowboy; and the winner of the match now pending here between K. O. Phil Kaplan and Maxie Rosenbloom, both of New York.

Dundee may choose his challenger from a list including Sergeant Sammy Baker, Army warrior; Ace Rudkins, of Omaha, Neb., Tommy Freeman, Wet Springs, Ark.; Hilario Martines, of Spain; and Hy Sullivan, Minneapolis welterweight.

Contenders for Sammy Mandell's crown are Sid Terris, New York; Billy Wallace, of Cleveland; Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn.; Billy Petrolle, the "Fargo Express," and two New York youngsters, Bruce Flowers, negro, and Joey Kaufman.

FIGHT NOT STOPPED.

New York Decision Does Not Interfere With Genaro-Belanger Bout.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. (Canadian Press).—Any disciplinary action which the New York State Athletic Commission may take against "Frenchy" Belanger, Canadian flyweight, will not interfere with the scheduled National Boxing Association championship match between Belanger and Frankie Genaro, New York, at Toronto, February 6.

This statement was authorized today by James Farley, chairman of the New York Commission, who explained that there was no desire to upset matches arranged previous to the action against Belanger at the last meeting of the board.

"THE ARIZONA WILD CAT"

This picture is Tom Mix's latest contribution to the long series of Western thrillers which have made his name famous in moving picture annals. The outstanding features of this actor's pictures are, perhaps, their cleanness and the dramatic atmosphere which permeates them. Mix will probably never lose the popularity he has attained, and his pictures will always be assured of good audiences, as long as he follows out these principles. Of course, Tony, the wonder horse, contributes a great deal to the attraction of the productions.

In "The Arizona Wild Cat," Mix is Tom Phelan and the girl, Virginia Schuyler, is Virginia Marshall. Phelan is the owner of a ranch famous for its polo ponies and he is called to Santa Barbara to ride in a polo tournament. Of course, his enemies are ready for him, and try to keep him out of the running. After several dramatic episodes, he succeeds in winning the race, only to find that the girl he has rescued from a runaway team, some time before, has fallen into the hands of the crooks.

Again he comes to the rescue, and, with the aid of Tony, falls right through a roof that separates him from the heroine and her abductors.

SUZANNE IS THROUGH WITH TENNIS

NICE, France, Jan. 27—Suzanne Lenglen remains the world's greatest woman tennis player and could easily defeat Helen Wills or any other woman champion—

But Suzanne will never play tennis in public again!

These are the emphatic statements of "Papa" Lenglen at this time when the Riviera is getting interested in the series of popular tennis tournaments which are held here each year, and which reached their height with the great battle between Suzanne and Helen in 1925. But there will never be such a battle again because there is only one Suzanne and she has renounced the game.

This correspondent went to Villa Ariem, perched on a little avenue in the hills above Nice, to ask Suzanne why she had passed out of a sport in which she was such a flaming success.

She is now living quietly with her father and mother in their charming little home which overlooks the tennis courts where her father first taught her how to wield a racket seventeen years ago. But even in this atmosphere she doesn't want to talk tennis or even meet newspapermen.

Once the most photographed woman player, she now refuses to face a camera at all. Some of her friends fear that her spirit is broken by her unhappy venture into professionalism, but others insist that she is simply tired.

Suzanne at first refused to be seen, but finally relented long enough to say that she couldn't say anything. When she was asked if she would ever play tennis in public again, she said:

"No—Papa will tell you why. Go and see Papa."

And papa did tell why, as follows: "I think you may say that Suzanne will never be seen in public match play again. She has been at the game for seventeen years and all she wants now is peace and tranquility.

"In the last few months I have had wonderful offers of professional contracts—from America, England and Germany. A big Riviera club a week ago offered her a retaining fee of $4,000 until next May, with fees in addition if she would act as professional coach. Suzanne turned down all these offers. She is finished with tennis and with the crowd. She plays a little in private with friends but the gallery will never see her again."

Asked if he thought Suzanne regretted having turned professional, Papa said:

"Not at all. She came out into the open and threw off her amateur status for the sake of peace and quietness and to be able to show that the greatest woman player was not afraid to give the lead to many other so-called amateurs in openly declaring herself willing to make money out of her tennis playing.

"Until Suzanne decided to sign Pyle's contract she was never given a moment's peace. She was asked to play as an amateur here, there and everywhere, so that promoters might fill their pockets. In one week in Paris Suzanne brought in $6000 to the French Lawn Tennis Federation. How much the British public paid to see her I cannot hazard a guess, but it must have been an enormous sum.

"My daughter saw no reason why she should not pocket the dollars herself. She said so, did so, is now well off and that's all there is to it. She has given up public engagements for good and intends to spend the coming months in travel and resting up."

This would seem to settle Suzanne's tennis future. Papa Lenglen was, in addition to her trainer, her manager, and often her insparotion. In most of her big matches in Europe he was near her and she always seemed most brilliant with him looking on.

She can still beat any woman player of today, Papa says.

"Easily. Nobody could touch her. I speak as an authority on tennis of thirty years' standing. You can put parental pride aside.

"Suzanne Lenglen played with her brain. She could easily dispose of Helen Wills today or any other woman champion. She possesses perfect technique and a remarkable tennis brain. Had she been a man, she would have been greater than the Wildings or the Dohertys or the Tildens."

AT THE GRAND.

CHARIOT RACE IN "BEN-HUR" STAGED WITH DIFFICULTY

Fred Niblo Calls It Most Arduous Task Ever Assigned Him

20,000 EXTRAS IN SCENE

Various Bits of Simultaneous By-play Had to Coincide With the Big Event

The filming of the great chariot race in "Ben-Hur" was one of the most difficult tasks assigned to Fred Niblo in making the screen version of General Lew Wallace's classic for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. This Antioch circus sequence which is the most thrilling moment in this super-picture (soon to be shown here) was filmed by using every resource of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in Culver City, California.

Besides the large army of vounteer Graeco-Romans, some 20,000 extras were on hand, costumed, bearded and bewigged by 9 a.m. when they took their places in the vast amphitheatre. With this enormous throng at work, with forty-eight horses galloping around the course in the mad seven laps of the great Chariot Race, with 150 other horses utilized, the scene was made with precision and without an accident. Mr. Niblo worked most of the day from his tower which was nearly 100 feet high, supervising the forty-two cameras that shot 53,000 feet of negative during the day.

The Imperial Guard.

The first section of the players in the games was that of the fifty-four Roman Imperial Guard members who rode into the arena on horseback to clear the course; all members of the Eleventh Cavalry lent by the U.S.A. Presidio at Monterey, and brought to Los Angeles with their horses and equipment by special train.

Meanwhile many were rushing to and from the stands to the betting corner; Sanballat and his tablet were seen hurriedly recording wagers; Shiek Ilderim with Iras and Simonides with Esther were seen in their box, while all about thousands of Romans, Jews, Egyptians, Assyrians and other gesticulated and chattered in anticipation of the great race.

Beside the director's "loud speaker" orders to every part of the arena and auditorium, the camera people used the wigwagging system of army and navy signal flags to convey the orders of "Camera", "Fadeout", and "Cut"! Not only that, 12,000 feet of ordinary telephone wire conveyed verbal directions. An airplane flew overhead to record high and long shots directly down on the crowd.

A Thrilling Moment.

The buglers blew their final signal ....Huge tapestries were flung back and out dashed twelve chariot teams with drivers in gay colors and attendants in more sober effects. The teams came on, four horses to each of the dozen chariots. From the entrance and the subsequent lining up for the start both onlookers and the thousands of workers in the picture realized they were due to see expert horsemanship.

The start was almost perfect, save that Ben-Hur was crowded short and off in ninth position. This was correct, as the story of the picture follows that of General Lew Wallace's book, which had him ninth at the start. Francis X. Bushman, as Messala, was off fourth, as called for by the story. William Donovan with the Greek team of bays took the inner pole quickly and held it for the first two laps. Bushman came up on even terms at the beginning of the third lap, and held that position until the fourth, when he went to the front.

The sixth lap was the most exciting. Mickey Millerick, a famous horseman, driving the Byzantine team of roans, caught the inner rail at the south turn and just behind the Roman team. In doing so he crowded the Greek, Sidonian, Corinthian and Athenian teams far wide. The first went down and soon the others piled on top of him. There were actual shrieks from the throngs and it seemed that some one must be hurt, and perhaps fatally.

Ben-Hur (Ramon Novarro) had luckily gone wide and escaped the wreck. He went on to get even at the beginning of the seventh and last lap, and then the great incident of the story was enacted. Messala's wheel was torn off and he was smashed beneath his chariot and team. Ben-Hur went on to win easily amid the cheers of the vast crowd.

"DICK WHITTINGTON."

After a gap of seven years Peterborough playgoers had a chance last night at the Grand to enjoy a F. [illegible]rt-Whyte pantomime, and found that the producer who a decade ago gave us a series of delightful presentations had lost not a bit of his ability to provide distinctly worth-while entertainment. "Dick Whittington and His Cat," like all Stuart-Whyte efforts, stressed the three C's—it was clever, clear, and Canadian. These features can be counted on in every production under the same auspices along with an atmosphere that is invariably refreshing, scenic effects that intrigue the eye, tuneful music, bright lyrics, and a cast that combines ability and winsomeness. Always in Stuart-White productions has there been a charm that is peculiar to these pantomimes and that makes itself felt from the opening speech to the final chorus. They are as refreshing as a cool breeze on an August day.

While using most of the characters of nurseryland, Dick Whittington in the Stuart-Whyte version was distinctly modern. It even introduced Tex Rickard and the fight between King Rat and the Whittington Cat was broadcast in a very realistic imitation of Graham McNamee's best ringside manner. The lyrics were up to the minute enough to boost Hon. R. B. Bennett, new Conservative leader, as "a man who knows his onions." Most of the quips were Canadian in their tenor and all the more enjoyable on that account.

There was plenty of comedy. Norman Ainsley provided much of it in a capital performance as Dame Bumble, a part he filled to perfection. Fred Forrest was very amusing in his conception of Captain Cutless, the "villain" of the production, and Ernie Bruce and Alfred Hearn were of much assistance in the gun-making as Tommy Stout and Johnny Green respectively. The former incidentally scored as a musician, especially in his xylophone solo in the last act. "Dick Whittington" found a charming interpretation in the hands of Margaret MacKenzie and Jean Thomas was a pleasing Mistress Mary. Pat Walters as King Rat and Ernest Harvey as the Sultan both displayed excellent voices in their numbers.

But perhaps the most enjoyable feature of the whole production was the dancing. Little Jean Garrette, the premiere danseuse, was a sensation in her solo numbers, the little tot proving a wonderful dancer. The routine given by the syncopating steppers of the chorus was a fine demonstration of natural ability and clever training. The girls were pleasing personally, and they danced as if they enjoyed every moment of their work.

The musical score, which included some of the popular song numbers of the moment and some well-known airs from music comedies, was always tuneful—and the staging, costumes, and lighting effects in keeping with the high standard of other departments.

Now that he is back in Canada, it is to be hoped that we can look forward to other Stuart-Whyte productions. He always gives us something well worth while.

AT THE REGENT.

"LOVE MAKES 'EM WILD," FEATURE PICTURE AT REGENT PROVES VERY ENTERTAINING

An unusually entertaining film, which strikes directly at the heart, now playing at the Regent Theatre.

It is "Love Makes 'Em Wild," Fox Films version of Florence Ryerson's amusing story, "Willie the Worm." It'll remain until tomorrow and, in the opinion of this reviewer, all devotees of the silver sheet owe it to themselves to see it.

The picture sets forth in vivid fashion the struggles of an office worm, who is the butt of jokes from the boss down to the elevator boy. But love comes into his life and—presto—he's a changed man! He sets about to "clean up" those who have taunted him. And this is where some of the breeziest action ever recorded by a camera takes place.

Albert Ray, who directed the picture, used good judgment in his selection of the leading players. Johnny Harron fits into his part perfectly and does some fine acting. Sally Phipps, a comparatively newcomer, displays ability which promises a great future.

J. Farrell MacDonald, remembered as Corporal Casey in "The Iron Horse," and Arthur Housman, of "Whispering Wires" fame, supply some comedy scenes which alone are worth the price of admisison.

The screen play is by Harold Shumate.

"CANARY" MURDER CASE

THE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

THE STORY THUS FAR

A scream had come from Margaret Odell's apartment. The man who had just left rushed back to her room and knocked. "She answered," said Jessup, "and told him everything was all right and to go home." Earlier in the evening, said Spively, another man had called for the "Canary," but had been told she was out. He satisfied himself by knocking at her door and then leaving. The next morning the strangled body of Margaret Odell was found in her apartment. The side door to the alley was bolted on the inside; the murderer must have left the front way. Both phone operators said no one other than the men they mentioned had called. "But a man's voice answered from her apartment when someone phoned about a quarter to twelve," said Jessup.

CHAPTER XI.

Markham, clearly annoyed at the interruption, cut in sharply with a demand for the operator to proceed with his description.

"He wore his hair smoothed down," Spively continued, "and you could see it was kind of long; but it was cut in the latest style. And he had a small waxed mustache; and there was a big carnation in the lapel of his coat, and he had on chamois gloves. . . ."

"My word!" murmured Vance. "A gigolo!"

Markham, with the incubus of the night clubs riding him heavily, frowned and took a deep breath. Vance's observation evidently had launched him on an unpleasant train of thought.

"Was this man short or tall?" he asked next.

"He wasn't so tall—about my height," Spively explained. "And he was sort of thin."

There was an easily recognizable undercurrent of admiration in his tone, and I felt that this youthful telephone operator had seen in Miss Odell's caller a certain physical and sartorial ideal.

This palpable admiration, coupled with the somewhat outre clothes affected by the youth, permitted us to read between the lines of his remarks a fairly accurate description of the man who had unsuccessfully rung the dead girl's bell at half past nine the night before.

When Spively had been dismissed, Markham rose and strode about the room, his head enveloped in a cloud of cigar smoke, while Heath sat stolidly watching him, his brows knit.

Vance stood up and stretched himself.

"The absorbin' problem, it would seem, remains in statu quo," he remarked airily. "How, oh how, did the fair Margaret's executioner get it?"

"You know, Mr. Markham," rumbled Heath sententiously, "I've been thinking that the fellow may have come here earlier in the afternoon—say, before that side door was locked. Odell herself may have let him in and hidden him when the other man came to take her to dinner."

"It looks that way," Markham admitted. "Bring the maid in here again, and we'll see what we can find out."

When the woman had been brought in, Markham questioned her as to her actions during the afternoon, and learned that she had gone out at about four to do some shopping, and had returned about half past five.

"No, sir," was the prompt answer. "She was alone."

"Did she mention that anyone had called?"

"No, sir."

"Now," continued Markham, "could anyone have been hidden in this apartment when you went home at seven?"

The maid was frankly astonished, and even a little horrified.

"There are several possible places," Markham suggested: "in the bathroom, in one of the clothes-closets, under the bed, behind the window draperies . . ."

The woman shook her head decisively. "No one could have hidden," she declared. "I was in the bathroom half a dozen times, and I got Miss Odell's gown out of the clothes-closet in the bedroom. As soon as it began to get dark I drew all the window shades myself. And as for the bed, it's built almost down to the floor; no one could squeeze under it." (I glanced closely at the bed and realized that this statement was quite true.)

"What about the clothes closet in this room?" Markham put the question hopefully, but again the maid shook her head.

"Nobody was in there. That's where I keep my own hat and coat, and I took them out myself when I was getting ready to go. I even put away one of Miss Odell's old dresses in that closet before I left."

"And you are absolutely certain," reiterated Markham, "that no one could have hidden anywhere in these rooms at the time you went home?"

"Absolutely, sir."

"Do you happen to remember if the key of this clothes closet was on the inside or the outside of the lock when you opened the door to get your hat?"

"It was on the outside, where it always was," she announced, after several moments' reflection. "I remember because it caught in the chiffon of the old dress I put away."

Markham frowned and then resumed his questioning.

"You say you don't know the name of Miss Odell's dinner companion last night. Can you tell us the names of any men she was in the habit of going out with?"

"Miss Odell never mentioned any names to me," the woman said. "She was very careful about it, too—secretive, you might say. You see, I'm only here in the daytime, and the gentlemen she knew generally came in the evening."

"And you never heard her speak of anyone of whom she was frightened—anyone she had reason to fear?"

"No, sir—although there was one man she was trying to get rid of. He was a bad character—I wouldn't have trusted him anywhere—and I told Miss Odell she'd better look out for him. But she'd known him a long time, I guess, and had been pretty soft on him once."

"How do you happen to know this?"

"One day, about a week ago," the maid explained, "I came in after lunch, and he was with her in the other room. They didn't hear me, because the portieres were drawn. He was demanding money, and when she tried to put him off he began threatening her. And she said something that showed she'd given him money before. I made a noise and then they stopped arguing; and pretty soon he went out."

"What did this man look like?" Markham's interest was reviving.

"He was kind of thin—not very tall—and I'd say he was around thirty. He had a hard face—good-looking, some would say—and pale blue eyes that gave you the shivers. He always wore his hair greased back, and he had a little yellow mustache pointed at the ends."

"Ah!" said Vance. "Our gigolo!"

"Has this man been here since?" asked Markham.

"I don't know, sir—not when I was here."

"That will be all," said Markham; and the woman went out.

"She didn't help us much," complained Heath.

"What!" exclaimed Vance. "I think she did remarkably well. She cleared up several moot points."

"We now know, do we not," rejoined Vance serenely, "that no one was lying hidden in here when the lady departed yesterevening."

"Instead of that fact being helpful," retorted Markham, "I'd say it added materially to the complications of the situation."

"It would appear that way, wouldn't it, now? But, then—who knows?—it may prove to be your brightest and most comfortin' clue. . . Furthermore, we learned that someone evidently locked himself in that clothes-press, as witness the shifting of the key, and that, moreover, this occultation did not occur until the abigail had gone, or, let us say, after seven o'clock."

"Sure," said Heath with sour facetiousness: "when the side door was bolted and an operator was sitting in the front hall, who swears nobody came in that way."

"It is a bit mystifyin'," Vance conceded sadly.

"Mystifying? It's impossible!" grumbled Markham.

Heath, who was now staring with meditative pugnacity into the closet, shook his head helplessly.

"What I don't understand," he ruminated, "is why, if the fellow was hiding in the closet, he didn't ransack it when he came out, like he did all the rest of the apartment."

"Sergeant," said Vance, "you've put your finger on the crux of the matter. . . Y' know, the neat, undisturbed aspect of that closet rather suggests that the crude persons who rifled these charming rooms omitted to give it his attention because it was locked on the inside and he couldn't open it."

"Come, come!" protested Markham. "That theory implies that there were two unknown persons in here last night."

Vance sighed. "Harrow and alas! I know it. And we can't introduce even one into this apartment logically. Distressin,' ain't it?"

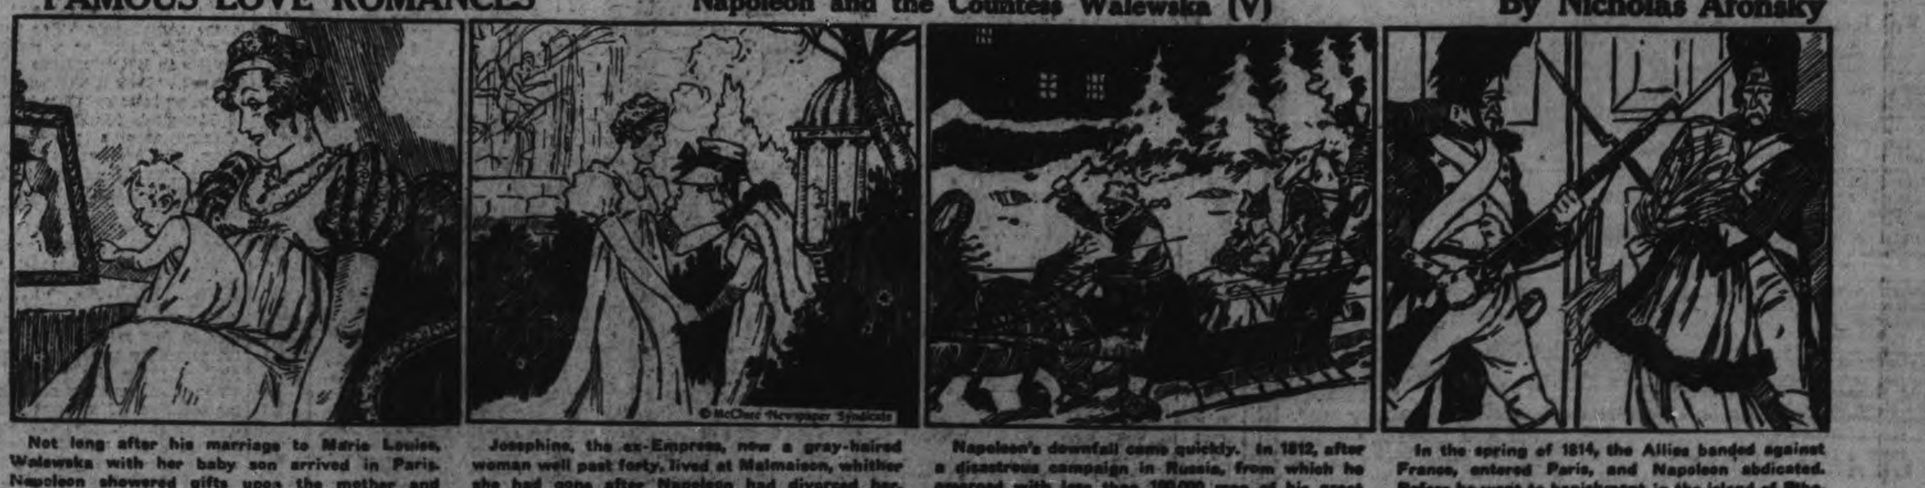
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES Napoleon and the Countess Walewska (V) By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Not long after his marriage to Marie Louise, Walewska with her baby son arrived in Paris. Napoleon showered gifts upon the mother and child, made the child a count, and promised to make his future brilliant. But his interest in his new wife occupied him, and Walewska was left much alone. But she was happy with her baby.

Josephine, the ex-Empress, now a gray-haired woman well past forty, lived at Malmaison, whither she had gone after Napoleon had divorced her. She invited Walewska to visit her, and there the two women met. Josephine, no longer jealous, found the beautiful young woman a charming and delightful companion.

Napoleon's downfall came quickly. In 1812, after a disastrous campaign in Russia, from which he emerged with less than 100,000 men of his great army of 600,000—the remnant of the Grand Army—he returned to Paris over the snow-covered land. As he sped through Poland he insisted on passing near the Countess's old home.

In the spring of 1814, the Allies banded against France, entered Paris, and Napoleon abdicated. Before he went to banishment in the island of Elba, Walewska, heavily veiled, came to see him. Nobody knew her and she was not admitted. She went away, leaving a note for Napoleon. He read it, sent for her, but she was gone.

BIG INCREASE IN DEPOSIT

Dominion Bank Raises Its Reserve Fund By Million Dollars.

CURRENT LOANS HIGHER.

Increased commercial activity and the general prosperity of the Canadian people was clearly reflected in the 57th Annual Statement of the Dominion Bank which was submitted to the Shareholders at their Annual Meeting on Wednesday the 25th instant. The outstanding features of this statement were the large increase in deposits bearing interest which stand at the highest point in the Bank's history, greater loans, additional earnings and a strong liquid position.

The profits for the year were $1,328,496.40, an increase of some $69,000.

After paying the usual dividends and bonus amounting to $780,000, $45,000 was contributed to officers' pension fund, $165,500 was provided for Dominion and Provincial taxation, while $250,000 was written off bank premises account, compared with $200,000 the previous year and $100,000 in 1925; $1,000,000 was transferred to reserve account and $120,524.45 was carried forward to profit and loss.

Possibly the most notable feature in the statement is the increase in deposits of nearly $10,000,000, bringing these figures now to a total of $108,756,919. The increase in deposits bearing interest of about $7,000,000 places the deposits under this heading at $86,899,262, which is the highest point yet reached in the Bank's history.

Greater business activity naturally increases current loans, and the Bank's close association with agricultural and industrial development is shown by an increase of some $3,000,000 in current loans to $60,664,382.

The Annual Statements issued by the Dominion Bank have always clearly indicated a strong liquid position. This is also a feature of the present report —in fact there has been a marked advance during the year. Total assets are $141,482,000, an increase of $[illegible]0,000. Cash assets stand at $26,652,084.21 or 21.78 per cent. of public liabilities and liquid assets at $69,776,353.86, 57 per cent. of liabilities to the public. In addition, the Bank holds in Dominion, Provincial, Municipal and other Securities over $21,500,000. The Bank's capital figures, with the addition of $1,000,000 transferred to the Reserve Fund in this statement are:

Capital Stock paid in $6,000,000.
Reserve Fund $8,000,000.

The Statement throughout is a markedly satisfactory one, not only reflecting greater activity in Canadian business channels, but in addition makes it clear that the Bank supports sound development.

The Statement received unanimous endorsement at the hands of the Shareholders, and the addresses delivered contained interesting surveys of the past year's business, which pointed to the favorable trend that might be looked for in 1928.

N. A. LIFE REPORTS SHOW RECORD YEAR

The 47th Annual Report of the North American Life Assurance Company records another year of progress and development.

The company has now in force a total of $165,684,200 of assurance showing a splendid net increase over the total of last year.

Once again the Company has announced an increase in its dividend schedule. Dividends paid to Policyholders have been increasing steadily for a number of years and this latest accession represents represents the fifth consecutive increase in as many years.

The record of the Company justifies the claim that the interests of its policyholders are paramount. Only a small fraction of one per cent of its total surplus earnings is paid to shareholders as against ten percent the amount permitted by the Insurance Act.

In all, Policyholders received $3,082,510. from the North American Life last year, being an increase of over $515,000. over the total paid in 1926.

All previous records in Surplus earnings were shattered by the total reached last year which was the largest in the Company's history.

The Company's Assets which are valued on a very conservative basis total $35,608,067.98 showing an increase over last year's figures of $3,314,287.93. This increase is the largest that the Company has ever shown. Of the total assets over $21,118,000. is invested in Government and Municipal Bond Stocks and Debentures, the market value of which exceeds the book value of $1,776,295.

The President in delivering his speech dealt with the accomplishments of Canada during the past year. He enlarged upon the different industries the majority of which have experienced a highly successful year, and he predicted greater development and prosperity during 1928.

UNITED CHURCH IS FACTOR, ETC.

slack on the traces, it is the man on the prairie or in the foreign field who suffers.

"We intend to spend every dollar to send men out to preach the foreign fields. They cannot board in Heaven and preach in China. The united Church is the league of all who love in the interests of all who suffer."

The vote of thanks was moved by Alderman Cotton, seconded by R. F. Kerr, and concurred in by the entire gathering.

E. Reid announced that an invitation had been received to meet with the Men's Association of Trinity United Church next month. The invitation was unanimously accepted.

He also mentioned that owing to the absence of Dr. Cameron there woud be no auditors' report and concluded by thanking the ladies for the splendid supper. He also extended the congratulations of the Men's Association to Mrs. Robinson, who had been re-elected president of the Ladies' Aid.

This brought the meeting to the stage of actual business, and the people moved to the auditorium of the church.

In the Church.

Settled comfortably in the church, the congregation lost little time in appointing George A. Gillespie chairman and the meeting was opened with suitable exercises, conducted by the Rev. Cordon. Then followed the reading of the minutes and the various annual reports.

Annual Reports.

Individual reference to the numerous reports submitted during the evening would be impossible, but taking them generally, they were most complete and informing. Some were of the financial business of societies and boards within the church, while others were financial statements indicating a successful year in all departments. They were as follows:

Report of Session, read by George Evans.

Treasurer's report of Session, by Mr. Evans on behalf of J. John.

Ladies' Aid reports by Mrs. McNeeley and F. E. Kerr (for Mrs Wood).

Sunday school report, read by Secretary Dearborn, in which he made reference to the three main events in the year—the anniversary services, the annual picnic at South Beach and the Christmas concert and supper. He also read the Sunday school treasurer's report which was most encouraging.

Bible Class report by Mrs. Nelson.

Choir report by Mr. Kerr and the organist, Mr. Crane.

Elizabeth Bell Auxiliary reports by Miss A. Gillespie and Miss J. Gillespie.

A most interesting verbal report of C.G.I.T. activities by Mrs. J. McKone.

The main financial report, read by R. Weddell. A resume of this report is as follows:

The financial report for the year showed receipts of $8,362.33, an increase of $329.56 over last year. The expenditures for the year were unduly heavy on account of some special repairs that were necessary. The total expenditure for the year was $8,857.73 or about $800 over the usual budget.

The 'Mission' account for the year showed receipts of $4,121.75.

Discussion of the general financial report occupied the remainder of the evening, many members of the congregation taking part. Means of raising special funds when occasion demanded, the various major expenditures and other matters were subjects of discussion conducted by Chairman Gillespie. Incidentally, it may be mentioned that each of the reports was adopted as it came up.

Minister Leaving.

During the evening, the Rev. Gordon took occasion to express his desire to be released at the close of the pastoral year, but mentioned it at present, only so that a committee might be formed in plenty of time to consider the matter of securing a new minister. However, there will fuller announcement of his departure and of the matter generally, in a month or so.

Taken in all, the annual meeting was a most successful one and the members of the congregation went away well pleased. The business, a heavy slate of it, had been well conducted, the social gathering previous to it, a most enjoyable one and considering these things, it is not difficult to foresee a prosperous 1928 for St. Andrew's United church.

At the conclusion of the business the following appointments were made:

To the Charity Board—Jno. Reid.

To the Hall Trust—George Evans and W. Richardson.

To Nicholls Hospital Board—W. Langford.

To Old People's Home Board—Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner.

The following were elected to the Board of Managers: Alex. Weddell, J. W. McDermid, George Tremaine, T. H. Gillespie, V. S. Foster.

CARNIVAL SUCCESS.

Last night's carnival at Sacred Heart rink was a brilliant success. The ice was in perfect condition. There were many spectators present despite the cold weather.

The carnival was honored by the presence of the Rev. Father Moloney. The judges found it very difficult to decide as to who were the prize winners. The three judges chosen were A. Moffat, J. G. McCarney and James O'Toole.

Ladies' fancy costume—Miss Mary Timm.

Ladies' comic— Miss Myrtle Melrose.

Girl's comic—Miss Ruth Reader.

Fancy costume—Mrs. Gregson.

Boys' Fancy—Jack Watson.

Boys' comic—Harold Chadwick.

Tramp—Jack Collins.

Married couple—Mr. and Mrs. Gilders.

The lucky number was fifty-six, held by Miss Marion Jones.

Men's fancy—Harold Coleman.

Men's comic—Vincent Rishea.

Adding much to the pleasure of the skaters was the very fine music furnished by the band in attendance. The proceeds of the carnival were approximately fifty dollars.

ONWARD CLASS MEETS.

The annual meeting of the Onward Bible Class of George Street Sunday School was held in the Board room of the Sunday School Hall on Tuesday evening, with a large attendance.

The President, Mrs. H. McHoull, occupied the chair. The meeting was opened by singing a hymn "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," followed by prayer by Mrs. McHoull. Very encouraging reports were given by the officers and convenors of committees for the past year, showing that splendid work had been accomplished. During the past year the Class had contributed $200 to the building fund and given the Ladies' Aid a cheque for $50 toward the furnishings for the board room. The class has already given the $1,000 promised toward the new Sunday School Hall, but will continue to work and pay off the debt.

Mrs. J. Stubbs, the teacher of the class, made a few remarks, thanking the members for their kindness and encouragement during the past years. The Onward Bible Class was organized in 1908 with Mrs. Stubbs as teacher and she has continued this great work since that time, ever faithful and giving her best in the interests of the class which now has a membership of 59.

The election of officers then took place, resulting:

Teacher—Mrs. Stubbs (acclamation; President, Mrs. C. Buck; Vice-President, Mrs. H. McHoull; Secretary, Miss Lottie Allen (acclamation); Assistant Secretary, Miss M. Cooper; Treasurer of Building Fund, Mrs. F. Sanderson (acclamation); Treasurer of King's Bank, Miss A. Allen (acclamation); Convenor of Social Committee, Mrs. H. McHoull; Visiting Committee, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Gunsolus, Mrs. Middleton, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. McBain.

At the conclusion of the business meeting a social hour was spent and light refreshments served.

FIRE DESTROYS PRISON FACTORY

NO PRISONERS LOST.

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Jan. 27. — (Canadian Press.)—The wagon factory of the Texas penitentiary here was destroyed by fire brought uder control early to-day. No prisoners escaped and there was no disorder, the authorities announced. Reports that the fire had been started by prisoners as part of a plot to escape were circulated when the flames severed the electric wires and left the institution in darkness.

Obituary

BABY MASON

The death took place in Peterborough on January 26, 1828, of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mason, who reside at 265 Park Street.

GEORGE CROWE.

The death occurred on Friday, Jan. 27. of George Crowe, resident of this city, following a short illness. Through his position as foreman at the Nashua Paper Company, he became well-known, and his death is deeply regretted by a host of friends. He leaves to mourn a sorrowing widow, a son, Robert. and a daughter. Jean. Three brothers, William, Sydney and Wesley, all of Peterborough, survive, together with five sisters: Mrs. Nellist, Mrs. Bessie Morrison of Peterborough. Mrs. Champion of St. Catharines, Mrs. Sager of Buffalo, and Mrs. William White of Windsor.

The funeral will take place on Monday, January 30, at 2.30 p.m., from the family residence, 45 Alfred Street. to Little Lake Cemetery for interment. The Rev. W. Allan will conduct the services.

ROBERT JAMES SAUNDERS.

Another of Peterborough's fine old men passed away when the death of Robert James Saunders occurred at his home, 336 Mark Street, on Thursday, January 26. Mr. Saunders was in his 71st year, and leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing widow, five sons, Joseph of Detroit, Samuel and Robert James of Toronto Russell of Stratford, and Charles of Peterborough, one daughter, Mrs. Stanley Pethick, of Chicago, two sisters, Mrs. George Snider of Shelbourne, Ont., Mrs. Fred Snider, of Toronto, and one brother, Joshua Saunders of Detroit. Another brother, Joseph, of this city, predeceased him some time ago.

The funeral will take place from the family residence on Saturday, January 28, at 2 p.m., and proceed to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. William McDonald of Knox United Church, conducting the services.

THOMAS LANG

Mr. Thomas Lang, of 544 Elm street, passed away on Thursday evening, Jan. 26th, in the Nicholls Hospital at 8.30 p.m.

Mr. Lang was fatally injured in the accident which occurred on Wednesday evening last on Aylmer street, just outside of the Utilities Commission sub-station. Mr. Lang was taken immediately to the Nicholls Hospital, where he remained in an unconscious condition for 15 hours, regaining consciousness for a brief period before his death. His wife, Mrs. T. Lang, his son, Mr. Victor Lang, and daughter, Mrs. George Sage, were with him at the end.

Mr. Lang was the chief operator of the Hydro Electric Commission power house at Auburn, where he had been employed for many years. He was highly esteemed by his fellow workmen and the executives of the Commission. Mr. G. B. Smith, of the Belleville office, came immediately to the city and was with Mr. Lang at his death.

Mr. Lang was a soldier of the Salvation Army for 30 years and held the rank of sergeant. He was faithful in all his duties at the Temple, beloved by his officers and comrades. His death will be a distinct loss to the work of the Army in Peterborough.

Mr. Lang's second daughter, Ensign Caroline Lang, is a Salvation Army missionary, stationed in Calcutta, India, where she is the secretary to the Commissioner of the Territory. A code message, bearing the sad news, has been sent to the Ensign from the Salvation Army Headquarters.

Mr. Lang was a member of Court Littlejohn, No. 92, Canadian Order of Foresters, and also of L.O.L. No. 80. He was also a member of the Peterborough Branch of of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Mr. Lang was born in South Monaghan township, and lived in Peterborough county all his life. Prior to his association with the Hydro, he was employed in the late Mr. Fitzgerald's carriage factory for 24 years.

A short service will be held at his late residence, 544 Elm street, to be followed by a public service at the Salvation Army Temple, Simcoe street. The services will be conducted by Major McElhiney and Commandant Frank Ham.

Mr. Lang leaves to mourn his loss his wife, Mrs. T. Lang, three daughters, Mrs. George Sage, Peterborough, Ensign Caroline Lang, of Calcutta, India, and Mrs. E. Butcher, Brandon, Manitoba; one son, Mr. Victor Lang, Peterborough. Also two brothers, Wesley and William Lang, of Poplar Point, Manitoba.

BIRTHS.

LAW.—At the Orange Memorial Hospital, January 20th, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Law, 251 Cleveland St., Orange, N.J., a son.

MASON.—At St. Joseph's Hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Mason a son (stillborn).

IN MEMORIAM

PUE.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mary Pue, who passed away January 27, 1913.

Fifteen years have passed, dear mother,
Since you left us all alone,
But your memory still is with us
Till we meet to part no more.

YOUNG CONSERVATIVE CLUB ORGANIZED IN WEST PETERBORO

B. Parks Is Elected First President of Local Organization.

SPECIAL SPEAKERS.

Aim Is To Educate Young For Purpose of Giving Service to Canada.

A splendid start was made last night in the organizing of a Young Conservative Club for the riding of Peterborough when the officers were elected and addresses were given by Mrs. Howard Fallis, organizer of Young Conservative Clubs in the Province of Ontario, William Atkin, president of the Macdonald-Cartier Club of the University of Toronto, and B. Perkins, secretary of the same club.

B. Park was elected president of the Peterborough club and he will be supported by an able executive and advisory committee.

Mrs. Fallis, the first speaker, outlined the reasons of forming Young Conservative Clubs all over the Dominion of Canada. "It is part of the program laid down at the recent Conservative convention in Winnipeg, and the object of forming these clubs is two-fold: educational and political. We all have felt that the young people of to-day did not know enough about the history of Canada, and with the training to speak as is given in the schools we thought that the forming of these clubs would teach the young people more about Canada. As far as a political nature we will look to these clubs for help in the next election when the Conservative party will again be returned to power at Ottawa," said the speaker.

"Often when asked why we are Conservatives, the answer is that our fathers were, but to-day we need to be a conservative by conviction as well as birth. Some of the greatest leaders in the Conservative party at Ottawa are Conservatives by conviction. Hon. Hugh Guthrie, temporary leader of the party, and Hon. Dr. Manion were once Liberals, but today they are Conservatives by conviction."

"The aims of these clubs will be to have the members understand what the Conservative party stands for and has stood for in Canada. Ninety per cent. of the best legislation that has been for the good of Canada has been passed by Conservative governments. A Conservative government brought about Confederation and supported the building of the C.P.R., and during the war it was the Conservative leaders that gave leadership to Canada."

"Canada to-day needs as she never did before, young Conservatives. We do not find Sovietism and Red propaganda linked up with the Conservative party. A real stabilized interest of the young in the Conservative party whereby they pledge themselves to the service of their country through the Conservative party will help the work along tremendously," concluded the speaker.

Why Should Club Be Started?

Mr. Aikin complimented the Young Conservative Club of Peterborough in having such an able sponsor and backer as Mrs. Fallis. "Why should a club be started?" asked the speaker. "It is common to mankind to get together where they can. to discuss things, and for this reason alone a club is the thing to add stimulus to the party. The clubs will be aided by outside speakers, and these will help to keep its interest up. One thing that counts a great deal in these clubs is that the members are able to air their views with confidence and assurance. To-day Canada is on the eve of a tremendous boom and by thus cultivating people to take an interest in things we help this country along."

"Why are we Conservatives? If it is a question of policy, both [illegible] are doing their best, although I maintain one is a poor best. The Liberals say they are the party of progress and change, but the Conservative party has brought about all the great changes that are found in Canada today. The Liberals are not a party to-day, for they are dominated by a group of men, and I maintain that it is not for the good of any country or party that it should be dominated by a section of men going to Parliament representing an occupational group as the Western farmer does now in the Federal House. The Conservative party stands for unity that does the greatest good to the greatest number."

In closing, Mr. Aikin referred to the reports being spread around that Toronto was a Liberal university. "I say it is Conservative even if the Liberal press gives a great bally-hoo to the doings of the Liberals in the university."

Meetings Held In Camera.

Mr. Perkins, in commencing, also referred to Toronto University as being a Conservative one. "The meetings of the Macdonald-Cartier Club are all held in camera, and when we get outside speakers who are men with experience, they often tell us some most interesting things." The speaker gave a few pointers to the Peterborough Club, in which he stressed the need of keeping the meeting informal so that the members would get up and express themselves. "The chief advantages of these clubs are derived from the discussions."

"Do these clubs work, and are they a success? Ours in Toronto has been, for we have aroused a lot of interest and enthusiasm in the Conservative party around the University. In arousing enthusiasm it is one way, and probably the greatest way of accomplishing something for the Dominion

ANGLERS WANT FISHING SEASON TO OPEN JUNE 15

Victoria County Men Differ With Toronto Visitors On This Point.

MANY RESOLUTIONS.

Heavier Fines For Infractions Advocated—Want Spawn Protected.

LINDSAY, January 28 (Special to The Examiner). — That the Deputy-Minister of Fish and Game showed bad judgment in cutting the season for catching maskinonge from June 15 to July 1st, and that this and other actions he had taken indicated he was not fit for his job, was the opinion expressed last night by George Potts of Bobcaygeon at a meeting of Toronto and Victoria County anglers held here to determine ways and means of protecting game fish.

The meeting was called at the instance of the Toronto Anglers' Association which for some time past has been endeavoring to rouse opinion throughout Ontario in favor of conservation of fish in the lakes and streams of the province. Thirty representatives of the Toronto organization arrived on a special train and returned to the city at eleven o'clock. Haliburton, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, and other nearby points were well represented at the meeting.

There was some difference of opinion regarding the wisdom of the Ontario Government's action in shortening the maskinonge and bass season. The Toronto delegation was inclined to think the movement a wise one; the Victoria County anglers were not much interested in the change as it affected bass, but were peeved over the curtailment of the period when muskies could be caught.

Resolutions Passed.

The following resolutions passed by the angler associations of Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, and Fenelon Falls were submitted to the Toronto delegates for their consideration:

1—That the open season for bass and maskinonge shall be from June 15 to October 1, and that one day's catch be limited to two maskinonge and six bass.

2—That licensed guides be prohibited from fishing while employed as guides by fishermen.

3—That the minimum fine for an infraction of the fishing regulations be increased to $20.00 and $100.0 foOr spearing, shooting, or netting.

4—That all possible measures be taken to control the Trent waters to protect the fish and spawn.

5—That the deer hunting season be from the 5th to the 20th of November.

6—That the Government should be requested to establish a large hatchery at a suitable place on the Kawartha Lakes in Victoria County.

7—That the Government should be urged to provide adequate protection during the 'lunge spawning season.

8—That duck shooting on Lakes Scugog, Sturgeon, Cameron, and Balsam Lakes be limited to three days a week

The Toronto representatives did not express themselves upon the first resolution, but supported the others with considerable enthusiasm.

D. T. Porter, of Lindsay, presided at the meeting. G. A. Warburton, president of the Toronto anglers' organization, explained the purpose of the meeting. He said that Toronto sportsmen alone could not influence the Government to bring about needed changes in the game laws. It was up to associations throughout the province to get together for that purpose. With a view to interesting the co-operation of other places the Toronto Association at its own expense was visiting places like Lindsay, Orillia, Owen Sound, and other points located in lake districts.

He differentiated between the man who fished for the sport of the thing and the man who made a living by so doing. He pointed out that both classes should observe the law because depletion of fish would be disastrous to all alike. Mr. Warburton held that no matter how many laws were passed it would not save the fish unless anglers themselves realized the necessity of living up to the regulations.

Offer $1,000 Reward For Bomb Throwers

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—A reward of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the men who bombed the home of Charles C. Fitzmorris, city controller, was offered yesterday by Michael Hughes, commissioner of police.

"Promotion awaits the policeman who gets the bomber," he added.

"I am going to start the greatest drive on crime and gangsters which I have ever heard of in my life. Gangsters and racketeers must go. They can no longer live in Chicago."

YOUNGER MAN WAS ON GROUND

Joseph Grierson, Junior, Was Helping His Father Lower Branch.

LIMB FELL SUDDENLY.

Joseph Grierson, Junior who was working with his father when he was killed yesterday afternoon, points out that while he had been up in the tree shortly before, he was on the ground when the accident occurred. He had cut through the limb, which was held in position by a rope, and descended to help his father lower it and swing it away from the house. The limb proved too heavy for the two men and dropped suddenly, striking Mr. Grierson, Senior.

The Examiner regrets that its version yesterday might seem to cast any reflection on the care and knowledge exercised by Mr. Grierson in this work.

TO INSTALL LIGHTS IN SCHOOL BUILDING

Warkworth Ratepayers Decide on Improvement if Cost Not Too Great.

WARKWORTH Jan. 28. — In spite of the inclement weather a large number of the ratepayers gathered in the Community Hall on Wednesday evening to discuss whether electric lights should be installed in the Continuation school or not. After considerable discussion it was unanimously agreed that the lights should be installed if the expense were not too great. It was decided to advertise for tenders for wiring before anything definite was decided.

SENTENCED TO HANG.

Horace Alderman Convicted of Murder of Two U. S. Coast Guardsmen.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Horace Alderman, convicted of killing two coast guardsmen on high seas of Port Laurerdale, was sentenced by Judge Henry Clayton in United States District Court here yesterday to be hanged in County Jail at Port Laurerdale, May 11.

The Weather

The thermometer got down to four above the zero mark last night, and as usual rose a little towards daybreak. An old proverb says "As the days lengthen the cold strengthens." Apparently it does not hold good this year. As Mark Twain says though everybody talks about the weather, nobody seems to be able to do anything with it.—W.P.

Ocean Steamships Delayed By Storm

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 28. — Canadian Press.—Eighteen ships at sea yesterday wirelessed their agents that they would be unable to make port on schedule time because of the gale which travelled out on the Atlantic after causing havoc up and down the Atlantic seaboard Wednesday

Most of the steamers notified their owners that they would be more than a day late. They reported that the winds which assailed them earlier in the week had abated, but that this storm had so retarded their speed that they could not make up their schedules. For almost a week, none of the trans-Atlantic liners has docked on time.

The Canadian Pacific Steamships office here announced yesterday that the Empress of Scotland, on which Raymond, Cardiland Rouleau, Archbishop of Quebec is returning to Canada from Rome, would not dock until Wednesday. The vessel was scheduled to arrive Sunday morning.

EXHIBITION BOARD'S BANQUET IS MOST ENJOYABLE FUNCTION WITH HAPPY SPIRIT PREVAILING

City and County Councils and Many Citizens Guests of Directors.

SPEECHES ARE SHORT.

Praise of Past Efforts of Board Coupled With Prophecies of Better Things.

The usual description of a banquet, "a small amount of food surrounded by a great deal of talk" did not apply to the annual banquet of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board. First, there was a great deal of food, for Mine Host Chris Graham, had made full use of all the facilities of the Empress Hotel to serve the directors and their guests. Second, the speeches, although numerous, were short and to the point, and altogether would equal in quantity little more than one of the customary banquet addresse. The quality however was very high.

Almost the first words of President Denne were that the banquet was to be of a free and easy type and the hundred or so men there proceeded to comply with his announcement. The community singing was spontaneous, no leader being required, and a general happy spirit prevailed.

A feature of the program was the showing of the moving pictures taken at the 1927 exhibition by Fred Roy. These met with hearty approval, showing as they did every phase of the exhibition from cows to clowns.

Among those present were the city and county councils, and many leading citizens.

Nineteen twenty seven was a banner year for the Exhibition, said the chairman, and there was a surplus of $7,500. This, however, had to be spent for expansion.

Mayor Denne referred to the passing of ex-Mayor George H. Duncan, one of the directors, speaking of him as a hard working and enthusiastic member. Speaking of the recent trip to Toronto, the chairman said that 38 of the 53 directors had paid their own fare to Toronto to present the board's request for financial assistance and that if the Hon. Mr. Martin had had the signing of the check they would have brought the $50,000 back with them. Their request had been supported by ex-Mayors Duffus and McIntyre, and by G. A. Gillespie, ex-M.P.P., and W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.. Mr. Martin had given credit to fall fairs for his success as a farmer, and had promised to attend the fair next year and open the new buildings.

His Honor Judge Huycke said: — "I can easily see there is no limit to the progress of Peterborough," declared His Honor Judge Huycke. "I can see that Mr. Roy and his skilled assistants are going to make this city the Hollywood of the next generation.

"I am glad to see so many gentlemen here from the city, and so many gentlemen from the country. I wish to stress the union of the city and county, for the prosperity of each is dependent upon the other. I wish to congratulate you upon the great union of city and council for a common object, and on the great number of young men on the board."

His Honor said that with such young and energetic met at the helm as Mayor Denne and Warden Smithson, the progress of the exhibition, the city and the county is assured. He congratulated the president on his willness in taking the pictures to Toronto to convince the Ministers of the greatness of the Peterborough exhibition. Referring to Macaulay's lines, "When none was for a party and all were for the state," the judge expressed his belief in parties but urged all to abandon their parties, political or ecclesiastical to get behind the exhibition He commended to them the motto on the wall:

"Let us increase our efforts for a greater Canada a better Ontario, a richer county, and a happier city and district."

A song by Bob Hendry, prefaced by settlement of a dispute about passing one's permit around, was a happy interlude. His songs were "When I Meet McKay," and "I Like My Own Home Town."

Speaking about the motto, Mayor Denne declared that the Exhibition Board is like the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, is out to give service. He then called on Agricultural Representative J. B. Nelson, introducing him as one here to give service.

J. B. Nelson.

Mr. Nelson expressed his pleasure at being present and spoke of the good impression the 1927 exhibition had made on him. He had received a great deal of help from the board in doing work which would otherwise have taken several years. The exhibition he compared to a growing boy, out of the class of most of the county fairs and getting into the class of the big fairs. The requests for grants were not signs of weakness but of growing pains.

It is called an industrial exhibition but the agricultural side seems the greater. Any fair that can bring in more than 1,000 head of live stock is a real agricultural exhibition and is growing and developing with the country.

It is a far cry from the old fall fairs to those of to-day. They have

Would Re-organize Vancouver Police

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 28. Canadian Press. — Complete re-organization of the city police department within the next 30 days has been ordered by the Vancouver Police Commission, it was announced yesterday by Commissioner, T. M. Fletcher.

Written instructions, it is reported, have already been issued to Chief of Police H. W. Long to this effect, and should the shake-up prove satisfactory to the Commission the police board will name a commission of investigation to carry out its edict.

Immediate action it is said, will involve the dismissal of six or eight members of the force. No reason for the commission's action was given by Commissioner Fletcher other than the board has for a long time been dissatisfied with the conditions at police headquarters.

PASTOR BRINGS FIFTEEN IDEAS BEFORE CHURCH

Rev. Mr. Dudgeon Unanimously Supported By St. James' Congregation.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The adjourned congregational meeting of St James' United Church, met again in Wesley Hall to conclude the business plans of the church for the coming year.

The congregation was again well represented the pastor Rev. Mr. Dudgeon presiding. The meeting opened with devotional service, after which the business part of the program was begun.

Ernest Kitney, chairman of the Board of Stewards, gave the report of the committee which had been appointed to a house-to-house canvass, relative to raising the budget for the year 1928. The report was very gratifying in the response made by the members of the church and especially in the practical way in which the committee had undertaken and carried out the work.

Rev. Mr. Buckler then took the chair while the report of the pastor of the church was being read and for the election of officers.

In his report, Rev. Mr. Dudgeon thanked his congregation for their loyal support since coming to St. James. He appreciated their faithful attendance at both the Sunday and mid-week services. He also thanked the organist and the choir leade, Frank Stephens, and all members of the choir for their assistance and the inspiration they gave to the church; also the Sunday school superintendent, A. E. Prest, for his devotion to his work, as well as all the teachers and officers in the school, from Primary department to the newly organized Brotherhood. The Ladies' Aid and all Societies in connection with the church he commended for their assistance, and for the faithful manner in which their work was carried on.

In the course of his report however the pastor said that the Board of Stewards and himself had found that a great many changes and revisions were necessary to the wellbeing of the church, and in this connection he had framed a long list of resolutions, which he brought at this juncture before the congregation, to be accepted or thrown out.

The unanimous acceptance of every one of the fifteen resolutions (excepting one unimportant clause) was convincing evidence of the real harmony existing among the members of the congregation, the officials of the church and their pastor.

The election of officers for the coming year then took place, resulting as follows:

Samuel Deyell and Charles Kitney were made Honorary Elders of the church as well as members of the Official Board.

The four new Stewards who are elected for three years are Elmer Frost, F. Hogan, Ernest Lee, H. Pitchford, and the new Elders for the coming three years are: W. E. Sargent, G. E. Patterson, Edward Pevy, R. B. English and Alvin Davis. Mr. Davis was appointed in the place of Harry Robinson, who was made Honorary Elder.

Treasurer of Church Funds— John Arthur.

Treasurer Maintenance and Extension—C. F. Kitney.

Property Committee—Messrs. J. A. Fry, G. Cuff, Wilson and Rowe.

Commodore Hartley Begins Work Monday

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 28. (Canadian Press.)— Commodore Herbert Hartley, who resigned his commission as captain of the Leviathan two days ago, has associated himself with the Trans-Oceanic Corporation of the United States. Hartley, who said he would begin his new work Monday, previously had announced an intention of going into business at Atlanta.

The Trans-Oceanic Corporation recently laid plans before the Shipping Board for a fleet of steamers capable of crossing the Atlantic in four days. Hartley, in a statement made public by the corporation, said he would have personal charge of recruiting and training the personnel for the corporation and its ships.

YOUNG PEOPLE ARRANGE RALLY

PROGRAM DRAWN UP.

A meeting of the Presbyterial Y.P.S. of Peterborough district was held in St. Andrew's church, Hastings, yesterday afternoon at 2.30. The attendance of delegates was very encouraging, albeit several representatives were unable to attend on account of the impassability of the roads.

The object of the gathering was discussion of ways and means to have a rally of district young people's societies within the presbytery at a future date, having in view also the organization of Y.P.S. where they are not now in operation.

The Discussions.

Under the chairmanship of R. J. Townsend, devotional exercises were observed. Rev. D. A. Thomson led in prayer, which was followed by roll call. An address by the pastor of St. Andrew's church—"How We Conduct Our Y.P.S."—was topical and interesting, and lent food for thought.

A general discussion was taken part in by several delegates anent the idea of a rally as the preparatory step to the fall work. The date was first agreed upon—Tuesday, April 10. This was moved and seconded by D. Snelgrove of Peterborough, and Miss Wilson, of Keene.

Moved and seconded by Miss Whitred of Hastings and Mr. Holman, of Millbrook, that St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Peterborough, be the place of rally, at 2 p.m. on that day. This was agreed to.

The Program

The details of the program were taken up carefully by the delegates and arrangements for successful sessions were discussed and passed. Each society in the Presbyterial will be asked for a small donation towards delegates' expenses, to obviate the registration fee usually charged. Mr. Doughty of Hastings and Mary Sedgwick were responsible for this motion, which was passed.

D. Snelgrove, Peterborough, was appointed to assist Secretary-Treasured Horace Hope in the work of registration of members attending the rally.

The question of chairmen of the two sessions was decided by appointing Rev. G. Eakins of Norwood for the afternoon sederunt, with R. J. Townsend presiding over the evening deliberations.

Rev. Dr. Kannawin Coming

A letter was read informing the delegates that Rev. Dr. Kannawin of Toronto would be the speaker at both sessions, the propsed topics being: Organization of Y.P.S., Election of Officers; Arranging Programs; Co-operation, and Social Activities—these being in the nature of information for the successful carrying on of the work of societies. Coming from Dr. Kannawin, much light on the subjects is expected.

The formal program was outlined and delegates and others attending are promised much of interest musically and educationally. Letters and information and instructions will be

FARMERS' MARKET WELL ATTENDED

Chickens, 28 to 30 Cents a Pound—Ducks and Geese Were Scarce.

In contrast to the poor attendance at the farmer's market last Saturday, there was a goodly crowd on hand this morning, both in the market square and in the hall. Upstairs there was a fair supply of chickens to be bought at from 28 to 30 cents per pound, but there was scarcely any showing of ducks or geese. Butter ranged from 40 to 45 cents and there was also a liberal offering of home cooking.

Outside, particularly in the meat section, there was little variation from last week's prices, pork selling at 15 to 17c and beef 16 to 17 cents. Potatoes went well at $1.75 a bag while other vegetables carried regular prices of the past two weeks.

Sheriff Didn't Have Missing Girl Ready

TROY, N.Y., Jan. 28. —Canadian Press. — Frances St. John Smith, the missing Smith College student was not produced by Deputy Sheriff James Golden at eleven o'clock to-day because the Deputy Sheriff did not have any.. such girl to produce.

He said that earlier in the day he had jokingly told a patrolman he was going to have the girl at the jail at eleven o'clock. At that time he did not believe the patrolman would take the matter seriously.

C. G. I. T. GIRLS ELECT OFFICERS AT CONFERENCE

Miss Arleigh McKone Chosen as President at Opening Meeting.

MISS SINCLAIR PRESENT.

Delegates From City and Country Meet in St. Paul's Church.

The opening session of the C.G.I.T. Conference was held in St. Paul's Church last evening with a good attendance of delegates.

This was followed by a Sing Song in which all joined heartily.

The election of conference officers then took place and resulted as follows:

President—Miss Arleigh McKone.
Secretary—Miss Jane Cathcart.

Miss Edith Sinclair, Provincial Girls' Work Secretary, took charge of the meeting. She congratulated the conference on the choice of their officers, and reminded the delegates that they were for the next few days on exhibition, before the public, as girls who have a purpose in life, of developing the right kind of C.G.I.T. girls.

She said she anticipated a splendid time during this conference. She had attended many larger ones—as the Toronto conference recently—but she thought that in smaller gatherings there was more of a feeling of kinship. She asked the delegates to take back to their groups or their church a definite message of the work of the C.G.I.T. conference.

Miss Sinclair then conducted a service of worship. After singing a hymn and reading a portion of Scripture — Paul's great adventure, she took as her theme: The Great Adventure.

"Artist in all ages have protrayed young girlhood as a girl standing on a cliff, eyes shining, tip-toe to life.

"The problem is: How best can we face life. If we study the life of Jesus we see men turning aside from their duties; many rich with good positions, leaving all to follow him. The time comes in all our lives when we feel we want something very badly, some pleasure or possession, but often, after obtaining it, it does not satisfy us. Why are so many of our girls not as happy as they should be? God has not touched their lives. So many of us are so like Peter. Peter was so human. After the spirit came upon him he saw so many beautiful things in life and after that he really and truly lived. Early in life we must learn something of God's business, His work in the school, the home and the playground. There are many big problems awaiting the girls of to-day, who will be the women of to-mor-

Ex-Kaiser Wilheim Celebrates Birthday

DOORN, Welland, Jan. 28. — (Canadian Press.) — Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany celebrated his birthday in quiet fashion yesterday.

A black and white banner of the Hohenzollerns waved above the castle here in honor of the day. There were guests assembled and many flowers were received from all over Europe. But there was little else to mark the day for what it was, the onetime Emperor's 69th birthday.

Wilhelm last evening had as guests various Dutch officials and members of the surrounding nobility. Luncheon was served only to the family circle, the former Crown Prince and members of the family having arrived Thursday night.

Recent bereavements suffered by the Princess Hermine, which included the death of her brother, Prince Henry of Reusa, were given as reasons for the quietness of the celebration.

VILLAGE REEVES FAIL TO GET GRANTS FOR PAVING PURPOSES

Haavelock, Lakefield and Norwood Ask County Council For Street Pavement.

FAIL TO AGREE.

Deputation From Humane Society Asks For Grant in Aid of Dumb Animals.

The Reeves from the Villages of Havelock, Lakefield and Norwood asked the County Council yesterday to pave the connecting links on the county roads through their municipalities, and as they failed to reach an agreement with the country roads committee on the division of the costs, the matters were referred to another session of the council.

Reeve Curtis of Havelock was the first to put in his claim and for a time it was thought he had got in ahead of the other two villages, but Reeves Tanner and Montgomery were very soon on their feet asking for pavement also.

Havelock asked for pavement last year and was refused, but since then plans have been made, the draining has almost been completed and estimates of the cost have been received. Reeve Curtis asked the county to grant $24,000 towards the paving of a strip 20 feet wide about a mile long through Havelock and in return he promised that the village would forego its country road grant for a period of two years and perhaps longer. Reeve Tanner of Lakefield claimed that his village was further advanced than Havelock in making preparations and that Lakefield would forego the grant for two years. Mr. Montgomery asked that either one of the connecting links be paved in Norwood as the village found it impossible to keep up the two roads. Members of the council reminded the village reeves that they had been only in the county good roads system for a period of two years and they thought they were a little premature in asking for pavement. R. C. Muir, department engineer, was present, and advised the council to pave one village, preferably Havelock, as it already had the blue prints. He suggested that the council grant $20,000 towards paving in Havelock, 50 per cent of which will be paid by the province and that Havelock forego its grant for a period of 5 to 10 years, provided that the county assume the maintenance of the pavement after that period.

The matter was left to the good roads committee to bring in a report, and after two hours' discussion with the different reeves, H. B. Rye, the chairman, reported that the committee had made a proposition to the villages, that the county would pay $1.60 per square yard for the paving of the 20-foot strip if the village would forego the county rate for a period of 10 years. The reeves were not in accord with the proposition, so he asked that the matter be left over until another session.

Mr. Muir addressed the Council at the morning session in which he suggested that the grant to municipalities on township roads might be increased to 50 per cent. in another year. He advised the Reeves to encourage their road superintendents, and not to dismiss them without ample reason, for the Minister will refuse to grant 50 per cent. of the new commissioner's salary if he believes the old one has been dismissed through some grievance of the Reeve.

He put the Council right as to the interpretation of the Act in regards to a grant of 50 per cent. on all bridges 20 feet and over. The members of the county had been led to believe that if the county assumed all the bridges over 20 feet a grant of 50 per cent, could be obtained from the Government in their construction and maintenance, but Mr. Muir clearly pointed out that the Act meant those county and township boundary bridges that were over 20 feet provided the townships assumed those under 20 feet in length.

In appointing the Good Roads Commission, Reeves Scott and Rye were nominated for the vacant position caused by the retirement of ex-Reeve Lillico from active municipal life. Mr. Rye won out by one vote, with nine members voting. The members of the committee are Reeve Rye (chairman) and Reeves, Smithson Middleton, and Curtis.

A deputation composed of Dr. Johnston, R. C. Smith, D. C. Grant, and F. Dawson asked for a grant towards the Peterborough Humane Society. The members told the Council that their inspector, R. C. Smith, was often called upon to go into the country to investigate a case. "Generally it is not the farmer who is abusing some dumb animal, but it is people who formerly lived in the city and have moved out on to the farm and know nothing about animals who are guilty of abusing or starving them," said Inspector Smith.

It was left with the special County Property Committee as to the bettering of the acoustic properties in the Court Chamber. A. W. Connors, the county engineer, submitted three plans—one was for plastering the walls and ceiling with a porous plasted which would cost $1,500, to plaster the walls at a cost of $540, and the third was to put a fibre board on the walls at an estimated cost of $300.

GRANT IS MADE FOR PAVEMENTS

Counties Council Will Assist Campbellford and Millbrook in Work.

SESSION CLOSES.

COBOURG, January 28. — The main item of business to be transacted at the final session of the January Counties Council was the presenting of reports and the passing of a by-law referring to the deed of a part of the Shelter Valley Road. Since the Schools Committee had already submitted their report and had it accepted at the afternoon session, there were only six reports to be heard. The one to cause the most discussion was that of the Counties Property Committee. Reference was made in it to certain decoration that was recommended for the interior of the building, and before the discussion was ended, it was even necessary to produce the lease in order to obtain the desired information. No definite action was taken regarding the decorating, but estimates are to be brought in at the June session.

The Finance Committee was the first report to be read to the Council. W. C. Wood, chairman of the committee, presented the report. The first recommendation was that a grant of $50,000 be made to Campbellford as assistance in paving the connecting links of the town. Twenty-five thousand dollars was recommended for the town of Millbrook for the same purpose on condition that the agreements between the corporations and the counties meet with the approval of the Department of Public Highways, Toronto. It was recommended that no action be taken with regard to the request from the Village of Hastings that their original grant of $25,000 be increased to $27,000. This grant was made for their paving program last season.

The usual grants of $750 each were recommended for each of the three counties hospitals, Cobourg, Bowmanville, and Port Hope. To the Children's Aid Society, Port Hope, the usual grant of $350 per month was recommended. The grant for the National Institute for the Blind was recommended laid over till the June session for the purpose of obtaining further information. It was recommended that no action be taken in regard to the request for a grant which came from the Trent Waterways Association.

Fifty dollars was granted the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto. No action was taken with regard to the grant for the maintenance of the Provincial Laboratories at Peterborough. The amount of $500.86 claimed by the town of Cobourg as adjustment in the bridge account of the two counties, was not paid. The communication was recommended received and filed. It was recommended that the fifteen dollar membership fee be paid to the Ontario Good Roads Association and the Road Commissioners attend the convention, bringing in a report at the June session. The printing contract was recommended placed in the hands of the Contingency Cimmittee. The request of Miss McMann for an increase in salary of $200 per annum was granted, the Department of Public Highways to pay half of the increase. E. L. MacNachtan, assistant county Clerk, was granted an increase in salary to make it $1,200 per annum.

Obituary

MRS. ALBERT CHEYNE.

The death occurred in North Monaghan on Friday, January 27, of Marie Antoinette Cheyne, wife of Albert Cheyne, leaving to mourn a sorrowing husband and two daughters. The funeral will take place from the family residence, North Monaghan, at 1.00 p.m., on Monday Jan. 30, proceeding to Plainville, Ont., for interment. The Rev. D. Wren will conduct the services at the home and the graveside.

DELORO BOY SCOUTS.

MARMORA, Jan. 28.—February promises to be an interesting month for the Deloro Boy Scouts. It was decided by the Troop Committee at their meeting on Tuesday evening to celebrate the Troop's first anniversary on the evening of Feb. 7th. On this occasion, service stars and proficiency badges will be awarded. Parents and well wishers will be heartily welcomed.

During that same week, the boys are having a sleigh ride with a bean feast in the woods.

The committee also decided to put on a dance and card party at Deloro Hall on Feb. 17th with Mr. R. Hunter in charge of the musical arrangements.

13,968 TICKETS PLACED IN BOX: J. W. STEPHENSON WINS $50.00

Winner Guesses Exact Number in Annual Dollar Day Competition—Five Tied For Second Place, One Off the Correct Total.

MANY CLOSE BEHIND; SEVEN WITHIN FOUR OF TOTAL.

Perhaps never before have the Dollar Day Tickets shown such genuine evidence that the shoppers were making real estimates of the number in the box as on this last big event. Hundreds based their estimates on the previous one-day records, and simply doubled the amount because of this being a two-day session. Others judged by an apparently small day on Wednesday, and dropped their figures to much below those of last January. Still others remembered that last January was also a two-day affair, made necessary because the first day was given a 30-below-zero mark and calculated this year's figure would be in the 14,000's or thereabouts. The latter class proved nearest correct, the actual number being 13,968, just 32 lower than the 14,000 so many expected. As usual the successful estimators hit almost on the exact figure. J. W. Stephenson, with a correct estimate, had no competitor for the Grand Bonus, and carried off the $50.00 unbroken. Then followed five estimators, only one off the mark, who divide the 2nd to 6th money, getting $15.00 each.

Two more sets of ties, three within 3 of the correct figure, and five only 4 above or below it, divide up the remaining $25.00. About 100 other blanks were filled out with figures right next to the winners, which only shows how close the estimating was done by the joyous crowds that find both pleasure and profit in Peterborough's greatest community event.

Following are the names of those who made the successful estimates:

1st—J. W. Stephenson, 497 Dickson, 13,968	$50.00
2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, and 6th—Tie:

Germany Issues Memorandum On Subject Of International Security To League

GENEVA, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Germany submitted a memorandum on the subject of international security to the League of Nations last night. Germany's conclusion is that causes of war can only be removed by political arrangements guaranteeing a durable peace and such as would eliminate all situations imperilling world peace.

Some observers saw in this statement an allusion to the desirability of revising the treaty of Versailles and reparations.

To increase security, which means the avoidance of armed conflicts, Germany urged a more general signature of the compulsory arbitration clause of the world court. This would take care of juridical disputes and for political disputes, which are considered more dangerous, Germany urged extensions of the pratice of conciliation through bilateral or multilateral pacts, believing that settlements by obligatory arbitration is impracticable at the present time.

Germany is of the opinion that common action by all the members of the league in the event of rupture of peace would be impossible while general disarmament is lacking.

State Investigators Review Every Angle Of Search For Missing College Girl

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Every angle of the search for Frances St. John Smith of New York, Smith College freshman, who disappeared two weeks ago, was explored yesterday at an eight-hour conference in the Village of Leeds, near this city, attended by State police officials and detectives, the chief of the city police, and representatives of the girl's family.

From 9.30 o'clock yesterday morning until 5.30 in the afternoon, General Alfred Foote, State Commissioner of Public Safety, discussed the case with others who had been engaged in the search for the missing student.

In addition to studying all clues and the stories which had been presented since Miss Smith vanished from her dormitory, the Dewey House, on January 13, those attending the meeting at Leeds attempted to reconstruct from their knowledge of the girl's character and state of mind immediately prior to her disappearance, her possible course of action at that time.

While those actively engaged in the search devoted the day to a review of past activities and the formation of plans for the future, Smith College authorities took occasion to issue a statement denying reports that Smith College girls had been attacked on the college campus since the disappearance of Frances St. John Smith.

COSGRAVE AT PHILADELPHIA

REMAIN TILL SUNDAY.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28.—(Canadian Press.)— William T. Cosgrave president of the council of the Irish Free State, came to Philadelphia yesterday from Washington.

Arriving here shortly before noon from Washington, the Irish president was met by a committee representing the friendly Sons of St. Patrick. Escorted by the first city troop, Philadelphia's historic cavalry organization, he and his party were driven through streets lined with cheering crowds. At the city hall they were formally greeted by Mayor Mackey.

From there, Mr. Cosgrave went to Independence Hall, the graveyard of the old St. Mary's Catholic church, where Irish heroes of the Revolution lie buried, and the grave of Franklin. Later in the afternoon he was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by Mayor Mackey.

Mr. Cosgrave plans to remain here until Monday morning, when he will leave for Atlantic City for a brief visit, before going to Ottawa.

CAMPBELLFORD CHEERS WARDEN

Has Not Had the Honor Since 1894—Great Reception Given.

PARADE AND SPEECHES.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28.— Believe as they will, and say what they will, deep down in the hearts of the majority of men, there is a deep-rooted suspicion that there is luck in numbers. When the Titanic foundered after striking an iceberg while crossing the Atlantic ocean on her maiden voyage, number thirteen lifeboat was the first one to be picked up by rescue steamers. The seventh son of a seventh son is supposed to have supernatural powers. Seven is the number generally considered as sure to win by the average man on the street. MacBeth's witches believed in the rule of three. "Thrice to thine and thrice to mine and thrice again to make up nine. Peace, the charm's wound up!" Then the steaming cauldron gave forth its future telling vapours.

In the year 1894, the late C. L. Owen was elected warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham. The town, then a village, went wild with delight when the highest honours of the county came home to Campbellford. Thirty-three years have passed since that time and the thirty-fourth begun, and once more the honours come to Campbellford. Charles H. Davidson, business man, member of numerous fraternal societies, bandsman, leader in practically every sporting circle in the community and deputy-reeve of the town, arrived back in town, the most popular man of the day and hour.

For him the rule of three has brought luck, and Dame Fortune has smiled on him. For the third time he made the attempt to sit in the Warden's chair of the United Counties and was successful after twice being a close second. Nor were his honours easily gained. Not till the third nomination and the sixth ballot of that nomination, did he gain his seat. So now he is pondering over the circumstances of thirty-three years, three separate trials, three nominations of twice times three votes each. The council usually sits for three days at each session. There are three sessions during the year and this is the beginning of the new warden's ninth term as a member. No mater how the matter is viewed, the number three stands out as the prime factor of the entire program.

EXHIBITION BOARD'S BANQUET IS, ETC.

grown with the farmers. A century ago, a farmer was independent, raising a little bit of everything, including nearly everything he used. Now he is usually a specialist in one line. Mr. Seymour's grandfather wouldn't dream of one cow producing 20,000 pounds of milk in a year, yet there are members of this board who are raising world's champions in that line. This district is well situated for marketing. There is a thriving city to buy farm produce, tourists who want good produce, and two great cities, one one each side. The exhibition has a great deal to do with the development of farming in this district.

In closing Mr. Nelson congratulated the board on what is now the fourth fair of the province and will soon be the second or third.

Robert Grandy, who has recently moved to Brooklin and has been transferred from the active to the honorary directors, was greeted with an ovation when introduced by Mayor Denne as one of the fair's hardest workers.

Warden Smithson.

Warden Morley Smithson, who is a member of the board, stated that he was in a bad position as the question of a grant might come up in the county council. He referred to a suggestion he had made to Mr. McIndoo that the council be invited to the fair. He said that as a junior member of the board he would give the credit to the older members who had made the fair a prosperous concern.

His Honor Judge Huycke had referred ot the value of good will between the city and county and urged that it be cultivated, but the Warden declared that he could not see where it was necessary to promote this feeling.

E. S. Martin.

E. S. Martin, manager of the Bank of Montreal, congratulated the president and members of the Exhibition Board. He addressed his remarks particularly to the farmers, claiming to be a farmer himself, and said that if the farmers take advantage of the educational opportunities offered at the Fair they will produce better live stock at no more cost.

J. J. Duffus.

Ex-Mayor J. J. Duffus, introduced as one who has always been a booster for the Exhibition, expressed his pleasure at being present and hearing the pertinent remarks of Messrs. Nelson and Martin and the inspiring words of His Honor Judge Huycke, which had reminded him of a story.

Rastus met Mose, he said, and asked him why he was so happy. Mose replied, "I'se celebrating. Ma wife done presented me with a son."

"What are you gonna call him?" asked Rastus.

"Electricity," was the answer.

"How come?" asked Rastus.

"Well, you see," explained Mose, "my wife is named Dinah, and I'm Mose. Electricity is what you expect from dynamos."

From such men as comprised the Exhibition Board, who might be called dynamos, pointed out Mr. Duffus, a great deal of power and energy might be expected.

Mr. Duffus congratulated the Mayor on his taking the onerous duties of Mayor of the city and president of the Board. There is no question, he said, that this Exhibition has done more to bring the city and county together than any other organization. It was well said in Toronto that it was not possible to tell the city directors from those from the farms. With the co-operation which has been put forth, there is no doubt that the Exhibition will prosper in the future as in the past. The competition at the Fair he put forward as an additional reason for the progress in live stock breeding and seed growing.

Mr. Duffus was pleased to say that the feeling of rural inferiority is disappearing and that the farmers independence cannot be compared to that of the city. He quoted:

"He drinks from the rills
That flow from the hills,
And the ground that he tills is his own.
He is happy and free,
Wherever he be,
And he bows to God alone."

Joseph John.

Introducing Joseph John, president of the Kiwanis Club, Mayor Denne referred to the co-operation given the Board by the club, stimulating them in their effort. Mr. John promised the continued co-operation of the club.

S. R. Armstrong.

City Clerk Simon R. Armstrong referred to the days when the Exhibition was held in the old graveyard and was sometimes unable to pay all its prizes. He remarked on the great progress made and called attention to the fact that the expression, "the city and county," is not now sufficient as there are directors from other counties. Mr. Armstrong prophesied that the Exhibition will grow and reach out even further for energetic men to be enlisted as directors.

Mr. Caldwell contributed another song, concerning an old-fashioned house in an old-fashioned town and was encored.

Thomas Barrie.

With words of appreciation of the assistance of the Retail Merchants' Association, Mayor Denne called upon Thomas Barrie, chairman. Mr. Barrie told of the trade drawn into Peterborough through the efforts of the Exhibition Board, and other things which make Peterborough the centre for an ever growing district. He promised the backing of every merchant in the city in the efforts of the Board.

R. G. Kingan.

Recalling the fact that Bob Kingan had been one who had greeted him with a smile when he went around with the first list, Mayor Denne called on Mr. Kingan. Mr. Kingan stated that the success of the Exhibition in drawing city and county together, which makes for increased trade for Peterborough. A mistake had been made in driving commission men off the market, and though that has been repealed, its effect is still felt.

W. H. Bradburn.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., was called upon to tell how near the Board was coming to getting the $50,000 asked for. Mr. Bradburn expressed the opinion that the Minister had been greatly impressed, but could not say what grant would be paid, although he will work hard to get a good grant. "As a member of the House, elected for this riding," said Mr. Bradburn, "I am there to work for the Province of Ontario and the city and County of Peterborough." He stated his opinion that the members in opposition are working just as hard as those on the Government side for this. He spoke of the road to Lindsay having been taken over by the Province and the prospects of having it paved.

E. A. Peck.

E. A. Peck, M.P., explained his late arrival as having been caused by his being in Ottawa attending "another big show." The Speech from the Throne had contained much for the good of the country although nothing had been said of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. Mr. Peck assured the Board that the Fair is in the minds of the Government, and will doubtless be considered when the estimates are brought down.

Mr. Peck referred to the efforts of the Dominion Government in advancing the agricultural industry, which he said was proper, as it is the basic industry. It is because the Board is doing work for the advancing of industry that it has grown from a one-day show in a graveyard to a six-day show, and will become even greated. Because it has achieved something by hard work, it is succeeding, and will succeed even more in the near future.

Mr. Duffus asked to be allowed to explain about Class A shows. He had promised to look into the matter and found that the Government has three Class A shows in Ontario and three in Quebec, and some in the other provinces. The grant is contingent upon paying out $18,000 in prizes for agriculture. He promised to go with Mr. Peck, "who saved me the trouble of going to Ottawa," and put the matter before the Department again in an endeavor to get more money.

Mayor Denne asked Mr. Duffus to tell the Minister that the Board will pay the money if the Government will pay the increased grant.

The music for the evening was provided by George Logan's Orchestra, and was much enjoyed.

Obituary

MRS. WILLIAM HANNA.

BETHANY, Jan. 28.—There passed away Monday, January 23, at the family residence on the Eighth Line of Manvers, one of the older and better known citizens of the Township of Manvers, in the person of Maud Sisson, wife of William Hanna, Sr., and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sisson.

Mrs. Hanna was sick only three days and her death came as a complete shock to her many friends and acquaintances.

Messrs. Steve, William and Jack Sisson of Manvers are brothers and Mrs. Arthur Flack, Miss Annie Sisson of Bethany are sisters; Mrs. Fitch of Saskatchewan and Mr. Matt Sisson of Lindsay are also sister and brother of deceased.

Beside the sorrowing husband there are three children, Harry of Gelert, William Jr. on the Eighth Line, Manvers, and Mrs. Percy Fitzgerald of Peterboro, who have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

GEORGE A. CARRUTHERS.

After an illness extending over twenty-one years, a highly regarded citizen, George A. Carruthers, died on Sunday morning, Jan. 22. Mr. Carruthers was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Carruthers, and was well known and highly esteemed in Cobourg and throughout this locality. He was a carpenter by trade, but many years ago was laid aside by illness from the activities of life. Tenderly cared for by his wife and daughter, he lingered long at the way-station of illness before the summons came to him to enter upon the larger life. Mr. Carruthers was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. He married Miss Clara Warne, who with one daughter, Miss Ella Carruthers, survives him. He is survived also by one brother, Mr. W. W. Carruthers, Hamilton; and by two sisters, Mrs. E. Churchill, of Jackson, Mich., and Miss Tena Carruthers.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon from his late residence, Albert street, to Cobourg Union Cemetery and was largely attended by relatives and citizens. The services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. Frank C. Harper, B.A. There were many beautiful flowers bearing a message of warm regard and sympathy.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Wm. Burnet, Fred. Bentley, J. D. Haig, Alex. McKinnon, David Ewart and Col. F. D. Boggs.

Among relatives and friends present at the funeral from out-of-town were: Mr. W. W. Carruthers, Hamilton, brother of deceased, and Miss T. Carruthers, Galt, sister; Mr. W. T. Galloway, Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warne and son, Mr. Edward Warne, Mrs. W. H. Warne and Miss Alma Warne, Mr. Will. Bowden, Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Warne, Peterborough; Mrs. W. J. Eagleson, Toronto. —Cobourg World.

LET US SOLVE THE MESSAGE OF THE MAGIC LAMP
HOW CAN WE MAKE OUR DREAMS COME TRUE?
RUSH YOUR ANSWER!
SOLVE THE MESSAGE OF THE MAGIC LAMP.

EXPLANATION OF PUZZLE
Roy Moran and his wife Marie are spending a quiet evening at home. Marie has just been dreaming of the many things they could do if they only had a little extra money. Suddenly, Marie exclaimed, "How can we make our dreams come true?" and Roy, who was at that moment reading the Ledon Knitting Mills Co. puzzle, said, "Let us solve the message of the Magic lamp." And so they are going to try to win one of the big cash prizes. Send your answer at once—You have the same chance as anyone else to make your dreams come true.
The message of the Magic Lamp is in three words. The first letter of each word is in its proper place, but the rest of the letters are mixed up. The letters of the first word when put in their proper place spell "grasp". See if you can put the letters of the other two words in their proper places.
Every Contestant who completes conditions of the Contest as outlined in rules, will be presented with from $1.00 to $5.00 worth of our merchandise in addition to any other prize.
FOLLOW THESE RULES TO WIN
1. Write answer with pen and ink PLAINLY on a square sheet of paper. Be NEAT as neatness will be considered. 2. Put your name (Mr., Mrs., or Miss), full address and date in top right hand corner. 3. Put name and date of this paper in lower left corner. 4. All persons connected with Ledon Knitting Mills Co. are barred from this Contest. 5. Entrants will be asked to purchase a small sample order of our goods (minimum $6.75) to qualify. 6. Entries will be judged by a committee of Toronto business people chosen after close of contest.
OVER 100 CASH PRIZES
First prize, $500. Second prize, $100. Third prize, $50. Fourth prize, $25. Fifth prize $15. Sixth prize, $10. Two neckwear prizes totalling $50. Two qualifying prizes totalling $50 and one hundred prizes of $2.00 cash.
Send your answer AT ONCE—YOU WILL POSITIVELY NOT HAVE TO SELL ANYTHING TO WIN. You have much to gain and are under no obligation.

FROM THE WORKSHOP OF JOHN PLANE

ON ENTERING THE WORKSHOP of my good friend, John Plane, in quest of some fresh material for this column, I discovered him deeply absorbed in a piece of typewritten manuscript which had evidently caught his fancy. Looking up, a moment or two after I entered, he said: "I have just heard from my young friend, Bill Edgar, who, as perhaps you know, is receiving the last touches of college culture, in Toronto. What he has written seems so good to me that I am now wondering if I can persuade you to find a place for it on that page of The Examiner in which you are specially interested. Perhaps you are aware of the fact that the Bible Society is making a city-wide appeal for funds within the next few days, and it seems to me that this article—which, by the way, I think Bill had used for some of his exams—would be very seasonable."

I have heard it said that "a nod is as good as a wink to a blind horse." If that be true then such a hint as John Plane has given me ought to be acted upon right away.

"OUR ENGLISH BIBLE."

Although the English-speaking countries, particularly United States, Canada and Great Britain, are preeminently lands of the open Bible and have long occupied the foremost places in the evangelization of the dark places of the earth and in the diffusion of the Holy Scriptures among men of every race and tongue, England was one of the latest countries in Europe to enjoy the blessing of a Bible printed in a language that the common people could understand.

At the end of the fifteenth century, when Germany, France, Spain, Italy and Bohemia had utilized the invention of printing to multiply the number of Bibles for the artizan and the peasant, the only Scriptures in an English dialect were a few copies of the Psalms in the Anglo-Saxon, some fragments of an Anglo-Norman Bible and several manuscripts of the great Wycliffe's translation, these last being the only ones available for the common people.

Let the People See It.

The great pioneer of the English Bible was William Tyndale. Undeterred by an Act of Convocation which expressly forbade the translation of the Bible, Tyndale, inspired by his great ideal of making "the boy who driveth the plough to know more of the Bible than all the priests," journeyed to the Continent, and at Worms in Germany began his great work of translating and printing the Bible in English. In the year 1526, the first consignment of English New Testaments was secretly conveyed to England, and rapidly distributed over the country.

The spread of the New Testament caused much perturbation among the Roman Catholic ecclestiastics. Every obtainable volume was bought up and burned in a frantic effort to withhold the word of God from the people.

Death of Tyndale.

Tyndale then proceeded to prepare an English version of the Old Testament out of the original Hebrew text. In 1530 Sir Thomas More, in his capacity of Lord Chancellor, re-iterated the prohibition of the translating and printing of the Bible, to which Tyndale made an effective rejoinder by publishing the Pentateuch in 1530, and the Book of Jonah in 1531.

Tyndale did not live to finish his translation, but before he sealed his testimony with his blood in 1536, in Germany, he had the satisfaction of knowing that his friend and colleague, Miles Coverdale, had published a complete edition of the Bible in 1535, which was dedicated to Henry VIII., whose attitude towards translations of the Bible had modified considerably at that time. Tyndale's own version was published the year after his death under the name of "Matthew's Bible," so called because its editor, John Rodgers, who carried on Tyndale's work, adopted the name of Thomas Matthew. Owing to Cranmer's influence, this Bible was also patronized by Henry VIII., although that fickle monarch had formerly been one of Tyndale's most active persecutors.

Demand and Supply.

In spite of the rapid increase in the number of Bibles, the supply was not equal to the demand. To remedy this state of affairs, two new versions were issued in 1539. The first, a large volume, for the use of churches, was called the "Great Bible," and from the fact that Cranmer had written a preface to it, also became known as "Cranmer's Bible." The second was the work of Richard Traverner of the Inner Temple and was based on the text of Matthew's Bible. A proclamation was sent out to all curates calling upon them to provide a Bible in every parish church under a penalty of a fine of 40 shillings for every month that the church remained without a Bible. A less liberal policy was evident in the closing years of Henry's reign, but all restrictions were swept away during the brief term of Edward VI.

The Breeches Bible.

Even during the dark days of Mary, however, a new version was surreptitiously introduced into England, in the year 1557. This was the "Geneva Bible," so called because it was translated at Geneva, by several English Protestant ministers, who had fled to escape the wrath of the Queen. Known also as the "Breeches" Bible from its substitution of "breeches" for "aprons" in the passage of Gen. 11:7, "And they sowed fig leaves together and made themselves aprons," the Geneva Bible was the first to be printed in Roman letters and divided into verses. The marginal notes which accompanied it had a decided leaning towards extreme Calvinism and made it a favorite version among the English Puritans and the Scottish Presbyterians.

Largely because of these notes, Queen Elizabeth did not look with favor upon the Geneva Bible, and she requested Archbishop Parker of Canterbury to form a committee to translate the Bible with interpretations more in conformity with the tenets of the Church of England. Parker selected eight bishops and several other scholars, who in 1558 issued the fruits of their labors in the shape of the "Bishops' Bible," published in London. Like the version it was intended to supersede, the Bishops' Bible had a popular title, that of the "Treacle Bible," on account of its rendering of Jer. 8:22, "Is there no treacle in Gilead?" instead of as in other versions, "Is there no balm in Gilead?"

Catholics and the Bible.

The appearance of so many publications by Protestant scholars stirred the spirit of emulation among their Roman Catholic fellow-countrymen, the result of which was the appearance in 1582 at Rheims, in France, of an English version of the New Testament, the work of some Roman Catholic exiles. This was followed in 1610 by the Old Testament at Douay. Later both were combined to form the Douay Bible, the recognized Roman Catholic English Bible.

In spite of the many excellent versions in Britain, it was the general feeling both among the Puritans and the High Church party that a new translation was desirable. At the Hampton Court Conference of 1604, expression was given to this feeling by the Puritan, Dr. Reynolds, and with this suggestion King James I. agreed, although he rarely found himself in concord with the Puritans. Most of the other versions had been in a great measure from the Latin Vulgate and the prospect of a complete translation from the original Hebrew, bearing his name, captured the imagination of the royal pedant.

The King and the Bible.

The King nominated fifty-four of the most eminent scholars of the day, but only forty-seven accepted the invitation. These forty-seven were divided into six companies, two at Westminseter, two at Oxford and two at Cambridge. Each member of a company prepared a translation of the entire portion alloted to his company, and each company submitted the results of their labors to the scrutiny of the other five, thus securing for the entire version the sanction of the majority of translators. When the translation was finished the work was revised by an inner circle of twelve, who met daily for nine months in the Old Hall of the Stationers Company. The work of translation and revision occupied three years—from 1607 till 1610—and the expenses, amounting to some £3,500, were paid, not by King James as so many have believed, but by Barker, the publisher, who printed the work.

The superiority of King James' version, over all others, soon manifested itself. Within forty years of its publication it had become the only Bible in general use in Britain. Although superseded today by the various revised versions, for the purposes of the scholar and the Christian apologist, the Authorized Version is still the Bible most frequently used, and "its well of English pure and undefiled," its great historic fame and its innumerable sacred and beautiful associations will forever ensure for it a warm place in the affections of all English-speaking Christians.

I hope this interesting article, by John's friend and mine, will not only be read by a wide constituency but will also play an important part in stimulating interest in the best book in the world.

Characteristics of Modernism

THE lack of heartfulness is seen in the cold-blooded way in which the humble trust of disciples of Jesus is attacked, ridiculed and summarily disposed of. What possible good is accomplished by such a proceeding? It was the boast of Sir Walter Scott that he had never written anything that would lessen the faith of any man in God. Until modernism has something besides happy or unhappy guesses and idle speculations to offer in place of the gospel of Christ both reason and kindness would dictate that the faith be left undisturbed, which gives spiritual vigour, peace and hope.—"Jesus Christ at the Crossroads."

Lending Enchantment to the View

ALTHOUGH I have spent more of my life in cities than in country places, I have been long enough in the country to have seen the strange sight of a cow standing belly deep in rich alfalfa and scratching her neck on the barbed wire in an attempt to gather a few wisps of dry grass from the stubble field on the other side of the fence.

I did not need to be wearing a philosopher's cap to see the stupidity and the folly of the cow in scratching her hide in an attempt to gather barren fruits from afar, while rich and juicy alfalfa grew all about her feet and was hers for the taking.

Yet, when you come to think of it, the conduct of some supposedly intelligent men is often on a level with that of the cow. They seem to be blind to the rich opportunities that lie at their doors and await their taking. And their failure to see the chances that are under their very nose, is often due to the fact that they are straining their eyes, in an attempt to focus them on what almost invariably turns out to be the barren grass of other and more distant fields. To most men the distant hills are the greenest. The explanation, of course, is that the "green" is in the eye of both man and beast.

In the case of men, it will always be true that the one who is not fooled by the green mirage into a never-ending journey to distant parts, but works to gather in the sweet reality on his own field—he succeeds. The one who follows the enchanting vision of the green on the distant hills—fails!

We are still like the cow in the alfalfa when we spend our time in dreaming about our big day! Let us recognize that the only way to prepare ourselves for the opportunities of that day is by making the most of the opportunities of today. We shall never get the chance to tackle anything big until we have proved our fitness by the way we have successfully handled the little things of life. The saving of our cents today will lead the way to the accumulation of dollars tomorrow. Don't spend all your time in thinking of tomorrow's dividends—use a fair proportion of it in making today's investments.

—A. F.

WHY AND HOW
You Should Read The Bible!

1. The Bible is the message of God to man.
2. It has made known to us the character and will of God, and His purposes of love to our sinful race.
3. The Bible is our only perfect and authoritative rule of life and conduct. It is the standard of the highest moral teaching.
4. The Bible is the great source of comfort to sorrowing hearts. It also gives new faith, peace and hope to hearts burdened with trouble or fear.
5. The Bible is the only source of light for mortal man upon his own future destiny, upon the future of humanity and upon the life beyond the grave.
6. In every sphere there are certain accepted means of verification and science no less than religion has its faith. The Christian religion is not learned by logic and reason, but in the experiences of life,—its trials, sorrows and joys. It is God's love for the world and comes from God's heart directed to man's heart.
7. In the realm of religion there is a method of proof which is open to every one to apply for himself. Its treasures are only found by those who search for them with all their heart, by study, prayer and sincerely trying to do the will of God.
8. We owe it to the Bible that we should receive it with personal faith, appropriate its messages to ourselves, and put our own name in every promise.
9. It is the traveler's map, the pilgrim's staff, the pilot's compass, the soldier's sword and the Christian's charter.
10. Christ is its grand subject, its design is our good and the glory of God is its end.
11. Read it to be wise, believe it to be safe, and practice it to be holy.
12. The Gospels and Psalms should be read daily and a little of each introduced into the daily life will make the whole year different by renewing our faith and bringing comfort and hope.
13. To get the connected story or thought of the writer an entire book of the Bible should be read at one sitting.
14. Read the Bible slowly, frequently, prayerfully.

SEARCH THE SCRIPTURES

1. What did the Lord Jesus tell poor penitent Peter to do?
2. Where would Cain and Abel find an altar?
3. How many times are we to forgive our brethren?
4. Name a case that shows that the imperishable spirit is separated from the body in death.
5. Who is the Old Testament Prodigal Son?
6. Who was the powerful warrior of Manasseh?

(Answers to these questions will appear next week.)

ANSWERS TO LAST WEEK'S QUESTIONS.

1. The disciples.
2. After we believe.
3. He ascended on the sacrificial flame.
4. Because they served idols.
5. Hiram.
6. For the testimony of the Lord Jesus.

TWO men are passing through the streets of a busy seaport. They make their way to the quays which line the banks of a broad river, where are ships laden with the merchandise of various nations, and whence they depart, carrying valuable goods to foreign ports. These men are not mere sightseers; they are evidently going to set out upon a voyage. Now they have reached their ship and gone on board, and soon their vessel is passing down the stream, making for the sea, the city, with its buildings and great fortifications, gradually fades from sight, but the ranges of lofty mountains to the East and North glow with the light of the setting sun long after the river has lain in shadow. Now the good ship passes into the open sea, and her course is shaped to the Southwest.

But these two, who and what are they? Apparently they are not father and son, and yet the elder has evidently a feeling of kindly relationship towards his younger companion. The former has a benevolent countenance, and a noble air and mien that attract one's notice. He is like a man who has some good work in view which he hopes to be able to carry out, and the two speak earnestly together, probably of future prospects; yet I think I see now and again in the face of the older man a regretful, sorrowful look. Can he be thinking of some former time when he sailed along that selfsame course with a true and faithful friend, no longer by his side?

The key to the previous Pen Picture of Bible History is to be found in 2 Kings 22:11, etc.

TELL US A STORY

I wonder if my young readers ever heard of an interesting incident that occurred in America during the Civil War there? The two armies, the Federal army and the Confederate army, were encamped on opposite sides of a great river. It was a beautiful summer evening, and they amused themselves by playing different party tunes. The Federal band struck up "Hail! Columbia"; then the Confederate band on the other side returned "The Bonnie Blue Flag"; then the Federals gave "The Star-Spangled Banner." All of a sudden the Confederate band struck up "Home, Sweet Home"; in a moment the other band joined in, and for a brief period, laying aside their animosities, they remembered that they were one family, had one Father, and one common home.

MORE LEGISLATION.

The intimation from Judge Coatsworth that new traffic legislation is likely to place a heavier responsibility on motorists to avoid accidents is not surprising.

It seems to be an inevitable consequence of the increasing toll of life as the result of automobile accidents, and the motorists after all have nobody to blame but themselves should the regulations become more drastic.

If all drivers tried to be careful and courteous at all times there would be little need of legislation.

Many are, of course, but they have to suffer for the sins of the others who have no regard for public safety.

There are motorists who have to be forced through fear of heavy penalties to do the right and decent thing, and it is these drivers who are going to make it necessary to impose further legislation.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

Premier Ferguson and the members of his Government should not lose sight of the fact that at the conference of representatives of Ontario municipalities held at London the other day the opinion that this Province should take advantage of the Old Age Pensions Act was strongly endorsed.

While there are many people who consider that the care of the aged should be assumed by the Federal Government, most of them feel that half a loaf is better than no bread, and that Ontario should provide for its old people by utilizing the machinery set up at the last session of the Federal Parliament and obtaining from the Dominion Government half the cost of the old age pension system.

British Columbia is at present the only Province to adopt the scheme, but Manitoba and Saskatchewan will shortly be added, and while we in Ontario will be paying our share of the fifty per cent. provided by the Dominion Government for old age pensions in those Provinces, our old people to whom this relief would be of very material assistance will be reaping no benefit from the system adopted last year.

Ontario has been progressive in other legislation of this type, and should not be satisfied to lag behind in when there is a chance to make the last days of aged residents of the Province happier and more comfortable.

OUR MINISTERS ABROAD.

The announcement that Canada is to appoint Ministers to France and Japan might have been received with less misgiving by many people in this country if it had been accompanied by the assurance that was the end and not the beginning of such appointments.

Legations of this kind cost money, and they will cost more and more as time goes on.

And if Ministers from Canada are considered necessary in Paris and Tokio, it is logical to expect that legations in other foreign capitals will soon be regarded as indispensable, and the way opened for a flood of appointments that will mean in the aggregate a heavy toll upon the Dominion Treasury.

The Government would be wise in not extending its list of Ministers extraordinary abroad until it has done much more than it has up to the present to sell the idea to the Canadian people, who have as yet had no time to digest the proposition and no information upon which to form an opinion as to the need of such legations.

Much will doubtless be heard upon this question later on in the session.

The Globe declares that "it is now clear that the Government has committed itself without a mandate from the people to a policy of establishing foreign legations wherever it pleases, with the attending and growing expenses which necessarily ensue. Parliament will have something to say about it—perhaps very much—but so far as the Government is concerned the incident is closed."

A DIGNIFIED BEGINNING.

The exchange of courtesies between Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King and Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the opposition, which marked the opening of the session, gave a very high tone to the first day's proceedings and Canadians will unite in hoping that it presages a period of diminshed partizanship in the conduct of the country's business.

The Premier was most generous in his eloquent tribute to the many excellent qualities possessed by the leader of the opposition, describing him as one who "through his great natural endowment, his long training, his ripe scholarship, his high legal attainments, his large and comprehensive grasp of business affairs and his wide political experience possesses in a very marked degree the qualities necessary for the position which he now occupies."

Nor should the significance of his emphasis upon the importance of the position of the leader of the opposition be missed.

"Contrasted with the position of the leader of the Government", said Mr. King, "it differs simply in degree rather than in character."

Mr. Bennett's reply was equally notable, particularly in his disavowal of the old political saw that the duty of the opposition is oppose.

The Conservative leader declared that he had accepted his position "with a desire to be of some service to Canada and to make it easier to conduct public business than if we took a merely partisan view for the purpose of interposing objections and opposition for its own sake."

"That, sir", said Mr. Bennett emphatically, "will not do."

THE LURE OF HIDDEN TREASURE.

Since the beginning of time, almost, the lure of hidden treasure has cast a spell over the minds of men, and while man remains man it will continue to do so. A despatch from London, published yesterday, telling of the floating of a company to send forth an expedition to find reputed treasure valued at $60,000,000 supposed to be hidden in Bolivia has all the elements in it to inspire another "Treasure Island" or "The Count of Monte Cristo." According to the report, the treasure, consisting of gold, silver and diamonds, was buried almost three hundred years ago by Jesuits, the secret of its location being handed down through the family of the brother of one of the Jesuits.

While seemingly convincing evidence has been set forth for the existence of this wealth, in the form of parchment documents and other evidence, the public has become somewhat skeptical of the truth of these stories, while it may like to read them for entertainment. Every now and then a new crop of rumors arises of a document having been found that gives a certain clue to the location of Captain Morgan's buried treasure on the Cocos Islands. Another expedition sets forth only to meet with failure. For generations the Cocos have been the scene of innumerable treasure-hunters obsessed with the lure of the fabled wealth supposed to be hidden there, but not one Spanish doubloon has rewarded them for their pains. It is to be hoped, for sake of the people who put their money into this expedition to Bolivia, that it is more successful than similar ventures in other parts of the earth. But, judging from past failures of other projects of this nature, the general public will be inclined to be skeptical even of the existence of the treasure until presented with more convincing evidence than a piece of parchment, that might very easily be faked.—The Globe.

THE RESCUE OF A DOG.

The firm place that the dog holds in the affections of the public was demonstrated by the heroic and repeated efforts made to rescue the collie which had become marooned on a cake of ice in Lake St. Clair. Through the eyes of the press, dog-lovers everywhere followed with keen interest the attempts made to save the animal from impending death. On every hand the fervid hope was expressed that these attempts would succeed. But when the rescue efforts had apparently failed and the report was broadcast that the owner had mercifully shot the animal to end its suffering, there was general regret felt that it could not have been rescued alive. Imagine their glad surprise, therefore, to pick up their paper on Monday and find that the collie, through the persistency of two villagers, had been saved after all, and was apparently little the worse for the trying experience through which it had passed. There was widespread rejoicing at the news. It was as if a friend mourned as dead had been brought back to life.

It is not surprising that the general public should take so deep an interest in the fate of an animal they had never seen, in their minds "Lady" Handley, the name of the marooned dog, stood for the most faithful of man's animal friends. There is nothing unnatural in human affection for the dog. It is an affection which has been earned by faithfulness and devotion even to death. Recently there have been touching stories in the newspapers relating to a dog's loyalty and self-sacrifice. One of these came from Hamilton, where a canine saved the lives of two brothers. Although surrounded by flames, he thought not of his own safety, but barked an alarm awakening the brothers in time for them to save themselves. By the time that he had aroused his masters, the flames had made such headway that he was unable to save himself and died a willing sacrifice on the altar of love and duty. Another touching incident occurred near Port Colborne, where a dog, while barking to attract attention, kept watch over the body of his murdered master, refusing to allow anyone to approach it. He had kept his lonely watch for some time, but neither hunger nor thirst nor fatigue moved him from his post. The dog, whether a thorough-bred or a mongrel, is faithful to the end to those who have won his affection. He counts his own life not dear where they are concerned.

In view of the dog's undoubted devotion and undying gratitude, everybody should cultivate a feeling of admiration for him and, where possible, should cultivate the friendship of one or more dogs, whether they belong to him or not. A man who boasts that he has no use for a dog has something materially lacking in his nature. He lacks frankness and trustfulness. The dog is an unerring judge of human nature, and when you find him distrusting a man you can rest assured there is something at fault in his make-up.

Because some dog bites a person, generally as the result of ill-treatment, this is no reason why the whole race of dogs should be condemned, any more than all humans should be shunned because some of their number commit murder. For every dog that misbehaves there are hundreds who are kind and gentle and true. Don't, therefore, condemn the dogs generally for the misdeeds of one. What you show them you will receive in return. Show kindness and you receive endless devotion. Many masters who are neglectful of or indifferent to their dog receive from these far more than they deserve. If you own a dog, be thankful that you do and treat him with consideration and kindness. He will repay you a hundredfold.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, January 28. — Local cattle trade has suffered a slight reaction this week from the general strength and activity which has characterized the markets of late.

The run for the week was comparatively light in the number of cattle offering, and quality, it was said, was not quite up to the average for the past few weeks.

Apart, however, from the consideration of quality there has been this week a distinct falling off in the demand for steers in the heavyweight class. Price decline in this class was sharp, and from 50c to 75c below last week's average. The demand for export beef cattle for the States was unusually quiet, and buyers were evidently bent upon getting prices lower in this class of heavy cattle.

The whole market was more or less affected by the decline on heavy steers, though the light handy choice butcher stuff stood up best of all, and was in fairly good demand throughout the week.

Choice butchers' steers sold from 10½c to 11c. Choice butchers' heifers from 10c to 10½c, with the odd fancy higher. Baby beeves were in better demand this week, selling from 12½c to 13½c for the best, with others lower according to quality. Fat cows were considered 25c per cwt. lower than the previous week, choice selling from $7.75 to $8.50, with an odd fancy heiferish cow as high as 9c. Choice butchers' bulls were in good demand at $7.00 to $7.50; heavy bulls $6.75 to $7.25; rough and bologna bulls, $5.00 to $6.00. On Tuesday and Wednesday trade was slow, and any medium cattle 25c lower. Heavy bulls were quite draggy.

Hogs—Quotations were sent out for last Saturday's loading at $8.25 f.o.b. selects, but due to light receipts and the higher prices in Montreal prices advanced 25c per cwt., selling at $8.50 f.o.b. selects; $9.10 fed and $9.40 off cars; road hogs, $9.15 selects.

Friends of H. P. Kennedy, the well-known local cattle buyer and exporter, who recently underwent a serious operation, will be glad to know that Mr. Kennedy is recovering and progressing very favorably.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, January 28 (Canadian Press). — Extreme dullness marked the export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday, there being practically no demand from any source.

Outside of some demand from local dealers for Canadian Western oats for shipment from Fort William which resulted in sales of quite a few cars the trade in cash grain on spot was quiet, but the tone of the market was steady.

The trade in spring and winter wheat grades of flour was dull, but prices were unchanged.

A feature of the millfeed trade was the renewed demand from buyers in the United States for Manitoba bran and sales of several cars were made to Boston at $41.00 per ton. There was no change in the local market, prices being firm with a steady demand. The inquiry for small lots of standard grades of rolled oats was steady and values were unchanged.

A moderate amount of business was done in all grades of eggs and prices were firm. The receipts were 405 cases.

The demand for potatoes was fair and the undertone was steady. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.20 per bag of 90 pounds; Prince Edward Island White potatoes at $1.15 per bag of $90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk; New Brunswick White potatoes at $1.05 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk; and Quebec varieties at 95c to $1.00 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

Owing to the somewhat scarcity of imported beans on spot and the small supplies coming forward a stronger feeling developed in the market and prices scored an advance of 10 cents per bushel.

The only feature of the butter trade was the sale of a lot of 500 packages of New Zealand creamery butter for shipment to a point in Ontario at 36½c per pound delivered. The local market was quiet and prices were steady. The receipts were 15 packages.

The cheese trade continued dull, but values were unchanged. The receipts were 54 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, January 28 (Canadian Press). — Bigger export business in corn lifted prices yesterday both for corn and wheat. Advances were in the face of heavy speculative selling of corn future deliveries and notwithstanding predictions of very large receipts of corn in Chicago on Monday.

Closing quotations on corn were firm, ½c to ⅝c to ¾c net higher, with wheat ⅛c to ½c up, oats unchanged to ¼c off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 7 cents.

Some estimates of yesterday's corn export business were as high as 1,000,000 bushels, but the generally accepted figures were 650,000 to 750,000 bushels.

Wheat owed its advance to corn strength and to Paris advices that winter killing of the French wheat crop has been extensive. Oats trade lacked snap.

Provisions tended downward at first, but afterward recovered owing to the upward trend of corn values and of hogs.

Dyspepsia Troubled Him for Many Years

Mr. J. Savoy, Loggieville, N.B., writes:—"I have suffered for many years from dyspepsia and could not seem to get any relief.

"One day I told my wife I thought I would try a bottle of and when I had half of it taken I felt a lot better, so I continued until I had taken two bottles, and now have no pains and no coated tongue, and feel that I am completely rid of my trouble."

GLASS HOUSES

By Dr. Frank Crane.

The press the other day reported that the City of Berlin will build a great public school house made almost entirely of glass.

Although its frame is stiffened by steel and concrete the walls will be of thick plate glass.

This is an interesting and significant fact.

As civilization has advanced houses have become lighter by the use of glass. Even work-shops grow lighter.

A house is necessary to shield us from the inclemency of the weather and to preserve artificial heat. But this should not deprive us of the advantages of sunshine.

Sun is the greatest doctor in the world. Many diseases heretofore held incurable are at least remediable by sunshine. A method of artificial light closely allied to sunlight and capable of being concentrated upon a narrow area is used in some diseases.

There is no doubt that our health would be improved and indirectly our spirits would be helped were there more sunshine constantly in our lives, and the effort to give school children surroundings that are light is commendable.

Of course outdoors is the place to live and outdoor people are the sanest, but in many parts of the country outdoor life is impracticable on account of the weather. It is so in the regions where are situated the great cities, such as London, New York and Berlin, but by making the houses largely of glass this deprivation of sunshine may be somewhat ameliorated.

If we cannot live outdoors all year around, at least we can live in houses that admit the sunlight.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

One week from the day she had left it, crazed with jealousy of her sister and her husband, Faith returned to the pretty brown stucco house on Serenity Boulevard. She looked at the dear, familiar place with enchanted eyes. Home! The home of the Hathaway family! The word family had a breathtaking new significance for her now. This would be her child's first home. She could see, as plainly as if they existed, his roller skates on the cement path, the print of his sturdy school shoes in the soft loam of a spring flower bed.

"Good to get home, sweet?" Bob whispered, hiss eye shining as if they too had seen a vision.

"It's heavenly," she choked. What a relief it would be to confess to him that when she had left it just one week before she had never wanted or expected to see it again—the house in which she had striven for his love and failed, as she thought then. But she could never know the relief of confession and absolution. Bob must never know that his son's mother had been so unworthy—

"I don't think I'll build on that lot adjoining," Bob remarked thoughtfully, as he helped her up the walk. "It will make a dandy playground for the boy."

"So you were seeing our home through his eyes, too?" Faith laughed softly. "But, darling, we mustn't count too much on it's being a boy, or you may be terribly disappointed."

"Girls need playgrounds, too," Bob contended, as if he didn't really care whether it was a boy or a girl. "Funny, isn't it, but I don't think we ever planned just this way for Hope. Makes me feel guilty, rather, and I'd have sworn I loved her as if she were my own."

"It's—different," Faith conceded reluctantly. "But we must be careful not to hurt Cherry by showing a difference. There she is now. Oh, Bob, she looks so tiny I'm afraid the wind will blow h away. Don't you think she's thinner? And there's Rhoda! Oh, it's good to be home!"

She was still very weak and the excitement of the fifty-mile trip from Darrow and of her welcome home wore her out. But it was delicious to lie in her own bed, in her own beautiful room, so different from the white austerity of the hospital cell which had been her home for a week.

After one of Rhoda's incomparable dinners, which tempted Faith's capricious appetite far more than any delicacy that the hospital had been able to offer her, Bob carried her into the living room and made her a deep, soft nest among the cushions of the big couch.

"I want Rhoda to sing for me," she announced.

As Rhoda's amazingly true and flawless voice accompanied the trained voice that poured in a golden, lyric flood from the Victrola, Faith sighed with deep contentment. But before the passionate love song was finished Cherry sprang to her feet from the ottoman beside Faith's couch and ran from the room, her smothered cry of anguish causing Rhoda's voice to falter and then trail to a stop, while the record spun unfeelingly on.

GILMOUR CHURCH REPORTS ARE GOOD

Congregation Has Raised Large Sum During Past Year.

The annual business meeting of the Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church was held on Tuesday evening January 24th

A splendid supper was provided the Ladies' Mission Circle and Ladies' Aid.

The different branches of the church work reported good progress for the year. The various treasurers' reports showed a grand total of $2,958.05. The pastor, Rev. W. S. Edgar, complimented the church on this splendid giving, which works out at nearly $150 a family. He questioned whether there were many churches in the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec which could show such a good per capita rate of giving.

The following officers were elected:

Church clerk: A. B. Mann.

Treas.: A. I. Edmison.

Deacons: G. W. Mann, T. H. Graham, Alex. McGregor, F. W. Scott, J. A. Young, C. E. Moore.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

SUNDAY, JANUARY 29, 1928.

Under this planetary government, the average mind is supposed to be open to ideas relating to the spiritual world and for this reason the church and the clergy should benefit.

Music today is subject to the best direction of the stars which seems to promise its salutary effect in religious services.

Women interested in charitable and philanthropic projects are well directed while this configuration prevails.

Movements of national scope will be projected by women who will make 1928 noteworthy for large achievements, the seers prophesy.

There is a sign read as indicating a general awakening to spiritual and intellectual forces.

Science is to prove that the faith of the mystic has a foundation in reality, it is foretold.

Now that the air has been explored scientists will turn to the occult work, astrologers declare, and they will make tremendous discoveries that change the human outlook.

Because astrology has to do with the universe instead of a minute portion of it, the seers prognosticate that it will be helpful in the search of the spheres for exact knowledge.

This day's planetary is most favorable to romance and presages good luck to those who become engaged under this rule.

According to ancient lore good luck attends the wearing of new clothing today.

The evening is most promising to those who desire to make constructive plans or to launch important reform movements.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year that brings fair fortune, but they must beware of a tendency to neglect business matters.

Children born on this day probably will be endowed with investigating minds. The subjects of this sign invariably are most gifted and popular.

CALEDONIAN CLUB VOICES REGRETS

Members Pay Tribute To Joseph Grierson, a Faithful Member.

At the usual monthly social of the Caledonian Club Choir reference was made to the tragic death of Joseph Grierson. On motion of A Clark a silent vote of sympathy for the bereaved widow and family was taken.

The president of the Caledonian Club, Robert Veitch, made a fitting reference to the sad occurrence, as also did T. Hendry on behalf of the Sons of Scotland. Mr. Grierson was beloved and respected not only by his brother Scots, but by all who were privileged to know him. He was ever ready to lend a helping hand, and give wise and kindly counsel whenever he saw an opportunty. His passing has cast a gloom over the Scottish community, and his cheery personality will be much missed.

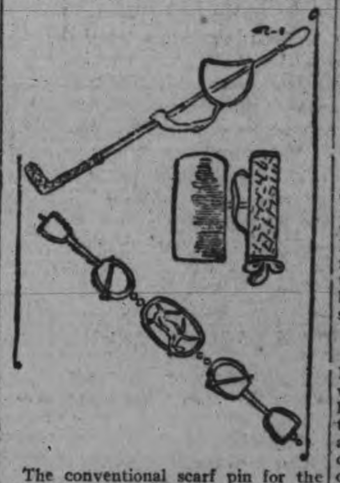
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



The conventional scarf pin for the rider shows whip or stirrup design. Those shown are of silver with gold finish. Sports bracelets showing crystals with heads of dogs or horses are worn by the horsewoman or dog lover. Another type of bracelet chosen for the riding ensemble consists of gold links showing bit and horseshoe designs. Cuff links that are chosen by smart sportswomen show enameled golf bags, game cocks or horseshoes.

Despite the recent decision of fashion that earrings may be worn on the golf course and necklaces on the tennis courts there are still conservative sportswomen who feel that for actual sports wear only the most sportsmanlike ornaments are appropriate.

For riding there are certain necessary pieces of jewelry and these, think many horsewomen, should be of a conventional sort. There must, of course, be a tie pin, and the most conventional of these are of gold showing no jewels. You may choose one in the form of a crop, or a crop with a stirrup. Since the regulation mannish shirt is still considered most appropriate for riding there must be cuff links, which are preferably rather inconspicuous, of plain gold showing some appropriate emblem—horseshoes or stirrups for instance.

And as some women feel undressed without some sort of bracelet there are specially designed bracelets for the equestrienne. Some of these are made of gold links with three French crystals set between the links, with a miniature horse depicted through the crystal. Others show tiny bits and horseshoes in lieu of links.

Sweater chokers, which have been shown by Lanvin, Vionnet and other influential French dressmakers, are made of amethysts, topazes and other light transparent stones. Jeweled or plain silver ornaments for the sports hat are worn by some women for actual sports, though more often for the merely semi-sports ensemble.

Any sort of dangling jewelry seems rather out of place even for semi-sports wear. Thus button earrings rather than the drop sort are chosen, and chokers rather than longer necklaces.

UNPUBLISHED BURNS LETTER

Sale Price Equivalent to Twenty Dollars a Word.

"SIGNIOR'S IMPUDENCE."

Ten thousand dollars, the equivaler of $20 a word, was paid at Sotheby's, London, recently, for an undated letter written to Alexander Cunningham by Burns anent Pietro Urbani, the Italian musician. The letter, which contains the four quatrains of "O, my love's like a red, red rose," was written in the summer o 1794, is as follows.

To Alexander Cunningham.

Urbani has told a damned falsehood. I made no engagements or connection with him whatever. After he and I had met at Lord Selkirk's we lived together three or four days in this town, and had a great deal of converse about our Scots songs. I translated a verse of an Italian song for him, or rather made an English verse to suit his rythm, and added two verses which had been already published in Johnson's "Museum." I likewise gave him a simple old Scots song which I had pickt up in this country, which he promised to set in a suitable manner. I would not even have given him this had there been any of Mr. Thomson's airs suitable to it unoccupied. I shall give you the song on the other page. Urbani requested me to lend him a hand now and then in his work, and I told him, and told him truly, that such was my enthusiasm for the subject, had I met with him previous to my acquaintance with Mr. Thomson, I would most gladly have lent him any assistance in my power, but that now until Mr. T.'s publication was finished, I could not promise anything; however, that at a future period, when the humour was on me, I would cheerfully write a song for him. He hinted, I remember, something about mentioning my name in an advertisement, which I expressly forbade. One thing he may mean. Johnson, I know, has given him full permission to anything I have written in the "Museum." Beyond that he had no right to expect, and, for his impudence, shall never receive any assistance from me. So much, my dear Cunningham, as you say, as to business; now for the song. I would, to tell the fact, most gladly have seen it in our friend's publication, but, though I am charmed with it, it is a kind of song on which I know we would think very differently. It is the only species of song about which our ideas disagree. What to me appears the simple and the wild, to him, and I suspect to you, likewise, will be looked on as the ludicrous and the absurd.

Song.

O, my Love's like the red, red rose
That's newly sprung in June;
My Love's like the melodie
That's sweetly play'd in tune.

As fair art thou, my bonie Lass,
So deep in love am I;
And I can love thee still, my Dear,
Till a' the seas gang dry.

Till a' the seas gang dry, my Dear,
And the rocks melt wi' the sun;
I will love thee still, my Dear,
While the sands o' life shall run.

And fare thee weel, my only Love,
O, fare thee thee weel, a while;
And I will come again, my Love,
Tho' 'twer ten thousand mile.

Yours most sincerely,
R. B.

N.B.—As to retorting on the Signior, I scorn it. Let him, his lies, and his works go to hell their own way.—R.B.

The Burns Cottage Trustees are understood to have been represented at the sale, but after spirited bidding, the letter ultimately fell to Mr. W. T. Spencer, the well-known dealer.

MINES.

F. G. Oke and Company wire as follows:

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 28.—Apparently the low prices of Teck Hughes attracted considerable buying power from outlying points over night and the stock opened up strong this morning and held well between $8.90-$9.00 per share.

The market as a whole looked a little stronger and prices more or less held their own. However, it is too early yet to say whether or not the recent market decline has been completely arrested but in all probability Monday's market action will give a good indication of what they expected to follow.

There is no gainsaying the fact that development at the mines and condition of the mining fields and properties has never been more promising in the history of our mining industry. The market action does not seem to confirm this fact, therefore, we are forced to the conclusion that as this period of decline in prices is of a temporary nature only.

Howey continued strong this morning, in anticipation of good news being announced regarding ore values, lengths and widths, while Bidgood acted in a downward course in face of favorable reports coming from the property regarding the cutting of ore on the 400 ft. leved. Announcement was made by mining corporation that rights on mining corporation shares expected Monday, Feb. 6th.

Wheat and Corn Firm Slight Advances Are Made

CHICAGO, January 28 (Canadian Press).—Indications of a brisk export demand for corn gave firmness early to the corn market to-day. Despite ideal conditions for movement of the corn crop, dry, cold weather tended simultaneously to strengthen wheat values. Starting unchanged to 3-8 cent off, corn soon rose all around to above yesterday's finish. Wheat opened at a shade lower to 1-8c advance, and subsequently showed general gains. Oats inclined upward. Provisions were easier.

Mining Stocks Show Signs Of Revival In Active Session

TORONTO, January 28 (Canadian Press).— The mining market showed the first real sign of revival of the week in the final half-hour of to-day's session. Sales totalled 896,858. Buying was of good calibre. Teck Hughes closed with a bid of 9.00 Sherritt Gordon was offered in odd lots at 6.00, but closed at 6.40. Sudbury Basin dropped during the first hour, but stiffened sharply at noon. Crown Reserve, which was down yesterday to 39 advanced to 48 to-day on light trading. Some of the British Columbia issues were offeerd.

Compared with the close last night the following issues were up: Argonaut 1, Barry Hollinger 1, Bidgood 3, Canadian Lorraine 1½, Crown Reserve 11, Castle 1, Goodfish 2, Goldale 1½, Kirkland Lake 1, Lebel 2, Millcross 1½, New-Beck 5, Santanio 3, Stadacona 2, Teck Hughes 20, Wright Hargreaves 4, Federal Kirkland 1, Coastie Copper 200, Sherritt Gordon 40.

Following were down: Aconda 2, Hollinger 5, Kootenay 1, Lake Shore 15, McDougall 1½, Miling Corporation 10, Marriott 1, Pawnee Kirkland 2, Amity 2, Central Manitoba 1, Jackson Manion 2, Noranda 10, Towagamac 25, Sudbury Basin 20, Pon D'Orielle 100.

Leaders Suffer Liquidation Closing Was Irregular

TORONTO, January 28 (Canadian Press).—Liquidation in a number of recent strong leaders was effected on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, and the market closed with an irregular tone. International sold down 1½ at 98¼. Loblaw two at 112, and Christie Brown 4½ at 123, while in the unlisted, Canada Brewing lost a point at 53, and Carlings fractionlly eased at 40 7-8. Otherwise firmness was shown, with Loblaw Preferred jumping ten at 170, and F. N. Burt, developing some activity, gaining 3½ at 73. Seagram, Arnold, Massey Harris, Building Products and Brompton all firmed upwards of a point. Steel of Canada touched 192 and closed with a net gain of five at 189. Northern Bakeries was another strong spot, with a gain of 1¾ at 51 on a heavy turnover. British American Oil steadied at 37 7-8, but Petroleum softened fractionally at 39¼. Walkers sold down 1½ at 64.

Steel Shares Suffer Reaction Under Persistent Pressure

NEW YORK, January 28 (Canadian Press). — Stock prices turned reactionary after an early outburst of strength in to-day's brief session of the market. Publication of relatively poor last quarter earnings statements, recent stiffening in time money rates and rather general belief that technical position of market had been weakened by recent violent advances in pool specialties were seasons generally ascribed for selling movement. Steel shares were under rather persistent pressure. Vanadium after touching a new high, sold down two points below last night's close, and similar loss was registered by Youngstown, while United States Steel Common and a few others sagged a point or so.

Greene Cananea Copper broke 5 points, A. M. Byers 4½, and American Smelting, Radio, International Nickel, and several others sagged two points or more. Patino Mines was an outstanding strong spot, rising three points on active buying. The closing was heavy.

Market For Beans Fluctuates Violently; Demand Grows Suddenly At First of Week

The barometers of commerce, for all their sensitiveness, failed to register the sudden flurry in Peterborough's bean market this week. Could some local Babson chart the recent retail bean sales they would be represented by an almost vertical line, indicating purchases for the Dollar Day guessing contest.

Some persons may flatter themselves that they can estimate with a sidewalk view the number of beans in a quart or pint jar, while others have been so often flouted by Lady Luck that they refuse to become excited or even interested by the chance of winning $150. Someone must win, they know, but repetitious disappointments have left them without hope that some day Fortune's wheel might stop finally at their number.

There are others, however, of a different disposition. If you would win, they say, make up your mind to put forth your best effort. And to that end many of them (you would be surprised at their number) invested in a few pounds of beans, filled a corresponding jar of their own, and proceeded to count "the little white bean" one by one.

These folk put no trust in Lady Luck. Moreover, a quarter invested in navy beans is not wasted. Three pounds for twenty-five cents is the every-day price, and if they don't bring home the bacon they can be boiled and baked with pork. Such men, and women, too, surely qualify as go-getters, whereas the others, the guessers who usually miss by a mile, may perhaps be the unenterprising, the dilettantes.

However, if it is a guessing competition they abide by the rule or understanding. Anybody can buy a quart of beans and count them.

BOYS HEAR TALK ON LAW'S ORIGIN

Joseph Wearing Gives Address To Friday Night Supper Club.

Tracing the origin of law from the days of pre-historic man, as it gradually evolved from tacit respect for the rights of others into the two great forms of written and unwritten law as we have it to-day, Joseph Wearing, city solicitor, was accorded rapt attention by the members of the Friday Night Supper Club at the weekly meeting held last evening in the Y.M.C.A. dining hall. His address proved one of more than ordinary interest, and at its conclusion Mr. Wearing was tendered a sincere vote of appreciation.

In other respects the meeting was an enjoyable one. The supper was quite up to the mark, J. F. H. Wallace proved a most acceptable chairman, and there was great rejoicing among the Cadillacs when announcement was made that this section had won the attendance contest and would enjoy special privileges at the next meeting. Numerous stunts and songs were also put over during the evening.

PETERBOROUGH TO HEAR DISTINGUISHED ARTIST

Audrie Rubanni, Soprano, To Visit in the Near Future—A Treat in Store.

Music-lovers in Peterborough, and there is a very large percentage of our citizenship which is interested in music, will be glad to learn that Audrie Rubbani, soprano, who is endowed with a phenomenal voice and scintillating personality, a protege of the late Lilian Nordica, will make her appearance in the Grand Opera House, Peterborough, in the near future, assisted by a violinist and pianist of exceptional ability.

Audrie Rubbani has a remarkable singing voice. Her gifts were evident when she was very young, and by continued hard work and sheer artistic merit she has won a place which she richly deserves.

The following is from "The Talk of the Town," a New York publication, which speaks very highly of this artist:

"The New York public is looking forward to the next appearance of the charming coloratura soprano, Audrie Rubanni, whom we all heard over the WJZ station. It was a pleasure to listen to an artist who evidently devotes much time to studio work, judging by the clarity of every note of her brilliant voice."

SEEK DAMAGES FOR SON'S LOST ASHES

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Forty-three years after their son's body had been cremated, Daniel Fuchs and his wife of Elmhurst, Queens, filed suit against a crematory company for the loss of the urn containing the ashes. The complaint says that Daniel, Jr died and was cremated in 1884, and charges that the urn containing the ashes could not be found when the father called for it on July 23, 1923.

CALCUTTA, India, Jan. 28 (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuters).—The four huge super marine flying boats of the Royal Air Force which left Plymouth, England on October 17 on an empire cruise of 25,000 miles, including India and Australia, in charge of Group Commander Henry Cave Brown Cave, have alighted at Hooghly, Bengal, having covered nine thousands miles of the cruise without mishap. In the flight, the following places have been touched: Cochin and Cocanada, Madras; Chilka Lake, Bihar, and Oriesa States, and Bombay, India. The flight is regarded as opening up the possibilities of other Empire air shock to Manager Dave Garrity, who routes.

ANGLERS WANT FISHING SEASON

Lt.-Col. William Mitchell, who spends his summers on the Kawartha Lakes, pointed out that in the eight years he has been fishing in the district there has been an alarming depletion of game fish.

G. W. Bell of Toronto dealt with conservation of fish from a scientific angle. He said he had talked to several well known biologists who had made a special study of fish culture and in answer to a question they had informed him that the Kawartha Lakes were not too far gone to be restocked. Conditions were excellent, they said, and if the work were gone about in the right way it should be possible to bring these bodies of water back to their old standard.

More Meetings Needed

Harold Kearns, Secretary of the Toronto Association, thought the anglers' organizations in Victoria County should be more active. They ought to hold meetings at least once a month, he maintained.

Gregory Clarke of The Toronto Star, who has made a special study of the small-mouth black bass and habits, quoted authorities to show that spawning was not over until late in June and that the Government was justified in advancing the closed season until July 1. He advised the people of Ontario to guard the game fish because tourists last year spent $80,000,000 in the province and 75 per cent of them were anglers.

That the full of the moon had a good deal to do with when fish spawned was the contention of J. C. O'Leary, who had fished on the Kawartha Lakes for 48 years. He claimed that last year the muskies came in on April 16, 17 and 18.

L. M. Frost, Lindsay barrister, was glad to see representatives present from so many places in the country. He explained the purpose of the first resolution passed by the county anglers, which had to do with the season of maskinonge. It was their idea that good results would be obtained so far as conservation was concerned, and the people in this part of the province would be better pleased.

Mr. Potts, in his address, criticized the Federal authorities for the way they raised and lowered the waters of the Trent. Untold numbers of small fish and spawn were destroyed in this way, he claimed. He insisted that by curtailing the maskinongue season the government had caused a heavy loss to guides and other business men in Bobcaygeon. He was himself in the hotel business.

A moving picture machine had been brought along by the Toronto party, and this was used to show several reels depicting bass, trout, and maskinonge fishing.

Before the Toronto delegation departed and the meeting broke up, Mr. Warburton emphasized the need of unity among the anglers of the province. He wanted all associations to federate. If this were done and they showed a united front to the government they could get needed reforms of the game laws.

WARSAW SCHOOL HOLDS CONCERT

Prizes For Past Year Distributed at Presbyterian Sunday School.

WARSAW, Jan. 28.—The Warsaw Presbyterian Sunday school held its annual entertainment on Friday evening, January 20. Dr. Munro, superintendent, in the chair. In spite of the stormy evening a goodly number of pupils, parents and friends gathered in the Town Hall. The program consisted of a selection by the Sunday school orchestra, song by the school, an address of greeting by Dr. Munro, recitation by Vera Patterson, recitation by Ivan Watts, recitation, Eva Clifford, dialogue, "Samuel's Proposal," Jean Munro and Kenneth McQuaig; a song by the school, recitation, Harold Clifford, orchestra selection, recitation, Della Tucker, chorus by Miss Elsie Tucker's class of beginners; recitation, Aleta McQuaig; instrumental, Jean Munro; recitation, Kathleen Dunford; pantomime, "Rock of Ages," Jean Munro and Eileen Miles; recitation, Monda McQuaig; drill, "Manners Class" Mr. Currie's class of boys, as darkies; orchestra selection, distribution of seals, diplomas and candy boxes, closing selection by the orchestra. God Save The King.

The school orchestra, directed by Dr. Munro, assisted with the songs and choruses, besides giving their own selections. The members are: Dr. Munro, Della Tucker, Tommy Davis, violinists; Gerald Crowe, cornet; Mrs. Munro, pianist for the orchestra selections, while Olan Leahy, violinist, assisted. Ellen Douglas was pianist for the school songs and choruses.

Rev. Mr. McCleary could not be present because of the storm.

Those receiving seals and diplomas were:

Boys' class, teacher, Mr. Currie—Teddy Rose, sixth year silver seal, also Willie Miles and John Miles; Trevor Watts and Kenneth McQuaig, fourth year, green seals; Kenyon Choate and Harold Choate, third year, blue seals.

Mrs. Munro's class, girls—Jean Munro, ninth year seal for alumni diploma; Aleta McQuaig, fifth year purple seal; Quth McQuaig and Aileen Miles, fourth year green seals.

Mrs. T. H. Crowe's class, girls—Gwendolyn McQuaig and Mary Rose, first year alumni diplomas; Della Tucker, third year blue seal; Ellen Douglas, first year diploma.

Bible class—John Rose, seventh year gold seal; Ellen Douglas and Gwendolyn McQuaig received diplomas for memorizing the shorter catechism.

Between distribution of seals and diplomas and the giving of the candy boxes, Mrs. T. H. Crowe's class presented her with a casserole and the following address:

"Dear Mrs. Crowe:

"Another year has rolled itself into our past; another milestone has been crossed; and, as we look around us we view the ever-widening horizon of life's activities, responsibilities and opportunities.

"We feel that we are crossing the vital boundaries from girlhood to womanhood. We recognize the perils and dangers that beset our way, but we have resolved that life is a battle, and we choose to fight it; that living is a struggle and we aim to strive; that conquering is a victory and we aim to try.

"It is with grateful hearts that we review our past. We are thankful for our home life and its directive influences; we are indebted to kind Providence for the multitude of noble lives which have been our constant inspiration. But of this we are confident that one of our greatest liabilities is to the noble band of Sunday-school teachers whose friendly precepts and worthy life has ever encouraged us to greater efforts.

"Thus it is, with new vision of the past and present, that we bid you, Mrs. Crowe, to formally meet us here to night. We beg to bear witness, first to you, and then to the community, of your ceaseless sacrifice, and inspiring efforts on our behalf. You must have often felt that your efforts were futile; that we were unmindful of your sacrifices; and that recognition must only come to you from your Heavenly Father, 'who seeth in secret, but rewardeth openly.' But, such is not our temper. We have secretly viewed your sacrifices, we have enjoyed your companionship; we are indebted to you for your friendly instruction and kindly precepts, of the past two years; and it is with utmost confidence that we entrust the moulding of our future into your hands.

"As a token, then, of this appreciation, we ask you to accept this little gift, and when you are baffling the tempests of doubt and ingratitude,—may it remind you that no seed sown in His Name falls upon stony ground.

"Signed on behalf of class members:
Mary Rose, Ellen Douglas, Gwendolyn McQuaig, Dorothy Hawthorne, Della Tucker, Evelyn Hawthorne."

Evelyn Hawthorne read the address, and Mary Rose made the presentation.

Mrs. Crowe was completely taken by surprise, but was able to gracefully say a few words of thanks and well-wishing.

The Rev. Mr. Ikanar was able to drive from Indian River to hold service in the Baptist church.

Mr. McCleary tried to motor from Indian River to conduct service in the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening, but could not reach the Dummer road.

Rev. H. B. Herrington held services at Bethel and Zion, as well as Warsaw, and was able to motor so far as Herman Payne's, then easily made the rest of the distance to Zion church.

Rev. O'Connor-Fenton motored from Norwood to conduct the morning service in the Anglican church.

A.Y.P.A. DEBATERS DISCUSS MARRIAGE

Decide Single Blessedness is Preferable to Wedded Happiness.

OMEMEE, Jan. 27.—A debate was the feature of the program at the A.Y.P.A. on Tuesday, January 17. The subject under discussion was, "Resolved, that wedded happiness is preferable to single blessedness."

The affirmative was supported by Messrs. N. Burgomaster and J. Pilling, while the negative speakers were Misses H. Thorn and E. Pogue. Good points were brought forward by the speakers of both sides. There was a certain amount of humor indulged in, which added to the evening's entertainment. The young ladies, in upholding the advantages of pursuing the single course through life, succeeded in winning the honors of the contest. Such a result may seem more remarkable in view of the fact that this is Leap Year.

The debate was very well attended, which is evidence that people do take an interest in such proceedings.

The judges for the occasion were Miss Bowes, Rev. A. T. Weir, and J. Bent.

Springville

SPRINGVILLE, Jan. 28.—Owing to the stormy weather on Friday night the Springville-Fairmount Literary Society poetical program was postponed until a later date. However, a few faithful followers who had not received this information braved the storm and had an enjoyable evening practising carpet ball. On Friday, Jan. 27, the program will be under the leadership of Miss Daisy Murray and will take the form of a musical evening, which promises to be extremely interesting.

On Monday evening several of the young men of the community met in the basement of Springville Church for a game of carpet ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Young were the guests on Sunday of relatives in Peterborough.

A number of people from Springville and the surrounding district attended the anniversary services at Trinity Church, Peterborough, to hear the message spoken by Dr. Gandier.

SPRINGVILLE, Jan. 28.—Mr. and Mrs. Melville Johnston were the guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. William Whitfield.

Miss A. Brown, Mrs. M. Johnston Mrs. A. Hunter and Miss Helen Whittington, attended the meetings of the Lindsay Presbyterial of the W.M.S. at St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, as delegates from Springville United Church.

Mrs. W. Tully has returned from visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. Bidgood, of Keene.

Mr. and Mrs. William Whitfield called on Mrs. R. Armstrong on Thursday afternoon.

On Thursday, January 19th, Mr. J. Johnston and Mr. H. Cathcart attended the funeral of the late Mr. C. Renolds, at Bethany.

ELIZA TO SING SING.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—A modern Eliza in the person of Roy Green, sneaked into the United States by crossing the ice over the St. Lawrence River. Then he became indiscreet and committed a holdup which netted him 50 cents. A Queens County judge sent him to Sing Sing to think it over for from 7½ to 15 years.

Received Speedy Relief From Lumbago

Ottawa Man Loud in Praise for Dodd's Kidney Pills

"Dodd's Kidney Pills cannot be beat for speedy relief of Lumbago," writes Mr. H. R. McQuade, 248 Holmwood Ave., Ottawa, Ont. "They make one feel like a new person. I have proved that. Now, you may publish this letter for the benefit of others." The winter months bring colds and chills, which double the work of the kidneys. Often the results are disastrous, for, if the Kidneys weaken, harmful uric acid and other poisons are allowed to escape into the system. Backache, Dizziness and Urinary Disorders sound an urgent alarm. Dodd's Kidney Pills are a wonderful stimulant for weak kidneys.

I.O.O.F. OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED

District Deputy Presides at Pontypool Lodge—News of Pontypool.

PONTYPOOL, Jan. 28.—On Friday evening, January 20, under adverse weather conditions, the annual installation of officers of I.O.O.F. No. 296 was held. R. J. Martin, D.D.T.M., of Peterborough, and his installing team were present and installed the officers. They also exemplified the second degree in a very capable manner. The installation team consisted of Bros. R. J. Martin, D.D.G.M.; George Lacheur, acting D.D.G.M.; Harry Fallis, Warden; Thomas Pacey, Grand Warden; V. Hunter, Grand Treas.; E. Stanley Grand Sec.; J. Price, Financial-Sec., W. Constable, Grand Chaplain; E. Bartlett, Grand Secretary; W. Fair, Inside Guardian.

The officers installed were: Jr. P.G. Bro. William Miller; Jr. Grand, Alex. Walker; V. Grand, John Payne; Secretary, Ed. Youngman, P.G.; Fin.-Sec., Robert Gray, P.G.; Treasurer, Robert Halloran, P.G.; R.S.N.G., J. J. McRoberts, P.G.; L.S.N.G., George Wilder, P.G.; R.S.S., James Richardson; L.S.S., James Masters; R. S. V.G., P. M. Richardson; L.S.V.G., George Spofford; Cond., Bert Richardson; I.G., W. Foster; O.G., Ernest Benson; Chap., W. H. Hooper; Ward., W. Miller.

At the conclusion of the installation a ham supper was served by the ladies' Bro. Harry Fallis, chairman for the evening was in his usual good form. Short speeches were given by several brethren of the three subordinate lodges present, and also by the Rev. Mr. Boomhour.

Bro. Martin, D.D.G.M., was presented with a fancy gavel in a nice leather case. The rest of the evening was spent in dancing, the music being provided by the Ramsberry Brothers.

A good attendance was present at the United Church on Sunday evening, and the talk by the pastor on, "Is the world getting better or worse?" was enjoyed by all. On Sunday, January 29th, the topic is, "A Christian attitude towards politics."

The meeting of the Y.P.L. on Thursday evening was a huge success. The program was under the leadership of the Citizenship vice-President, John Payne. The Scripture reading was read by Miss M. Delahaye and the devotional exercises were in charge of the pastor. The main item on the program was a well-given forty-minute talk on "Citizenship" by W. L. Rayfield, V.C. He covered the growth of the citizen from his start in his home and all through his life. He touched on the home life, school, employment, citizens who were coming to this country from other lands, crime situation and many other phases of existing conditions.

At the conclusion a vote of thanks was extended to the speaker for the careful way he had prepared his speech, and the manner in which it was given.

The chairman gave a reading entitled, "The Ballad of Hard Luck Henry." The result of the contest for the evening was a tie with nine points each. Next meeting will be of a social nature with Miss M. Delahaye in charge.

A REMEDY THAT INSPIRES FAITH

"Going into a decline" is an expression that has come to be known as one of the most difficult conditions with which physicians have to deal. It often describes an alarming condition because it does not yield to ordinary treatment and the debility continues with loss of flesh and strength until the patient feels hopeless. In the majority of such cases the victims suffers from lack of good, red blood, and if the blood can be restored to normal no other medical treatment is necessary. Proper food and sunshine will do the rest.

Every man, woman and child who lacks health and strength should at once take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up their blood supply. The mission of this medicine is to make new, rich red blood, which speedily restores health and strength. "I am writing to tell you what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me," says Mrs. . H. Oulton, Firdale, Man. "A few years ago I was in a badly run-down condition, so much so that I was subject to fainting spells which would leave me in such a condition that I could hardly go about. Then I was stricken with influenza and this further weakened me, and throughout the winter I remained in this condition. I was taking doctor's medicine, but as it did not seem to help me, my mother advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got a couple of boxes to start on. When these were done I seemed to feel an improvement and I got a further supply to continue the treatment. I took in all about a dozen boxes, and by that time I was in the best of health and had gained in weight. My faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is now unbounded, and I keep a supply on hand and take them occasionally if I am not feeling quite well. I often recommend them to others, and cannot praise them enough for restoring my health."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PIONEER WOMEN ARE GIVEN VERDICT

HAVELOCK, Jan. 28.—The regular meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. H. L. Scott, with twenty-four members in attendance. A special feature of the afternoons program was a debate, "Resolve that pioneer women did more for the community than modern women."

On the affirmative side were Mrs. (Dr.) A. S. Thompson and Mrs. Dunlop; their opponents were Mrs. Joseph Seabrooks, Mrs. W. Smith and Mrs. J. A. Sexsmith.

The arguments and replies were interesting and displayed the effort which each one had put forth to bring the points to a successful issue. Acting as judges were: Mrs. W. Vance, Mrs. A. Anderson and Miss A. Harriet, whose final decision was given in favor of the affirmative by a small margin.

Assisting on the program were Mrs. E. Fennell and Mrs. William Anderson, who rendered two vocal duets, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "There's a Long, Long Trail A-winding." Both numbers were greatly appreciated.

Norham

NORHAM, Jan. 27.—Mr. John Bound, Jr., has returned home from Oshawa where he had spent some time.

Havelock-Lakefield Tied for Group Championship

HAVELOCK INTERMEDIATES WIN SHUTOUT GAME FROM LAKEFIELD

Railroaders Lead By 2-0 Score to Tie For the Group Championship.

GOALIES GOOD.

Starting the run under full head of steam Barney Quinn and his C.P.R. Moguls pulled into Brock Street Rink last night, coupled onto the weighty end of a 2—0 count and struggled out of one of the stormiest sessions of the season with the Lakefield Intermediates supplying the elements of the storm. The much-talked-of tilt between Barney's outfit and the Sabatino clan proved all that advance dope claimed for it, and one of the largest, if not the largest, crowds to turn out locally this year went away happy that they had seen the merriest battle yet.

The word "battle" simply fails to describe it. There was little to choose from between the rival aggregations—both could and did lay on the hickory good and plenty—and the more aggressive campaign of the Lakefielders was offset only by the veteran-like manner in which their opposition conducted themselves. There were thrills and spills aplenty with no quarter asked or given and a number of poorly-concealed feuds that gave the game an added interest. The Havelock team deserved their two-goal victory, but certainly, on their play, the losers did not deserve to be shut out.

As before stated, the crowd was one of the largest of the season. The game meant much to both teams and the fans, sensing more than what regulations called for, looked forward to it with pleasant anticipation. The victory for Havelock meant a deadlock for the group championship.

As was to be expected, the game was far from clean and only the quick eye and just decisions of Referee Clair Devlin of Kingston, prevented private combat on the part of rival players. As usual, Barney Quinn and his running mate started in early to make weight count. They proved the bad men of the night. Playing a mighty useful game to his own outfit, either of the big fellows handed out and took plenty of "the gaff," serving a total of six penalties. Their teammates, Brennan and Wright were the two best men on the ice, accounting for the brace of counters registered against Moore, while the Sabatino brothers and Blewett were the pick of the Lakefield team. Both goalies showed form on occasions, Davidson scoring his first shut-out of the year.

To describe the game session by session would be a difficult undertaking. This pastime had to be seen to be appreciated. Both teams were out for blood and for three minutes after the initial face-off the rubber scarcely passed either blue lines, owing to the close and consistent checking. Hooper opened things up a little with a rush that ended with a weak shot at Moore and the slight edge that Havelock seemed to have was extended when Blewett drew the first penaly for dropping Brennan as the left winger was breaking away. The tables turned when Quinn handed Stabler an illegal check and play shifted to the C.P.R. yards. With Quinn back, play evened up and Wright and Brennan went through for shots that were not of a particularly dangerous nature. Louis Sabatino and Hooper forgot their manners and were benched and while they were off Brennan and Wright combined, the latter taking first shot. Brennan scooped up the rebound and bulged the twine after fourteen minutes. Both aggregations speeded up after that, and a number of spills varied the usual course of events until the gong. Brennan drew a penalty for spilling J. Sabatino, but was out again before the end.

Second Period

That hectic middle session will not soon be forgotten by players or fans, for into it was crammed more exciting combat than is usually dished up. The big fellows, Sabatino, Quinn and Hooper found the going particularly rough, while the smaller fry fared little better when the spills were handed out—which was most of the time.

Wright gave things the proper start when he picked up a loose puck in mide-ice and strolled down, sidestepped Blewett and let drive at Moore. He repeated the curtain raiser almost immediately but to no avail and away went Sabatino and Loosemore for what looked like a sure count, but the latter slipped a cog on the pass across the goal mouth and the rubber changed hands. His goal did not count as he was offside. Play shifted back to "No Man's Land."

For the next three or four minutes both teams seemed unable to get going, but the Lakefielders pressed hard and when Quinn was again chased, they threatened to even things up. Inexperience around the net lost them several opportunities. Barney came back out, but his freedom was short lived, for he and Stabler were benched for something not quite ethical and the period closed while they were doing time. The score was still 1—0.

Third Period

The final chucker was slightly slower as the boys tired perceptibly but the excitement was none the less intense with the Railroaders clinging to their thin lead and seeking an opportunity to increase it. They were met more than half way, however, and with both teams playing five men owing to Hooper and Sabatino paying a double visit to the timekeepers, both goalies were called upon to perform with very little warning. Blewett was chased for dropping Wright, but the C.P.R.'s could not capitalize even when, as on several occasions they were right in and through either defence.

Then came the second and final count of the game. J. Sabatino was penalized for slashing and his teammates found the gap hard to fill so that it was not surprising when Wright was allowed to shoot from just outside the blue line. The rubber descended dead on, and Moore missed it. The Havelock coterie were two to the good. Two more penalties, one to Brennan and one to Quinn, were imposed and plenty of end-to-end rushes featured the dying minutes of the period which closed with the Havelock team on top. A third game is necessary to decide the group championship.

The teams:

Havelock—Goal, Davidson; defence, Hooper and Quinn; wings, Wright and Brennan; centre, Pollock; subs, Laing and Geraldi.

Lakefield—Goal, Moore; defence, J. Sabatino and Blewett; wings, Loosemore and Stabler; centre, L. Sabatino; Subs., Northey and Wannamaker.

Referee—C. Devlin of Kingston.

SPEAKER MAY CHANGE LEAGUES

Boston, Philadelphia and Montreal Club Mentioned Being in the Market.

DEMANDS BIG SALARY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (Canadian Press). — Tris Speaker, gray-haired veteran of many a bitter American League campaign, may switch his allegiance to the National League next summer, but it will not be with the New York Giants.

Commenting on the reports that the Giants were seeking Speaker's services, Secretary Jim Tierney said yesterday that the club was "not interested." This terse comment apparently disposes of the reports as they concern the Giants.

The Boston Red Sox, the Philadelphia Athletics, and the Montreal club in the International League also have been mentioned as being in the market for Speaker, whose unconditional release by the Washington Senators is effective February 1.

Virtually every club in the National League could use a good outfielder, but Speaker's salary demands have kept most of them out of the field. The Giants are thought to be the only ones who could pay the large amount he demands for his services.

The possibility that Speaker might return to the Red Sox with whom he starred from 1909 to 1916 appeared dissipated as a result of a statement by Jim Price, Boston Secretary, denying that the Red Sox were after the former idol of Hub fans. Price said the Red Sox were building a team of youngsters "and Speaker wouldn't fit in at all."

Manager George Stallings of Montreal is the only one who has admitted he has actually begun negotiations with the veteran outfielder. Stallings said yesterday he had discussed with Speaker the possibility of his joining the Royals and had "found him agreeable."

INSIDE SPORTIN' DOPE

By A WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

When is the people of this fair burg going to wake up to the fact that history is being made here? They go on living their usual lives, holding dollar days, talking about their neighbors, telling lies about the long distance stations they get on their radios, and going to church, if any, just as if this wasn't the most remarkable winter in Peterboro's record. It's time they got hep to themselves and give the hockey boys a hand for piling up the longest list of consecutive defeats that the game can show. Up to Thurs. this week our 3 O.H.A. teams has been beaten 15 times in a row without a comeback. 15 games, 15 losses! You remember the little boy in school when the teacher said, "That's good," when he gave "4" as the correct answer to 2 plus 2. "Good, nothing," sez the lad. "Hell, that's perfect." And so is the record of the Peterboro hockey teams. You can't get nothing more consistent than to lose every time out for 15 games, and more than that, in the whole string our lads has only been ahead of the enemy at any time in 2 games. If you like figgers, the goal total is them 85, us 19. The srs. has scored 6 goals in 5 games, Mister Lebarr's lads 4 in 6 games and the Saints 9 in 4. What a swell season this has turned out to be!

Wed. night was the most enjoyable game of the year, Mac, because you could watch a O.H.A. battle without seeing a Peterboro team take it on the chin. The Railroaders and the Bobs, as I call the Havelock and 'Caygeon teams, put on a good bout, and the Havelockers was on their best behaviour. Them that went expecting to see Mister Quinn, and Mister Hooper shunting the Bobs over the rafters went away disappointed, some of them wondering if they could go to the box-office and get their jack back. It'll be all over by the time this is read, but somehow I gotta feeling that Fri. night will be something different again. With Lakefield and Havelock to be tossed in there it looks to me like there will be no tea and cakes served anyway.

It won't be long now, Mister Sporting Editor. St. John's is out for the season, and the other 2 outfits is just hanging on. But they is 1 serious ahead that oughta provide plenty excitement, and that is a battle between the 2 local jr. teams for the city title. Mister Lebarr's boys and the Saints oughta make a good tussle of it, and as the fans is already arguing about which is the best outfit, there will be a good deal of interest in seeing them clash. They'll likely get together next week, and the wise customers will watch for the serious.

Well, Mac, even if we've got bumped by Oshawa and Bowmanville and Whitby and Lindsay and Varsity and Marlboros and Preston and Kitchener this winter, we gotta remember that we've had a lotta good hockey in the last 3, 4 years, and that into every life must come some rain.

I'll leave you with that bright thought.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

LINDSAY DRAWS WITH SENIORS

LINDSAY, Ont., Jan. 28.—Lindsay intermediates held the Peterborough seniors to a tie here last night in an exhibition game between the two teams. The score was three to three and the game was all that could be desired in the way of being clean, only one disturbance detracting from the fine appearance of the game.

Each team scored in the first period, Peterborough scored two in the second period and Lindsay scored two in the third period. Hard shooting, clean checking, snappy passing and quick saves, all served to make the game interesting to the point of view of an audience. A person would have a hard time to pick either team as the better, but the fans seemed to favor Peterborough, probably because of the senior title. About the worst point of the game was the lack of audience.

Right at the start Lindsay started to play for a win. Reeves shot and only a nice save by Lebarr prevented Lindsay from counting. Davis travelled all the way down the left rail, bounced the puck over the defence man's head and scored.

Peterborough came right back to equal matters and only missed doing so by a very slight margin. Then Kane stepped through the Lindsay defence, shot and scored to tie the two teams. During the rest of the period each team lost many fine chances, or rather the defence and goalers prevented many a fine chance from becoming an actual score.

Killen narrowly missed scoring when Lebarr had to jump out on the puck to prevent such a happening.

Then Cripps did score for Peterborough. He bounced the puck off Kirley's chest into the net. Soon after this, Kane counted another one when he made a fine shot from the blue line, the puck just clearing the goal post and slipping into the net. Although there were several minutes to go, Lindsay did not equalize.

Soon after the start of the third period. Williams and Kane had a slight disagreement. Both men realized that it had been caused by an accident, however, and nothing much happened. Then Reeves came down the left rail, shot and bounced the puck off Lebarr. The puck lay still just in the entrance to the net and it only remained to Killen to knock it in.

Soon after this the teams crowded together before the Peterborough net and in the struggle the puck was knocked into the net for a score. This tied the tally at three to three. There was only a minute left and nothing happened in that time. The line-up:

Peterborough— Goal, Lebarr; defence, Lackey and Rose; centre, Kane; wings, McFee and Cripps. Sub, Foley.

Lindsay — Goal, Kirley; defence, Coombs and Killen; centre, Davies; wings, Williams and Reeves. Subs, Wilford, Martin and Reeves.

Referee—A. Gamble, Lindsay.

WOULD CHANGE OVERTIME RULE

Bruins Petition President Calder For Change in Overtime Rules.

NOT HALT GAME.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 28 (Canadian Press).—Two hundred and ten minutes of scoreless hockey against Pittsburgh and a total of eight tie games this season yesterday led the Boston Bruins management to petition President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League for a change in rules governing overtime play. The league head was asked to submit the Bruin suggestion to the board of governors for a mail vote.

Pointing out that under the present rules a tie game results in a letdown when the game is halted twice and the teams change goals for the two brief overtime periods, President Charles F. Adams of the Bruins suggested that play continues into the overtime period without a letup, the bell at the end of the last regulation thirty-minute period merely serving to notify that overtime play had begun.

"We believe under the recommended change," President Adams wrote, "that play will continue at high pressure; that condition will count more than it does now and that a team can retain any advantage which it might have possessed in the last seconds of the third period. There would be no change of goals and a game ending finally in a tie would be played in two 20-minute and one 30 minute periods."

MILLBROOK WINS FROM COGNAWAGAS

Home Team Leads All Through Exhibition Game, Which Ends 5-3.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 28—The initial hockey game of the season was played here last night on the Cosmos Rink, between the Cognawagnas of Peterborough and the local town team, the latter winning out, after a good fast game, by a score of 5—3. The town team kept in the lead until the last period, when the visitors scored three goals. The line-up was:

Cognawagas—Goal, A. Vannest; defence, A. Davis and W. Cripps; centre, F. Cripps; wings, J. Wilson and R. Graham.

Referee—Howard Lancashire.

CHANGES FOR BISLEY SHOOT

Will Reduce Dimensions of Bull's-eye on Short Ranges.

NEW RANGES FORMED

LONDON, January 27 (Canadian Press Cable). — Some important alterations have already been resolved upon in the program of the National Rifle Association meeting at Bisley this summer. For all contests on the "short" ranges, 200 to 600 yards, the dimensions of the bull's-eye are to be reduced to obviate the great number of "highest possibles" and ties resulting from the splendid ammunition and the wonderfully accurate rifle now in use.

This year, for the first time in the history of the King's Prize competition, marksmen who fire in the first stage, which is the eliminating stage, will start their shooting at 600 yards, will proceed to 500 yards, and will finish at 200 yards. This will prevent men placed in the late squads having to shoot at the longer ranger in a fading light.

In the St. George's contest, the first stage will be fired at 300 and 600 yards, instead of at 200 and 600.

The Duke of Montrose has announced his desire to present the first prize in a new competition of much interest. This is a sporting rifle event for women novitiate rifle shots, to be called "The Amazons." In recent years there has been a pretty good sprinkling of women shots on Bisley Common who have taken part in the Saturday club spoon shoots and in the Bisley meeting proper.

In all the great newspaper events and in the Prince of Wales' Prize, the Donegal, the Service rifle Wimbledon Cup, the Barlow, and the Graham competitions, the number of rounds will be reduced next July from ten to seven.

of Canada. Members are trained to get up and talk, and our leader, Hon. R. B. Bennett, is most enthusiastic about the formation of these clubs. He is a warm-hearted man and not the machine type that he is sometimes made out to be. He realizes the future of the Conservative party lies in the young people of Canada. During the war Canada lost 50,000 men, and this means that we to-day must take the burden on ourselves a little younger in life."

In closing, the speaker expressed his confidence in the success of the Peterborough club, especially under the able guidance of Mrs. Fallis.

CASTLETON FARMERS HOLD OYSTER SUPPER

Interesting Program Given at Annual Event Held on Friday.

WARKWORTH, Jan. 28.—United Farmers of Castleton held their annual oyster supper Friday evening, January 20, in the Town Hall, Castleton. In spite of the inclement weather there was a very large crowd. The chairman for the evening was Mr. Leslie Campbell, director of the United Farmers Association of Northumberland County. The following program was presented:

Selection by Castleton Orchestra, Messrs. Inglis and Campbell and Miss Clare Nelson.
Solo—Miss Marion Purdy.
Reading—Clara Knapp.
Highland Fling dance—Bessie Taylor.
Speech—Mr. Ireland Smithfield, followed by a speech from Mr. Duff, Brighton. In his remarks Mr. Duff stated that the farmers were the real nation builders. Mr. Thorne was called upon to give a few remarks.
Song—Vivian Bowen.
Reading—Janet Tait.
Solo—Frank Haynes.
Duet—F. Haynes, R. Knight.
Selection—Orchestra.

After the program the United Farmers held an executive meeting to choose a man to send to headquarters to represent the county. In this matter no decision was reached and another meeting of executive is being held on Monday evening.

CAMPBELLFORD CHEER WARDEN

As Warden Davidson stepped off the "evening train," the regimental band of which he is a member, played its loudest in an attempt to vie with the cheers of the crowds thronging the station platform. The local fire truck, siren shrieking, bell clanging and its searchlight playing over the crowd, stood in its place at the head of the procession in honor of the chief of the department. Cheers and more cheers were given by lusty throats till the people on the train must have considered the townsmen mad.

Carrying the Warden on their shoulders, the men in front placed him in a cutter and assisted the Mayor and those who had attended the Counties Council to places beside him. Approximatery one hundred feet of stout inch rope was jammed with townsmen each anxious to have a share in drawing the official vehicle to the centre of the town. The parade was headed by the fire truck and the band. Then followed the Warden's "state coach," a string of cars and hundreds of pedestrians. Right down to the corner of Front and Bridge Streets came the procession to the accompaniment of the band, the fire siren, truck alarm bell and the cheers of practically the entire town. Rather than break the traffic laws, the cutter was not drawn over the silent policeman, but allowed to come to rest against it.

Mayor Kingston found it difficult to speak above the cheers, but he was heard to say several very complimentary things concerning the new Warden. "The first time in thirty-four years!—Represents more people than any member of Parliament!—The reward of perseverance!—The highest honor in the power of the counties to give!—The first citizen of the Counties," were some of the Mayor's remarks heard above the cheering.

Warden Davidson was very modest in his reply. He admitted that he was proud to be the man to bring the honor to Campbellford, and proud to think he had won the seat. He expressed his appreciation for the continued support of the electors who made it possible for him to gain the honor by electing him as Reeve or Deputy Reeve year after year till he was able to gain them the honor. He explained that it had not been an easy victory and briefly detailed the procedure of election in the Counties Council. Bare-headed and with the street lights for footlights, the big man spoke with the frankness and earnestness for which he has always been noted.

When he had finished speaking, the band led the way down Front Street to Mill and the "State coach" followed to the residence of the new Warden. Nor were they satisfied to leave the vehicle at the curb. They drew it right up to the front steps of his verandah and then carried the Warden on their shoulders right into his house. There were cheers as Mrs. Davidson, Misses Irene and Georgia, daughters of the Warden, and his son, Howard, greeted the most distinguished man in the Counties. Pausing a brief moment to express his appreciation again, Warden Davidson retired to the seclusion of his residence.

SILVER PLANT WINS 4-2 VERDICT

First of Inter-Departmental Hockey Games Played at Deloro.

MARMORA Jan. 28. — The first of the Inter-departmental hockey games was played at Deloro rink on Thursday evening between evenly matched teams representing the Silver and Oxide plants.

The ice was in first class shape and a good crowd was on hand. Due to little practice beforehand there was little combination shown by either of of the teams and the goals of the 4-2 verdict which went in favor of the Silver Plant were the result of individual pressing. The game was devoid of penalties and the refereeing by L. Collins, a Peterboro boy, was most satisfactory. The first goal was obtained by Archer of the Silver plant early in the first period, Brown tying the score before the period closed. G. Speagle and Brown scored for their respective sides in the second period. In the third the Silver plant added two more through Leal and Mantle. The game ended with the Oxides pressing strong.

The teams:

Silver Plant.		Oxide Plant.
J. McCrodan	goal	J. W. Emigh
A. Phillips	right def.	J. E. Jerome
E. Mantle	left def.	A. S. Brown
F. Leal	centre	R. Murray
P. Archer	right wing	N. Smith
G. Speagle	left wing	C. R. Quinn
G. Mantle	subs	T. Cousins
C. Robertson		S. Sanderson

Goal umpires: E. Warren and W. Savage. Referee L. Collins.

Preferred by Stenographers

Because the nib of the new pink banded Waterman's Number Seven is so flexible that it gives perfect shading at any angle, stenographers everywhere acclaim it.

Read the colour index in this advertisement. Then visit your local dealer and select your nib by colour.

Pink — FLEXIBLE, FINE—as resilient as a watch spring. Fine, tempered point, ground fine to shade at any angle. Loved by stenographers.

Green—RIGID—tempered to armor-plate hardness. Will not shade even under heavy pressure. Unequalled for manifolding. The salesman's friend.

Blue—BLUNT—an improved stub nib. This point makes a broad line. May be held in any position. Liked by rapid writers.

Yellow—ROUNDED—a different pen nib. The tip is ball shape. Makes a heavy characteristic line without pressure. Suits left-handed writers.

MAPLE LEAFS NEED VICTORY

Must Defeat Chicago Hawks to Keep On Trail of Maroons.

PRO GOSSIP.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—A bitterly disappointed bunch of hockey players came back from Montreal when the Maple Leafs arrived in town. They were a confident bunch when they journeyed to Montreal to meet the Maroons in the game to decide second place in the N.H.L., but they could not shake the hoodoo that the Maroons seem to have on them. They had just as much of the play as the victors but they did not beat Benedict and were forced to fall when Stewart scored his lone tally.

To-night the Chicago Hawks, who helped the Senators set up a high scoring record for the N. H. L. at Ottawa, tackle the Leafs at the Arena and both clubs are keyed up for the affair. The Leafs were away on a real winning streak when they were halted by the Maroons and they are determined to start another one and then continue it at the expense of Canadiens, Ottawa and Detroit, whom they meet next week.

Other Pro. Gossip.

There is some talk of the Hawks practicing next week in Hamilton. They play in Detroit on Sunday night and it is reported from the Ambitious City that Hughie Lehman will quarter his tail-enders there for a week of strenuous practice.

"Teddy" Oke, the bustling owner of the Kitchener Millionaires, is always making a trade, buying a player or releasing one. He cannot keep out of action and always has some deal on hand trying to benefit his aggregation. His latest purchase is a youth of 21 named Acaster from Regina of the Praiarie League. Acaster was a mate of Doarty and Ripley in the West and he is reported to be a smart performer.

"Hooley" Smith ran into another accident when he collided with Bill Carson and he was sent back to this town for a rest over the week-end after having the wound stitched up. In the collision with Carson he cut his face and neck and had the wound been deeper it would have been real serious.

Martin Lauder is not having much luck in pro. company; all the breaks he has had so far have been bad ones. After being seriously injured in training and then operated upon, he progressed favorably, and was sent to Providence. He was hurt in one of their games, and received a nasty cut over the eye. It was not properly attended to and now he is in the hospital with an infected optic. He should be out next week.

MYSTERY AND MIRTH SHARE DOUBLE HONORS IN SCREEN VERSION OF "THE GORILLA"

All-Star Cast, Headed by Charlie Murray and Fred Kelsey, Appears in Picturization of Famous Broadway Mystery-Comedy.

Combining the last word in chills with the last laugh in merriment, the picturization of Ralph Spence's famous mystery-comedy, "The Gorilla" is coming to town next Monday. It will be shown at the Capitol Theatre.

This is the show that rocked Broadway for a year. In its film form it has been changed somewhat, it is reported by First National Pictures, in order to offer a new mystery tangle to those who may have seen the stage presentation. That a great many have seen it is due to the fact that during the last two years eight stage companies toured this country and Great Britain, scoring a sensational success everywhere.

Weird and novel settings and exceptional lighting effects are said to make the screen version of "The Gorilla" even more spooky than it was on the stage. Charlie Murray and Fred Kelsey, as the two celebrated sleuths, Mulligan and Garrity, who hear all, see and know nothing, provide the comedy. The supporting cast is all-star, headed by Alice Day, petite leading lady.

Santell Directs.

Alfred A. Santell, who is famous for his direction of "The Patent Leather Kid", the stirring production in which Richard Barthelmess scored his greatest hit, wielded the megaphone for "The Gorilla." It is produced by Edward Small, who is also responsible for "McFadden's Flats" and other exceedingly successful comedies.

The cast in support of Charlie Murray and Fred Kelsey includes Alice Day, Tully Marshall, Walter Pidgeon, Claude Gillingwater, Gaston Glass, Brooks Benedict, Aggie Herring Syd Crossley and John Gough.

An interesting note in connection with the screening of "The Gorilla" was that the utmost secrecy was observed by all concerned in the production. Members of the cast were kept unenlightened as to what the ending of the picture would be like until the last part of the last reel. Mr. Small, the producer, kept the last three pages of the script in his personal safe and permitted no one but himself, Director Santell and James T. O'Donahoe, who prepared the script, to see it. Following the completion of the screening, Mr. Small directed that no one was to make public the solution of the mystery.

AT THE REGENT.

A VIVID MYSTERY FILM—"THE SHOW."

Strange, creepy things that float in mid-air; grotesque illusions of magicians, and belief-defying feats of modern magic—these form the background—and in a way a strange comparison for the mysterious story that is unfolded in their shadow in "The Show," coming Monday to the Regent Theatre.

It is a mystery story set in a surrounding of baffling mystery—in the very midst of delusion, as it were. For it is a story told in the interior of a strange "Palace of Illusions" where decapitations, floating heads, ghosts, and all the other tricks of the stage magician are used as a setting for a startling story.

John Gilbert and Renee Adoree, that remarkable duo of "The Big Parade," play together again in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature—laid this time in Budapest rather than France. It is a strange romance of a strange underworld, told in a setting of uncanny mystery.

Gilbert, as a swashbuckling gangster, "barker," in the Budapest sideshow, romps through a remarkable role, and in the dramatic climax reaches an intensity of emotional acting that surpasses anything he has ever given the screen. Renee Adoree is adorable as the Salome dancer of the show—with a woman's soul disclosed under the tinsel through a remarkable series of adventures.

LEAVE IT TO GLORIA

(By Jeanette.)

The first presentation of "Leave it to Gloria," the two-act musical comedy offered at the Grand Opera House last night and tonight, under the auspices of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham, the funds to be used for their Memorial Park project, had a splendid audience last evening. There was, too, a noticeable air of interest in the production, which heightened as it progressed to a finale, and just as much applause, possibly more, was granted the offerings toward the end as at the beginning, an evidence of the entertainment afforded the audience by the bright presentation.

C. G. Stevens, for the Mallabar Producing Company of Toronto, has directed the show in such a way as to bring out every bit of talent in a very well-chosen and capable cast, every member giving the impression of being engrossed in an effort to do the very best. With this snappy type of direction and attention to detail, and the excellent direction of the dances by Miss May Perry, there is an atmosphere of interest, amusement and entertainment to "Leave it to Gloria" that makes it one of the brightest amateur productions staged here in some time.

An outstanding note is in the costumes, which have probably never been surpassed in point of view of beauty, coloring and freshness. From beginning to end, the gowns worn by the principals and choruses are lovely in the extreme, several of the choruses having a stunning effect. The "Goldenglow" number, with a radium effect to the gold satin outfits, was a gorgeous affair, and the other costumes were up to the same artistic standard.

The story deals with the adventures of Keenan Sharpe (Norm Laing), an author in search of fictional material, and his companion, Amos Happ, an aviator (Jack Primeau) who descend suddenly, by way of a falling plane, on the seaside summer resort, the Fairview Hotel, at Brighton-by-the-Sea. They are mistaken for two noblemen who are visiting the country at the same time, and are astonished at the warmth of the geeting received from the volatile French proprietor, Monsieu Jean Saint Sisseson (J. A. Lel Blanc) and the guests at the hotel. To complicate matters, one of the latter has received from a relative an ugly little East Inndian idol that has the magic power, when in working order, of bringing about any wish expressed while the speaker is touching its surface.

A coterie of charming guests who are described heartlessly on the program as "Just Girls" are Marjorie Winslow (Mrs. O. H. Nicholls), recipient of the idol, and her fluttering friend, Sally Satterlee (Miss Greta LeBarr), also Betty Benson, a tennis champion (Miss Alma Blanchard) and Phyllis Waidner (Miss Geraldine Collins). Two "Mere Men" who are admirers of Betty and Phyllis are Billy Butts (John Krogh) and Bob Westbrock (Ron Fleming). Then there is Miss Pansy Pendennis Updegraft, chaperon of the girls (Miss Annie Crocker) and Chloe Washington, her maid (Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland), and two incidental, but very important characters, in Pickles Johnson, porter at the hotel (Edmond Leonard) and Bailey Hay, rural mail carrier (George Nichols).

The cast has been chosen so very carefully and each member acts his or her part so splendidly that it is very hard to make any distinction. The comedy element that is paramount in the play, and is rounded out by some really funny dialogue, gives every one of the principals a chance to get some good laughs. Norm Laing and Jack Primeau make a wonderful pair, the former taking his princely honors very seriously and worrying considerably over the deportment of his stuttering companion, who prefers honesty to diplomacy and gets tangled up miserably when he essays the part of a duke. His costume for the carnival that forms the second act also bothers him considerably and the habiliments and hat of Napoleon Bonaparte sit strangely on his frame.

J. A. LeBlanc makes a very excitable Frenchman, typical and seriously funny, and Ed. Leonard is a notable darky porter, with ebony make-up and characteristic dialect. Through his slighting remarks over the homeliness of the little East Indian idol, "Gloria," the image, which has been on strike for some time, starts indignantly to function once again, but later winds itself into morose silence once more, when everybody starts wishing on it at once. However, it stays in working order long enough to allow some surprising things to happen, especially when the astonished "Prince," with his hand upon it, wishes audibly that everyone will consider his masquerade as a joke, and the assemblage immedaitely bursts into a loud, concerted laugh.

George Nicholls has a small, but very well acted part, as have John Krogh and Ron Fleming, the former getting a good deal of amusement out of his affair with Betty.

Miss Annie Crocker gives an extremely funny and very sincere presentation of the role of the chaperon, her acting being of the unconscious type that does not strive for effects and hence has a really professional touch. And Mrs. Hazel Davidson-McClelland is one of the bright spots of the play as the dark-skinned Chloe, in a patchwork coat and feathered hat, who intrigues the fancy of the lackadaisical Pickles, and has a characteristically funny bit of love-making with him.

Adding much to the charm and color of the production are the four girls, Mrs. O. H. Nichols, Miss Greta LeBarr, Miss Alma Blanchard and Miss Geraldine Collins. The scene in which Amos Happ, (Jack Primeau) attired as the great little Corsican, with top-heavy hat and gleaming satin costume, makes stuttering love to the dainty little Sally Satterlee (Miss Greta LeBarr) is one of the real hits of the evening, and has an elusive, captivating touch that carries it through with a fascinating swing.

The musical numbers and dances are in keeping with the general entertaining effect. "The Tale of a Comet," as sung by Miss LeBarr, was possibly the outstanding musical number of the evening, and received three encores that brought the sweet singer and her chorus back for further verses of the whimsical versified love story. "I Want You," as sung in the attractive tones of Ron Fleming, was another melodious number, and one of the enticing musical bits was the jolly "Gee Whiz" duet by Mrs. O. H. Nichols and Norm Laing. "I Coitanly Must Be in Love," a Bowery song, was given by Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland in her own inimitable fashion, while two very well sung numbers were "My Blue Heaven" by Miss Geraldine Collins and "Nightmare Blues" by Mrs. Nichols. Both of these were costumed in stunning effect.

he opening ensemble included a group of beautifully-gowned damsels, featured in song and dance, in the Summer Girls and Debutantes, singing "Summering Down by the Sea," and joined in turn by Miss Collins, singing "In the Golden Summertime," with chorus, a tennis group, singing "We're Off to the Courts," a Golf Group, singing "Golf's the Game for Me," and Canoe Girls, singing "In a Canoe." Miss Crocker has a song with chorus, "Tell Me, Little Daisy," and Miss Alma Blanchard, with John Krogh, sings a loudly-encored funny little bit called "Whisper." "I Want to See My Tennessee," with Mrs. McClelland and E. Leonard accompanied by a group of tiny pickaninnies, is a scream, the small chorus getting renewed encores and dancing with vigorous effect. "What Goes Up Must Come Down" is the duet between Norm Laing and Jack Primeau that forms the final, with an ensemble chorus, to the first act.

The second act sees some wonderful gowning of the choruses, in the lovely "Old-Fashioned Rose" song by H. H. Lush, with a "Primrose" chorus of dainty ladies in crinoline and poke bonnets, carrying flashlights in their old-fashioned nosegays; and "Down on Chesapeake Bay," sung by Ron Fleming, with a gorgeous background in the "Goldenglows." George Nichols, with a "Rube" chorus, has an effective number in "Hokey Pokey, Diddle Dee Dum," and the final ensemble gives "Leave it to Gloria," with everybody on the stage in a kaleidoscope of color and light.

Just to round out the tuneful atmosphere of the production and add a finishing touch of brightness and charm, are two solo dances, a "Hot Feet" shuffle by Edmond Leonard, with two rousing encores done to the old-time favorites, "Turkey in the Straw," and "The Irish Washerwoman," and the very dainty and effective ballet dance by little Sophie Yeotes, who also was accorded repeated encores, and had a clever, light-footed number gowned in shimmering rose and silver.

During the intermission last evening, Mayor Denne appeared before the curtain, to speak in terms of praise of the efforts of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham to make Armour Hill a beauty spot and Memorial Park of which the city might well be proud. His Worship spoke of the endeavor which will be made by the ladies to have the portion near the canal re-forested, and asked that citizens co-operate by including the sum of one dollar for the work in their yearly budget.

"Leave it to Gloria" will be repeated at the Grand Opera House this evening, and all who failed to see it last night should make a point of doing so. It is a very worth while production.

The Opera House orchestra provided excellent musical accompaniment for solos and dances last evening. Accompanists for rehearsals were the Misses Mary Reynolds and Florence McFadden.

The personnel of groups in the various choruses is as follows:

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

THE STORY THUS FAR

Vance's theory is that two unknown persons were in the "Canary's" apartment on that fatal evening: one locked in a clothes closet, the other the man who strangled Margaret Odell. The murder is the most baffling one Vance ever has encountered. In no way can they account for the presence of anyone in the girl's apartment. The door the alley was bolted on the inside and the man who had gone out with Margaret Odell the night before had been the only one to be seen with her, and circumstances completely eliminated him.

CHAPTER XII

Heath sought consolation in a new line of thought.

"Anyway," he submitted, "we know that the fancy fellow with the patent-leather pumps who called here last night at half past nine was probably Odell's lover, and was grafting on her."

"And in just what recondite way does that obvious fact help to roll the clouds away?" asked Vance. "Nearly every modern Delilah has an avaricious amoroso. It would be rather singular if there wasn't such a chap in the offing, what?"

"That's all right, too," returned Heath. "But I'll tell you something Mr. Vance, that maybe you don't know. The men that these girls lose their heads over are generally crooks of some kind—professional criminals, you understand. That's why, knowing this job was the mark of a professional, it don't leave me cold, as you might say, to learn that this fellow who was threatening Odell and grafting on her was the same one who was prowling around here last night. . . . And I'll say this, too: the description of him sounds a whole lot like the kind of high-class burglars that hang out at these swell all-night cafes."

"You're convinced, then," asked Vance mildly, "that this job, as you call it, was done by a professional criminal?"

Heath was almost contemptuous in his reply. "Didn't the guy wear gloves, and use a jimmy? It was a yeggman's job, all right."

(Evetyc? de i 11; 11:45 œ)

Markham went to the window and stood, his hands behind him, looking down into the little paved rear yard. After several minutes he turned slowly

Tuesday Sept. 11-11.45 a.m.

"The situation, as I see it," he said, "boils down to this The Odell girl has an engagement for dinner and the theater with a man of some distinction. He calls for her a little after seven, and they go out together. At eleven o'clock they return. He goes with her into her apartment and remains half an hour.

"He leaves at half past eleven and asks the phone operator to call him a taxi. While he is waiting the girl screams and calls for help, and in response to his inquiries she tells him nothing is wrong and bids him go away. The taxi arrives, and he departs in it. Ten minutes later someone telephones her, and a man answers from her apartment. This morning she is found murdered, and the apartment ransacked."

"Now, it is obvious that when she and her escort returned last night, there was another man in this place somewhere; and it is also obvious that the girl was alive after her escort had departed. Therefore, we must conclude that the man who was already in the apartment was the person who murdered her.

"This conclusion is further corroborated by Doctor Doremus' report that the crime occurred between eleven and twelve. But since her escort did not leave til half past eleven, and spoke with her after that time, we can put the actual hour of the murder as between half past eleven and midnight. . . . These are the inferable fact s from the evidence thus far adduced."

"At any rate, they're interestin'," murmured Vance.

"The features of the situation revolving round these inferable facts are as follows: There was no one hiding in the apartment at seven o'clock—the hour the maid went home. Therefore, the murderer entered the apartment later.

"First, then, let us consider the side door. At six o'clock—an hour before the maid's departure—the janitor bolted it on the inside, and both operators disavow emphatically that they went near it. Moreover, you, Sergeant, found it bolted this morning. Hence, we may assume that the door was bolted on the insid all night, and that nobody could have entered that way. Consequently, we are driven to the inevitable alternative that the murderer entered by the front door.

"Now, let us consider this other means of entry. The phone operator who was on duty until ten o'clock last night asserts positively that the only persons who entered the front door and passed down the main hall to this apartment was a man who rang the bell and, getting no answer, immediately walked out again. The other operator, who was on duty from ten o'clock until this morning, asserts with equal positiveness that no one entered the front door and passed the switchboard coming to this apartment.

"Add to all this the fact that every window on this floor is barred, and that no one from upstairs can descend into the main hall without coming face to face with the operator, and we are, for the moment, confronted with an impasse."

Heath scratched his head and laughed mirthlessly.

"It don't make sense, does it, sir?"

"What about the next apartment?" asked Vance, "the one with the door facing the rear passageway—No. 2, I think?"

Heath turned to him patronizingly. "I looked into that the first thing this morning. Apartment No. 2 is occupied by a single woman; and I woke her up at eight o'clock and searched the place. Nothing there. Anyway, you have to walk past the switchboard to reach her apartment the same as you do to reach this one: and nobody called on her or left her apartment last night

"What's more Jessup, who's a shrewd, sound lad, told me this woman is a quiet, ladylike sort, and that she and Odell didn't even know each other."

"You're so thorough, Sergeant!" murmured Vance.

"Of course," put in Markham, "it would have been possible for someone from the other apartment to have slipped in here behind the operator's back between seven and eleven, and then to have slipped back after the murder. But as Sergeant Heath's search this morning failed to uncover anyone, we can eliminate the possibility of our man having operated from that quarter."

"I dare say you're right," Vance indifferently admitted. "But it strikes me, Markham old dear, that your own affectin' recapitulation of the situation jolly well eliminates the possibility of your man's having operated from any quarter. . . . And yet he came in, garroted the unfortunate damsel, and departed—eh, what? . . . It's a charmin' little problem. I wouldn't have missed it for worlds."

"It's uncanny," pronounced Markham gloomily.

"It's positively spiritualistic," amended Vance. "It has the caressin' odor of a seance. Really, y' know, I'm beginning to suspect that some medium was hovering in the vicinage last night doing some rather tip-top materializations. . . . I say Markham, could you get an indictment against an ectoplasmic emanation?"

"It wasn't no spook that made those finger-prints," growled Heath, with surly truculence.

"Damn it! This is rank nonsense. The man got in some way, and he got out, too. There's something wrong somewhere. Either the maid is mistaken about someone being here when she left, or else one of those phone operators went to sleep and won't admit it."

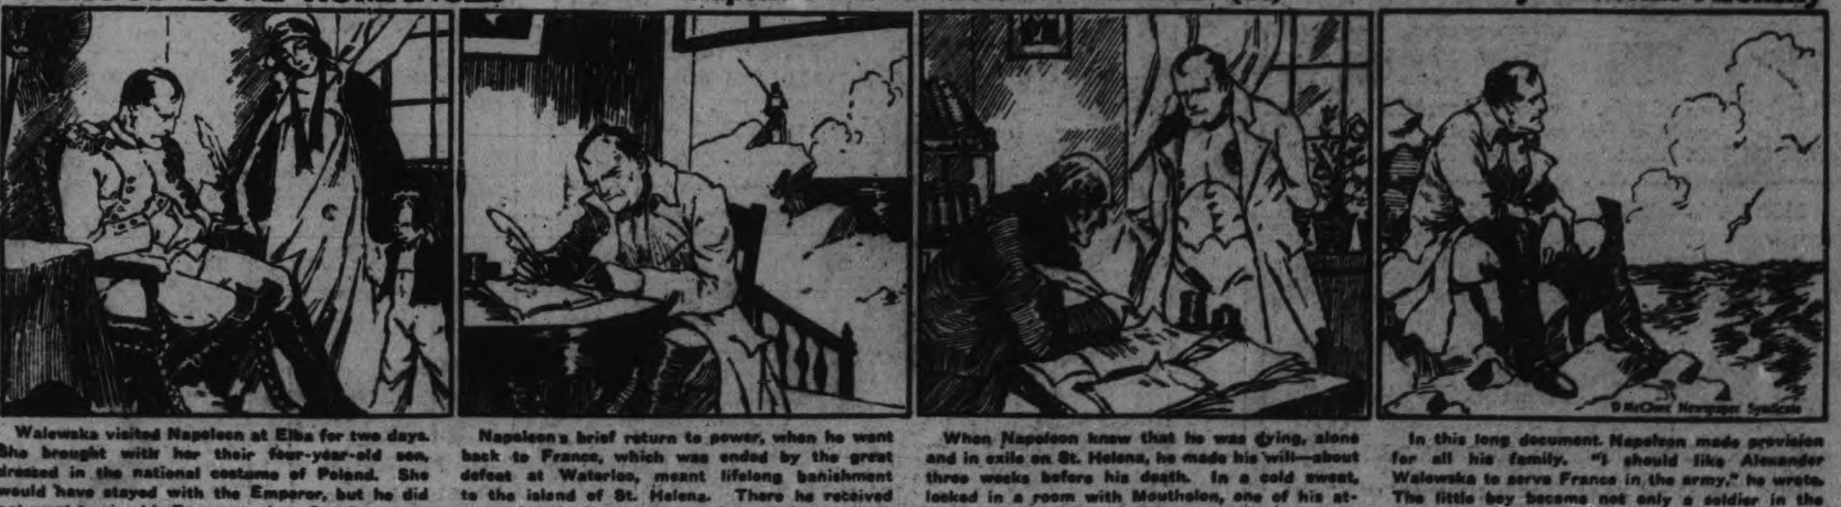
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES Napoleon and the Countess Walewska (VI) By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Walewska visited Napoleon at Elba for two days. She brought with her their four-year-old son, dressed in the national costume of Poland. She would have stayed with the Emperor, but he did not want to give his Empress, who refused to share his exile, an excuse to stay away from him. So he bade Walewska leave him.

Napoleon's brief return to power, when he went back to France, which was ended by the great defeat at Waterloo, meant lifelong banishment to the island of St. Helena. There he received word that his lovely Polish Countess, whose old husband was now dead, had married a French nobleman.

When Napoleon knew that he was dying, alone and in exile on St. Helena, he made his will—about three weeks before his death. In a cold sweat, locked in a room with Moutholon, one of his attendants, he dictated for five hours. Then Moutholon dictated it back to Napoleon, for to be legal it must be in his handwriting.

In this long document, Napoleon made provision for all his family. "I should like Alexander Walewska to serve France in the army," he wrote. The little boy became not only a soldier in the French army, but a famous French statesman and diplomat—a credit to the lovely Marie, and to the thwarted Emperor who loved her.

JUNIORS LOSE TO SHAMROCKS IN MOTOR CITY

SCORE 6-3.

OSHAWA, Ont., Jan. 28.—Oshawa obtained a 6-3 verdict over the Peterboro Junior clan here last evening in a well-played and hard-fought tussle. "Doc" Rowden, Oshawa's star right winger, proved the biggest thorn in the side of the Petes, and was responsible for three of their goals. The Petes did some good checking right through the piece, but were themselves disorganized by the uncanny poke checking of "Bus" Whitton at centre for the Shamrocks.

Kenneally, the Petes' left winger, was the best man on the ice for the out-of-towners, and scored one goal. All the Petes' markers came in the final frame, when they began to have more of the play, both from the attack and the defence. Oshawa drew first blood in the third frame, when Rowden scored his third on a rebound which made the score 5-0 in favor of the homesters.

The first period was fairly even, although the locals were swarming around the Peterborough net like flies. The first period score was 1-0. In the second period the clever work of the Oshawa front line began to tell and they ran in three counters in quick succession. Kenneally and LeBarr did some good work in this frame for the visitors. Near the close of the period the Petes came back strongly and tested Leverque with many drives. Their shooting was more accurate and harder than in the first, when they seemed unable to get any power in their shots. Jones at centre did some nice checking for the Petes, breaking up many plays at centre ice. They failed to bulge the twine before the period terminated.

The third period produced faster and more aggressive hockey, with the Petes taking the offensive for the first time.

Rowden kept up his sterling and remarkable playing for Oshawa and did more than anyone to keep them in the hunt. For a while the Petes played four men up in an endeavor to add to their total, and finally broke into the score sheet when LeBarr took the puck at the blue line and slipped one unexpectedly past Leveque.

This score galvanized the Petes to further effort, and Kenneally scored after hooking the puck away from an Oshawa player at the defence. The play became rougher, and Kenneally received a penalty, in a play in which he did not appear to have been a participant. Gillespie in goal was exceptionally good, and as a matter of fact was all through the game, only earned markers beating him.

Spanton on the Oshawa defence was spilling the Petes with painful regularity, and his mate Harrington was carrying most of the burden of the rushing. With Kenneally off, Harrington took the puck at the defence and skated through the whole Peterboro team to register the Shamrocks' last goal. Hatton did some good checking for the Petes, and many of the attacks ended at his side of the defence.

With the score appearing to be settled, Allin, Peterboro, took the puck up the right board and put a sissler past Leveque from the corner, which made the count 6-3. Rowden and Whitton began to show prominently again, and both missed the net from a scramble in front.

The game ended with the Petes throwing all their resources into the front line in an endeavor to add to their total. The Shamrocks seem to have the Petes' number, and at no stage of the hostilities last evening did the Petes ever seriously look like winners.

The teams:

FLORIDA.

More people would travel, according to W. Fulton, District Passenger Agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway, if they realized how simple it all was. "When a man who has done little travelling gets an idea that he would like to go to Florida, a thousands questions come into his mind which are apt to scare him off, whereas if he just walked into nearest Canadian Pacific office all his problems of rates and routes and reservations might be solved without any worry or trouble."

Why not just do that if you feel the urge at all?

"AWAY TO A GOOD START"

C. B. Routley Retires From Business and Son Takes It Over.

The announcement has already been made of a business change in the well-known and long established firm of C. B. Routley & Co., fancy goods dealers, of 341 George Street.

After more than half a century of active business life in Peterborough, Mr. Routley has decided that he is entitled to a good rest, and retires from active participation in this well-established firm.

It is safe to say that Mr. Routley has conducted business in this city for a longer period than any other merchant in the city to-day. That he has earned a good rest, his numerous friends will all agree, after enjoying, as he has, an unbroken succession of 54 years' business prosperity.

The business has been taken over by Mr. Routley's son, Herbert Routley, who has been actively identified with his father for over twenty years. He possesses the valuable experience necessary for the management of the business; being familiar with all the important details connected therewith, and such as will safeguard its varied interests. He is well-known to the large number of patrons of the store, both in the city and in the county, as well as being popular with those who know him more intimately.

The public may look, therefore, for the same painstaking attention which has characterized the varied details of this business in the past, and will congratulate Mr. Herb. Routley on getting "Away to a Good Start."

Obituary

JOSEPH GRIERSON.

A distinct shock passed through the community when, on Friday afternoon, January 27th, word went around that Joseph Grierson, of 258 Rogers Street, had been fatally injured while trimming trees on Smith Street. He was quite well-known in this city, having lived here for many years. He was a native of Scotland.

Left to mourn are his sorrowing widow; two sons, Joseph and Glenie; four daughters, Mae, Lillias, Alice and Margaret. Also several brothers and sisters in Scotland. Funeral will take place from the family residence, 258 Rogers Street, on Monday, January 30, at 10.30 a.m., proceeding to Little Lake Cemetery. The Rev. Mr. Bousfield will conduct the services.

REGINALD DOUGLAS ELCOMBE.

The death occurred this morning of Reginald Douglas Elcombe, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Elcombe, after a very short illness. He leaves to mourn his loss his mother and father, two sisters, Jean and Norma, and brother Bob.

The funeral will take place on Monday, the 30th of January, at 11.30 a.m. from the residence of his grandmother, 594 Downie Street.

MRS. ANNE COSTELLO

The funeral of the Rev. Father Costello's mother, whose death took place in Oshawa this morning, will be held in Ennismore on Tuesday.

The remains were brought to Peterborough today. Sympathy of a legion of friends is extended to Father Costello in his bereavement.

J. L. R. CAVANAH

The death took place at Freeport, Ont., on Saturday, January 28, of John Lorenzo Robert Cavanah, beloved husband of Lillian A. Armstrong and youngest son of Mrs. J. H. Cavanah, of Peterborough. Deceased was in his 28th year.

Two brothers and three sisters survive, namely W. H. Cavanah of Chicago; O. V. Cavanah of Toronto; Mrs. F. L. Roy of Peterborough; Mrs. G. B. Hutchings of Toronto, and Mrs. R. W. Frank of Detroit. Mrs. W. G. Green of Peterborough was an aunt of deceased.

The funeral which, will be private, will take place on Monday, January 30, from the residence of his mother, No. 8 Grand Central Apartments to Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

MADOC BEATEN.

Stirling Hockey Team Wins at Home By 5-0 Score.

MADOC, Jan. 28. — Madoc Senior Hockey players met defeat on Friday evening at Stirling by a score of 5-0.

Cuba Entered For 1928 Davis Cup Play

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 28. — Canadian Press. — Cuba has entered the 1928 Davis Cup Competition challenging the American Zone. The United States Lawn Tennis Association was advised yesterday by the Cuban authorities that the entry had been cabled to Paris.

Japan and the United States also have challenged in the American Zone. Decision about the expected entries of Canada and Mexico has not yet reached the U. S. L. T. A. which has been asked by the French to handle the American Zone arrangements.

Davis Cup entries close in Paris next Tuesday but information so far reaching this country accounts for only 19 challenging nations in the European as well as American zones; 26 participated in the 1927 tournament.

DR. BLAGRAVE TALKS ON ART

INSTRUCTIVE LECTURE.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave was the special speaker at the meeting of the Woman's Art Association in the studios at the Conservatory of Music, yesterday afternoon when an attentive audience listened with much appreciation to his scholarly and finely worded address on "Ramifications of Art." A vote of thanks at the conclusion was voiced by Mrs. T Cruikshank, who spoke in terms of much appreciation of the "informative and profitable address and was seconded by Miss S. A. Tomkins. The speaker was introduced by the president, Mrs. William Blackwell, who also announced the vocalist of the afternoon Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland. Mrs. McClelland, who took the place of the scheduled soloist, Mrs. Fred Free of Campbellford, sang in delightful voice two charming numbers: "Mother, my Dear," and "Lassie o' Mine," with piano accompaniment by Miss Agnes Logan.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave spoke of the artist as an interpreter of truth and beauty, who interpreted his impressions according to his own particular genius, putting into his artistic conceptions his own inner vision of what he saw, and the quality of his own soul. This was true in the fields of art, architecture, and sculpture, the artist endeavoring with massiveness, simplicity and fineness to interpret line, color and form.

In literature, in architecture and in statuary, the same principle applies and the work of the artist, becoming a creation, is not liable to have its value reduced by the passage of time, as is the case with inventions, whose value is only great in the period in which they are developed.

Energy is Necessary.

With the artist there must be the gift and there must be industry in applying that gift in pratcical ways, while the artist must find also a constituency or public that is capable of appreciating both the gift and the industry to develop it.

The speaker went on to refer to the wider fields of art than those most generally recognized. In the world of letters the artist finds perhaps the most supreme accomplishment of the artistic urge. In works of philosophy and theology, where the reason is concerned, and logic outlines the processes of thought, art gives expression to ideas that are common to all, so that the reader of a book of essays, for instance, is often able to say: "That thought has often occurred to me."

With historians, a great artistic achievement is capable of being arrived at, for they are not concerned merely with an outline of dates, but also with the motives, passion, ambitions and desires of humanity in the periods with which they deal. Then in the realm of fiction writing is found possibly the greatest interpretation of life as it is really lived, and of human relationships in their vaious aspects. A very wide scope is offered the creator of books of humour, because a sense of humor is common to most people. Dr. Blagrave alluded to the humorous characteristisc of the Irish race, but said he had often thought they were not sufficiently humorous, after all, or they would have at many periods been able to see the funny side of their political history.

Art in Government.

"The statesman is also a great artist. He sees people of the nations as individuals, having their own aspirations, needs, visions and desires, with immense possibilities of attainment and achievement And he endeavors to interpret their thoughts and ambitions and their spiritual aspirations in such a way as to give expression and development, leadership and inspiration to the emancipation and liberation of the national soul."

Speaking of religion as an art and art as religion, Dr Blagrave said that if the religious features were taken out of the history of art, there would remain only an impoverished residum. The history of art from the time of the Greeks, down through the history of French art, with its development in the religious revival of the Twelfth century, and the art of Italy, which owed an impetus, through Giotto's expresion of the delights experienced by St. Francis in the beauties of nature, showed the relation of religion to its various aspects.

"Religion as an art is the interpretation of the ultimate reality, which we know as the Deity which lies behind and transcends all things. Art tries to make this reality accessible to every individual. Maude Royden speaks of science as the quest for truth, of art as the quest for truth, beauty and goodness, these last three being the three ultimate values of human existence. Religion therefore is the essence of life itself. The art of worships consists in bringing oneself by an appreciation of values, into a realization of God, and this art is one of the most universal."

The greatest artist is the one who can live cheerfully and happily, who is able to communicate happiness to others, and to do as did Jesus, the Master Artist of all time; "to think nobly, to love richly to serve generously and to die triumphantly."

Around the City

The regular meeting of the Women's Guild of All Saints' Church was held this week at the home of Mrs. J. Detcher, 533 Aylmer Street, when a brief business session was followed by a pleasant social hour, and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. Membership in the society is increasing and the work is progressing favorably.

Ill Health Envies Good Health

Just as poverty envies prosperity. To enjoy life and succeed in your undertakings you need good health. One way, and a most logical way, too, of helping yourself to health is to keep your spinal nerves free of irritation and pressure. Because if a nerve is constricted it cannot supply its quota of energy to the tissue cells. This means lessened capacity for work and lessened resistance to disease. Your nervous system controls the activity of every part of your body. Therefore, it is important that no nerve impingement exists along the spine.

Peterborough Lock Company Suffers Heavy Loss By Fire

EXPECT FULL ATTENDANCE OF ROTARY CLUB

Few Absentees at To-day's Luncheon Will Likely Attend Other Clubs.

MR. ROBERTS SPEAKS.

Brantford Divine Discusses Future of Anglo-Saxon Civilization.

Although there were several absentees at to-day's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club, it was announced by Rotarian Andrew Brown, chairman, of the effort to make this session a 100 per cent. meeting that these would in all probability secure their attendance by visiting some other club during the week, and that the desired objective would therefore be attained. A similar drive to make next Monday's meeting perfect from the view point of attendance, is under way.

Incidentally reports of the attendance for last year show that six Rotarians were present at every meeting during 1927 while two others missed but one luncheon. The six 100 per centers, were Robert Abbott, R. G. Kingan, J. H. Seels, Jerry McClelland, A. McNab and H. R. H. Kenner while Allan Cameron and C. G. Graham were absent only once during the year.

The speaker to-day was Rev. H. L. Roberts of Brantford, who delivered a thoughtful and eloquent address on "Will our Anglo-Saxon Civilization survive?"

Rev. Mr. Roberts who was introduced by Rotarian S. R. Armstrong, referred to associations with Peterboro and his pleasure at being able to revisit this city, and to bring the greetings of the Brantford Rotary Club.

The query upon which he based his remarks, Mr. Roberts pointed out, had been uttered by Theodore Roosevelt, who had always taken a keen interest in the subject. The speaker drew attention to the passing of other great civilizations leaving nothing but dead cities, dead republics, dead dynasties, dead democracies. Was our civilization destined also to pass away as these had done? The world had become a neighborhood he pointed out, because of the increase of broadcasting, and there was the further development represented by the mingling of races in the western parts of Canada and the United States.

If our civilization were to endure, Mr. Roberts asserted, it would be necessary to purify politics, to teach thrift, to encourage the respect of property rights, to maintain a sane Sabbath, and to preserve the sanctity of the home. Particularly, and the speaker stressed the last point deprecating the increase in the number of divorces in the United States, and to a lesser extent in Canada. Womanhood, motherhood, must be exalted, declared Mr. Roberts, and the weakening of the marriage ties could not fail to sap the life of our civilization. A lasting civilization could not be built on companionate marriages.

Rotarian Dr. M. A. Morrison expressed to the speaker the appreciation of the Rotary Club.

Harry R. McKeen of the American City Bureau, Chicago, who is here to assist in the Chamber of Commerce campaign, was introduced by Rotarian George A. Gillespie and briefly addresesd the club, pointing out the possibilities before this city and country as he was able to visualize them.

President A. L. Killaly expressed the sympathy of the club to Rotarian Rev. Father Paul Costello on the loss of his mother.

PRESENTATION MADE TO WALTER PETERS

Has Been Treasurer of Typographical Union For Twenty-one Years.

A pleasing feature of the regular monthly meeting of Typographical Union No. 248, held on Saturday evening, January 28th, came immediately following the treasurer's twenty-first annual report, when the secretary, Maurice Dunkley, on behalf of the members, made a presentation of a reading lamp to the treasurer, Walter Peters.

The gift was a token of the appreciation and esteem held for him by his fellow members of No. 248, not alone for his long standing service and devotion to the duties of his office, but for his ready and cheerful willingness to help out in any project pertaining to the welfare of No. 248.

Mr. Peters ("W.P."), in replying, said that he was completely taken by surprise, even though that was perhaps a much hackneyed expression, but though surprised, he said, he not only appreciated the gift for itself, but far more did he appreciate the kindly thoughts and feelings of his fellow-members that prompted the gift.

FIELD MARSHAL EARL HAIG DIES SUDDENLY THIS MORNING

Commander of British Armies During the War Passes Away.

FROM HEART TROUBLE.

Had Visited Canada in 1925—Tributes Paid By Statesmen.

LONDON, January 30 (Canadian Press). — Earl Haig, Commander-in-Chief of the British Armies in France during the war, died to-day. Death was believed to have been due to heart failure. He was 66 years old. The Field-Marshal's death occurred just as he was on the point of retiring. He collapsed while sitting on the edge of his bed, and died shortly afterwards.

A flood of tributes quickly followed the publication of the news that Earl Haig was dead. One of the earliest was from Lloyd George, England's war Premier, who, speaking of the time when the unity of command in war was decided upon and the British army was placed under Marshal Foch, said: "Whatever might have been his personal views he carried out honorably every particular of the understanding arrived at. He behaved, not merely like a great patriot but like a great gentleman."

Among Immortals

In a character sketch of Earl Haig written by Lord Birkenhead some time ago, the article concluded as follows:

"The culmination of the Great War placed him, with whatever limitations he had, among the immortals," Lard Birkenhead, in The Sketch, referred to Earl Haig's supreme command of the British forces in France and said, "The statement of General Foch will be recalled that his admiration for the courage and endurance of the British soldier was not greater than his appreciation of the skill of their leader."

Lord Birkenhead, however, was somewhat critical of Earl Haig in connection with his supreme command. He said: "It is not, of course, pretended that his leadership was not disfigured by many terrible errors, indeed few of the higher commands in any of the armies of the world can be protected from this charge. The whole of the Passchendale offensive was vehemently protested against by the Cabinet as being futile in results and bloody in consequences and was a tragic illustration of an obstinate error, and the equally pointless prolongation of the Battle of the Somme was one of the greatest follies of the war.

"The trouble was that sometimes he and his staff were entirely mistaken, but he cared for the health and welfare of his men no less than for their steadiness and stability. He nevertheless was inaccessible and was always little remote. Often there were men in high places, and he is one, who from sheer selfishness cannot understand the value that attaches to a genial air, a familiar nod of the head, and the motion of an outstretched hand."

Devoted to Duty

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—"I have heard with real sorrow," said Sir Robert Borden today, "the tidings of Earl Haig's untimely death. During the war I was brought into very close touch with him on many occasions. He bore his almost crushing responsibilities with singular fortitude and supreme devotion to duty, and he well earned the grateful recognition not only of Great Britain but of the entire commonwealth. He will be sincerely mourned throughout Canada."

Visited Canada in 1925

OTTAWA, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Field Marshal Earl Haig visited Canada in the summer of 1925 as Grand President of the British Empire Service League. The league held its annual meeting in Ottawa that year and the Earl presided over the sessions for several days.

On his way to Canada, Earl Haig stopped at Newfoundland to unveil a war memorial there and on his arrival in Ottawa he was given a great public welcome on Parliament Hill. His tour of Canada was in the nature of a triumphant procession. In scores of cities and villages veterans of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces and of the Imperial Army paraded to welcome him and on several occasions during the tour he broke his itinerary in order to visit some small community where local veterans wished to greet him.

The Canadian tour extended from the middle of June until the first of August, 1925, and included, as well as official visits to cities, fishing trips in the Kenora district, a visit to the Calgary Stampede, and several days at Banff and Jasper Park.

Prince of Wales Voices His Approval Of New "Peace In Industry" Movement

BIRMINGHAM, England, Jan. 30 (A.P.)—The Prince of Wales set the seal of his approval upon the "peace in industry" movement here Saturday night when, in the presence of a brilliant company gathered at the annual dinner of the Birmingham Jewelers and Silversmiths' Association, he expressed the greatest satisfaction in noting that employers and employed had come to see that their fundamental interests in large production and thriving trade were identical.

The Prince said a recent friendly meeting of representatives of employers and the trade unions council have the strongest reason to hope that a new era of prosperity was opening. Alluding to indications of improving trade, the Prince said: "We have long sat in the sombre darkness of post-war depression, but I never lost hope. We have held on, and grinned, and borne it, and now it may be that we are going to get our reward.

In lighter vein, the Prince made amusing sallies on the subject of dress and jewelry, giving his audience of jewelers a hope of better times by reminding them that from antiquity humanity has loved adornment.

"I would not like to say positively," he said, "whether the idea of ear-rings actually sprang from the human brain before the idea of trousers, but I most certainly have noticed that whenever fresh relics of dark ages are dug up, evidence goes to show that about the first job of the prehistoric craftsman was to make some attractive ornaments for his lady friends."

COUNCIL FAILS TO TAKE ACTION IN ICE FISHING

AFFECT FARMERS.

By-laws Are Passed For Borrowing Money For Necessary Expenditures.

At the closing session of the County Council, Reeve Rye introduced a resolution petitioning the Federal Government to amend the Fishing Act, whereby the catching of fish through the ice in the inland waters of Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough and Victoria Counties would be made illegal. Reeve Tanner seconded the motion. Deputy-Reeve McIntyre of Otonabee opposed the motion on the ground that it would stop the farmers from catching fish in winter, the only time when they could get a few for food. Also it would stop the Indians from fishing.

Mr. Rye answered Mr. McIntyre's objections by saying if something was not done, there would be no fish even for the farmers to catch. "If Mr. McIntyre will come with me this afternoon, I can show him 50 pounds of pickerel in every fish store in Peterborough, and as for the Indians they are allowed by treaty to catch fish for their food supply," said Reeve Rye.

The debate opened in the last few moments of the session and many of the members wished to catch the noon train. Mr. McIntyre moved an amendment, seconded by Reeve breckenridge, that the matter be laid over until the June session. In the vote, five members voted for the amendment, and four against.

The Warden and Messrs. Rye, Curtis, Middleton and Breckenridge were appointed a committee to wait upon the manager of the Bank of Commerce to try and get a better interest rate for the county.

By-laws authorizing the Warden and treasurer to borrow from the Bank of Commerce $50,471.54 for the provincial highway; $85,000 to meet current expenditure; $90,000 for county and suburban area roads; $10,093.13 for bridge construction, and addition to court house construction were passed.

A by-law notifying the department of Highways that the county intends to spend $40,000 on construction of highways and $35,000 on maintenance this year was also passed.

HOWARD SCHARFE HERE TO-MORROW

Premier of Older Boys' Parliament To Give Address at St. Andrew's.

Howard Scharfe, of Kingston, Premier of the Older Boys' Parliament, will be here to-morrow night at 8.30, and will address on open meeting in St. Andrew's Sunday School Hall. Peterborough boys and all those interested in boys' work will be given an opportunity of hearing this speaker.

Winnipeg-London Conversation Held

WINNIPEG, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Linking up the gateway of Western Canada with the mother country, a trans-Atlantic radio telephone conversation between Winnipeg and London, Eng., has been successfully carried out. For fifteen minutes, an official of the Manitoba Government telephone system conversed with a member of the London Postal telephones.

So clear was the reception that the London official heard the tap tap of the telegraph ticker in the Winnipeg office. "For heavens sake stop that telegraph ticker in your room, it is deafening", he said to Walton, long distance chief of Manitoba telephones.

SMOKE KILLS TWO CHILDREN

FATHER SAVES BROTHER.

TORONTO, Jan. 30. — Genevieve and Joan, 22-months-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Fred MacDonald were suffocated on Saturday night while lying in their cot by the smoke from a fire which started in their bedroom in the MacDonald living apartment over St. Joseph's club rooms, 67 Curzon street, in the east end of the city.

An older child, Floyd, aged 5, sleeping in another room, was overcome temporarily from inhaling the smoke, and was carried downstairs by the father.

Dense smoke and the fierceness of the flames prevented MacDonald from reaching the other two. When firemen got to the cot both babies were dead.

Rats Cause Terror In South Lambeth

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Rats which recent floods have driven from the riverside have become a serious menace in South Lambeth. It was reported Saturday that the rats, suffering from hunger, have invaded the living rooms of houses in the day time in search of food, even though people are in the rooms. At night, the rats enter bedrooms and terrify occupants.

HON. JAMIESON ADDRESSES MOTHERS' ALLOWANCE BOARD

Members of Local and County Board Attend Luncheon on Saturday.

SEVERAL ADDRESSES.

A luncheon given in the grill room of the Empress Hotel on Saturday, at which Miss Josephine M. Burry, district investigator for the Mothers' Allowance Commission of Ontario, was hostess, was attended by members of the local and county Board, by Hon. David Jamieson, M.D. M.C. P.C., chairman of the Commission for Ontario, and the secretary of the Provincial Board, Mr. H. A. Reynolds of Toronto, and several other invited guests. Those present were: Dr. Jamieson, Mr. Reynolds, W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., W. A. Anderson, M.P.P., of Keene, Mayor Denne, members of the County Board, Col. R. E. Birdsall of Birdsall's (chairman), Mrs. B. W. Squire of Norwood (secretary), and John McIntosh, R. R. No. 3, and members of the local Board in Mrs. J. Knox (chairman), James Abraham (vice-chairman), F. H. Dobbin, secretary, Mrs. J. Mills, Mrs. G. Benton, and Thomas J. McMurray. Members of the County Board who were unable to attend were T. J. Darling of Warsaw and Miss Tanner of Lakefield, while S. Whatley of the City Board was also unable to be present, and M. E. Smithson, Warden of the County.

Mrs. J. Knox occupied the chair and welcomed the guests, in the name of Miss Burry and of the local Board. Mrs. Knox spoke of the work done by the Mothers' Allowance Commission and also of the splendid service given by Miss Burry as district investigator. She expressed the wish that patronage and politics would be eliminated from the work at all times.

Dr. Jamieson.

Coloned Birdsall extended the welcome of the County Board to the distinguished visitor. Dr. Jamieson, who rose to address the members briefly. He spoke of Ontario's pre-eminence in matters of social legislation in such things as the Workmen's Compensation Act, the Minimum Wage Act, and the Mothers' Allowance. In the latter legislation, the sum of $2,700,000 was expended in the past fiscal year.

Speaking of this legislation, Dr. Jamieson remarked that he would prefer to err on the side of mercy, rather than take too severe an attitude with applicants. He considered the Act as having more value for children than for mothers, because it enabled the latter to devote more time to their offspring, rather than being constantly away from them, leaving them to roam the streets and become potential criminals.

He spoke of the great talents and insight into the needs of humanity possessed by his predecessor, Rev. Dr. Bryce, and also mentioned in terms of great commendation the excellent work done by Miss Burry, characterizing her as one of the best of the many investigators of the Commission. Of the level-headed qualities of Mr. Reynolds he also spoke.

Many Amendments.

Many amendments were proposed for the coming session of the Legislature, with regard to the Mothers' Allowance Act one being an amendment to extend operations to cover the cases of mothers with only one child. This would mean an additional expenditure of $1,000,000, and he thought the Government was not yet prepared to assume this additional financial outlay.

Dr. Jamieson spoke also of the difficulty experienced in some large centres, like Toronto, where only a street line formed the division between the city and country and the allowance on one side of the division would be $30.00, while the other side could claim $40.00. He thought a flat rate would be a good thing, although in some districts it might not be practicable.

Fathers With Children.

Mention was made of the cases where fathers were left with five or six small children, and of cases such as that encountered recently, where a man attacked his wife with a razor. She retaliated with a shot gun, to such good effect that he was laid up in the hospital, and the wife immediately laid claim to the allowance, on the grounds of having an incapacitated husband.

Dr. Jamieson referred to a letter received from a small French girl in Sudbury, expressing her gratitude to the Commission for making the allowance to her grandmother, on the death of both parents of herself and her little brothers and sisters, and the means this afforded for keeping the family together.

Speaking of cases where a widowed woman has, after the lapse of some years, given birth to an illegitimate child, with the allowance at once cut off, and subsequent expressions of penitence from the woman and letters asking for consideration from clergymen and friends, Dr. Jamieson

Dies From Burns; Clothes Caught Fire

DIGBY, N.S., Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Annie Holmes died in the local hospital early yesterday morning from burns sustained Saturday afternoon when her clothes caught fire as she was putting wood in the kitchen stove. Alone in the house, Mrs. Holmes rushed outdoors with her clothing ablaze, then went in by another door and threw herself on a bed, setting fire to it. A neighbor had seen her plight and went to her assistance. He extinguished the fire and rushed Mrs. Holmes to the hospital, but she was beyond recovery.

$100,000 LOSS TO UNIVERSITY

Fire Damages Medical Building, Destroying Costly Apparatus.

CHEMICALS LOST.

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Loss of more than a hundred thousand dollars resulted when fire damaged the Medical Building of the University of Toronto today. While the damage to the building would not be more than $25,000, in the opinion of fire department officials, one professor set the loss of chemicals and scientific equipment at a hundred thousand dollars. Many very valuable chemicals were used for research work, and water and fire totally destroyed these. The fire started on the third floor where research work on diabetes and other subjects were carried out, and it is believed that some kind of chemical experiment might have been the cause.

EXAMINER RESULTS OF DOLLAR DAY CONTEST

No One Has Estimated the Exact Number of Beans in the Sealer—The Winners.

The Examiner Contest, which was held in connection with Twin Dollar Days was, as usual, very successful. There were more estimates than on any other previous occasion, and with the exception of one winner, all the winners this year are newcomers to the prize winning column.

The total numer of beans in the jar was 3190, and Mr. P. J. Fuller, 518 Gilmour street, wins the first prize of $10.00, his estimate being 3193.

Mr. Clare Heard,, 891 Water street, had an estimate of 3185 and A. Dunbar, Claraday, an estimate of 3195, both only five out from the correct number; consequently the second and third prizes are tied, and the total amount of the prize, divided equally, each receiving $4.50.

Mr. Stanley Curtis, Box 809, Peterborough, with an estimate of 3197, Mr. J. J. Devlin, 479 Rogers street, with the same estimate, and Mr. N. H. Bradley, 704 Water street, with the same estimate of 3197, are tied for the fourth position, and as a consequence the fourth, fifth and sixth prizes of $3.00, $2.00 and $1.00 a total of $6.00, is divided between the three, each receiving $2.00.

Mrs. W. J. Allison, of 593 Bethune street, with an estimate of 3198, received $1.00, and E. F. McGee, 590 Downie street, and Sara Taylor 720 Bethune street, each with an estimate of 3199, received $1.00 each.

Clara Heard of 891 Water street, also had an estimate of 3196, which would win another prize but owing to the fact that contestants are limited to the winning of one prize.

Prizes will be paid on Wednesday at the Examiner office.

COUPLE BURNED.

Montreal People Loss Lives When Fire Destroys Home.

MONTREAL, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Amos White, sixty, and his wife, Catharine, aged 48, were burned to death in their beds when fire destroyed the building in which they lived on St. Timothy Street here today. According to available information, White had used newspapers as fuel for the small stove in their flat and it became overheated, igniting the walls.

WOMEN OF JAPAN WILL VOTE

That suffrage in Japan will be extended to women by 1940, is the prediction made by Prof. Kenzo Takayanagi of the Law School of Tokyo in a recent lecture. He based his prognostication on the history of the rapid modernization of Japan's legal system.

Main Building Gutted by Fire Sunday at Noon

Efforts of Firemen Result in Saving Neighboring Buildings From Destruction—Total Loss Place at About $75,000.

TWO FIREMEN BADLY INJURED WHILE AT WORK FROM LADDERS

The Peterborough Lock Company suffered heavy loss when fire broke out in the three and a half storey brick building on Simcoe Street on Sunday afternoon, completely gutting all save part of the second storey and part of the offices. The latter were badly damaged by water.

At 12.26 two children, a boy and a girl, rushed into the Fire Hall crying they had seen flame and smoke issuing from the second storey windows of the building, and immediately Fire Chief Gimblett put in a special call to all members of the Brigade. In the excitement incidental to preparations, the children left without giving their names, but it is hoped they may be located. Then began the fight against the blaze.

With all the equipment in fighting trim, it was not long before the firemen had some eight lines of hose playing on the buildings from advantageous positions, four of them from the big new pumper.

The only delay was a slight one occasioned by a frozen hydrant which necessitated the moving of the pumper to another hydrant.

The main fire seemed to be in the second storey, but it spread rapidly.

Assistance Rendered.

In less time than it takes to tell it, Chief of Police Newhall had his staff of men busy roping off the street and handling traffic, while yet another group of workers from the Utilities Commission, through the quick work of H. Beatty, electrical superintendent, and R. L. Dobibn manager of the Utilities Commission had the electric power cut off to prevent accident, and stayed on hand to assist in any other way possible.

Lengthy Fight.

From 12.30 p.m. until well after 3 o'clock the fire fighting force, augmented by volunteers, worked like trojans to get the blaze under control, and it was nearly 4.30 p.m. before the main fire was out. Protection of adjacent buildings was also an important factor. During this time, it was not surprising that someone should suffer personal injury, R. Carr being the most seriously hurt. He was knocked off a ladder, sustaining a bruised shoulder and arm, necessitating his removal to Nicholls Hospital, while Lieut. McBride, on the same ladder, had his face badly burned. Messrs. Herb. Cooney and Orville Wilson were temporarily overcome by smoke, but were able to carry on. Firemen Degen and Jim Gimblett were injured by falling bricks.

Fire Chief Gimblett.

In conversation with Fire Chief Gimblett this morning, The Examiner representative was given a first-hand version of the fire. Mention of the frozen hydrant opened the conversation, the Chief explaining that such an occurrence is unavoidable with such weather conditions. The hydrants have been periodically inspected, but, like a fire, this difficulty with freezing just happens at times despite any care that is taken.

The Chief could not give any authentic estimate of the damage, referring his interviewer to Mr. Howson of the Lock Company. However he did express his appreciation of the co-operation of the various other departments which had assisted, and of all who had in any way helped to fight the fire.

The cause of the blaze is being investigated this morning, and announcement of the reason will be made later. In concluding, the Chief declared: "You may tell them that I said, with regard to the new pumper, that it paid for itself yesterday in the amount of adjacent property saved. Without it we would have fallen down badly."

Mr. Houston could not be located early to-day, but in conversation with officials of the W. R. Turner Company, which occupies the building next to the Lock Company, The Examiner was told, "You may quote us as expressing our complete approval of the splendid manner in which the firemen tackled their job. They deserve all credit."

Directing Manager Howson.

The director manager of the Peterborough Lock Company, Mr. Howson, was located at the damaged building this morning, and, optimistic as usual, he declared that "It might well have been worse." He could not give an accurate estimate of the damage, but, like Chief Gimblett, believed that it would be about $75,000. The loss is covered by insurance.

He said: "The fire did not affect the polishing, buffing, plating or brass departments in the building immediately west and we have already salvaged a couple of punch presses and are setting them up in a part of the building not damaged. However, the lock

The Weather

Sunday morning gave a temperature of 4 degrees below zero while this Monday morning showed 13 below zero as being the coldest last night. Later in the morning (about eight o'clock) it reached seventeen below. This is also the lowest of the present winter. The air was very damp and there was a heavy hoar frost There will now be a gradual rise in temperatue. January of last year went out quite mild.—W.P.

NOTED CHURCH IS DESTROYED

Metropolitan United Church, Toronto, Burned This Morning.

OVERHEATED FURNACE.

TORONTO, January 30 (Canadian Press).—For half a century regarded as the Cathedral Church of Methodism in Canada, Metropolitan United Church was totally destroyed by fire early to-day, and the cost of replacing it, if re-building is decided on, will be not less than half a million dollars, at a conservative estimate.

Staring from an overheated furnace in the basement, the raging fire within two hours totally demolished the interior and entirely consumed the roof of the edifice, leaving only two walls and the rear portion of the structure standing. In zero weather huge volumes of water were poured into the blaze, but it was so fierce that there was never much hope of saving the church.

The beautiful gothic structure was built about fifty years ago, and for years was the centre of Methodist activities in Toronto. Situated in the heart of the downtown section of the city at Queen and Church Street, Metropolitan stands on approximately two acres of ground, St. Michael's Cathedral being located immediately to the north, while on the west is St. Michael's Hospital.

For many years the church has attracted some of Methodism's outstanding preachers, not only in Canada but in Great Britain, among the predecessors of Dr. Sedgwick being Rev. Dr. Trevor Davies, now pastor of Timothy Eaton Memoril Church, Toronto, and Rev. Dr. Wardle Stafford, another eminent Old Country divine.

The fire-fighters report that the flames gained headway at a remarkable rate, and it was impossible to do more than prevent the conflagration from spreading, some apprehension being felt for the safety of patients in St. Michael's, but there was no wind and the sparks were confined to the church area.

The destruction of the church was achieved within about two hours. With terrific intensity the flames wrecked the interior of the church and totally demolished the roof, leaving only charred beams stretching across the top of the edifice. The walls of the church remain with heavy coatings of ice. Firemen trained on the edifice probably the greatest volume of water ever directed at a fire locally. Six high pressure lines were used, literally drowning out the fire, which, however, had already done nearly its utmost. Many of the fine memorial windows were smashed by the great force of the water used and others were wrecked by the fire itself.

Last night the choir of sixty, under H. A. Fricker, who is also conductor of the famous Mendelssohn Choir, rendered Mendelssohn's "Elijah" to a crowded congregation, while by a remarkable coincidence Dr. Sedgewick preached from the theme, "God Who Answers By Fire." The great organ, one of the finest in Canada, was completely destroyed but the carrilon, installed a few years ago by the late Chester Massey as a memorial to his wife, was saved.

CONFERENCE DELEGATES ATTEND CUBAN MEMORIAL ANNIVERSARY

International Public Law Committee Only One in Session on Saturday.

APPROVE DRAFT TREATY.

HAVANA, Jan. 30. — Canadian Press. — Attention of a greater part of the delegation to the Pan-American conference on Saturday was centered upon participation in the Cuban memorial anniversary in honor of Jose Marti, Cuban patriot.

The only committee of the conference which held a session was the international public law committee, which approved at first reading a draft treaty concerning political asylum, introducing several amendments to the recommendations presented by the jurists' conference at Rio de Janeiro through the Pan-American Union.

Consideration of the jurists' recommendations regarding the obligations of states in the event of civil war was then taken up by the committee.

These articles were approved in principle but were referred to a sub-committee for re-drafting.

The article approved would obligate governments not to permit their inhabitants to enter activities or cross frontiers for the purpose of fomenting insurrections in other states; would obligate governments to disarm rebel forces crossing a frontier and finally would prohibit traffic in arms for the benefit of rebels.

Turned Down.

A further article which would have prevented the use of telegaph, radio and telephone stations for "subversive action" in another country was turned down entirely at the joint suggestion of Argentina, Nicaragua and the Dominion Republic. Charles Evans Hughes, pesident of the United States delegation, supported the joint suggestion, pointing out the difficulty for the United States to regulate communications which are privately owned.

Mr. Hughes also said that a more concise term than 'subversive action" would be required.

At Nicaragua's suggestion, the convention concerning civil war will be made to extend to all kinds of revolutionary activities and not werely to civil war as recommended by the Rio de Janeiro jurists' conference.

So far as the political asylum draft treaty is concerned a United States reservation announced Thursday by Mr. Hughes still stands. At that time Mr. Hughes said that the United States dean did not recognize the right of asylum as a principle of international law and will not become party to any treaty giving immunity from arrest to persons who seek refuge in United States' embassies and legations abroad.

Resume Sessions Tuesday

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Two of the most vital subjects facing the Pan-American Congress—definition of the fundamental basis of international law, including the right of intervention of states in the internal affairs of another, and the laws defining the rights and duties of war time, maritime neutrality—will come up for discussion in committee next Tuesday.

Dr. Gustavo Guerrero of Salvador, chairman of the committee on public international law, announced at that time his committee would hear reports prepared on the two subjects by Dr. Victor Maurtua of Peru, and Dr. Juan Jose Amesaga of Uruguay respectively.

Dr. Amesaga's report, it is understood, moves that the recommendations prepared on the subject of maritime neutrality by the Rio de Janeiro jurists' conference last April be adopted without amendment. Dr. Maurtua on the other hand, it is said, will urge that the jurists' recommendations be modified to the extent that the Rio de Janeiro conclusions on the subject he treats be made the subject of a declaration of principles instead of being incorporated in a convention. Also, instead of unqualifiedly condemning intervention in the internal affairs of another state, Dr. Maurtua is said to deplore this action as a general rule, but coupled with the recognition that occasions may rise when intervention could be justified.

The provisions in the draft treaty recommended for maritime neutrality are sweeping and designed to alter profoundly conditions on the high seas during war time, besides being aimed at rendering the prosecution of hostilities as difficult as possible.

The first article says that other states in case of hostilities, "shall consider it a duty to remain "'neutral" although ready to extend good offices. Then he 'right of search on the high seas is sanctioned, the provision is included that ships cannot be attacked except if after being stopped, they fail to observe instructions given. Submarines are specifically mentioned as included in this article.

The draft says that only state acts

COSGRAVE LEAVES FOR OTTAWA CITY

Irish Free State President Has Brief Visit at Atlantic City.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press).—After having spent the day in Atlantic City, William T. Cosgrave, President of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State, and his party left here last night for Ottawa, Ontario.

Accompanied by a delegation of The Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, whose guest he was during his two-day visit in Philadelphia, Mr. Cosgrave left by train for the seashore resort at 9.30 a.m. He returned here shortly before 5 p.m. and left for Canada a few minutes later. Travelling with the Irish executive were Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister for Defence; Diarmuid O'Hagarty, Secretary of the Executive Council; Joseph P. Walshe, Secretary of the Department of Foreign Affairs, and Colonel Joseph O'Reilly, aide to Mr. Cosgrave.

Honored at Banquet.

A climax of two days' welcome extended to William T. Cosgrave, President of the Irish Free State, was reached Saturday night when he was the honor guest at a banquet given by the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

President Cosgrave was made an adopted member of the society—the first man to be thus honored since George Washington was adopted by the organization.

The motto "Unite," which appears on the medal President Cosgrave received, "will be written at the head of every chapter in the history of Ireland's future relations with the American people," he declared.

His special mission to the United States, President Cosgrave said, "is to thank all the citizens of this country of Irish blood or Irish sympathies, and in them all the generations that have gone before, for the deep affection and unstinted generosity which they have never ceased to display toward the Irish nation."

SPAIN MOURNS FAMOUS AUTHOR

Bitterest Enemies Express Sympathy For Bereaved Family of Ibanez.

WAS IN EXILE.

MADRID, Jan. 30.—(A.P.)—Friend and foe alike mourned openly yesterday over the sudden death of Vincente Blasco Ibanez, who, by his writings, spread so much knowledge of Spanish life.

Even the government, which some months ago issued a warrant for his arrest, did everything possible to facilitate the publication of news about his condition and helped his son to hasten to his bedside by aeroplane.

In its announcement of his death, La Nacion, the government organ, says all Spaniards mourn for him, regretting his political mistakes, but sympathizing with his family.

General Primo de Rivera, dictator of Spain, was silent in connection with the death of the man who had launched such bitter verbal attacks against him, but it is known that he has issued orders for everything possible to be done in his honor. Even King Alfonso, who was even more bitterly assailed by the novelist, is said to bear no ill-will, but on the contrary admiration for the writer.

Editors of the newspaper Pueblo and the publishing house of Prameteo, with which Ibanez was connected, have sent delegations to Mentone. The Spanish Republican party, of which Ibanez was a pillar, will hold memorial services for him February 11.

MENTONE, France, Jan. 30. —(A. P.)—Vincente Blasco Ibanez, in his last will, refuses to allow his body to be taken to Spain, but Spain, or at least representatives of the section around his birthplace, Valencia, is coming to France to the funeral of the great novelist who died here on Saturday.

"Dead or alive," says the will, "as long as the present regime exists in Spain, I do not want to return there. My transfer to my home would be glorified in by my enemies."

Thousands of telegrams have been received here from Spain, most of them from the region of Valencia, saying that numerous delegations bearing ten splendid wreaths of flowers have started for Mentone.

A silk standard, an exact replica of the banner of El Cid Campeador, captured by citizens of Valencia from the Moors, will be the Spanish author's winding sheet. A delegation bearing the shroud is due at Mentone to-day.

At least one thousand persons viewed the body yesterday.

Chamberlain's Son Responds To Toast

LONDON, Jan. .0 (Canadian Press Cable).—"Joseph Chamberlain, the Second," 20-year-old son of Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, was warmly cheered when he made his maiden speech at Birmingham Saturday night in responding to a toast to the "visitors" at a dinner of the Jewelers and Silversmiths' Association, at which the Prince of Wales was the guest of honor.

"That a Chamberlain should be responding for the guests in Birmingham is surely unsual," declared Joseph. "I always regarded our family as a part of Birmingham's furniture and not mere ornaments."

Sir Austen, who was present, obviously was delighted when the Prince of Wales warmly congratulated Joseph on his speech, and as a guardsman expressed pleasure that Joseph was joining the Coldstream Guards.

PLANE USED IN HUNT FOR MISSING MEN

No Trace Found of the Four Youths Lost on Lake Ontario.

IN CABIN CRUISER.

Believed May Be Beached in Some Obscure Inlet Along Shore.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press.)—An all-day search by airplane over the waters of the eastern end of Lake Ontario Saturday failed to disclose any trace of a 50-foot cabin cruiser and four young men who left Charlotte 10 days ago for a trial trip on the lake. The search was made by N. S. Walker, Oswego brother of one of the missing men and two companions.

Donald Walker, whose address is given as Oswego, is one of the missing men, but the names of the other three are not given, it being stated that it was not desired to alarm their families by the search for them. The boat did not belong to the men, but it was intimated that it belonged to the family of one of the quartet. A trial trip of the boat to Oswego or Cobourg was contemplated. One of the four missing men was said to be a canadian.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press.)— The search for the cabin cruiser "Sea Hawk" and for Donald Walker of Oswego and three other men who left Watertown, N.Y., about Wednesday, January 18 for a lake trip has extended to this city. Yesterday Ray Walker, a brother of one of the missing men and F. Taylor, of Watertown, arrived in an aeroplane.

Search Coast.

These men have been in touch by telephone with every port on both sides of Lake Ontario and by means of aeroplane, searched a considerable portion of the New York State coast, but have found no trace of the missing boat or any of the crew.

Ray Walker learned on Thursday evening last that his brother was missing. The news was conveyed him through a man named Donovan, who lives at Oswego, and who is an associate of Donald Walker, the missing man. Donovan knew that Walker planned a short run in the Sea Hawk, a 40-foot Gray boat, which had only recently been overhauled. When he did not hear from Walker, he became alarmed and in checking up discovered that nothing was known of the fate of the boat. He communictaed with Ray Walker, who has since prosecuted the search.

Were Testing Boat.

There is some mystery as to the reason for the voyage, but Ray Walker has a theory that his brother simply set out on a short run to test the boat, which had newly been overhauled, and was forced by bad weather to put in at some obscure inlet on either the Canadian or the American side.

Walker and Taylor in an aeroplane owned by Taylor, went as far west as the Ducks Island on Friday and Saturday and after leaving Kingston intend to skirt Wolfe Island and Amherst Island and proceed back to Watertown.

In discussing the matter with Kingston people, Mr. Walker mentioned the possibility of the Sea Hawk having sheltered in some cove or inlet in the Bay of Quinte and it was thought possible the crew might have landed on the south coast of Prince Edward Island. In the event of the men having landed on the mainland, Mr. Walker cannot understand why they would not get into communication with him by telephone.

Mr. Walker says if the men had landed on the mainland they would be quite likely to telephone to him. Therefore the chief search is being directed along the shores.

NEW TEST FOR DRUNKS.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—An English justice ruled that if two litres of a man's breath contained 1.5 milligrammes of alcohol, the man was 50 per cent. drunk and guilty of drunkenness. Then someone discovered that a football bladder would hold about two litres of breath. Now when an Englishman, brought in for drunkenness, denies the charge he is forced to blow up a bladder. If the evidence shows him to be more than 50 per cent. drunk, the magistrate invariably holds it conclusive and hands out a stiff fine.

British Firm Gets Locomotive Contract

CAPETOWN, South Africa. Jan. 30 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's).—The Board of the South African Railway systems has allotted to the North British Locomotive Company, a contract for 29 locomotives. A contract for 10 other locomotives has been awarded to an Italian firm. The combined contract totals £249,000.

It is understood that the tender board had recommended the acceptance of a British tender for the whole 39 locomotives, but the railway board decided to spit the tender, partly to obtain quicker delivery, and partly because the Italian prices was lower than the British.

Unfavorable reaction has been caused in London owing to the succession of important railway contracts recently given to Germany by the South African railway board.

Warkworth

The annual social evening of the Women's Institute was held in the Town Hall Wednesday evening. A large number was present. A short program was given in the first part of the evening which was thoroughly enjoyed. The remainder of the evening was spent in progressive euchre and crokinole. Mrs. Leigh Isaac, Mrs. George Walker and Mrs. Frank Bowen had charge of the program.

The winners of euchre were: Mrs. John Isaac and Mr. Joseph Topping.

The winners at crokinole were Mrs. Will Campbell and Mr. James E. Arkles.

WEDDING BELLS

DOHERTY—CONVEY.

WARKWORTH, Jan. 30.—A quiet wedding was solemnized at nine o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Jerome's church, Warkworth, when Mary Teressa Convey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Convey, Brighton township, became the bride of Mr Jeremiah Patrick Doherty of Brickley. Rev. J. B. Ferguson officiated.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Obituary

MRS. MARY OLIVER LINTON.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 30.—The funeral of the late Mary Oliver, wife of the late Robert Linton, was held from the family residence, Front Street, Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. The service at the house was conducted by the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, and was of a private nature. The service at Christ Church was attended by the surpliced choir. Interment was made at Christ Church Cemetery, the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace officiating at the church and at the grave. Many floral tributes marked the love, respect and high esteem in which the late Mrs. Linton was held. The pall-bearers were Messrs. A. J. Jenkins, J. P. Archer, Dr. A. Haig, Frank Bonnycastle, Dr. H. O. Richardson, G. A. Kingston.

The late Mrs. Linton was born in Devonshire, England, and was in her eightieth year at the time of her death. In less than a month she would have been an octogenarian. She was a daughter of the late Thos. and Mrs. Oliver, and came to Canada with her parents when a girl of fifteen. The voyage was made in a sailing vessel and required nine weeks to complete the crossing. A coal merchant in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, Thos. Oliver and his family came directly to the settlement now known as the village of Wooler, and was the guest of his brother, Richard Oliver. Later the family removed to Myersburg, where Mr. Oliver taught school for many years before coming to Campbellford. His knowledge of literature, particularly of the works of Shakespeare, was considered as final authority. Living in retirement in Campbellford, Mr. Oliver acted as correspondent for the Belleville Intelligencer for many years, and also wrote articles for many of the leading newspapers of the time. Of his four daughters, there is but one living, Mrs. Chas. Bonnycastle, Chilliwack, B.C. There were also the late Mrs. Wm. Arnott and the late Mrs. A. Grills, as well as the late Mrs. Robert Linton.

Sixty years ago, November 7, 1868, the late Mary Oliver was married, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Septimus Jones of Belleville. To them were born seven children, two of whom are now deceased. There survive three sons, Adam T., Fred, and John, all of Campbellford, and two daughters, Mrs. Stanley Neale of Campbellford and Mrs. Noel Gill of Charlestown, W. Virginia. Two sons, George and Frank, died some years ago. The only member of the family who was unable to attend the funeral service was Mrs. Noel Gill, who is ill in the Charlestown Hospital at the present time

The late Mrs. Linton was possessed of all the finer qualities which were so vital to the pioneers of the country. She was never ostentatious or conspicuous , but lived according to her code of high ideals. Her home life was marked by patience, kindness and generosity, not only within the family, but where any friend or person in need was concerned.

CHARLES REYNOLDS.

BETHANY, Jan. 30.—There passed away at his home, Main street, Bethany, on Tuesday, January 17, after a short illness, one of the village's most prominent and highly respected citizens in the person of Mr. Charles Reynolds.

Mr. Reynolds was born in Toronto in 1845, moving to Port Hope when quite a young man, where he became a member of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons and saw active service in 1866. He was also a member of the 46th Battalion band there. From Port Hope Mr. Reynolds came to Bethany with William McKeown and started a furniture and undertaking business in 1870. Later he sold out to his partner and commenced in the same business for himself in which he continued until death called him.

In 1872 Mr. Reynolds was united in marriage with Miss Catharine Johnston. To this union four children were born, Fred, Clara (Mrs. Sidney Armstrong), Emma, and May (Mrs. Clarence Buller of Brantford), all of whom, with three grandchildren, survive.

Mr. Reynolds during earlier years took an active part in the welfare of the community. He was especially interested in the band, and any of the local sports. In politics he was a staunch Conservative.

The funeral service on Thursday was largely attended, despite the inclemency of the weather. A private service was held at the home for the immediate friends by I.O.O.F. No. 308 of Millbrook, of which the deceased was a charter member.

The public service in St. Paul's Anglican church was conducted by the rector Rev. G. Fierheller. Rev. P. C. Howard of Millbrook read the Scripture lesson, found in the 15th chapter of 1st Corinthians. Mr. Fierheller chose for his text the words found in St. John Gospel, "The Master is come and calleth for thee." His message was very comforting to the mourning friends.

Interment was made in Millbrook Presbyterian Cemetery. Many beautiful floral tributes of sympathy were sent by friends of the family, several of which rested upon the casket.

Among those who attended were: F. W. Bowen, M.P. of Orono, and Dr. Charles and Mr. Fred Brereton of Toronto.

WILLIAM BERNARD O'CONNELL.

MADOC, January 30. — Recently at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh O'Connell, William Bernard O'Connell passed to his eternal reward at the age of seventeen years Although Willie was an invalid most of his life, he had learned to read and write at home, and was an intense student of many subjects, but especially of his holy religion, in which he was well versed for a boy of his years.

He was always patient and bright, always cheerful, never complaining at his lot, but bearing his trials bravely like his Master before him. So he lived, and so he died fortified by the last Sacraments of the church he loved.

His funeral at the Sacred Heart Church was largely attended, and the remains were interred in the Sacred Heart Cemetery.

THOMAS HARRIS.

There passed away, on January 23, at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. John McIntosh, in Smith Township, one of the early pioneers of this country, in the person of Thomas Harris, in his 93rd year.

The late Mr. Harris was born on the 4th day of August, 1835, in the vicinity of Cobourg, and spent the early years of his life in that district, moving to the north country and settling in the Township of Anstruther, near Apsley, about sixty years ago, where he cleared up a farm from the virgin forest and lived about fifty years.

The deceased gentleman was a life-long Methodist in religion and a Liberal in politics.

In the year 1857 he married Jane Ferguson, who, with one daughter, predeceased him about twenty years ago. He is survived by one son Almerd, of Apsley, and one daughter, Mrs. McIntosh, with whom he has resided for the past few years.

He was the last survivor of a large family of brothers and sisters, most of whom lived to a good old age, his father, the late Joseph Harris, of Gore's Landing having reached the age of 97 years.

MISS MARY KIRKPATRICK.

NORWOOD, Jan. 30.—The funeral of the late Miss Mary Kirpatrick, whose body was brought here from Bawlf, Alta, for burial, took place Monday afternoon. Deceased, who was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kirpatrick, was born in this village and resided here until a few years ago. She taught on the staff of the Public school for a number of years.

The service in the United church, of which deceased was a member for many years, was conducted by Rev. R. F. Stillman. Interment took place in the Norwood cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. E. P. Cuffe, J. Weir, W. A. Richardson, J. G. Keefer, E. C. Squire and Ira Cummings.

Deceased is survived by one brother, Mr. L. Kirkpatrick of Bawlf, Alta., who, with Mrs. Kirkpatrick accompanied the remains to Norwood.

Canadian Farmers Leave For Denmark

LONDON, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press Cable).—The party of Canadian farmers who are making a European tour under the auspices of the Canadian National Railways, concluded their visit to the British Isles yesterday and embarked for Denmark.

The inspection of prominent Danish dairying farms, and butter and cheese making plants, will feature the Canadian farmers' tour of Denmark.

MADEMOISELLE LA RUE of Paris will tell you abroad as well as in this country, Pepsodent is turned to for white, sparkling teeth.

Her Dazzling Teeth

Yours may be as white by this way dentists urge. Make free test.

RUN your tongue across your teeth and you will feel a film. A slippery coating that covers them absorbs stains and hides their dazzling whiteness. Film also invites tooth and gum troubles. You must remove this film to have lovely teeth and to keep them healthy. Ordinary dentifrices will not do it successfully.

Now, thanks to modern science, there is a new and different way to combat that film.

—Charm of youth

"that schoolgirl complexion"

The simple rule in daily skin care to follow if you seek it

THE woman of today knows one goal above all others in beauty care. And that is to keep her Youth. For she knows how tragically difficult, once lost, it is to regain.

Soap and water have become the Youth preservation rule of the world. Used properly, it is surprising what it does. The thousands of youthful women, long past their first youth, seen on every side today, prove the point beyond question.

Urged by leading skin specialists, that rule is based on keeping the skin and pores clean of age-inviting accumulations. Its whole secret is the KIND of soap one uses. A true complexion soap is meant, a soap like Palmolive, made for one purpose only; to safeguard the complexion. Others may prove too harsh.

The rule to follow if guarding a good complexion is your goal

So, largely on expert advice, more and more thousands of women turn to the balmy lather of Palmolive, used this way.

Wash your face gently with soothing Palmolive Soap, massaging the lather softly into the skin. Rinse thoroughly, first with warm water, then with cold.

If your skin is inclined to be dry, apply a touch of good cold cream—that is all. Do this regularly, and particularly in the evening.

Use powder and rouge if you wish. But never leave them on over night. They clog the pores, often enlarge them. Blackheads and disfigurements often follow. They must be washed away.

Avoid this mistake

Do not use ordinary soaps in the treatment given above. Do not think any green soap, or one represented as of olive and palm oils, is the same as Palmolive.

And it costs but 10c the cake! So little that millions let it do for their bodies what it does for their faces. Obtain a cake—then note the difference one week makes.

IT will—to a marked degree—unless you're very careful. For energy, growth, strength all come from certain food elements. If any of these vital elements are lacking in your daily diet, you'll find yourself actually undernourished in the midst of plenty.

Grape-Nuts—one of the most delicious foods—was deliberately designed to correct certain dangerous deficiencies often found in modern diet.

Grape-Nuts is made from whole wheat and malted barley. The precious elements it gives your body are dextrins, maltose and other carbohydrates for energy; protein for muscle and body-building; phosphorus for teeth and bone; iron for the blood; and the valuable Vitamin-B. And Grape-Nuts is almost instantly digested.

Eat this delicious, highly-nourishing food beginning to-morrow. All grocers have Grape-Nuts in wax-wrapped packages from which it is ready to eat with milk or cream. Grape-Nuts is one of the most inexpensive of foods—you need serve only four teaspoonfuls to each person. Such a helping costs less than one cent.

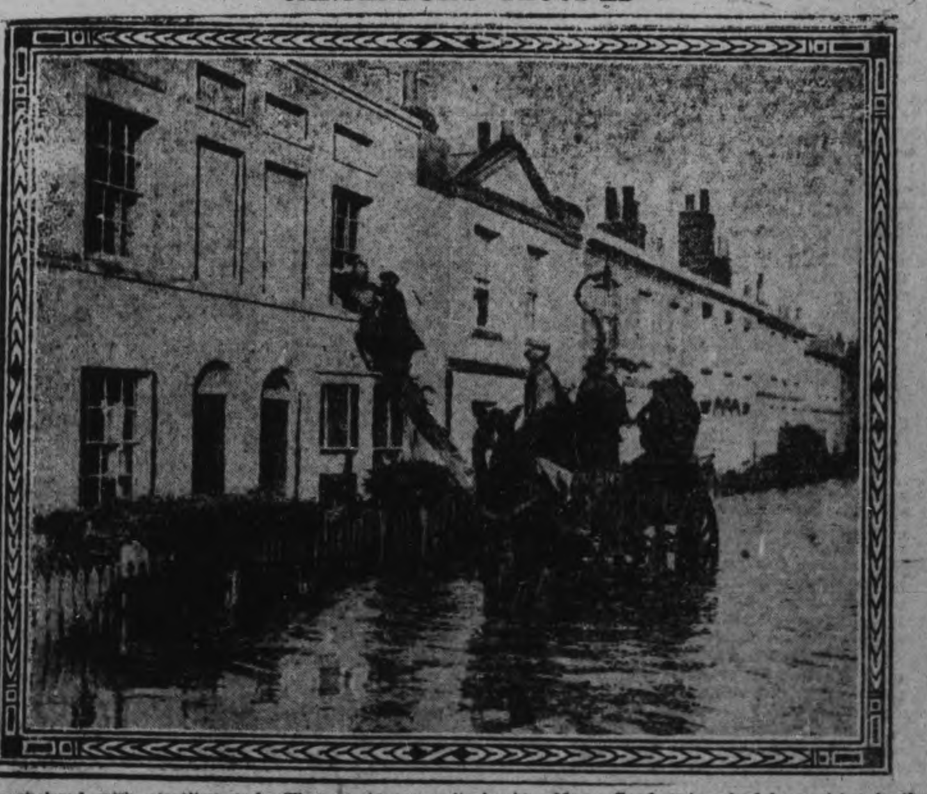
HICKMAN IMPLICATES PAL

Wm. Hickman added another murder to his kidnaping and killing case, Dec. 29, when he told of part in a hold-up on Christmas Eve in 1926, in Los Angeles, when he shot Ivy Thoms, a druggist. In his story he involved Wilby Hunt as a pal who aided him. Hunt was located, grilled and placed under arrest. Photo by telephone, upper left, shows Wilby Hunt in jail. After being named by Hickman, he told what he knew of the case of the druggist killing. The picture at the upper right, also sent by telephone, shows Mrs. Ruth Thoms, widow of the slain druggist. Mrs. Thoms identified Hunt as one of the slayers of her husband, and when she saw Hickman, the widow fainted. The lower picture shows Hunt (seated), telling Los Angeles detectives of his share in the hold-up.

CANTERBURY FLOODED



Overwhelmed with startling suddenness, from 15 to 20 persons were drowned in London when the most devastating flood in the history of the empire's metropolis swept the Thames river over its banks. Many famous buildings had their lower floors inundated and irreparable damage was done. The above photo, taken a few weeks ago, when the flood waters had been rising in the suburban areas, shows St. Peter's lane, Canterbury. Provisions are being handed in through bedroom windows.

Can't Talk To Wife, Too Cross and Nervous

"Even my husband couldn't talk to me, I was so cross and nervous. Vinol has made me a different and happy woman."—Mrs. N. McCall.

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. McDermid & Jury, Druggists, E. L. Payne, McDermid Drug Company.

ROMAN RELICS NEAR COLOGNE

Still in excellent condition, a system of concrete pipes, which had been installed by the Romans, has been found near Cologne, Germany. The system was installed about 80 A.D. to supply water from the Eiffel Mountains to Colonia Agrippa—the present Cologne.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, speaking at the Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral, yesterday, took his text from the Epistle to the Romans, 13: 8-10. "Love, therefore, is the fulfilling of the law."

"Love is the bond that unites us with God," said the Bishop. "He has loved us with an infinite love." The most trivial actions of the day may be directed towards God's glory, by making an offering of them for that intention. The normal life is one filled with love of God and everything should be subordinated to the ultimate object of furthering God's honor and glory in this life and sharing with Him the kingdom of His love in the next.

The man who commits mortal sin severs himself from the Divine Love and indicates his preference for hell rather than heaven, while he who commits venial sin goes as far as he can in his temptation of God, while trying to remain in His favor to a certain extent. He is willing to offend his Creator for the sake of temporary pleasure or indulgence.

In loving God, His children are fulfilling the first and greatest commandment, but Christ Himself gave a new and second commandment, when He said: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," superseding the old command to demand an eye for an eye. In pagan annals, Christians were noted for their love for one another.

The love inspired for a fellow-creature is caused by the good that is in him, or the fancied good. None, not even the greatest sinner, pursues evil for itself, but rather for some fancied good that he thinks may come to him. The will of man is attracted by good, either real or imaginary. There is nothing that will content the soul of man other than Almighty God Himself. Theologians say that hell can offer no greater torment than the realization by the lost soul that it is shut off forever from communion with the Everlasting God. The love of God is not swamped by sentimentality. It is a solemn judgment of the intellect that places the creator above everything else. And so the love of one's neighbor puts the well-being of that neighbor, no matter what differences in religion may exist, above considerations of a merely selfish nature.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

Bible Sunday was observed in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Sunday morning by an address by Rev. Mr. Pinnock representing the Upper Canada Bible Society, who gave impressive illustrations of the power of the Scriptures to turn heathens to Christ. One African native, nearly one hundred years of age, who had simply been taught isolated but important passages of Scripture, so that he learned them by heart, became a devout Christian through feeding spiritually on these passages.

The case of a well educated Mohammedan was given, who resisted all efforts to convince him, through discussion, of the deity of Christ. However, through being given a copy of the Scriptures in Arabic which he read carefully for months, his doubts were removed and he became a professing Christian. Convincing evidence was given by the speaker to show the power of the Scriptures to transform the lives of the heathen.

This week an every-member canvas of the members of the congregation will be made in the interests of the congregation under the auspices of the session and the Board of Management. The members of the Women's Missionary Society are taking part in the canvass this week for funds for the Bible Society.

LISTEN! SKINNY FOLKS WHY NOT PUT ON FLESH WHERE FLESH IS NEEDED

Tens of thousand of exceedingly thin men and women have put on good healthy flesh with McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets—and put it on where it was most needed.

There's nothing in McCoy's that can hurt you—They will not only help you to take on weight you need, but will make you stronger, more energetic and vigorous.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets or 2 one dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

BOOSTER CAMPAIGN IS GREAT SUCCESS

Norwood Fair Board Deficit Wiped Out and Surplus Created.

NORWOOD, Jan. 30.—At a meeting of the board of directors of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society, held in Norwood recently, a resolution was moved by Col. R. E. Birdsall, seconded by G. J. Elmhirst, that a hearty vote of thanks be given to the Norwood Register, and also to the canvassers and all, who by their contributions, helped to make the Booster Club campaign a success.

The Booster Club was started last November. The object of it was to raise funds to provide for the society's deficit which resulted from the rainy weather last Fair day. It was calculated that if 150 persons would contribute $5 each, the society would then be in a good financial position. As a result of the campaign, the secretary reported, when all subscriptions are in, the society will have a balance in the neighborhood of $500.

A strong committee has been appointed to work out plans for the Diamond Jubilee Fair in the fall of this year. The following are the members of this committee: William Thompson, president; J. E. Roxburgh, secretary; G. A. Brethen, W. A. Richardson, Alex. Kempt, D. B. Cutcliffe, G. Elmhirst, F. E. Birdsall, W. Montgomery, W. T. Curtis, John Scott, James Hawthorne, Frank Breckenridge.

GUESS HIS BUSINESS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Police here believe that Joseph Williams, former Connecticut hotel man, had serious intentions of quitting that business for something more exciting. Detectives who followed him to his room found 2,000 keys, two guns, 100 bullets, a blackjack, brass knuckles, motor number dies, 25 dresses and six cameras.

The Great Adventure

THIS year, again, five hundred Peterborough youngsters will stride gallantly forth to meet and conquer the threatening ogre of living expenses.

Without experience, with few set preferences in merchandise—and with enthusiasm as their only ally—they will demand from the merchants of Peterborough the inevitable requisites of home-making.

Two hundred and fifty boys will set off for two hundred and fifty jobs with high purpose and renewed determination.

Two hundred and fifty girls, wondering a little, will plan two hundred and fifty homes . . . . and seven hundred and fifty meals a day.

Together, they will excitedly ponder the spending of thousands of dollars.

What kitchen utensils? What furniture? Which curtains? The selection of a rug becomes a problem of infinite dimensions. The buying of a vacuum cleaner is a great adventure! Silverware. Linen. China. Glassware. New food products to meet their divergent tastes . . . . which they stoutly maintain are exactly alike!

Young hopefuls. More alert than any generation the world has ever produced. A generation of readers, trained to recognize advertising as a source of information and a guide to values.

They want two hundred and fifty talking machines . . . . pianos . . . . radios . . . . cars. Some will be able to buy them now. The rest will choose them now.

During this year, the first of wedded life, advertising will give them established preferences in merchandise and in places where they buy it. Familiar store names will spring to their lips . . . . laying the foundation for the buying habits of a lifetime. Next year they will be added to those other thousands who patronize advertising stores as a matter of course.

And The Peterborough Examiner, supreme in its field, is the only medium by which Peterborough merchants can reach these young people just starting The Great Adventure.

THE TAX ON CIGARETTES.

The evidence offered before the Tariff Advisory Board as to why the excise on cigarettes should be materially reduced has been followed by a recommendation to the same effect in the final report of the commission which conducted the customs inquiry.

It is believed that the Government will be sufficiently impressed to put the recommended slash into effect, although nothing definitely will be known until Mr. Robb brings down his Budget proposals.

The present tax is undoubtedly too high, and a great incentive to smuggling on a large scale, especially in border cities.

When it is realized that the taxation on Canadian cigarettes is more than the consumer across the border pays for his supply, the need of revision becomes evident.

The Canadian smoker is hit very heavily both in his tobacco and in the matches he uses, and it is felt that the Government will recognize the desirability of affording some measure of relief, especially as in so doing it can check smuggling, assist the Canadian manufacturers and help the Canadian growers of tobacco.

The new Budget will be a disappointment to many people if it does not include a cut in the excise on tobacco, bringing the tax down to the United States level.

SYMBOLS OF OFFICE.

The Warden of Middlesex County, according to a proposal now being considered, may be provided with robes of office.

While some people may question the propriety of such trappings in a land where Jack is supposed to be as good as his master, there is a good deal to be said for a system that accentuates the honour and dignity of high municipal positions.

There is no particular reason why Mayors in such cities as our own should not wear some of the symbols of office that for many years have marked similar positions in the Motherland—indeed, the adoption of such distinctive regalia for our chief magistrates might be a wise step, inasmuch as it would serve to call attention to the fact that it is a very high honour to be chosen as head of the Muncipal Council, and that the occupant of such a position commands the respect and obedience of the citizens generally.

Of course, these things should be kept in mind even without any such visible reminders as official chains and robes, but there is not much doubt of the effectiveness of these investments in adding to the dignity and impressiveness of the position they mark.

More than once the matter has been broached in Peterborough without, it must be admitted, causing the slightest ripple on the placid municipal voters.

MORE RECREATIONAL FACILITIES.

The plan by which the city authorities are arranging for the flooding of rinks in various parts of the city where groups of young people are sufficiently interested to make the preliminary preparations is one that will meet with approval.

These new opportunities for skating are additional to those provided by the city's own rinks, which are, of course, taken care and looked after under the supervision of the Council.

The civic rinks will be maintained as usual, but in order to ensure facilities for healthful recreation in all the different sections of Peterborough it has been arranged to have other places suitable for skating flooded by the Fire Department, a plan that should provide every child with a close-at-hand chance to indulge in exercise that is both enjoyable and from a health viewpoint profitable.

It is becoming more and more recognized that communities which see to it that ample opportunities for healthful recreation are provided suffer less from ill-health and juvenile delinquency than other centres which regard facilities for sport as of minor importance.

Peterborough is making sound progress as a city of the first mentioned class, and the present Council, The Examiner feels assured, will be found sympathetic toward any reasonable policy tending to give citizens more opportunity for exercise and recreation.

PROTECTION BEST POLICY.

The conference between Victoria County and Toronto anglers in regard to ways and means of protecting game fish disclosed a difference of opinion as to the length of the open season for bass and maskinonge that was indicative of a similar variance throughout the Province.

While Victoria fishermen disputed the wisdom of extending the closed season until July 1st, particularly in the case of maskinonge, their Toronto visitors on the whole supported the Government in the change made last year.

Undoubtedly the shorter season is a hardship on the proprietors of summer hotels, and on guides and all other people who derive income from the tourist traffic.

The summer hotel season is none too long at the best, and when two weeks are chopped off at the beginning there is an appreciable loss of revenue.

On the other hand, however, there is the certainty that opportunities for fishing bring the majority of tourists into this district, and that if the fish are not protected and conserved the time is not far distant when this section will be off the map so far as its attraction for anglers is concerned.

If the extension of the closed season effectually protects the game fish until their spawning is over, as is claimed, the authorities are justified in adhering to the policy adopted last year, and all good sportsmen will readily conform with the law.

CANADA NEEDS PEOPLE.

In one of the numerous addresses that he has been delivering lately, the Hon. R. B. Bennett, the Conservative party's new leader, declared that more population represents one of Canada's greatest needs.

Mr. Bennett's opinion is endorsed by Mr. Creighton Hill, an associate of the Babson statistical organization, who, in a speech before the Toronto Rotary Club, makes this statement:

"With an area larger than the United States and a population only one-tenth as great, the day is at hand when man power, applied to the tremendous natural resources of the Dominion, will bring untold wealth and prosperity to every corner of Canada."

Mr. Hill said also that in the face of a slight downward trend of business conditions in the United States, Canada's prosperity is definitely pointed upward for 1928. He believes this country is in a position to maintain an independent prosperity throughout the present year. By an "independent prosperity," Mr. Hill apparently means one that develops neither strength nor weakness from the American situation, no matter what it may happen to be.

Every experienced business observer who visits us seems to be of the same opinion as regards Canada's future. In practically all cases, however, the necessity of getting more people into the country in order to assist in the development of our vast fund of natural resources, is stressed. The situation is that we have the wealth here, but we lack sufficient people to get it out of the ground, in one form or another. This is true principally of agriculture, of course, but it applies in other directions as well. Canada's farm wealth has made great strides in recent years, due to the fertility of our soil, the natural faculty of our people for growing quality crops and the development of better marketing systems. Yet, with all our progress, we have only made a start in an agricultural way. Millions of acres, particularly in the West, await development. Millions of acres have never felt the touch of the plough, and much of this land is among the finest farming soil to be found anywhere in the world.

We need people to till these empty acres, to people these vast spaces, to extract from the practically illimitable lands with which Nature has provided us, the riches they contain. Canada needs agriculturists, more than any other class.

This does not mean, however, that our immigration should be confined to those trained in farming in their native lands. Many of the Dominion's most successful farmers are men who have come here with little or no experience of country life. But they were willing to learn and to pioneer and to undergo hardships, and they have registered progress. What these men—and these women—have done, others can do. It is not easy, but the people who accomplish worth-while things in this world are not looking for easy things. The harder the task, the better they like it, for the rewards that come with success are always sweeter when the job of winning them has been hard.

Canada's population gains during the last half century have been inadequate. We must frankly admit this. There have been times when newcomers seemed to pour in at a very satisfactory rate, but these periods have not come with sufficient frequency. Following the close of the Great War it was hoped, and generally expected, that several millions of people would flock to this country from battle-torn Europe. A good many have come, it is true, but their number has been disappointing. Another disturbing feature is that Australia and New Zealand have attracted a large number of settlers from the British Isles who, one would have thought, might naturally have turned to Canada with its much shorter distance away from home.

Perhaps we have been too strict in our immigration regulations. Perhaps, also, we have not taken sufficient pains to let the people of the Old World know what Canada has to offer and how anxious this country is to attract new citizens. In any event, no matter where the blame may be placed, the fact remains that the immigration stream has been anything but a raging torrent. Certainly there has been no ground for the setting up of anything resembling the American quota law, although such a course has actually been suggested by persons in this country who look upon every "foreigner" with suspicion, and seek to raise a wall over which but few could climb.

Note what Mr. Hill told Toronto Rotarians: "The day is at hand when man power, applied to the tremendous natural resources of the Dominion, will bring untold wealth and prosperity to every corner of Canada." We've the area and the goods, but we need more people. Canada should go after them in 1928.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

With the Peterborough bonspiel to open tomorrow the curlers will come into their own.

The next problem is, how some members of Parliament are going to be able to say in 40 minutes all they want about Canada's legation to Japan.

The withdrawal of the 40-ounce bottle of liquor by the Ontario Control Board should be applauded in quarters where the Board usually receives nothing but criticism.

Some of the recommendations made by the Customs Inquiry Commission have already been acted upon, and most of the others undoubtedly should be and will be.

The Peterborough Seniors, after a hard fight against hopeless odds, have retired for the season. It should be remembered that they gave their best.

An English writer declares that one lesson of 1927 is that the majority of women possess legs that should be kept secret. And even Big Bill Thompson, if he could forget that the writer was English, would agree that he was right.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Export bids for corn Saturday were at the highest basis yet this season, but prospective big receipts here Monday became more than a counterbalance. Meanwhile, wheat values tilted upward on account of continued dry cold weather adverse for the domestic Winter crop.

Corn closed nervous at the same as Friday's finish to ⅛ and ¼c lower; wheat unchanged to ¾c higher; oats ⅛c to ¼c up, and provisions varying from 15c decline to a rise of 2c.

Wheat trade lacked volume and prices were governed largely by reports indicative of damage to the domestic winter crop, especially late seeded wheat in Central Illinois. There was so mcelosing too of spreads between wheat and corn, with wheat being bought and corn sold. Oats displayed a firm undertone, receipts being smaller.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Export business in the Montreal grain market Saturday was reported very dull owing to the continued attitude of foreign buyers. This is attributed to the large offerings from other exporting countries at lower prices. The domestic trade in grain on spot was slow and the market was featureless.

The flour market underwent little or no change of importance. The trade in Winter wheat flour was of limited character. The offerings on spot were not large.

Butter receipts Saturday showed a falling off compared with last Saturday's receipts. Only 9 packages were received here Saturday against 27 for the same day last week. Trade as a result, was limited.

The demand for cheese was still of a limited character and prices ruled nominally unchanged. Receipts were 240 boxes.

The only importance change in the poultry trade since one week ago Saturday was the advance of 2c to 3c per pound for fresh killed turkeys. This was due to the falling off in the receipts and the increased demand for this class of stock. Supplies in other lines have also been smaller, but ample to meet all requirements and a fairly good trade was done.

Dr. Frank Crane's Daily Editorial

SINGING

By Dr. Frank Crane.

People spend a vast deal of money every year in listening to singing.

But the trouble is they simply listen to it. They are auditors and not singers.

We like to crowd the bleachers, watch baseball and football and tennis games, and we like to go to grand opera and concerts and vaudeville and hear them sing.

But the best part of singing is the reaction upon the singer himself.

We are notoriously bad singers.

We hire choirs in churches to sing for us when we ought to be singing ourselves.

Do it yourself, is the best advice in physical culture.

Let us not have so many things done for us, but do them ourselves, and we will be better off. It may be pleasant to have a masseur or a masseuse work at you, but the best form of exercise is automotive.

Get out and take a walk or play a game or do something that starts the sweat and thus improve the sewage system of the body, something that circulates the blood rapidly.

Exercise should be taken judiciously, of course, but the best form of exercise is mild exercise which you do regularly. Irregular exercise or exercise once in a while is about as good as none at all.

Many people are constantly making spurts towards physical culture, but spurts are not what we need. We require regularity.

Take any form of physical exercise, any system, for they all embrace about the same points, only adopt some system that will bring the unused muscles of the body into play.

There is no better healthful exercise than singing, provided we do the singing ourselves.

Public school teachers tell us that almost any number of youths can be taught to sing, and it is an art that we should all cultivate.

There is no better music than congregational singing.

The Germans, all of them, can sing their national hymn, and the British non-conformist congregations are vocal.

We alone are too much inclined to be mere auditors and not doers.

advocated in these cases the extreme of careful and merciful treatment, in order to work the much desired reformation which often resulted from such treatment.

Other Speakers.

Brief speeches were then made in turn by Mayor Denne, expressing his desire to assist the work in every possible way, and by H. A. Reynolds, of Toronto, who has been a member of the Commission there since its inception, about eight years ago, and who referred to the ninety-six local boards and the five hundred men and women who are acting as voluntary, unpaid helpers in every part of the province. Mr. Reynolds referred to many conditions encountered; to the similarity in the allowance given a woman with one child and an incapacitated husband and the one with two children and a husband in like disability, to cases where older children do not share in the upkeep of the home and to instance where a man dies intestate and leaves a wife who is helplessly unfamiliar with business affairs. Mr. Reynolds took occasion to refer to the humorous reports sent to the Commission by the local secretary, Mr. Dobbin, and the manner in which these are appreciated.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., spoke of the excellent manner in which the work of the Commission is carried on, and to the fact that only in two or three instances since his election has he been asked to interfere with its decisions. He had not ever done so, he said, but contrast d this with the many complaints received daily by him with regard to the working of other pieces of legislation.

W. A. Anderson, M.P.P. of Keene, expressed his willingness to help in any way and his satisfaction with the Commission, and F. H. Dobbin contributed one of his characteristically humorous and pungent speeches to the list.

Mr. Dobbin had one or two suggestions to make; one being that an "emergency ration" or interim fund be created in order to allow local boards to meet the immediate and pressing needs of women whose applications were in the hands of the Commission for consideration, a period sometimes over a month in length.

Mr. Dobbin's second suggestion was in regard to the widow with one child, whose needs form one of the burning questions coming before the Commission from time to time. From indications made by Mr. Dobbin during the many years he has served on the local Board, he has arrived at the conclusion that the widow with one child is usually a woman of between twenty-five and twenty-eight years of age, whose one child is nearly always looked after in the parental home to which she has returned, allowing her to go out and resume her former occupation of stenographer, or whatever it might happen to be. "By making an allowance in these cases, you are practically bonusing these women in competition with every other stenographer in the city," he declared.

Colonel Birdsall, who rose later to speak a few sentences, was of the contrary opinion to Mr. Dobbin, and thought that the majority of cases of widows with one child were very deserving, often in delicate health and straitened circumstances, and they should not be discriminated against in favor of widows with two children.

Miss Burry's Address.

Miss Burry rose to express her appreciation of the many kind things said about her work by Dr. Jamieson and the members, and spoke of the harmonious relations existing between her and her co-workers and the district boards.

A vote of thanks to Miss Burry was moved by Mrs. Squire of Norwood and seconded by James Abraham.

Members of the Provincial Board are Hon. Dr. Jamieson, chairman, Miss Belle Thompson of Toronto, vice-chairman, Mrs. W. F. Singer, of Toronto, H. A. Reynlods of Toronto, and Colonel T. J. Murphy of London.

of assistance to belligerents shall be a violation of neutrality leaving to private individuals freedom in ther commercal activites.

It specifies, however, that neutral states are obliged to refuse belligerents credits or loans and are forbidden to deliver to the belligerents directly or indirectly war materials. Despite this last provision, a later article provides that neutral states are "not bound . . . to prevent in their ports or waters the export or transit of war material. A numerous and detailed provisions are included in the draft concerning the activities which are allowed to belligerent ships in neutral waters. They may not use these as bases of naval operations, nor remain in a neutral harbor more than twenty-four hours; not more than three belligerent warships may crowd into one neutral harbor at one time, nor may any man-o'-war weigh anchor from a non-belligerent port less than twentyfour hours after an enemy one left it.

The PanAmerican Union in Washington would be charged under the draft convention with the appointment of an agreement "with the governments interested . . . of commissions to observe how the belligerents conform to the laws and usages of war." In addition, among the myriads of other provisions in the draft, the governing board of the union would have to meet immediately upon the declaration of war to suggest fitting measures to the American republics "to insure respect for the rest of neutrals and particularly the freedom of commerce and navigation which exists in time of peace."

By ANNE AUSTIN

For Faith, the next few days were slow, sweet, dream-filled, love-glorified. Sinking gladly into the laziness which her brief but violent illness had made necessary, she knew for almost the first time in her twenty-two years what it means to rest.

She found herself strangely content to lie almost motionless for long hours, dreaming of the child that was so miraculously to be hers and Bob's. She had lost weight alarmingly during her week in the hospital, but her almost ethereal thinness was becoming to her. She liked to look at the long slender lines of her body, at the magnolia-petal whiteness and fineness of her skin. Her brown eyes were larger and more luminous than ever, now mystic with dreams. The old quality of anxious watchfulness was gone from them, for now there was nothing to fear. Her contralto voice was low and rich, the slow, caressing voice of a woman beloved and in love.

It was sweet and infinitely restful to lie there, serenely withdrawn from the bustle of the household, yet beautifully identified with it, since it was her home. Rhoda's devotion and her amazing efficiency as cook and housekeeper proved a priceless boon to Faith during those days of her weakness.

"You're getting so you eat real well," Rhoda applauded Faith toward the end of the week. "But I'm worried abou Cherry. She doesn't ea enough to keep a sparrow a-hopping, and she's having to use twice as much rouge as she used to, to keep you from seeing how pale she is. I saw her weighing on the bathroom scales this morning and honestly, she only weighed ninety-one pounds!"

"Have you heard from Nils, Rhoda?" Faith asked, with apparent irrelevance.

"Only a note with some money in it for my singing lessons," Rhoda frowned. "It was mailed from the agricultural college he went to. I can't imagine what he's doing there, unless he's gone to consult the research department on some farm problem. He's a nut on scientific farming and pedigreed stock. Pop—my father, I mean—used to get hopping mad at him, said Nils would squander everything he'd slaved all his life to leave us, on high-faluting notions and blue ribbon stock that was liable to up and die on him and then where'd he be? Pop was old-fashi[illegible] but he did make money," s[illegible]orried. Then her babyish little pink mouth tightened grimly. "I'd like to tell that brother of mine a thing or two! He's breaking Cherry's heart, going off like that and not even writing her a line!"

"I thought you were afraid Cherry would break Nils' heart," Faith reminded her casually, but her pulse had quickened with hope that she would learn something vital from these ingenous confidences of Nils' sister.

"That was when I didn't think Cherry was in love with him," Rhoda defended her inconsistency. "I thought she was just playing with him like she's done with so many men. I read the papers during her trial, and they made her out an awful flirt," she hastened to explain as Faith flushed warningly. "Now I don't believe she was half as bad as they made out, and I know she's just sick over the way Nils is treating her. I've a good notion to write Nils and give him a piece of my mind."

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND FLOPPY'S SLED.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Among the other presents which Floppy Twistytail, the little boy pig, found in his stocking, was a jolly red sled. Of course I don't exactly mean the sled in Floppy's stocking, but it was close by, which is almost the same thing.

"Oh, what a dandy sled!" squealed Floppy when he had slid down the stair banister railing that wonderful morning. "Just what I wanted!"

Surely enough, painted across the top of the sled, in blue letters was the name

UNCLE WIGGILY

"Is that Uncle Wiggily's sled?" asked Squeakie Squealer, who was Floppy's little sister.

"No, of course not!" grunted Curly, who was Floppy's older brother. "The sled is just named after Uncle Wiggily; that's all."

"But if Uncle Wiggily wants to coast down hill on my sled he can," squealed Floppy, who was very kind and polite. "'Cause I like Uncle Wiggily, I do."

Well, so that's how Floppy received for Christmas a sled named Uncle Wiggily, just as other animal boys and girls in Wood Land were given sleds named Raver and Prancer or Comet or things like that. Floppy had jolly good fun with his new sled on the snowy hill, and almost every other boy or girl animal wanted a ride on it because it was named after Uncle Wiggily.

"It's the fastest sled on the hill!" Floppy boasted more than once, and so it seemed, for "Uncle Wiggily," by which I mean the sled, coasted down very swiftly indeed.

But one day, toward the end of the year when the animal boys and girls were getting their last rides for 1927, something happened. Floppy left his sled alone for a moment at the top of the hill while he took part in a friendly little snowball fight with some other boys. And when the snowball fight was over Floppy's sled was gone.

"Who took my sled?" he squealed, thinking some of his chums might have hidden it for a joke. But none of them had and the sled was no where to be found. And there was a good reason for that.

For while Floppy was in the snowball fight, paying no attention to his sled, the Bob Cat, with his silly little tail, sneaked up the coasting hill, and, seeing Floppy's sled, the Bob Cat whispered:

"Ha! That's Uncle Wiggily's coaster! It must be, for it has his name on it. Now I know what I'll do. I'll take Uncle Wiggily's sled away and hide it. He'll come looking for it, for he can see, by the sled marks in the snow, which way I drag it. I'll hide, with the sled, behind a bush, and when that rabbit comes along I'll bite his ears!"

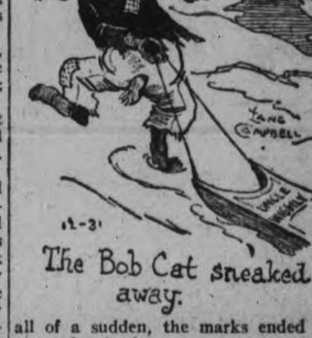
So the Bob Cat sneaked away with Floppy's sled, unseen by any of the children. And when Floppy missed his sled, after the snowball fight, he raised a loud and sorrowful cry. Uncle Wiggily who was hopping around to get ready for the New Year's parade, heard the piggy's shouts.

"What's the matter, Floppy?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Somebody took my Christmas sled!" howled Floppy.

"Well, I'll help you find it," kindly offered the bunny uncle. "Here, your sled was taken off this way," and Uncle Wiggily pointed to the runner marks in the snow, just as the Bob Cat had said.

"We'll go with you and help find Floppy's sled!" offered Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow and many other animal boys. So they traced the sled along, by the marks in the snow until, all of a sudden, the marks ended at a sassafras bush.



The Bob Cat sneaked away.

"The sled must be in there!" barked Jackie.

"Yes, but some one is there on the sled," said Uncle Wiggily, catching sight of the Bob Cat, who thought himself well hid. "It's one of the Bad Chaps!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Come on, boys! Snowball him!" So Floppy, Jackie, Peetie and all the others threw hard snowballs at the Bob Cat, knocking him off the sled and head over heels down the hill into a snowbank.

"Oh, wow!" howled the Bob Cat, his mouth full of snow. "I guess I made a mistake! That wasn't Uncle Wiggily's sled though it had his name."

"Ha! Ha!" chuckled the bunny uncle. "Yes, you made a big mistake!"

Away ran the Bob Cat, Floppy took his sled and coasted until it was time to go home and watch the Old Year out and the New Year in, and Uncle Wiggily wished everybody the happiest kind of a time. And so I wish all of you a Happy New Year.

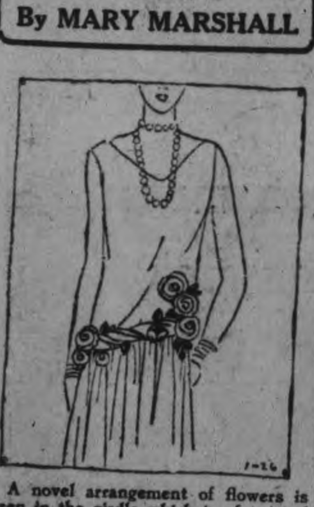
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



A novel arrangement of flowers is seen in the girdle which is of twisted material with the roses intertwined and three large blossoms extending upward at the left side.

The belt or girdle of present-day clothes usually has no structural importance at all. It is there for decorative purposes entirely. It is not there to hold the skirt on or to keep the bodice down or to hide a tightly drawn underbelt—or to hold in the fullness of the gown. And there are almost as many frocks still made without any definite girdle or belt as ever.

The tunics and over-blouses are quite long in the newest frocks and any drawing up of the narrow belt that encircles many of these would produce a bulging effect at the back that would be disastrous to smartness. So the fledglings who have been inclined to pull in their belts recently will have to give up this trick or forego the new long tunics. There are, to be sure, afternoon and evening frocks with bodices cut so as to reveal the curving contours of the waistline and some of these are belted, but the belt is never drawn tighter than the bodice above it.

Scarfs of the square or long sort are used quite a bit at present as girdles for sweaters and sports jumpers. Sometimes two matching figured squares folded diagonally are used—one across the shoulders knotted at the right side and another folded in the same way and drawn around a somewhat lowered waistline and knotted on the left hip.

NEW CURTAINS

In curtaining windows for winter, remember that straight curtains without valance add height and dignity to a room while valances are best for narrow, long windows.

MONDAY, JANUARY 30, 1928.

Again the stars mingle good and evil influences, according to astrologers, who advise caution in all important matters.

This is an auspicious day for attending to financial affairs, making for wise investments and conservative policies.

Banks and bankers continue under a rule of the stars that encouraged expansion and development which absorbs many activities.

The stars incline toward hasty judgment in business problems and it is wise not to make any serious decision.

Under this sway the stock market may be exceedingly alluring and deceptive. It is well for women to avoid speculation.

The rule is a threatening one where romance is concerned and it is well for women to be wary of suitors while this configuration prevails.

There will be much romance wooing in 1928, but older folk should beware of the fooling with Cupid.

Astrologers foretell for women in the forties a tendency to seek excitement and diversion in coquetry, which will be most unfortunate.

Writers should make the best of this direction of the stars which seems to promise that a few original ideas may be captured.

Beauty seekers are admonished to find loveliness through natural methods and to remember that the mind's charms should be cultivated.

The seers prophesy that America is to set new fashions in clothing as well as in modes of domestic architecture.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have small vexations in the coming year, but they should master fate.

Children born on this day probably will be patient students and successful in the learned professions. They may not care for business and are likely to be poor financiers.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 31, 1928.

It is a sway under which to seek promotion from long, tiresome positions and increase of salaries.

Those who desire employment should make the most of the morning hours which should be especially favorable to brain-workers.

While there will be much traveling under this direction of the stars it is well not to start on an ocean voyage today.

Severe storms are foretold for the next few days when there may be much hardship in big cities and even wrecks at sea.

The opening of new shops will make fortunes in financial centers where banks are to expand unde this planetary government.

Warning is given that crime will flourish, especially on the Pacific coast and in large eastern cities.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a happy year. Favorable changes and money are indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be most successful through life. Their stars incline toward buyin and selling. Many novelists are born under this si n.

Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, January 22

Sunday—Breakfast French omelet, two or three strips of bacon, waffle, stewed raisins. Lunch *Peanut butter soup, combination salad (beets, tomatoes, celery, raw cabbage). Dinner Baked chicken or rabbit, cooked lettuce, squash, salad of cold cooked asparagus (canned), ice-cream.

Monday—Breakfast Cottage cheese, Melba toast, sliced pineapple. Lunch Baking powder biscuits, string beans, head lettuce. Dinner Broiled steak, spinach, baked ground beets, lettuce, McCoy salad, cup custard (recipe given January 7.

Tuesday—Breakfast Eggs poached in milk, Melba toast, stewed figs. Lunch Mashed pumpkin, cooked turnip tops, salad of shredded raw cabbage. Dinner. Roast mutton, cooked turnips, stewed tomatoes, salad of celery and lettuce, Jello or Jell-Well.

Wednesday — Breakfast Oatmeal with butter or milk, Melba toast. Lunch Buttered vegetables (diced carrots and beets), sliced cucumbers. Dinner Vegetable soup, boiled fresh beef tongue, cooked celery, spinach, salad of sliced tomatoes, pear sauce.

Thursday—Breakfast Coddled eggs, re-toasted shredded wheat biscuit, stewed prunes. Lunch Potato soup, cooked beet tops, raw celery. Dinner Roast pork, string beans, baked ground beets, salad of raw spinach leaves, baked apple.

Friday—Breakfast Re-toasted breakfast food with milk or cream, stewed apricots. Lunch Baked squash, cooked lettuce, asparagus. Dinner Tomato bouillon, baked sea bass, cooked spinach, oyster plant, salad of sliced tomatoes, Jello or Jell-Well, no cream.

Saturday—Breakfast Baked eggs, crisp bacon, Melba toast, stewed peaches. Lunch Steamed rice, string beans, salad of grated raw carrots. Dinner Vegetable soup, Salisbury steak, cooked okra, combination salad of tomatoes, celery and string beans, pineapple whip.

*Peanut Butter Soup: Dice three small carrots and cook in sufficient water with one cupful of chopped celery and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley. When vegetables are tender, and water has cooked down to a small amount, add six cups of hot milk and one-half cup of peanut butter. Blend all ingredients thoroughly and serve immediately.

To get best results this soup must not be allowed to stand for any length of time before serving, so do not add the milk and peanut butter until the to boil.

Questions and Answers.

Question—Mrs. A. S. asks "Will you kindly advise what to give my children as a tonic after whooping cough? Also, is it a bad sign when a child's finger- and toe-nails grow very slowly?"

Answer Tonics are only stimulants and should not be given to children. In recovering from whooping cough it is necessary to take a carefully balanced diet and to increase exercises each day in order to regain lost strength. The slow growing of finger- and toe-nails is because of a lack of organic minerals which go to make up the composition of the nails, bone, hair and teeth.

Question—Mrs. J. K. L. asks "Is dried beef a wholesome food—that is—to be substituted when fresh meat is not available?"

Answer: Yes, dried beef is a good food if prepared properly. It should be boiled in two or more waters, and seasoned only with a little butter as eaten; never flavor it with a flour sauce, which is the customary way of "spoiling" it as a wholesome food.

Question—Marjorie O'B. asks "Will massaging the legs every night with hot olive oil tend to fatten them? Would the oil increase the growth of hair on the legs?"

Answer Very little can be done to correct the shape of the body through massage. The thighs can be developed to some extent through exercise, but the calves of the legs do not respond as ready and usually become thinner and the muscles more bunchy through exercise. Very little oil is absorbed through the skin, and even when it is absorbed it does not remain in that part but is taken up by the blood or lymphatics. If the skin becomes healthier by massage there is more liability that the hair will grow longer. The oil has nothing to do with this.

Hints on Etiquette

1. Should a hostess try to provide elaborate "company" fare for house guests?
2. What should she do?
3. If the hostess is reducing, what should she be careful to avoid doing?

The Answers.

1. No.
2. Just set a simple but good table.
3. She should prepare more nourishing things for her guests and not force her diet on them.

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

THIS QUEER OLD WORLD

This queer old world means well, I guess,
But it never gets things straight.
It puts a jade in a silken dress,
But it makes the good girl wait.
A genius works in a basement dim
Till he makes the wheels go 'round,
But it gives its millions not to him
But the man who the genius found.

This queer old world means well, perhaps,
But its fingers all are thumbs,
It loves to vote for the stupid chaps
And yell when the taxbill comes.
If an honest man it should chance to choose
To sit at the table's head,
The honest fellow will get his dues,
But he gets them when he's dead.

This queer old world means well, no doubt,
But the right won't always win,
For it often kicks the good man out
While it keeps the bad man in.
This queer old world is a problem. Yet
When its failings we discuss,
When we tell its faults, let us not forget
That this queer old world is us.

Keep Baby's Woollens Soft and Unshrunken

Baby's skin — as sensitive as a rose petal! The slightest roughness or binding of clothes irritates it — makes baby unaccountably cross.

His woollens will shrink and mat if you rub them with harsh alkali laden soaps.

But with Lux there is no rubbing, no injurious alkali.

And so for baby's sake give all his little clothes, from woollens to diapers, Lux Care—and keep baby happy.

GENERAL CONTEST RULES
How to Enter

1. The contest is open to everyone except:
   (a) Employees of The Peterborough Examiner, Ltd., or their immediate family.
   (b) Prize-winners in any similar contest who haye won any of the major prizes.

2. Additional puzzle-charts may be obtained free by writing to the Contest Department or by calling at The Examiner Office.

3. Every figure in the puzzle is complete and entirely free from tricks or illusions. If any contestant is in doubt about any of the figures, send in the chart with the figures marked and the Contest Department will gladly give a ruling on the figure.

4. When you have solved the puzzle, fill in completely the solution blank, which must be accompanied by a remittance for at least a six months' subscription at the regular rates to The Evening Examiner. (See subscription rates.) See also the prize-list and note how the value of your prize is increased by paying for a year's subscription and by getting subscriptions from your friends. Renewal subscriptions, or subscriptions in arrears, if paid during contest period, count the same as new subscriptions and will be extended from the present expiry date, but not more than $15.00 will be received on any one solution or subscription.

5. In order that subscribers who pay carrier boys weekly may participate in this contest, books of tickets containing 22 weekly tickets for $3.00, or 44 for $6.00, will be sold. These remittances must be made direct to the Contest Department with your solution. Otherwise it cannot be registered. Each ticket is valued at 15c and will be redeemed from the carrier boy at that price.

6. Readers who give their subscription to some other contestant and later want to send in an answer themselves, may do so providing they fill in the coupon, giving the name of the person they paid their subscription to and the amount paid. No further payment is necessary.

7. The contest will close on March 15, 1928, but send in your solution as soon as possible as we are offering special prizes for the first correct solutions. (See full details under "Special Prizes.") There is nothing gained by holding back your answer once you have solved the puzzle, as a contestant may make several remittances on any answer sent in while the contest lasts up to a total amount of $15.00.

8. Contestants may send in a different answer to the puzzle with each remittance, but if one of your answers is correct the money sent in on your other answers will not increase the total value of your prize, and not more than one regular prize will be paid to one family.

9. Everyone has an equal chance. You can win the first prize and extra cash for only a six months' subscription, but note how the value of the first five prizes increases if you send in more money. Aim to win the maximum Grand Prize. The Evening Examiner is now recognized as the leading daily in Peterborough district and surrounding counties and no difficulty should be found in getting your friends or neighbors to subscribe for it.

10. Contestants who remit by mail or pay at the office should see that these remittances and answers are made on a proper contest coupon to ensure them reaching the Contest Department.

11. If the correct answer is not sent in by any contestant the prizes will be awarded for the nearest correct solutions. In the event of a tie a second puzzle will be presented which will be as practicable and solvable as the first. Only those tieing will be permitted to solve the second puzzle. Should two or more persons be tied in the second puzzle the prizes will be divided equally among those tieing. No cash will be accepted on the second puzzle.

12. In entering the contest, contestants agree to abide by the rules of the contest and to accept the decision of the judges as final. The Contest Department reserve the right to alter and amend its rules if necessary for the protection of contestants or The Peterborough Examiner. It also reserves the right to refund any subscriptions and to disqualify any contestants whom they consider should not be in the contest. Contestants are assured of the same impartial treatment which characterizes The Examiner in all its dealings.

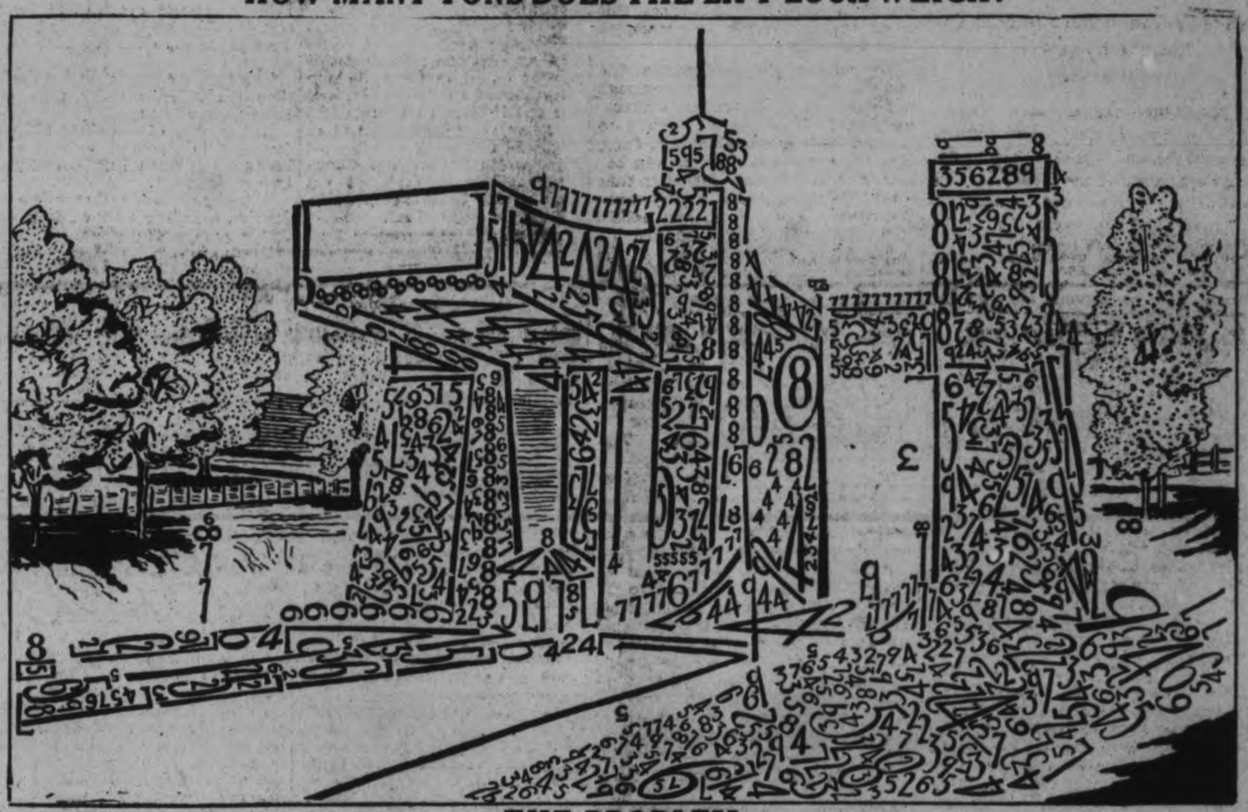
HOW MANY TONS DOES THE LIFT LOCK WEIGH?



THE PROBLEM

The problem is to add together all the figures shown above, which, when added together, represent the total number of tons that the Lift Lock weighs.

The puzzle is entirely free from tricks or illusions, every figure is complete and stands alone. The figures range from two to nine. There are no ones (1) or ciphers (0) in the puzzle. The sixes are curved, while the stem of the nines are straight.

We wish it clearly understood that every figure can be plainly seen. There is nothing hidden in the trees or shadows, but the problem of adding these is a real test of accuracy.

Remember, each figure is added separately. For example, 9777 is counted 9 plus 7 plus 7 plus 7, or, in other words, simply add them as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column.

REMEMBER, NO ONE KNOWS THE CORRECT ANSWER UNTIL THE CONTEST CLOSES

To ensure this we had Mr. E. M. Elliott, County Treasurer, and Mr. Frank Adams, City Treasurer, each erase one or more figures from the original drawing, which they carefully noted and sealed in an envelope and gave to the manager of the Royal Bank for safe keeping until the contest closes.

TWENTY-SIXTH TO FIFTIETH PRIZES—$5.00 in cash each.

SPECIAL PRIZES—While the contest will not close until March 15, we are offering Five Special Prizes for the first five correct, or nearest correct, solutions secured by us. The prizes will be: First Prize, $8.00; Second Prize, $7.00; Third Prize, $5.00; Fourth Prize, $3.00; Fifth Prize, $2.00.

A TIP ON HOW TO WIN

Take a pencil and put down the numbers as you stroke them out, then add them up. Some suggest that you cut the chart into dozens of pieces, then check them from all sides; or if you wish, try blotting them out with colored ink or pencil. Others think the best way is to pick out all the twos, threes, fours, etc. Any they miss the first time they find later. Or suppose you try taking a combination of figures which, when added together, makes a total of ten. For example, 5 and 3 and 2 make 10. Tens are not only easily added together, but there is less danger of making a mistake.

Important Points to Remember

1. Everyone has the same opportunity. A person sending in only $3.00 in subscriptions has the same chance of winning the first prize as a person sending in more money. The advantage of sending in more money is to increase the value of the first five prizes.

2. This is a contest for Central Ontario district, or to any subscriber of The Examiner, no matter where he resides.

3. Don't forget to answer all the necessary questions on the solution blank.

4. If you collect a subscription from a friend or neighbour, that person can also submit an answer to the puzzle without further payment.

THE JUDGES

In order that each Contestant shall have fair and impartial treatment, we have arranged with Mr. Roland Denne, Mayor of the City and Alderman Nagel Phelan to act as judges for the contest. Any complaints in this connection will be referred to these judges whose decision will be absolutely final.

SURPRISE PARTY AT MILLBROOK

Double Wedding Anniversary Celebrated at Home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Wilson.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

MILLBROOK, Jan. 30.—A very pleasant surprise was prepared for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winslow, of Winnipeg, on Monday, January 23, when over eighty of their friends and neighbors gathered at their home west of the village to spend a social evening in honor of the twentieth anniversary of the wedding of the host and hostess, and the twenty-eighth wedding anniversary of the visitors from the West.

A warm welcome was extended to the self-invited "guests," and the hours passed happily with games, music, and dancing, an interruption that was replete with both interest and pleasure occuring when Councillor F. P. Stinson assumed the position of chairman, and Messrs. T. H. Harness and J. L. Byam conducted the respective 'brides and grooms' to a position in the midst of the company, Mrs. John Lunn playing the wedding-march meanwhile.

The chairman explained that the ever-widening circle of friends which Mr. and Mrs. Winslow have made during the years of their residence in the community had learned of the double anniversary which occurred this week, and had decided they could not let so unusual and important occasion pass without expressing, in some tangible manner, their interest and esteem.

Mr. Will Lunn then read the following address, and Messrs. John Lunn and Cecil Hubbeard, on behalf of the friends not only here but some from a distance as well, presented Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winslow with two handsomely-upholstered wicker chairs, and the younger folk, Lazelle and Wilfrid Lunn, presented Mr. and Mrs. George Winslow with a china sandwich plate and a gold locket inscribed with the three links symbolic of the principles of Oddfellowship: "Friendship, Love and Truth"—the latter gift being more particularly for the 'groom'.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winslow,
Mr. and Mrs. George Winslow,
Dear Friends:

Having learned that this is the anniversary of your twentieth, and twentieth-eighth, wedding days, and noting the fact that seldom do two brothers celebrate this important event together, we your neighbors, and a few other friends, have taken the liberty and privilege to invade your home on this occasion to extend to both couples our best wishes, and congratulations, on your successful journey through the years of married life so far.

Not caring to let this rare occasion pass unremembered, we wish to try and show in some tangible way the high esteem in which you are both held.

We ask you, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winslow, to accept these chairs, and you, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Winslow, to accept this sandwich plate and locket as tokens of gratitude. These, dear friends, are but small tokens of the kind regard in which you are held, and the wish of your friends is that both couples will be spared to celebrate your golden wedding anniversaries.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors,
Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lunn.
Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hubbeard.

Notwithstanding the surprise of the whole event, and deeply touched as the 'guests of honor' were by the kindly words and gifts both Mr. Fred, and Mrs. George Winslow, expressed appreciation and gratitude on behalf their wives and themselves, the singing of "O Canada", and "For They are Jolly, Good Fellows", bringing this feature of the evening to an appropriate close.

Supper was served by the committee in charge, and further music, social converse, and dancing completed an evening that will long be remembered as an outstanding occasion in the community.

Among those who furnished music for the gathering were Mr. and Mrs. John Lunn, and son, Wilfrid, Miss Audrey Bristow and her brother, Messrs. M. Todd, and the Rusk brothers.

The actual dates of the weddings, the anniversaries of which were being so fittingly celebrated, were for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winslow, January 22, 1908; and for Mr. and Mrs. George Winslow, January 24, 1900. Personal gifts with which the wedding couples remembered each other were a cut glass sandwich plate to the resident bride and groom, the latter giving to their western guests a dainty bon-bon dish in hand-painted design.

Vestry Meeting.

The annual vestry meeting of Saint Thomas church was held on Monday evening, with a representative gathering in attendance.

The meeting was presided over by Rev. P. C. Howard, the assistant clergyman of the parish, who is meeting very capably the heavy demands which naturally are continually arising since the needs of four churches have to be constantly cared for, the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, being prevented by illness from attending to any of the parochial duties.

The financial report of the year was presented by the treasurer, Mr. H. J. Grassett, and showed a good balance on the right side after all claims had been fully met. On motion, the report was adopted.

Reports from the various church organizations, including the A.Y.P.A. Mrs. (Rev.) P. C. Howard, president, the Sunday school, Mr. G. Fowler superintendent, the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary, Mrs. (Rev.) Canon Allen president, the Junior Auxiliary, Miss Muriel Smith superintendent, were satisfactory from every standpoint, each organization having met its financial obligations in every detail, and having had a year of successful activity, with interest and attendance well sustained.

Rev. Mr. Howard, on behalf of the rector and himself, expressed personal gratitude an appreciation of the faithful and willing assistance, and the pleasant spirit of co-operation, which had prevailed throughout the twelve months; regret at the prolonged ill health of the Rev. Canon Allen was generally, and keenly, felt, and there was a genuine desire that recovery might soon be assured. An optimistic outlook for the current year, and an earnest request for continued helpfulness and understanding, were concluding matters in the chairman's address.

The officers for 1928 are:

Rector's Warden—A. J. Fallis, ex-M.P.P.

People's Warden—J. J. Clarke.

Secretary-Treasurer—H. J. Grassett.

Vestry Clerk—T. H. Bradley.

Auditors—T. H. Collins and A. A. Needler.

Executive committee—Mrs. John Allen, Mrs. G. F. Harrington, Mrs. L. J. Morton, Mrs. C. McNeil, Mrs. H. J. Grassett, Mrs. A. J. Fallis, Miss E. Grandy, Miss M. B. Turner, B.A., Messrs. J. A. Vance, R. MAHARAJAH PLANS MARRIAGE TO AMERICAN

Sir Tukojai Rao Holkar, whom an American girl now wants to marry, burst into the news with a bang in March, 1925, as the result of a bungled murder and kidnapping plot in Bombay. At that time he was the maharajah of Indore, one of India's wealthiest states. A beautiful dancing girl, Mumtaz Begum, with whom he was infatuated, fled his court and sought the protection of a wealthy Bombay merchant, Abdul Kadir Bawla. The incensed maharajah sent a gang of cutthroats in pursuit and they caught her and disfigured her with knives. Two of the thugs were subsequently hanged, seven given life inprisonment, and the maharajah ousted from his throne and exiled, but allowed to retain an annual revenue of 800,000 rupees (roughly $228,000). The illustration shows (1) Mumtaz Begum, whose head is swathed in bandages following the murderous attack made on her by the Pathan assassins. (2) Nancy Anne Miller, of Seattle, Wash., 21-one-year-old granddaughter of an American who made a fortune in the Alaskan gold rush. She is seen with the deposed maharajah, whom she met in Paris in 1926. (3) The younger of the maharajah's two present wives. She is regarded as one of India's most beautiful princesses and is prostrated by grief over her husband's proposed third marriage.

COUNTIES COUNCIL TRANSACTS MUCH IMPORTANT BUSINESS

Report of School Committee Causes Very Heated Debate.

GRANT NOT PAID.

Various Committees Report and Routine By-laws Are Passed.

COBOURG, January 28. — Thursday's session of the United Counties Council began at 2.40. Several deputations awaited the pleasure of the Council. There was one communication read and one report, that of the Schools Committee brought in. Five routine by-laws were also passed. These were to appoint auditors for the accounts of criminal justice, a committee to look after the county offices and buildings of the counties, High School Trustees, Board of Managers for the Counties House of Refuge, and finally to authorize the usual loan for current finances if and when necessary. The amount of the loan is usually set at $400,000. But this year the Council saw fit to increase the amount to $500,000. This does not mean that a loan of this proportion will be arranged. It simply makes allowance for it to be made if required before the revenue of the counties begins to come in. The initial sum is set as $2,000 or any multiple thereof, interest not to exceed six per cent.

Report Debated.

The report of the Schools Committee crossed some rather turbulent waters before it was accepted as read. The clause which caused the debate was with reference to the grant for 1926, based on the attendance for 1925, for the Cobourg Collegiate. Messrs Willmott and Thompson, the Cobourg representatives on the Council, used all their influence in trying to pass an amendment in favor of the grant, but the opposition was too strong and the matter was left as it had been before this Council session. Messrs. Giddy, Port Hope, Nelson, Percy, Thompson and Willmott, Cobourg, were the four members who debated the question with considerable animosity. Their bone of contention was whether or not a "gentleman's agreement" had been entered upon, and if such a thing were just and proper in the Council.

After the usual opening preliminaries, the first item of business was a request from J. W. Odell, Inspector of Schools, for a typewriter in order that he might comply with the requirements of the Department. This was referred to the Schools Committee.

W. H. Willmott brought in the by-laws. The first by-law appointed Col. F. D. Boggs, K.C., and M. J. Holman, Clarke, auditors of the accounts for Criminal Justice.

By the second by-law five commissioners were appointed for the registry offices and county buildings throughout the counties. For East Northumberland registry office, C. M. Finkle; for West Northumberland registry office, A. R. Willmott; for East Durham registry office, F. J. Rosevear; for West Durham registry office, W. H. Carruthers; for County Gaol, George Thompson.

The third by-law provided trustees for the various county Collegiates and High Schools: Bowmanville, J. H. H. Jury; Cobourg, Henry Fullerton; Colborne, D. W. Church; Campbellford, J. A. Loucks; Newcastle, W. E. Beeman; Port Hope, C. H. Wickett.

The fourth by-law of the series was to appoint a Board of Managers for the County House of Refuge, and to define the duties of the management.

By-law was allowed to stand as outlining the duties of the management and the Warden by virtue of his office. Charles A. Wight for Durham, and W. J. Jibb for Northumberland. were appointed.

The fifth and final by-law of the series was to provide for a loan to the extent of $400,000, with interest not to exceed 6 per cent., and in sums of $2,000 or multiples thereof. Since the Council anticipates an extensive paving program this year, there was a discussion as to whether or not the amount was sufficient. Put to a vote, the by-law was made to read $500,000.

The first person to address the Council was Rev. Dr. T. Stannage Boyle, rector of St. Peter's Church. He said he was present merely to support the request which Dr. Daly, Port Hope, was going to make in behalf of the Children's Shelter in that town. He thought it a worthy cause and deserving of the generous assistance which the Council afforded it.

Dr. Daly, superintendent of the Children's Aid, expressed his appreciation of the excellent words of Dr. Boyle. He continued to speak very highly of the County Council, and considered that there was nothing further for him to mention regarding the cause for which he appeared, save to make a formal appeal for the continuance of the usual grant. This allowance is $350.00 a month.

The matter was in the hands of the Finance Committee, but in reply to the appeal, Warden Davidson expressed his confidence that the same practice would be continued this year.

James Colson, Newcastle, agent for cement tile, began his address to the Council with a flowery deluge of big words and eloquent gestures that caused even the most uninterested to sit up and pay attention. Briefly mentioning that he had secured an order for his product from Newcastle and also one from the Department of Highways, he raised his silver-rimmed spectacles from his nose to his forehead, and read aloud his price-list. He felt sure, he said, that these prices would compare favorably and his product would also stand the test of time. The pyramids, he claimed, are built of cement, and are getting harder and more durable as time passes. With the consent of the Warden, Mr. Colson left a price-list with the clerk. In reply to questions, he stated that the tiles were thirty inches long in the smaller sizes and four feet in the larger ones. The larger sized tile were reinforced.

Rev. Dr. Boyle again addressed the Council. This time he spoke in behalf of the inmates of the House of Refuge. Briefly he related how it had been the custom to hold services in the chapel of the House, and how it was necessary for the inmates to carry the dining-room chairs up to the chapel before service and return them after. He respectfully requested that the Council give attention to the matter and, if possible, purchase the required chairs.

Rev. J. H Norton followed Rev. Dr. Boyle and endorsed his statements. He further explained that they, as a delegation, had not appeared before the Council in order that the superintendent of the House of Refuge be open to censure, but merely to add their endorsation to the appeal. He explained that the superintendent and the Ministerial Association were making a joint attempt to secure the furniture. As an added appeal, he pictured the aged and infirm inmates tottering up the long stairway, each carrying a chair in order that they might rest their weary bodies as they listened to the service.

Questioned by members of the Council, Mr Norton explained that the room in question was used as a chapel. The benches which had once been there were not in the room now. He thought that about seventy-five chairs would be required, certainly more than fifty. There were about eighty-five inmates and nearly all of them attended the Sunday afternoon services.

Mr. Nelson, of Percy, claimed to know the circumstances of the affair and spoke as being in favor of the purchase. On his motion, the matter was referred to the Board of Managers.

A deputation from the Quinte District Seed Growers' Society addressed the Council, explaining the lines along which the society functioned, and asking a grant of $100 to aid them in their work. The stated that it was their intention to put on a seed fair in Cobourg, and invited the members of the Council to attend as guests of the society. In support of their appeal for the grant, the delegates mentioned grants of $50.00 from Hastings County and the same amount from Prince Edward County.

At 4.20 p.m. permission was given the school committee to withdraw in order to deal with the application of Inspector Odell for a typewriter. This was the only matter necessary to complete their report.

At 4.25 p.m. the committee returned to the Council Chamber, and the chairman, J. M. Bygott, Campbellford, presented the report. The report recommended the payment of $52.56 to Oakville Collegiate for tuition of pupils from the United Counties. Reports from School Sections 1, 2 and 3 were received and filed. A communication from the Ontario Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association, re appointing delegates from Council, was received and filed. The report also recommended that a communication from the Oshawa Board of Education re accepting pupils there from the United Counties be received and filed.

The amount of $77.00 was recommended paid to the Peterborough Collegiate Institute for tuition of pupils from these counties, and $2,540.87 was recommended paid to Orono Continuation School for the 1926 attendance there. The application from Cobourg Collegiate for the 1926 grant, based on 1925 attendance, was not favorably considered. It was decided that no further back grants were to be paid. A matter of $139.24, claimed by the Blackstock Continuation School, as being due through an error in the Council's grant for 1925 was laid over till the June session.

The report met with the approval of the Council all but one item, that one pertaining to the Cobourg Collegiate Institute grant. A. R. Willmott, Cobourg, brought in an amendment to the clause and spoke very strongly in favor of the payment of the grant. Mr. Murphy seconded the amendment, and also spoke in its favor. W. H. Nelson, Percy, was the first member to throw a wrench into the machinery by strongly opposing the amendment. In his remarks he referred to a "gentleman's agreement" which had been made in the committee room on a previous occasion, and in this connection the name of Dr. Ferris, Cobourg, was mentioned as having been present and directly concerned with the said agreement.

Mr. Thompson, Cobourg, was the next man on his feet, and stated that he had no recollection of any such agreement having been entered into. He had been present at the committee meeting to which Nelson had referred, and had left with the impression that the grant was to be paid.

Mr. Giddy, Port Hope, claimed to have been a member of the committee in question, and very strongly agreed with Nelson of Percy. He outlined the procedure of the meeting and remembered distinctly the "gentleman's agreement" to forego the grant. He claimed that they as gentlemen ought to "stick with their agreement."

For the better part of an hour the affair was discussed with considerable heat on both sides of the house. Willmott and Thompson, both of Cobourg, for, Nelson of Percy and Giddy of Port Hope, against the amendment, were the leading figures in the debate. Every detail relative to the grant was discussed at some length, and the opinion of the Council appeared to be fairly evenly divided on the question till the vote was taken by the chairman of the Council as a committee of the whole to receive the report.

The amendment found fourteen supporters and the motion to adopt the report as brought in by the committee, unamended, was given twenty-one votes. The report was, therefore, accepted and the grant requested for the past two years still left unpaid.

W. J. Jibb, Hamilton, presented a notice of by-law re brushing of the winter roads on Rice Lake and Presqui 'Ile Bay.

Road and Bridge Report.

At the Friday session a number of reports were presented.

W. F. Elliot, general chairman of the committee, presented the report. It first recommended the installation of a culvert between Lots 34 and 35, Concession 5, in the Township of Haldimand, as petitioned by the ratepayers of the township. The report recommended that the Counties Council endorse the resolution from the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville and forward a copy to the Department of Public Highways at Toronto. This was with reference to Provincial highways only. It was recommended that the county road superintendent be authorized to attend the 14th annual convention of the county and township road superintendents and engineers to be held in Toronto February 20th and 21st. The report recommended the appointing of delegates to the Good Roads Convention to be held in Toronto on the three days, February 22, 23 and 24. The delegation was named as the Warden, the general chairman of the Road and Bridge Committee and the chairman for Durham. The endorsation of the resolution from Hastings County re heavy trucks on the roads during the rainy and wet season was recommended. The resolution will be forwarded to the Department at Toronto and will recommend more drastic measures to be taken in enforcing this road law. No action was recommended regarding the communication from the Dow Chemical Company referring to gravel roads maintenance and dust control. The payment of the account from Peterboro County re expenditure on the Wallace Point Bridge was recommended paid when rendered. It was further recommended that the change in county roads in the northern part of Cartwright and Manvers Townships be made and a resolution forwarded to the Department of Highways regarding same. The desired change is that the present county road number 17 be abandoned as such and road number 13 be taken over as a county road.

The Contingencies Committee was the next to bring in his report, and M. Wilson, as chairman, presented the recommendations. These were two in number, first, recommending that the clerk be instructed to advertise for contracts for the county printing for the next three years, and that the clerk and chairman be authorized to open the sealed tenders.

W. S. Grills presented the report of the Legislative and By-laws Committee. It recommended certain changes regarding prisoners guilty of breach of the Liquor Control Act and also that the deer season be limited to fifteen days.

The report of the Agriculture Committee, presented by its chairman, J. A. Sykes, recommended a grant of $100.00 to the Quinte Seed Growers' Association. It also recommended that F. A. Hyland and the members of the committee be appointed an advisory committee of the county and that the names of W. T. Wood and J. A. Sykes be included in the committee.

The Property Committee recommended that a new twelve-inch typewriter be furnished the Police Office. It also recommended that the Council endorse the resolution in favor of a home for the senile patients of the counties. The recommendations that certain interior decoration be done in the main lobby of the building called forth considerable discussion. Rosevear, who had been foreman of the Grand Jury, spoke of the remarks which the Honorable Justice Wright had made regarding the recommendation of the Grand Jury that some such work be done to the lobby. His Lordship had considered it a very worthy recommendation, and had heartily endorsed the idea. It is understood that the town of Cobourg is to pay half the cost, and since the county rents the building from the town, for the sum of $2,000.00 annually, there was some discussion as to whether or not Cobourg could be expected to pay a larger share. Bygott, Wight, Willmott and Thompson were the chief debaters, although before an agreement was made, the twenty - eight-year-old lease was brought into the chamber and its lengthy terms read by the clerk of the Council. It was finally decided, on motion of Bygott and W. C. Wood, to obtain estimates of the cost of redecorating the various rooms and lobby of the building and a report submitted at the June session.

This concluded the reports of committees, and W. S. Grills introduced a by-law authorizing the conveyance of a certain portion of the south half of Lot 14 in the first concession of Haldimand to James Cooney, it being the portion of the old Shelter Valley road which had been exchanged for certain of Cooney's property when a certain curve in the road was straightened. The road is officially known as county road number 23. W. J. Jibb introduced a by-law authorizing a grant of twenty dollars to the townships on Rice Lake for the brushing of the winter roads on the lake. The by-law also included the roads on Presqu'Ile Bay.

On motion of Russel Peake and W. S. Grills, it was unanimously decided to instruct the clerk to forward a letter of condolence to Mrs. Richard Edgerton and family. The late Richard Edgerton was a member of last year's Council.

C. A. Wight suggested the purchase of more lands for reforestation purposes. He had in mind a tract of two hundred acres adjoining the acreage already owned by the counties and considered that the land could be bought at a reasonable price. His motion to purchase the said land was passed with a rider attached that the price was not to exceed the average price of the lands already purchased.

Gordon Parker, Alnwick, wanted information as to the proper procedure to follow in ridding the township of an undesirable person. This person, a woman, had on different occasions been detained in the House of Refuge, but had managed to wander away. He claimed that the woman belonged to Percy Township and that Alnwick did not want to go to any expense on that account. Col. F. D. Boggs, K.C., solicitor for the Council, informed him that he might lay a charge of vagrancy against the woman and the affair would be in the hands of the police. The cost of such an action would be taken care of by the accounts for the administration of justice.

There being no further business the Council adjourned at 12.20 p.m.

REBEKAHS HOLD INSTALLATION

Havelock Lodge Makes Presentation to Member During Meeting.

DISTRICT DEPUTY ACTS

HAVELOCK, Jan. 30.—The annual installation of officers of the Dorcas Rebekah Lodge No. 98 was conducted on Thursday evening in a very able manner by District Deputy President Sister M. Marks, and Deputy Marshall Sister Milburn, of Lindsay, assisted by the local Past Noble Grands.

During the evening Mrs. (Dr.) Robert J. Gawley (nee Debra Armstrong) was presented with a hand-painted china cake plate and the following address

"Dear Sister Gawley

"We, the members of Dorcas Rebekah Lodge No. 98, wish to convey to you our hearty felicitations.

"While it is our loss to lose you from our midst, it means another's gain. As a token of our esteem we ask you to accept this small gift not for its intrinsic value but for all the good wishes it contains.

"Signed on behalf of the Dorcas Rebekah Lodge No. 98, Mrs. M. Sexsmith,
Mrs. Jessie Green."

Sister M. Marks, of Lindsay was also presented with a flower bowl by P.N.G. Sister S. Campney, as a memento of her visit to Havelock.

A LEAP YEAR DUEL.

PILISVOEROESVAR, Jan. 28. — Leap year was ushered into this town with a duel between two young maidens who had matrimonial designs on the same man. Luise Fazekas met her rival on one of the main thoroughfares. When they could not agree as to which should have the man of their choice they drew penknives and proceeded to slash away in such a convincing manner that the crowd had difficulty in stopping the combat. They were hustled off to different physicians for repairs.

HOT MUSIC SAVES LIFE.

GALESBURG, Ill., Jan. 28.—"Hot" numbers from his music roll literally saved the life of Robert Killeen, on the high road near here recently. Killeen was driving through a blizzard when his auto became marooned in a snow-bank. Fear of becoming lost in the storm caused him to remain near his car, and to ward off the intense cold he burned 30 pounds of music, sheet by sheet, before he was rescued.

PLAY STRONG DEFENSE

Senators Rally in Final Period to Win Close Victory.

MONTREAL, Que., January 30 (Canadian Press). — Frank Nighbor's shot from the blue line, late in the third period, which bounced off Hainsworth's glove into the net, gave the Ottawa Senators a 2 to 1 victory over Canadiens at the Forum here on Saturday night. It was the third defeat of the season for the fast-travelling Canucks, and it was the first time this winter that an out-of-town team has succeeded in taking the points away from the habitants on Forum ice.

Close on eleven thousand persons witnessed the struggle which saw the Senators come from behind in the final period to skate through to their victory. Manta had put the Canucks ahead in the second session when a fast passing bout with Morenz gave the sturdy French defenceman a chance in front of Connell. Soon after the start of the third and final period, Finnigan, taking advantage of lax work by the Canadien defence, following a shot by Clancy, rushed in on a loose puck in front of Hinsworth and scooped it into the net to tie the score.

With less than three minutes to go, and with both teams fighting for a break which would settle the issue, Nighbor let a long drive go from Canadiens' blue line. Hainsworth stuck out his gloved hand to catch or deflect the disc, but he played it wrongly, and the rubber struck his outstretched hand and bounded past him into the net. It was rather a lucky goal, and came as a surprise to all concerned, but to the delight of the Ottawa players and supporters.

During the remaining time, Canadiens attempted to rush matters, but in front of Connell they found the same stonewall defence which had protected the Ottawa goalie from the start.

The feature of the Ottawa victory was the strong defence put up by the Senators. The usually whirlwind Canadien combination attacks found the going difficult after they hit the Ottawa blue line. Many were the passes that went astray, that were snared by an Ottawa player or that were stopped even before they started, by the almost unbeatable guard in front of Connell.

It was an evenly-fought battle, with Hainsworth's laxity in playing Nighbor's long shot giving the visitors the edge. The Senators had a slight advantage in the scoreless first period while the Canucks were superior in the second, and turned their advantage in play into one goal. The final session was rather evenly fought, with what edge there was being conceded to the visiting sextette.

Tied With Leafs.

The Senators' victory enabled them to keep pace with the Toronto Leafs, who defeated the Black Hawks on Saturday. The Leafs and Senators are now tied with Maroons for second place. The Montreal team, however, has played two games less than either Toronto or Ottawa.

It was the second defeat in three games for the Canadiens, who previous to their defeat at the hands of the Maroons a week ago, had compiled a marvellous record, having dropped only one game in nineteen starts. The Canucks swamped Chicago here on Tuesday night and their supporters were looking forward to another streak of victories, but the Ottawa Senators put a crimp in their hopes on Saturday night.

Fifteen penalties were handed out during the fracas, all being for minor offences. In the scoreless first period seven trips were made to the penalty bench. Six was the allotment in the second period, while the Canucks rested for fourteen minutes.

Mantha's counter in the second period was scored while Gagne and Kilrea were both serving time for a minor fracas.

PLAYING GOOD HOCKEY

Irvin Rudick in The Minneapolis Tribune has the following to say concerning Bert McLeod, former Peterborough hockey player:

"Just as Ching Johnson and Taffy Abel made the Millers the dread of the old Central League with their strong defensive play, so are Big Jim Seaborn and Bert McLeod making hockey history in the Missouri city. Opposing puck carriers have found the pair almost impossible to pass and consequently, aided naturally by the strong work of Pat Byrne in the nets, have kept their goal inviolate in their last seven games, a world's record insofar as anyone in the hockey game is aware of."

OLD COUNTRY SOCCER.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 30. — Canadian Press Cable. — Teams who figure in the draw for the fifth round of the English Football Association cup competitions as a result of their victories or draws in the 4th round Saturday will be:

Bury or Manchester City; Exeter City or Blackburn Rovers; Cardiff City, Port Vale, The Wednesday, Middlesbrough, Derby County or Notts Forest, Birmingham Manchester, Huddersfield Town, Aston Villa, Stoke City, Tottenham, Hotspurs, Arsenal, Sheffield United, Leicester City.

The draw will be made to-day.

Saturday saw the departure from the competition of such fine first division teams as Everton, Oldham Athletic, Bolton Wanderers, Liverpool and Sunderland. London gets two teams, Arsenal and Tottenham Hotspus, into the next round.

The matches were played in wretched weather, though this did not seem to diminish the enthusiasm of soccer football supporters in England, because an aggregate of over four hundred thousand paid admission to see the ties. In many places the grounds were quagmires, and matches were only played on last minute decisions of the officials. Actually in many places the pitches were under water. Naturally these conditions militated against the usual dashing cup tie methods and the ball played all kinds of curious pranks in the efforts of the player to control it. In some places it is reported it actually got stuck in the mud to the discomfort of both attackers and defenders, while the task of goalkeepers called upon to stop a sphere covered with slime called for skill of the highest order.

Notwithstanding the dangerous conditions the casualty list was a remarkably small one, the most serious accident happening to Thornbell of the Blackburn Rovers team, who broke his collarbone.

LEAGUE SCORERS.

LONDON, Jan. 30. Canadian Press Cable. — The scorers in the first division games in the Scottish League were: Clyde, Young, Hood; Ardrie, Sommerville, Muir.

DEFEAT TIGERS 3-2.

BOSTON, Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press).—The Philadelphia Arrows defeated the Boston Tigers, 3 to 2, in a fast Canadian-American Hockey League game here Saturday night. The contest was rugged as well as fast, and was marked by frequent penalties. Archie Briden put the Arrows ahead in the first period and Robinson added two in the second period to put the visitors three up. Burk and Mackey scored for Boston in the closing period, the second goal coming in the final moments of play.

Record-Breaking List of Entries Entered For 1928 Davis Cup Tennis Competition

PARIS, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—The record-breaking list of entries for the 1928 Davis Cup tennis competition has been increased to 30 nations by the receipt of two additional challenges; one from Canada in the American zone, and the other from Sweden in the European zone.

The number of challenging countries now in the field for the famous trophy, to be defended this year by France for the first time, is five more than in any previous year of competition since the Davis Cup first was contested for in 1900 by England and the United States alone.

Last year there were 25 challenges, including 21 in the European and four in the American zone. This year the totals are 24 and 6.

Of the 1927 European group, France is automatically out of the preliminaries while Rumania and India have not yet challenged. These losses have been more than offset, however, by the entries of Australia, Argentina, Chile, the Phillippines, Norway and Finland.

The United States and China are the additions to the American zone contestants, which also include Japan, Mexico, Cuba and Canada.

There is still time for additional entries. The list does not close until next Tuesday. The draw is scheduled Thursday. Play will start early in the Spring, with the challenge round fixed for July 27, 28, 29.

GEORGE LOTT RETAINS TITLE

Defeats Frank Shields in Canadian Indoor Tennis Finals.

DOUBLES HOLD TITLE

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, successfully defended his title of Canadian indoor tennis champion when he defeated Frank Shields, of New York, United States' junior champion, in the final at the Montreal indoor tennis club on Saturday by scores of 6-3, 6-4 and 7-5.

A defending champion was also winner in the doubles when Jack Wright, partnered with R. N. Lafranboise, retained the title which he and Willard Crocker gained last year. The Montreal pair were victorious in an exciting five-set match against Lott and his partner, Dr. Art Ham, of Toronto, at 3-6, 6-5, 2-6, 6-1, 6-0.

The singles final was a rather dull affair as compared with some of the exciting contests seen earlier in the week. Lott, although shaky at times, appeared to have control of matters almost throughout the match. Shields made his best effort in the third set when he was within a point of taking the set, but Lott's experience and his ability to produce a winning shot when called upon to do so pulled him out of this difficulty and left him with the title in his possession for the second year in succession.

The final of the doubles was productive of some of theb est and most exciting tennis of the week. Jack Wright, the Canadian champion, was at the top of his game and was the pick of the four players. His serving was hard and accurate, his driving equally effective and his volleying sharp and well placed. He was well supported by his partner, Laframboise, who started slowly, but warmed to his task in the last two sets when he and Wright swept through to victory.

Lott played fine tennis in the first three sets, but he tired and weakened in the closing games and threw several points away through carelessness. Dr. Ham played steady and forceful tennis throughout, but he, too, seemed to weaken in the last two sets.

T.C.S. WIN FROM GROVE

Lakefield School Second Team Lose 5-2 Game to Port Hope.

CLEAN GAME

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 30.—On Friday afternoon "The Grove" second team (boys of under fifteen years) played a similar team from T.C.S., Port Hope, in the Brock Street Rink, Peterborough. The game was clean and was a good demonstration of junior hockey. Owing to the ice being requisitioned for a later game, the full time was not played. The Grove defence put up a remarkably good game. The score was 5—2 for the Port Hope boys. The Grove forwards were Neilson, Pringle and MacRea; the defence men were Leggett and Pinder, and Beyer was in goal.

On Thursday afternoon The Grove and St. Peter's team of Peterborough played hockey in the Lakefield rink; the visitors were defeated by a score of 6—2 after a fast game. The Peterborough boys played till train time and finally had to go to the station on their skates. The game was worth seeing.

SPORT BITS

SIGNS WITH NEW HAVEN.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 30. — 28, of Ottawa, an amateur forward, (Canadian Press).—Tommy Shields, has signed with the New Haven Eagles hockey club of the Canadian-American League, it was announced here yesterday.

PLAY EXHIBITION GAME.

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's). — The hockey team which has been selected to represent Germany in the Olympic hockey series, which commences at St. Moritz on Feb. 11, played an exhibition game with Paris Canadians yesterday, and triumphed by 5 goals to 0.

Right Wing Star Signs With Maroons

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 30. — Canadian Press. — Joe Lamb, right wing star with Victorias, in the senior group of the C. N. N.A., and Royal Bank team in the Bankers' League has signed a contract with the Montreal Maroons. Lamb has been practising with the Maroons of late, and came to terms yesterday. He will make his first professional appearance in New York on Tuesday night when the Montreal team meets the Rangers.

Lamb is a product of Maritime hockey, having played with Sussex, N.B. prior to his coming to Montreal several years ago. Last year Lamb accompanied the Victorias on their tour of Europe.

To make room for Lamb on their roster it is understood that the Maroons will send Frank Carson to a minor league club.

MAPLE LEAFS BEAT CHICAGO

SCORE 4 TO 1.

TORONTO, January 30. — Beating Chicago is something the Toronto Maple Leafs have shown consistent proficiency in this season, and no surprise was occasioned locally when they performed this feat for the fourth time this season, and the second time by the same score, 4 to 1, at the Arena Gardens on Saturday night.

As a hockey spectacle, the game lacked many of the big thrills that are produced when stronger N.H.L. teams than the Windy City outfit appear here, but the large crowd of fans enjoyed it, nevertheless, and there was enough excitement to keep the spectators interested. The Leafs did not have a very wide margin of the play, and the invaders were dangerous enough to threaten the small lead the locals held right up to the last minute of play, when Jerry Lowrey produced the tally that widened the gap and put the game out of Chicago's reach.

The game marked the return of Gardner to the goalkeeping position in the Chicago net. Manager Hugh Lehman is a glutton for punishment, but apparently Canadiens and Ottawa cured the veteran of his comeback notions. The record of nineteen goals scored on him in two straight games was convincing. Garner played well against the Leafs He didn't have much chance on any of the counters the Leafs tallied, but he did stop a whole lot which looked just as good, and he showed a coolness under fire that was notable under the circumstances.

British Horse Wins Cannes Grand Prix

CANNES, France, Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press).—British owners at present enjoy a monopoly of the fixtures in the winter racing on the Riviera.

Scarabee, five-year-old son of Chule, out of Spring Song, belonging to Robert Appleton, trained by James Dutton, and ridden by Lou M. Niaudot, took first place in the Grand Prix steeplechase of the Municipal Council of Cannes yesterday.

There were eleven starters, odds were six to one for Scarabee, the distance 3,500 metres and the stakes 100,000 francs. Scarabee made it in four minutes, 21 seconds. Lehic was second and Leuviere third.

Durglass, another Britisher, captured the Grand Prix at Nice last Sunday.

OUTSIDE PASS IS REJECTED

Meeting Held of Rules Commission of Canadian Intercollegiate Rugby Union.

OFFICIALS RE-APPOINTED

MONTREAL, Que., January 30. — Canadian Press. — The rejection of the outside pass and the re-appointment of last year's officials for the 1928 season were the main results of the meeting of the rules commission of the Canadian Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union here on Saturday.

Officials for the coming year are Referee Joe O'Brien; umpire, Capt. Panet; headlinesman, Red Dixon.

Dixon was also named chairman of the Rules commission with the Queen's representative (to be appointed later to act as secretary.

The onside pass was rejected mainly because the delegates thought that the present code of rules was quite adequate and that the play entailed too drastic a change. The popularity of the game last season proved too, they declared that there was nothing wrong with the rules as they now stand and it would be inadvisable to tamper with them at this juncture.

It was decided by the meeting to forward a recommendation to the C.R.T. to have the rule governing the point after touch changed from 35 to 30 yards out.

The following delegates were at the meeting: E. G. Dixon and Laddie Cassils, Toronto; Prof. Orin Carson, Queen's; Dr. A. F. Argue and D. Stuart Forbes, McGill.

O.H.A. BULLETIN

The University of Toronto-at-Preston senior game postponed from January 16 is down for decision on Thursday, February 2.

Peterborough Seniors have defaulted their remaining games, and will not play at Kitchener to-night.

To break the tie in Intermediate Group No. 3, Havelock will play at Lakefield on Tuesday, January 31, and the teams will play the return fixture at Peterborough on Thursday, February 2. "Nip" Dwan, of Toronto, will referee both games.

The Executive Committee of the O. H. A. will hold its monthly meeting on Friday, February 3, at 7.30 p.m., and at the conclusion the members will attend the Newmarket-Danforth play-off at Arena Gardens.

Referees forTuesday's games are as follows:

Intermediate Series.

Havelock at Lakefield—Nip Dwan, Toronto.

Port Perry at Whitby—W. A. Edgar, Bowmanville

PLAY-OFF GAMES LAKEFIELD VS. HAVELOCK

First Game at Lakefield On Tuesday—Return Game Here on Thursday.

With the Havelock Hockey Team winning against Lakefield on Friday night, which created a tie for this district between the two teams, the O.H.A. have ordered home-and-home games to be played to decide a winner.

The first of these games will be played in Lakefield on Tuesday night, January 31st, and the return game with Havelock in the Brock Street Rink, Peterborough, on Thursday night, February 2nd.

There is a good deal of good-natured rivalry between these two towns as to who will produce a winner.

The outcome of this home-and-home series will be watched with interest. Havelock anticipating a play-off game did not send in nearly the crowd that they expect to for the game here on Thursday night.

ONE-MINUTE INTERVIEWS

E. S. BARNARD SAYS:

Competition for star ball players is so keen that sooner or later the smaller minor leagues will be forced to take up the intensive methods of the majors to help supply the demand.

Major leagues get their prospective talent through a scouting system that covers most of the country. Since about five scouts is the limit of most clubs, they confine their efforts largely to the activities of the minors.

Unquestionably, there are a lot of capable ball players going to rust in the hamlets of our country, for the want of an opportunity to show theid worth. It is in such a field that the minors could center their attention.

My thought is that it might be a worth while idea for the smaller minor leagues to employ at least one, possibly two scouts, who would be the property of the league rather than any particular club. These scouts could look over amateur and semi-pro players in the smaller cities.

Likely material could be signed in the name of the league. At the close of each season these players could be alloted to the various clubs by a system somewhat similar to the draft plan used by the majors and minors.

This is merely a suggestion that might help supply the demand for more and better players.

MADOC WINS RETURN GAME

SCORE 1-0.

MADOC, Jan. 30. — Tweed played their return game in the Interscholastic series in Madoc on Friday night. A good clean game was played throughout, both teams doing their best.

The first period finished without a score for either side, and in the second period the home team made their one and only goal. The final period was without result on either side, making the score 1—0 for Madoc.

Both teams were entertained at the High School after the game, and a short time was spent in dancing before the visitors left for home.

Madoc plays Marmora in Madoc next Thursday.

BASKETBALL.

A very close game was played when the Brintons and "Y" Elementary clashed. Excitement was high when at the end of the first half the score was 4—4. In the third period there was no scoring on account of good checking. S. Ecobichon scored the deciding basket in the last quarter, making the score 6—4.

A fast and rather spectacular game was played between C.G.E. and Woollens. M. McLaren scored two of the deciding baskets; D. Mortimer one; while J. Gregory made the free shot. The final score: C.G.E. 6, Woollens 1.

The audience were keenly interested in both games.

The two postponed game are to be played:

Monday, 6.30—Senior School Girls vs. Westclox.

Tuesday, 7.00—"Y" Senior vs. De Laval.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

DESCRIBES HIS OWN BEHEADING.

"You feel the cold edge of steel on your neck—and pray that Lionel Barrymore won't go crazy suddenly, and take a real chop at it."

This is how John Gilbert, screen star, describes the sensation of being "beheaded," as is done in his latest vehicle, "The Show," now playing at the Regent Theatre.

The handsome John gets his head cut off, with Lionel Barrymore enacting the execution. True it is done by a magician's optical illusion, as the "headliner" in a sideshow—but the gruesome feeling when the sword tickles the nape of his neck is fully as disconcerting as though he were Charles the First says Gilbert.

The "beheading" is one of the gruesome details of the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer romance of the Budapest underworld; a vivid mystery story laid in a sideshow on the outskirts of a Hungarian underworld. Tod Browning directed the new picture, with Gilbert and Renee playing together for the first time since "The Big Parade," Lionel Barrymore, Edward Connelly, Gertrude Short and a notable cast appear.

The director of "The Unholy Three," and "The Road to Mandalay," made the play a gruesome mystery story, and an astounding regeneration marks the climax.

It is an adaptation by Waldemar Young of the famous novel by Chas. Tenney Jackson, produced on an elaborate scale at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios and is Browning's first production since his sensational "Road to Mandalay."

WOMAN HANGS HERSELF.

Mary Gladstone, 54, Has Been Ill For Several Months.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 30.— (Canadian Press.)—Mary Gladstone, aged 54 and unmarried, hanged herself in the summer kitchen of her home at Donville, Grenville County, late last night, the body being found by her father, William Gladstone early this morning. She had been in ill health for some months.

MILBURN RETIRES IN FAVOR OF YOUTH

U. S. Has Several Youngsters To Carry On In Place of Polo Veteran.

By HENRY L. FARRELL.

"I'm through. It's time for some of the young fellows to take over the responsibility and the work of keeping the polo cup in the United States."

With these words Devereux Milburn, the greatest back in the world, star and hero of every American "Big Four" since 1909 and one of the best known sportsmen in the world, served notice that the United States will have to defend the international cup without him in the future.

"I'll be 49 when the time comes for the next cup matches. That's too old. The young fellows will have to step in some time and there is no better time than right now. If I kept on playing, I might be kept on the team through sentiment and I would be depriving some young player of a place that belongs to him."

Fortunately, and perhaps it influenced his decision to make room for youth, the United States Polo Association is in good circumstances to develop a successor for Milburn without risking a fatal weakness in the next Big Four.

Of the four players who overwhelmed the British All-India challengers last summer in the cup matches, three remain who are almost certain of their places. They are Tommy Hitchcock, the world's greatest forward, Malcolm Stevenson, who recently was raised to a ten-goal handicap man with Milburn and Hitchcock, and Watson Webb, an eight-goal man.

For the vacant place, if Milburn sticks to his decision, the association has a number of most promising and brilliant young players headed by Bobby Strawbridge, Winnie Guest and Captains Wilkinson and Gerhardt of the United States army.

Guest, who drew international attention when he was playing at Yale, was first named as a regular on the 1927 Big Four instead of Stevenson, but such a political storm arose within the association that a change was made and Stevenson was moved up to the first team.

It is rather significant that since then, and largely as a result of his brilliant game in the international challenge matches, Stevenson was moved up to a ten-goal position, which stamps him as one of the best players in the world.

Polo and tennis are very closely related as international sports. With a few minor exceptions they are the only games that are played under universal and standard rules all over the world and their trophies, the international polo cup and the Davis tennis cup, are the most treasured trophies in the world.

The only hope that foreign nations had to win either trophy was to wait for years until American stars became too old to play. They figured that when Milburn and the Whitneys, the Watterburys and the stars of the earlier days passed from the team, their successors would decrease the power of the team and make it a more even match for foreign teams.

But players have come along to take their places and fill them so well that the foreign prospects for a number of years to come is almost hopeless. Fine players and piles of money are necessary to polo success and the United States is well fortified with both.

Foreign nations aspiring for the Davis cup figured their only hope to become the ranking tennis power of the world depended upon their ability to develop young players for the time when Bill Tilden and Bill Johnston faded. And they figured correctly.

Tilden and Johnston faded as all athletes have to fade and France stepped in and took the cup and France probably will hold it for years until some nation comes along with youngsters good enough to beat Lacoste, Cochet, Brugnon and Borotra when they slide.

France, however, is developing young players to take their veterans' places when they have to be filled and they may be building up a reserve as the American polo leaders have done.

The American tennis prospects are very gloomy. There are only three promising young players, George Lott, John Hennessey and John Doeg, and they haven't developed with the consistence or the speed necessary to get American tennis back to its old place of glory.

These youngsters are getting better every year, to be sure, but there is yet room for improvement. Unless they improve much during the year, the prospects will continue dark.

WOMAN ARDENT DOG RACER

Among those who have become enthusiastic over greyhound racing is Lady Inverclyde of Scotland. Her entry, Hovering Lark, made a creditable showing at the big St. Mungo race in Glasgow recently. Both she and her husband watched the event.

Thought—The Bedrock of Salesmanship

An Address by Wm. Boulton

(This address was given by Wm. Boulton, manager of the Central Ontario Division of the Confederation Life Association, at his company's divisional conference which was held here on Tuesday. The few omissions in this report are chiefly some of the simple, graphic illustrations and experiences which the speaker used to emphasize and elucidate topics and assertions.)

THOUGHT is not only the bedrock of salesmanship, it is the foundation upon which every structure is built—physical, material and intellectual. Every material thing that man has created, or constructed has first existed as a thought in the mind of the inventor, builder or thinker. A thing, a picture, a building, a book, a poem, a sale, is the embodiment of thought.

"The steam engine," says Emerson, "is only a great idea dressed in iron. It ran in the thinker's brain before it ran on the steel rails." A cathedral is thought expressed in stone; a statue is thought expressed in marble or bronze; a painting is thought expressed in colors; music is thought expressed in harmony; speech is sound thought; a sale the combined thought of the seller and buyer.

Thoughts then are things, not dreams; imaginings or fancies but realities. Morse's telegraph is the materialization of Morse's thoughts. The Bell telephone, the ideas of Bell conducted along wire currents. Marconi's wireless, thought transmitted to the ether. Edison's electric light, the illuminated thought of Edison. The sixty-story Woolworth building grew from the thought of the architect. Your voluminous Sunday newspaper is printed, probably, on one of the monster Hoe double octuple color presses. It turns out 25,000 completely printed and folded papers an hour. There are 65,000 parts in that wonderful press, a labyrinth of metal to the uninitiated. That press was evolved by the THOUGHT of man.

The institution of Life Insurance is the combined thought of mathematics, finance, and human sentiment.

In developing my theme I have adopted at least four ideas all of which are related and co-related to each other. These I would like you to remember, even though you forget the rest.

Thought is the Parent of Personality.

The first of these is "Thought is the parent of personality." Thought creates personality; in fact personality does not exist apart from thoughts. It is true that Mother Nature wisely or unwisely has endowed us with various characteristics which are sometimes called personality for want of a better term, to some she has been exceedingly kind, whilst to others of us she has been somewhat meagre in her endowments. But in the final analysis, personality is the sum total of thought life. We are what our thinking has made us. We will be in the future what our thinking makes us.

We are the children of our own thoughts, the offspring of our own ideals; our thoughts fashion us after their own mental images.

Thackeray realized this when he wrote: "Sow a thought, reap an act; sow an act, reap a habit; sow a habit, reap a character; sow a character, reap a destiny."

We create, therefore, our own character, personality and destiny by the thoughts we originate ourselves; harbour, entertain or accept from others. We are the result of our past thinking. The future will find us interpreting in activity our thinking of today. We have been our own mental children, we will be our own mental parents. Our today is what it is because of yesterday's thinking. Thoughts like seeds take root, sprout, blossom and bear fruit—the blossom and the fruit are of the same nature as the seed thought.

Thought Atmosphere.

We all live in a thought atmosphere peculiarly our own, either of our own creation or adoption, and sooner or later be become the embodiment of it.

This thought atmosphere is easily detected because the thought atmosphere of one place differs widely from that of another. The thought atmosphere of a church differs from that of a vaudeville theatre; a college differs from a bar room. Montreal differs from Toronto, Toronto differs from Peterboro, Peterboro differs from Millbrook or Norwood. Canada's national thought life differs from that of China or even of the United States.

Who has not felt the strange, unexplainable difference of feeling of one hotel from another, of one office or workshop from another, or even of one person you have canvassed from another? Who has not felt that peculiar sensation of like or dislike, of confidence or aversion, arising from the mere presence of certain people who may not even be known to us?

There are certain public speakers, orators, preachers, actors, statesmen, and others accustomed to addressing audiences who diffuse a thought influence over their hearers immediately they appear before them. There is something which goes out that grips and perhaps more so, fail to produce this effect. There is something lacking in them.

There are doctors, who, as soon as they enter a sick room, impart confidence and trust and before they have prescribed anything the patient begins to get well. Others equally as clever, fail to produce this confidence.

Some salesmen induce a feeling of good-fellowship the moment they come into the presence of their prospect, and the sale is made long before the name is signed on the dotted line, whilst others arouse a feeling of indifference or actual repulsion and a sale can never be made.

Personal Magnetism.

What is the secret? Personal magnetism, you reply. Personal magnetism is nothing more or less than thought atmosphere. Carry a wholesome, healthy positive thought atmosphere into your prospect's presence and you have all the personal magnetism which is necessary to make a sale.

"There is nothing good or bad
But thinking makes it so,"

says the immortal Shakespeare. And we can truly say:

There is nothing sold or lost
But thinking makes it so.

By living in the right mental atmosphere you can accomplish wonders, because you are developing an attractive and magnetic personality.

Mental Attraction.

This leads me up to my second idea, namely: Thought operates in accordance with the Law of Mental Attraction.

Our thought life draws us to the persons, things and environments in harmony with, and conducive to the character of our desires, mental images, feelings and ideals; or else leads us in the direction of those persons, things and environments in harmony with our thoughts. Each thought seeks its own kind. Birds of a feather flock together. Everywhere the law of mental attraction is apparent. We attract our own kind of thought waves and repel our opposites.

In support of my contention that thought operates in accordance with the law of mental attraction may I use one or two everyday occurrences. You think of someone from whom you have not heard for sometime, and when you open your mail either that day or the following day or so, lo there is a letter from that very person, or some statement about them. How do you account for it—the law of mental attraction.

Two or more of you are talking about someone and almost immediately the same person walks into the room or you meet him on the street. But instead of saying the law of mental attraction is at work, you say, "Speak of angels and you hear the flapping of wings," or if you want to be modern and up-to-date, you say, "Talk of the devil and he appears."

Urban Illustration.

Men of like mental characteristics attract each other to a common centre as well as to individuals of same mental states.

In every city, town or village of any size, can be seen the result of the law of mental attraction. One part of the city or town is full of activity, enterprise and energy, whilst only a block or so away a different state exists. One section of city has beautiful homes, in another part dirty, filthy, reeking slum. Dr. Cadman says, "You will only get rid of the slum when you get rid of the slum mind."

Take as an illustration our own city. Certain blocks are always throbbing with life and activity, and I venture to say there is more mercantile business transacted in those several blocks than all the rest of the city put together. Only one block away can be felt the cold, clammy hand of inertia—another block away on another street is the shabby, squalid junk and second-hand stores, which are an eye sore and a reproach to the city.

How do you account for this? A mere accident? No sir. The law of mental attraction. A strong mind or minds originally started and others feeling the attraction added to the impulse and it became permanent.

Your Mental Level.

The law of mental attraction is operating in every one of you salesmen. You are always finding your own mental level. You meet and canvass the people who think your kind of thoughts; either you attract them or they attract you.

When a Life Insurance salesman tells me "Business is bad," I don't believe him. I can't afford to believe him. Immediately I believe him I am through—my job, my home, my family, my health, everything I possess that is worth while goes. What is really the matter is that fellow's mind is bad, or else diseased. He is living too much among the junk and second-hand dealers, the mental slums of thought life.

Immediately a man allows the thought of hard times, bad business to step in, and becomes depressed and discouraged, depend upon it, he will canvass all the out-of-works, loafers, spasmodic workers and bums he can find and he himself will become so blue and pessimistic with a mental picture of poverty always before him that no self-respecting citizen will want to do business with him.

Visualize Success.

But let him hold before himself the idea of prosperity and success, and there is no reason why he should not for there is only 10% of difference in business between so-called good and bad times, he will be so optimistic and magnetic that the men will welcome him wherever he goes and be delighted to be associated with him and times will never be hard with him, and business will always be good.

It is for you to decide what your mental states are going to be, because you are going to attract and be attracted by the people who live in the same kind of a mental atmosphere as yourself.

The bee travels from flower to flower sipping nectar as it goes, and from the same flower it extracts the sweet, delicious honey or the poison of its sting.

Two seeds are dropped into the same plot of ground. The soil is the same. They both drink in the same dews of heaven and bask in the same sunshine, but one grows to a "deadly nightshade" and the other into a fragrant rose.

According to the furniture of your mind—you will either be a deadly nightshade in society, filled with fear, depression, discouragement and failure—or like a rose blooming and flowering into optimism, courage and cheerfulness, radiating success and sunshine wherever you go.

"'Tis the mind makes the body rich," or impoverishes it.

Thought is Dynamic Energy.

This brings me up to my third idea, viz.; Thought is Dynamic Eugery.

If you accept my former statements: Thought is the parent of personality; thought operates in accordance with the law of mental attraction; you are almost compelled to accept this, that thought is dynamic energy.

From every man, woman and child, there goes forth mental currents varying in degrees according to their personality. These mental currents tend to induce or reproduce thought, emotion, feeling, desire or other mental states. They act and react on others.

It is true that some ideas, like infants, die young from mal-nutrition, and our minds are filled with tombstones from which the inscriptions have been erased by time.

Other thoughts are but fugitive, like birds of passage.

In the Subconscious.

Those which possess dynamic energy are permanent; are nurtured with other ideas, knowledge, concentration and meditation. They are the silent forces which mould and shape human destiny and change the course of history. Their path is on the sea; their footsteps make no noise, leave no foot-prints except in human character; silent, visionless, trackless are their goings and yet the world must bow to them. Thought waves her magic wand and men and nations respond.

The only real wealth in the world is thought energy, or thought in action. It was thought in the mind of primitive man that converted the stone into an axe, the tree into a canoe, the canoe into a flat bottom boat; that stretched an animal skin over a couple of sticks, attached it to his canoe and made the sailing boat; that harnessed steam and made an ocean liner. Thought converted the wild rice into wheat and the sweet briar into the crimson rose.

What Thought Can Do.

Thought energy in the mind of Sir Christopher Wren converted the rocky hillside into St. Paul's Cathedral; in the mind of Michael Angelo into St. Peter's at Rome.

Pig-iron is worth about $20 a ton; made into horse shoes it is worth $100 a ton; made into knife blades $200; into watch springs $1000 a ton. Rough iron, therefore, is worth $20, mental energy $980.

Millet bought a yard of canvass for about a franc, some colors and a hair brush for another two and then proceeded to spread his thought energy upon it and gave the world the "Angelus" which recently sold for $105,000. Rough material worth sixty cents—thought expressed in the "Angelus" $165,000.

Alexander the Great, the Emperor who wept because there were no more lands to conquer, was asked if he were not Alexander the monarch whom he would prefer to be and replied, "If I were not Alexander, I should prefer to be Diogenes." Diogenes, the philosopher, the ill-clad and ill-housed thinker.

To the unthinking the reply may appear strange, if not absurd, but to the thoughtful, it holds in its grasp a fine meaning. It is greater to be a thinker than a conqueror; greater to sway the sceptre over realms of mind than over continents of matter.

Henry VIII and Queen Elizabeth, James I and Charles I made a great stir in their day, but their lives and deeds are fast melting away into oblivion, while the empire of Shakespeare and Bacon, and Milton widens with the lapse of years. The pomp of kings and conquerors as they storm across the centuries is but a vain and fleeting pageant compared with the enduring majesty of the masters of creative thought.

Thought currents are just as real as electric currents, especially if the mental dynamo is operating.

You have all seen a dynamo generating electrical energy. Every wire connected with it emits energy and influences a given field according to its electrical strength. If you cut the wire and put a thin filament in line with the current it grows hot—energy is transformed into heat. If you interpose a thin carbon rod you transform the heat to light—hence our electric light. Here you have transmission and transformation of electric energy.

Thought waves operate in identically the same way, i.e., if your dynamo (generator) is working; it not only transmits but it also transforms. For this reason your mind should concentrate when you are presenting a sales proposition or trying to make a sale. Your thought waves modify and transform other thought forces and to bring them into alignment with your thoughts, desires and feelings.

It is true that thought currents can be counteracted by opposing and adverse thought currents, but if you will keep your mind free from neutralizing forces your chances of making a sale are a hundred per cent.

It is, therefore, necessary for you to cultivate strong positive thoughts which will overpower and beat off neutralizing influences, either of your own or of others, which tend to retard you. If your prospect says, "No, not now"—think, "Yes—now." For what you think is telegraphed to every nerve in your anatomy. What you think, not what he thinks will either chill and freeze you or warm you to a white heat. Never mind what your prospect says if he is stalling, keep thinking positively and carry on. The law in the mental realm as well as the physical is—that positives overcome and destroy negatives.

We hear a good deal about the personal magnetism of salesmen. Personal magnetism is positive thinking and if you are thinking positively and acting positively, nothing in the world can hold you back.

It is for you to say whether you are going to be positive or negative. If you are positive you fearlessly sail your little bark across the stream which separates you from your objective and with knowledge and determination, succeed. If you are negati e, depend upon it, your old rotten, heavy flat-bottom scow, will drift along until it becomes water-logged and sinks.

It is for you and you alone to decide. "As a man sows, so shall he reap." And in the words of Demosthenes, "For God's sake, gentlemen, I beseech you to think," and to think positively.

"What is thought? It is mine
Whose gems are of a land divine
A power no tyrant can control."
—Anon.

A Sale is a Mental Triumph.

I am now, gentlemen, up to my last idea—a sale is a mental triumph It is either the acceptance or endorsation of an idea which was already in the mind; the harmonizing of conflicting ideas; or the transferring of an idea from one to another—from the salesman to the buyer.

The fields and the woods, the hills and valleys, the cities and towns and villages are crowded with prospects who can be sold if you are big enough to get the idea across.

Activity in salesmanship must come from the salesman to the buyer. You must do the thinking and planning, and then set out to make your thinking his, always remembering that it is the customer's mind with which you are dealing. Every step in your canvass from the "approach" to the "adieu" is an interplay and exchange of ideas and emotions. You must put yourself in your prospect's place. Make your contract meet his needs. You must appeal to your own desires, make yourself want that contract so badly that if there was somebody handy to witness your signature you would buy it yourself—then go out and transfer the idea or ideas to your prospect.

It is your business to think out ways of convincing men of the value of your goods. It is wrong to permit a prospect to turn you down if you have the goods he needs. If he does turn you down it is not his funeral only but yours also. You have committed a wrong against him and his family—you have failed to serve him and to serve yourself. On the other hand, if you put across the idea and make a sale you have rendered him and his family a most invaluable service. Every selling interview, whether you make a sale or not, is an intellectual process; every sale is a triumph of thought.

May I recapitulate:

- Thought is the creative power of the world—the bedrock of salesmanship.
- Thought is the parent of personality.
- Thought operates in accordance with the law of mental attraction.
- Thought is dynamic energy.
- A sale is a triumph of thought.
- Think—put your thoughts into action and go out and sell.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

CHARACTERS

PHILO VANCE.
JOHN F.-X. MARKHAM, District Attorney of New York County.
MARGARET ODELL (THE "CANARY").
CHARLES CLEAVER, a man-about-town.
KENNETH SPOTSWOODE, a manufacturer.
LOUIS MANNIX, an importer.
DR. AMBROSE LINDQUIST, a fashionable neurologist.
TONY SKEEL, a professional burglar.
WILLIAM ELMER JESSUP, telephone operator.
HARRY SPIVELY, telephone operator.
ERNEST HEATH, Sergeant of the Homicide Bureau.

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Vance's theory is that two unknown persons were in Margaret Odell's apartment that fatal evening one hiding in a clothes closet, the other the man who strangled her. In no way can the police account for the presence of anyone in the apartment. The door to the alley was bolted on the inside and the man who had gone out with the "Canary" the night before had been the only one to be seen with her, and circumstances completely eliminated him. There is another man who called while she was out, but one of the phone operators testifies that he had been unable to get in the apartment.

CHAPTER XIII.

"Or else one of 'em's lying," supplemented Heath.

Vance shook his head. "The maid, I'd say, is eminently trustworthy. And if there was any doubt about anyone's having come in the front door unnoticed, the lads on the switchboard would, in the present circumstances, be only too eager to admit it. . . . No, Markham, you'll simply have to approach this affair from the astral plane, so to speak."

Markham grunted his distaste of Vance's jocularity.

"That line of investigation I leave to you with your metaphysical theories and esoteric hypotheses."

"But, consider," protested Vance banteringly. "You've proved conclusively—or, rather, you've demonstrated legally—that no one could have entered or departed from this apartment last night; and, as you've often told me, a court of law must decide all matters, not in accord with the known or suspected facts, but according to the evidence; and the evidence in this case would prove a sound alibi for every corporeal being extant.

"And yet, it's not exactly tenable, d' ye see, that the lady strangled herself. If only it had been poison, what a most satisfyin' suicide case you'd have! . . . Most inconsiderate of her homicidal visitor not to have used arsenic instead of his hands!"

"Well, he strangled her," pronounced Heath. "Furthermore, I'll lay my money on the fellow who called her last night at half past nine and couldn't get in. He's the bird I want to talk to."

"Indeed?" Vance produced another cigaret. "I shouldn't say, to judge from our description of him, that his conversation would prove particularly fascinatin'."

An ugly light came into Health's eyes.

"We've got ways," he said through his teeth, "of getting damn interesting conversation outa people who haven't no great reputation for repartee."

Vance sighed. "How the Four Hundred needs you, my Sergeant!"

Markham looked at his watch.

"I've got pressing work at the office," he said, "and all this talk isn't getting us anywhere." He put his hand on Heath's shoulder. "I leave you to go ahead. This afternoon I'll have these people brought down to my office for another questioning—maybe I can jog their memories a bit. . . . You've got some line of investigation planned?"

"The usual routine," replied Heath drearily. "I'll go through Odell's papers, and I'll have three or four of my men check up on her."

"You'd better get after the Yellow Taxicab company right away," Markham suggested. "Find out, if you can, who the man was who left here at half past eleven last night, and where he went."

"Do you imagine for one moment," asked Vance, "that if this man knew anything about the murder, he would have stopped in the hall and asked the operator to call a taxi for him?"

"Oh, I don't look for much in that direction." Markham's tone was almost listless. "But the girl may have said something to him that'll give us a lead."

Vance shook his head facetiously. "O welcome pure-ey'd Faith, white-handed Hope, thou hovering angel, girt with golden wings!"

Markham was in no mood for chaffing. He turned to Heath and spoke with forced cheeriness.

"Call me up later this afternoon. I may get some new evidence out of the outfit we've just interviewed. . . . And," he added, "be sure to put a man on guard here. I want this apartment kept just as it is until we see a little more light."

"I'll attend to that," Heath assured him.

Markham and Vance and I went out and entered the car. A few minutes later we were winding rapidly across town through Central Park.

"Recall our recent conversation about footprints in the snow?" asked Vance, as we emerged into Fifth Avenue and headed south.

Markham nodded abstractedly.

"As I remember," mused Vance, "in the hypothetical case you presented there were not only footprints but a dozen or more witnesses—including a youthful prodigy—who saw a figure of some kind cross the hibernal landscape. . . . Here you are in a most beastly pother because of the disheartenin' fact that there are neither footprints in the snow nor witnesses who saw a fleeing figure. In short, you are bereft of both direct and circumstantial evidence . . . Sad, sad."

He wagged his head dolefully.

"Y' know, Markham, it appears to me that the testimony in this case constitutes conclusive legal proof that no one could have been with the deceased at the hour of her passing, and that, ergo, she is presumably alive. The strangled body of the lady is, I take it, simply an irrelevant circumstance from the standpoint of legal procedure. I know that you learned lawyers won't admit a murder without a body; but how, in sweet Heaven's name, do you get around a corpus delicti without a murder?"

"You're talking nonsense," Markham rebuked him, with a show of anger.

"Oh, quite," agreed Vance. "And yet, it's a distressin' thing for a lawyer not to have footprints of some kind, isn't it, old dear? It leaves one so up in the air."

Suddenly Markham swung round. "You, of course, don't need footprints, or any other kind of material clues," he flung at Vance tauntingly. "You have powers of divination such as are denied ordinary mortals. If I remember correctly, you informed me, somewhat grandiloquently, that, knowing the nature and conditions of a crime, you could lead me infallibly to the culprit, whether he left footprints or not. You recall that boast? . . . Well, here's a crime, and the perpetrator left no footprints coming or going. Be so good as to end my suspense by confiding in me who killed the Odell girl."

Vance's serenity was not ruffled by Markham's ill-humored challenge. He sat smoking lazily for several minutes; then he leaned over and flicked his cigaret ash out of the window.

"'Pon my word, Markham," he joined evenly, "I'm half inclined to look into this silly murder. I think I'll wait, though, and see whom the non-plussed Heath turns up with his inquiries."

Markham grunted scoffingly, and sank back on the cushions.

"Your generosity wrings me," he said.

(Tuesday, September 11; afternoon)

On our way down-town that morning we were delayed for a considerable time in the traffic congestion just north of Madison Square, and Markham anxiously looked at his watch.

"It's past noon," he said. "I think I'll stop at the club and have a bite of lunch. . . I presume that eating at this early hour would be too plebeian for so exquisite a hothouse flower as you."

Vance considered the invitation.

"Since you deprived me of my breakfast," he decided, "I'll permit you to buy me some eggs Benedictine."

A few minutes later we entered the almost empty grill of the Stuyvesant Club, and took a table near one of the windows looking southward over the treetops of Madison Square.

Shortly after we had given our order a uniformed attendant entered and, bowing deferentially at the district attorney's elbow, held out an unaddressed communication, sealed in one of the club's envelopes. Markham read it with an expression of growing curiosity, and as he studied the signature a look of mild surprise came into his eyes At length he looked up and nodded to the waiting attendant. Then, excusing himself, he left us abruptly. It was fully twenty minutes before he returned.

"Funny thing," he said. "That note was from the man who took the Odell woman to dinner and the theater last night. . . . A small world," he mused. "He's staying here at the club—he's a non-resident member and makes it his headquarters when he's in town."

"You know him?" Vance put the question disinterestedly.

"I've met him several times—chap named Spotswoode." Markham seemed perplexed. "He's a man of family, lives in a country house on Long Island, and is regarded generally as a highly respectable member of society—one of the last persons I'd suspect of being mixed up with the Odell girl. But, according to his own confession, he played around a good deal with her during his visits to New York—'sowing a few belated wild oats,' as he expressed it—and last night took her to Francelle's for dinner and to the Winter Garden afterwards."

"Not my idea of an intellectual, or even edifyin', evening," commented Vance. "And he selected a deuced unlucky day for it. . . . I say, imagine opening the morning paper and learning that your petite dame of the preceding evening had been strangled! Disconcertin' what?"

"He's certainly disconcerted," said Markham. "The early afternoon papers were out about an hour ago, and he'd been phoning my office every ten minutes, when I suddenly walked in here. He's afraid his connection with the girl will leak out and disgrace him."

"And won't it?"

"I hardly see the necessity. No one knows who her escort was last evening; and since he obviously had nothing to do with the crime, what's to be gained by dragging him into it? He told me the whole story, and offered to stay in the city as long as I wanted him to."

"I infer, from the cloud of disappointment that enveloped you when you returned just now that his story held nothing hopeful for you in the way of clues."

"No," Markham admitted. "The girl apparently never spoke to him of her intimate affairs; and he couldn't give me a single helpful suggestion. His account of what happened last night agreed perfectly with Jessup's. He called for the girl at seven, brought her home at about eleven, stayed with her half an hour or so, and then left her.

"When he heard her call for help he was frightened, but on being assured by her there was nothing wrong, he concluded she had dozed off into a nightmare, and thought no more about it.

"He drove direct to the club here, arriving about ten minutes to twelve. Judge Redfern, who saw him descend from the taxi, insisted on his coming up-stairs and playing poker with some men who were waiting in the judge's rooms for him. They played until three o'clock this morning."

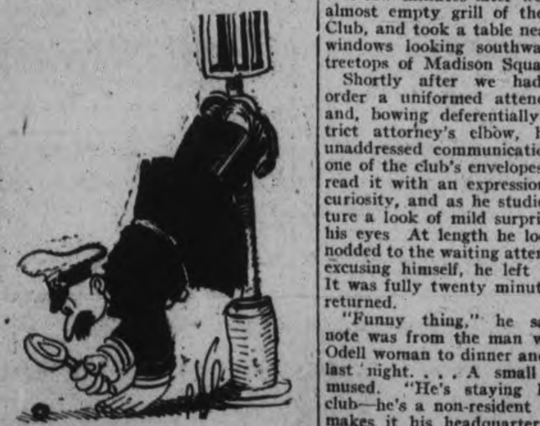
POLICE BAFFLED AS PEARLS VANISH



This is one of the thousand policemen engaged in the hunt for the stolen Van Ness pearls. He thinks he sees a black pearl, but it's a green pea.

DIE FOR PENNIES.

MULLENS, W. Va., Jan. 28.—Enoch Tolliver, 85, and his wife were killed in their little store at Pierpont, near here, for the price of a pound of cheap candy. The aged couple, authorities believe, gave their lives for the small change, totalling 58 cents, found near the scene of the double tragedy.

QUICK PILE RELIEF

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is guaranteed to banish any form of Pile misery, or money back. It gives quick action even in old, stubborn cases. Hem-Roid is a harmless tablet that removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. It brings joyful relief quickly and safely or costs nothing. McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store and druggists everywhere sell it with this guarantee.

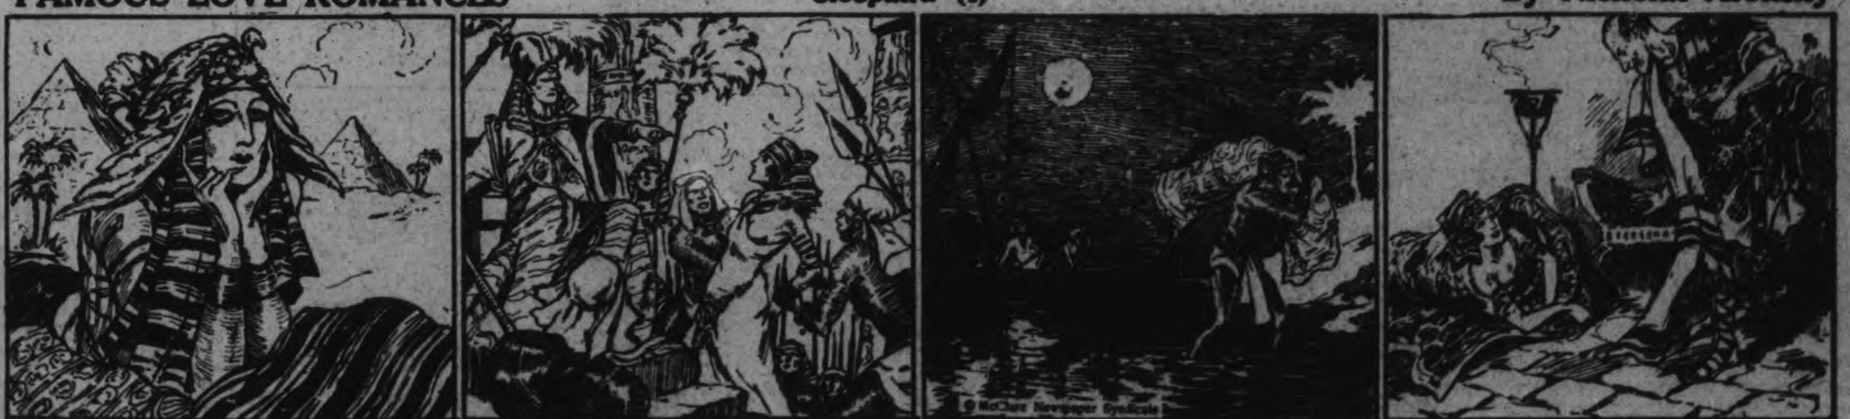
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES Cleopatra (I) By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Cleopatra, one of history's most famous women, is portrayed in a sympathetic light by modern biographers. She was ambitious, they admit, but she was really in love with the two great Roman leaders, Julius Caesar and Mark Antony, whom she captivated, and her union with both was considered legitimate in her Egyptian home.

She was born 68 or 69 B. C. Her father died when she was about 18, leaving her and her younger brother Ptolemy joint rulers of Egypt, with the understanding that they should marry—a conventional arrangement according to Egyptian law. But Ptolemy seized the throne and drove his sister into exile in Syria.

There she gathered an army, but could not regain her throne. At that time Julius Caesar arrived in Egypt to look after his interests there, and Cleopatra, hearing of this, decided to get him to help her. She had herself wrapped in a bundle of rugs and, at night, taken ashore at Alexandria to Caesar's palace.

Cleopatra was a fascinating woman. She was small, probably a brunette, though she was of a Macedonian Greek family. "Her beauty," says one of her early biographers, "was not incomparable." But she had great charm. Her voice was seductive and musical. One can imagine Caesar's delight at the strange contents of the bundle of rugs.

Pains in the Back Quickly Relieved

Ontario Lady Speaks Highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills

"I have taken a number of boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills for Pains in the Back and always got relief at once," writes Mrs. Geo. W. Reddick, Box 45, Spencerville, Ont. "They are just the pill for any trouble of the Kidneys."

The human body, like all other living bodies, is in a constant state of change. One of the commonest changes is a cold, which in a few hours will often derange the whole system. Symptoms are apt to mislead at such times as the weakest part will show the strain, while a few doses of Dodd's Kidney Pills will go directly to the point and remove the whole trouble. Don't delay, take DODD'S to-day.

NEW PASTOR IS WELCOMED

Lakefield Baptists Hold Reception for Rev. J. B. McCormack.

MINISTERS SPEAK

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 30.—On Wednesday evening, January 18th, the members of the Baptist Church held a reception in honor of their new minister, Rev. J. B. McCormack and his wife, who came recently to the village from Clinton, Ontario.

Besides the members of the congregation, the clergy of the village were invited, and some of the members of Gilmour Memorial Church of Smith, which is the mother church of Lakefield Baptist Church.

Rev. W. S. Edgar, of Gilmour Memorial Church, occupied the chair and conducted the opening exercises which were devotional.

Mr. Edgar deplored the restlessness of the age, of evidences which are to be seen in every walk of life. Even the church is not exempt apparently, for in the past five years there have been four ministers in this church. One doesn't know whether pastor or people are to blame, but one feels that the restless age which has invaded everything, even the staid state of matrimony as evidenced by the prevalence of divorce, has not passed the churches by.

Mr. Edgar expressed satisfaction in finding that Mr. McCormack is a Scot, and hopes that he will fulfill his destiny and become a strong power in the community. He urged the people to co-operate with their minister, who is not a superman, but needs their help.

Mr. Edgar closed by hoping that the union brought about between this church and Mr. McCormack may mean the leading of many into the truth and be a force for righteousness. Attendance at church means much tothe minister and also at prayer meeting, which is the power generating station of the church. May the minister and the church pull together for righteousness and truth, he pleaded.

Mrs. Joe Mann sang very sweetly, "Beautiful Garden of Prayer," Miss Wilson acting as accompanist.

Rev. S. A. Kemp, pastor of the Regent Street United Church was the next speaker.

Mr. Kemp expressed both his personal good wishes and those of Regent Street Church. He sympathized with Mr. McCormack in the trials of moving, saying after having moved seven times he felt he was in a position to know the ups and downs pretty thoroughly. "We are all striving to do God's work," said Mr. Kemp, "and we always find in every place men and women who are pure gold, and one finds pleasure in looking back over various circuits and recalling these people. The pastor is the ambassador of God, and people should do all in their power to help on their work and avoid the habits of criticism and its consequent hindrance.

Rev. W. J. Creighton, of St. John's Church was the next speaker. Mr. Creighton announced that although he was the last man to come, he was also the oldest, as it was twenty-one years since he first came to Lakefield and he came again last February. Mr. Creighton expressed his good wishes to the new pastor and he said that there was no reason why they all should not live harmoniously together, even though they could not agree on every point.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidey, of Bridgenorth sang a duet, Mrs. Albert Nicholls being their accompanist. Mr. and Mrs. Sidey sing well together and gave a number of selections which are suitable for such occasions, and were greatly enjoyed. Mr. Aubrey Mitchell delighted the audience with a reading, "The Noble Cabin Boy."

Rev. T. M. Wesley, of Knox United Church was the next speaker. Mr. Wesley and Mr. McCormack are old friends, having been in Norwood at the same time, and Mr. McCormack left a splendid record, both as a man and a pastor. There were other points of contact. They had both preached in the Grantown Baptist Church in Scotland. Mr. Wesley also said he had married a Baptist wife and recommended the procedure.

Mr. Wesley extended his welcome to his old friend and associate, and sees a way for closer union than at present exists for all are passing through difficult days, and if it all leads to greater unity the difficulties will prove a benefit. Mr. Wesley referred to a book written by a Mr. Jones, called "The Christ of the Indian Road," which depicts an incident where a low caste Hindu, a high class Brahmin, an Englishman of high position and an American Roman Catholic layman were all at a gathering and where East and West and different denominations were drawn together in their common testimony for Christ. The denominations are only separated on the non-essentials, and if they all could only united in a common testimony for Christ, the closest sympathy and co-operation would be possible. The things which unite Christians are so much greater than the things which divide, he declared.

Little Miss Beatrice Kidd sang a sacred solo in a pleasing manner, after which Mr. and Mrs. Sidey delighted their audience with another duet. Rev. J. Ross, minister of the Presbyterian Church, was unable to be present.

Master Frederick Darling gave a recitation entitled, "When the minister comes to tea," depicting graphically the material benefits to the small boy when a ministerial visitor comes.

Rev. Mr. McCormack was the last speaker, thanked his brother ministers for their kindly words of welcome, and if all goes on in this way it will be delightful. He wishes to do all possible to lift the ideals of mankind higher than before and to create an uplifting influence.

With reference to the congregation, there are three means of success. First have faith in God; without faith it is impossible to please Him. Have faith in God's supremacy, His power, mercy and love.

Second, have faith that God called the minister before you did, to a work both high and holy. Have faith in the minister as a man set apart by God to lead them to the green pastures.

Third, have faith in the church itself. The members are as strands of a rope which binds all in a closer fellowship and hope to see all pulling together in harmony, and spreading an influence for good in the community.

After the singing of the Doxology the company adjourned to the school room where the ladies served bountiful and appetizing refreshments and a social hour was spent.

Washington Approves Customs Proposals

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Tightening of the restrictions against rum-runners on the border is hoped for by United States officials as a result of recommendations of the Royal Commission on Customs to the Canadian Government. Customs officials of the United States are expected to co-operate energetically in attempting to curb the running of liquor across the international line.

The recommendation, which would limit legal export to liquor legitimately manufactured or that approved by the provincial authorities, met with hearty approval of Frank C. Rose, acting chief of the prohibition branch of the Treasury department. He said the proposal was a "very good one" and that it ought to do much to prevent rum smuggling.

Ernest W. Camp, director of customs, said the recommendations were a step in the right direction. "All customs officials and officials of the Treasury department will welcome the co-operation of the Canadian authorities in seeking to put down smuggling along the border," he said. "It is a fine thing for the Ottawa government to show this attitude of helpfulness and a determination to co-operate further in the joint task we have along the border."

The following oficers were elected: President, Ed. Mahood; Sec.-Treas., Alex. Edmison; Directors, James Young, Fred Scott, Thos. McMullen, Chas. Westlake, Wm. Paul; Auditors, E. Scott and M. Scott.

LADIES' AUXILIARY ELECTS OFFICERS

Mrs. H. Foote Chosen President of Y. M. C. A. Organization.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary for the Y.M.C.A. was held at the home of Mrs. J. J. Turner on Friday, January 27. The election of officers was as follows:

Hon. President, Mrs. William Davidson; President, Mrs. H. Foote; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. G. H. Roper; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Breyfogle; Secretary, Mrs. J. Trussler; Treasurer, Mrs. D. Loomis.

Convenor of House Committee — Mrs. J. J. Turner.

Convenor of Social Committee — Mrs. D. Jordan.

The report of the secretary, Mrs. B. Jackson, showing a very successful year just ended, follows:

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. has been meeting every fourth Friday in the Reading Room of the Y.M.C.A., but the day has been changed to the fourth Monday. The object is to make plans for those residing in the Y.M.C.A. and to secure supplies for the dormitories. On February 14 a successful Valentine tea was held. On April 12 the Auxiliary served supper for the Board and subscribers. On May 12, 13, and 14 the ladies had booths at the boys' Poster and Hobby Show, at which a considerable sum was realized. In September the Auxiliary provided refreshments for the fall rally of the Y.M.C.A. In November the ladies were given the opportunity of serving the Thursday night suppers for the Y'S Men as a means of keeping a little money in the treasury. They are still continuing this work. During the year the Auxiliary has bought twenty-four sheets and eleven bedspreads, and supplied nine cases for the silver. There was also some curtain material bought.

The receipts for the year were $231.68, expenditures $153.30; balance $78.38.

After the business of the meeting was disposed of, the hostess, Mrs. J. J. Turner, served refreshments, and a pleasant half-hour was enjoyed.

Curling

Peterborough curlers are getting into fine trim for the big bonspiel, the event of the year at Peterborough Curling Rink. For three days the local curlers will vie with those from all over Central Ontario for the coveted cups and trophies. Already rinks, from Millbrook, Bobcaygeon, Agincourt, Unionville, Lindsay, Lakefield, Norwood, Keene, Campbellford, Cobourg and Fenelon Falls have indicated that they are coming, and other rinks are expected from Port Hope, Whitby, Oshawa, Orillia, and Owen Sound.

The Peterborough rinks already entered in the bonspiel will be skipped by J. N. Bacon, Ira D. Moore, J. J. Howden, J. Sedgwick, R. L. Dobbin, R. Sturgeon, J. W. Anderson, J. Wiley, M. B. Chenhall, R. F. Downey, W. H. Fletcher, W. G. Morrow, A. C. Kay, J. W. McDermid, and R. Best.

Games will be played at the Curling Rink and at Brock Street, and the trophies curled for will be: The Waddell Cup, Morrow Trophy, Matthews-Blackwell Trophy, and the Peterborough Cup.

T. POST INJURED BY RUNAWAY TEAM

J. Northey's Team Bolts, Crashing Into Cutter Ahead.

While T. Post was driving his horse and cutter on McDonnel Street, west of Aylmer Street, the team owned by J. Northey of Buckhorn, driving behind Mr. Post, took fright and became unmanageable. The team ran a short distance down McDonnel Street, crashing into the back of Mr. Post's cutter and rendering it a mass of broken wood. Mr. Post was slightly injured. The team was captured and driven around the city till quieted down.

MAIN BUILDING GUTTED BY FIRE

room, press room and tool department were destroyed. Luckily, the patterns and most of the tools were carried in a fire-proof vault and so, were unaffected. Those departments not destroyed will be in full swing tomorrow again, shipping is going on as usual, and new quarters are being fitted up for some of the other departments."

Firemen Commended

One thing that is very apparent is the gratitude of company officials and of members of the W. R Turner Company, for the splendid manner in which the firemen tackled their job. Mr. Turner said: "You may quote us as expressing our complete approval of the splendid manner in which they tackled their job. They deserve credit." Mr. Howson was completely in accord with the thought of his neighbors. "They couldn't have done better," he declared.

The Peterborough Lock Company was organized in 1885 by the late Senator George A. Cox, George Hilliard, James Stevenson, and John Burnham, and many other interested citizens The manufacture of locks was commenced in May, 1885, in what was then the Central Iron Works on Simcoe Street. During that year the three-storey building that was destroyed yesterday was built. At the time the Company was organized the capital stock was $50,000.

Around the City

The regular monthly friendly hour was held at the Y.W.C.A. yesterday afternoon, with Miss Brownscombe in charge. Tea was served from half-past four to half-past six o'clock.

On Sunday the Fire Brigade made a run at 12.06 p.m. to the corner of George and Dalhousie Streets, near which a motor car had taken fire in a private garage. The owner, in starting the motor, flooded the carburetor, and the gas fumes were ignited by a stove in the room.

NO AMENDMENT BY OPPOSITION

Conservatives in Caucus Discuss Speech From Throne.

NO ANNOUNCEMENT.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30. — Canadian Press. — The Conservatives will not move any amendment on the address in reply to the speech from the throne. This was the decision arrived at to-day at the first caucus of the opposition since the opening of the House.

While a general discussion of the speech from the throne took place there was no announcement to make at the conclusion of the meeting on the party attitude on any particular question referred to in the speech.

SERVICE STATION IS TO BE ERECTED

H. B. Norwick Plans To Replace House Occupied By Dr. King.

H. B. Norwick, of Toronto, contemplates erecting a gasoline service station on the corner of Stewart and Charlotte Streets, on the property formerly owned by Dr. King. The plans of the new service station have been filed with the city engineer, but as yet no building permit has been granted. The estimated cost is $4,500, and the building is supposed to be erected by March 31.

Obituary

MRS. F. J. R. MITCHELL

Terminating a lifetime of seventy-seven years, fifty of which were spent in this city, death came today, January 30, to Emily Mitchell, widow of the late F. J. R. Mitchell. Mrs. Mitchell's loss to a wide circle of friends is a great one, for she had many sterling qualities. She was born in Wiltshire, England.

The funeral will take place from her late residence, 786 Water Street, on Wednesday afternoon, February 1, at 2.00 p.m., proceeding to Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

JOSEH BURNS.

MADOC, Jan. 30. — The funeral service of the late Joseph Burns was held in St. Peter's Presbyterian church on Monday, 23rd, at 2.30 p.m., and were conducted by the pastor, Rev. T. G. Marshall. There was a very large congregation present, made up of friends of the deceased from far and near. The services were impressive throughout, and a very beautiful and appropriate duet, "In That Beautiful Land," was sung by Messrs G. Gillespie and Wm. Hawthorne.

The sermon was based on the words of Jesus, "Not as I will, but as Thou wilt," and Mr. Marshall impressed on all the great necessity of complete submission of self to God at all times, like the Master, who saw the hand of the Father in joy or in sorrow.

The service at the grave was in charge of Madoc Masonic Lodge No. 48, A.F. & A.M., of which the deceased had been a member. A large number of the brethren from neighboring lodges were present.

The late Mr. Burns had resided in North Hastings most of his life, and had been active in the civic and community life of the county and village. He had been a life-long Conservative, and had served the village for several years as councillors, and then as Reeve and county councillor.

Mr. Burns was a brick manufacturer in earlier years, but later he has been fish and game inspector for North Hastings. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, and belonged to the Masonic Order.

Mr. Burns was in his seventy-first year. Besides a wife, he leaves a son and two daughters. One son was killed overseas, the first from this village to pay the supreme sacrifice.

Reaction Set In In New York To-day

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Pronounced re-actionary tendencies developed in to-day's stock market in apparent reflection of speculative uneasiness over the credit situation. Call money renewed at 4½ per cent., but advanced to five in the early afternoon as banks called $25,000,000 in loans, presumably in anticipation of month-end settlements. Trading was only moderately heavy in volume. The stock market had disregarded the stiffening of time money and commercial paper rates last week. Buying operations had centred largely, however, in a limited assortment of pool specialties, but the failure of small buyers to follow the advance led to heavy profit-taking and the resumption of bear selling.

Corn Prices Firmer As Wheat Weakens

CHICAGO, January 30 (Canadian Press). — Corn prices steadied early to-day after a moderate initial sag. Receipts of corn in Chicago, although large, failed to reach as heavy a total as had been looked for. Opening unchanged to ⅜c to ½c off, the corn market soon rallied, going in some cases to above Saturday's finish. Wheat was easy, starting unchanged to ⅜ lower and subsequently keeping near to this range. Oats showed but little alternation. Provisions tended to decline.

Opening prices were: Wheat, March 130⅛, May 130⅜. Corn, March 86⅞, May 89⅞. Oats, March 54, May 55¼.

Mine Trade Irregular With Sudden Changes

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Weakness of some of the newer Western mines and occasional sharp advances in the rest of the list marked this morning's session of the Standard Mining Exchange. The whole list was irregular, with gains and losses apparently evenly divided in lighter trading.

Treadwell Yukon sold down a dollar at 29.50, and Pend O'Reille lost 45 cents at 8.50, while Hudson Bay Smelters dropped 45 at 20.95. Sherritt Gordon eased 15 at 635 and Sudbury Basin weakened five at 12.85. In the regular list the feature was an eight point gain in Arno at 31 in heavy trading. Bidgood improved 1½ at 90 and Castle Trethewey sold up 5½ at 70½. Nipissing, Crown Reserve, Howey, and Teck Hughes firmed.

The Kirkland Lakes were without definite movement. While Lake Shore effected a fifty cent gain at 25.500, both Kirkland Lake Gold and Hunton eased slightly at 19⅝ and 2.34. Wright Hargreaves firmed a point at 5.66, and Teck Hughes firmed five at 9.05.

Seagrams Is Leader In Active Trading

TORONTO, Jan. 30. Canadian Press. — Seagram's was the strong leader of the active market on the Toronto stock exchange this morning. After selling up 31⅝ it closed at 31 for a net gain of 2 points. Building products was another active stock, advancing 1⅜ to 40⅜, while Muirheads in heavy trading was up ¾ at 15½. The list showed irregularity. The strong issues included F N Burt up 4 at 76; Loblaw's up 2 at 114, Shredded Wheat up 1¾ at 74 3-4, and Bristish American Oil fractionally firmer at 38. Among the easier issues, Massey-Harris and International Nickel each lost 1 1-4 at 43 1-4 and 97, while Hiram Walkers eased slightly at 64.

NO TRACE FOUND OF MISSING BOAT

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—No further developments occurred to-day in the search for the cabin cruiser Sea Hawk and its crew of four men. who started out from Rochester on January 18 on a trial trip and have not been heard from since. Both Ray Walker, of Oswego, N.Y., brother of one of the missing men, and F. H. Taylor, of Watertown, have returned to Watertown after a visit by airplane here. Their plane suffered damage in a run on the ice of the harbor here yesterday, and Taylor, its owner, is expected to return in another plane with the necessary parts to repair it.

C.G.I.T. GIRLS MEETINGS END

Addresses By Miss Sinclair Feature Conference Sessions.

BANQUET IS HELD.

The C.G.I.T. conference met in St. Paul's church on Saturday morning at 9.15. After a service of worship conducted by Miss Sinclair they divided into three groups for discussion of Social Standards, Leisure Time Activities, and Missionary Education and World Fellowship. Uniting, they discussed a C.G.I.T. girl at school, Recreation, Games.

These discussions proved very helpful and instructive, Miss Sinclair and the group leaders going from one group to another, helping the girls to understand fully the problems and be able to face them.

After singing a hymn the meeting was dismissed.

In the afternoon a jolly skating and tobogganing party was held at Riverside. After thoroughly enjoying themselves the girls returned to the George Street United church for the banquet at 6 p.m. and did ample justice to the good things provided by the ladies of the W.M.S. The room was decorated in blue and white, the C.G.I.T. colors, the tables similarly adorned. After singing, each group gave its yell.

Reports Given.

Reports of camp councils were given, showing their activities. St. Andrew's gave an entertainment for underprivileged children, Knox a tea meeting, Millbrook quilted for the Lithuanians in Alberta, George Street had a play, which they repeated in Lakefield.

A hearty vote of thanks to the ladies of George Street Women's Missionary Society for providing such a bountiful supper was moved by Miss Helen Ross and seconded by Miss Phyliss Rome.

Mrs. Coon, president of the Society, replied briefly expressing her delight to help on the work.

Mrs. J. E. Todd expressed her pleasure at being able to be present at this supper of the C.G.I.T. conference.

During the supper hour a telegram was received from the Perth C.G.I.T. conference, which was also in session, wishing the Peterborough C.G.I.T. conference every success. This was received with much applause.

The evening session, which aws open to the public opened at 8 p.m. with the president, Miss Arleigh McKone, presiding.

Miss Margaret Vance gave a splendid paper on "The Spirit of C.G.I.T. in Our Homes," speaking of how girls may improve their habits, and give service in the home, and if they are not privileged to get a higher education may improve their intellects by reading good literature.

Miss Anderson then told a very interesting story of a dream which two children had of going with a fairy in search of happiness. After being presented with a magic green cap with a diamond on one side of it they went to the Land of Memory to see their grandfather and grandmother and bring back a blue bird with them, but to their amazement it turned black when they got it home. They then went to the palace of Night and the Queen gave them a key to the wonderful Garden of Dreams. The garden was full of moonlight and in every moonbeam was a blue bird. The children took back several blue birds but when they reached home they were dead. They next visited a churchyard at midnight to see the spirits of the dead. They found there were no dead. Returning home they found it was all a dream, but next day as they were doing a good turn for a neighbor their black bird turned blue again. "Sooner or later the blue-bird of happiness will come into our lives. We all chase it in search of happiness, but at last come home to find it," said Miss Anderson.

A paper on the C.G.I.T. Spirit in Our Schools was given by Miss Clara Patterson. Girls at school make many friends and often form friendships which last through life. Schools play an invaluable part in socializing girls and fitting them for future service at home and to the world.

The C.G.I.T. Spirit in Our Churches was the title of a paper by Miss Helen Ross. C.G.I.T. girls should link themselves up with a church and give it their loyal support. Enter it with reverence, take part in services of praise and prayer. Do your part and be the girl God would have you be.

The C.G.I.T. Spirit in Our Communities was taken up by Miss Muriel Wilson. The C.G.I.T. are groups of girls banded together by an ideal and they leave an influence on a community. By patient effort great benefit is derived and great ends attained. The community is made to feel their existence through their right relationship with one another, mutual helpfulness and love of their neighbors. This will displace the selfishness that is causing so much trouble in the world to-day.

The girls of St. Andrew's Church presented a pageant from Robert Havin Schauffer's poem, "Scum o' the Earth." Before the pageant was presented Mrs. McKone explained its meaning. It depicts the treatment shown to immigrants to Canada. During the pageant Mrs. McKone was at the piano, playing softly. Miss Dorothy Henry acted as reader, giving splendid expression to the poem. The following are the characters:

Greek Youth, Helen Ross; Polish Mother, Margaret Lockington; Czech Fiddler, Arleigh McKone; Italian Boy, Viola Dobbin; Hebrew Man, Grace Koster.

At the conclusion of the pageant they saluted the Union Jack, repeated the C.G.I.T. pledge, and sang "O Canada."

Miss Sinclair, the talented speaker from the Provincial Girls' Work Board, Toronto, spoke, taking as her subject: "To be alive in such an age."

Miss Sinclair thanked the chairman of the local board for making this conference such a success. The Spirit of the C.G.I.T. is all over the Dominion. Last summer a branch was formed in Palestine. "Why do we belong to the C.G.I.T.? Think about it. Be earnest in our purpose. Cherish health. Be loyal to your pledge—tip-toe to life. We are to be the future women of Canada, holding a high position. I challenge you to live up to your purpose," she urged.

"Listen to your mothers and teachers. They had to learn by experience and they are your best friends.

"Have clean thoughts and your bodies will be more beautiful.

"Be particular as to your social standards. Dr. Margaret Patterson, woman magistrate, says: 'Girls who smoke are not worrying about their future, as they have no future to worry about.'

"Be particular as to your dress.

"Live up to your high calling in life; spirit of religion is last and best."

In conclusion Miss Sinclair expressed the pleasure she had derived from coming to Peterborough and meeting the girls and leaders of the C.G.I.T. groups. She would think of this time as treasure days in her life. She entreated the delegates to go back to their groups with the spirit of the conference.

The closing session of the conference was held in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon at 4.15. Mr. Chenhall presided at the organ, and gave a short organ recital, which was much appreciated. A processional hymn was sung as the delegates marched into the church, taking their seats at the front. The president, Miss Arleigh McKone, was in charge of the meeting, and pronounced the invocation. The secretary, Miss Jane Cathcart, read a report of the conference. A portion of Scripture was read by Arleigh McKone and Dorothy Henry led in prayer. Miss Edith Sinclair was then called upon to address the gathering. She took as her theme, "To be alive in such an age, to live to it, to give to it."

"Each one of us is to remember we are girls in training for Christ, because as girls and women we want to give the best to Christ, to have in our minds clean thoughts, and in our hearts high ideals," she said.

"The most beautiful thing in life is a young maid looking forward into life to a noble womanhood. Love of God will help us and keep us from temptations in these days of stress and strife. Our mothers can help us so much, many talented women say all they are they owe to their mother. Our mothers had the same problems that we have. We are to be the women of to-morrow and our mothers and teachers can help us. Jesus, the greatest Teacher of all, is standing outside the heart of each girl, knocking, knocking, and asking us to go along the road of noble womanhood. We must decide to let Jesus come into our hearts and help us over the rough places if we are going to be strong and noble and carry on as the women of to-day are carrying on, or as Florence Nightingale and Laura Secord challenge us, to be strong, to be ready, to be prepared.

"Last summer we celebrated the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation. We were thrilled, we thought of our ancestors. We saw ourselves as the women of to-morrow. I am sure those noble statesmen, the Fathers of Confederation, planned this great Dominion to be bound together with bands of love.

"Girls, to-day as we look at the picture we see a great muddle. In every province we see hundreds of newcomers. Do they think we love them? We who are British are apt to feel so superior. 'Can Canada become a land of love if we continue to look on ourselves in this way? We who are the girls of to-day must learn that many of these immigrants come from noble lines and have much to give us as we have much to give them. Scattered all over the land, all over Ontario, are girls with great ability, just full of life. How are they to follow in the footsteps of the brave women of the past?

"To be alive in such an age. To live to it, to give to it. Let Jesus come into your lives that you may have life and have it more abundantly."

A friendship circle was then formed, composed of C.G.I.T. girls and all girls present who were interested in the work. With crossed hands they formed a huge circle down two aisles and across the front, and repeated the C.G.I.T. pledge.

"As a G.G.I.T girl in training, I purpose—To Know God.

"As a G.G.I.T girl in training, I purpose—To Seek Truth.

"As a G.G.I.T girl in training, I purpose—To Cherish Health.

"As a G.G.I.T girl in training, I purpose—To Serve Others."

The conference was brought to a close with prayer by Miss Sinclair.

COURT REVERSES FRAUD CONVICTION

Finds No Evidence of Conspiracy of Seguires To Defraud.

TORONTO, Jan. 30. Canadian Press. — The First Divisional Court has allowed the appeal of Charles H. Seguire, a farmer of Brighton, who was found guilty at Cobourg and sentenced to three years for alleged conspiracy to defraud a neighbour, Geo. Palmateer of $3000. The court holds that there is no evidence that James Seguire, father of the accused, knew anything of the transaction in which his son and Palmateer were interested, so the son could not be guilty of conspiracy with him.

Palmateer borrowed $3250 from Seguire Senior, to embark with the son on a deal in morphine at Montreal. They went down together and the money entrusted to Seguire disappeared without any morphine being forthcoming. Seguire says he bought the morphine and it was stolen. Palmateer says that Seguire told him the money had been stolen from him.

Party Leaders Dispute On Immigration Question

FIFTEEN CLUBS REPRESENTED AT PETERBOROUGH BONSPIEL

Forty-four Rinks Taking Part in the Annual Open Competition.

WELCOMED BY MAYOR.

Play Gets Under Way Early For First Trophy—Many Old-timers Here.

Forty-four rinks commenced curling at the Peterborough Curling Club's bonspiel this morning for the four coveted trophies and the valuable prizes that go along with them.

His Worship Mayor Denne and President Copping of the Curling Club, welcomed the visiting curlers and wished them success and a pleasant sojourn in the city.

Dr. Henry, of Oshawa, made the draw for the Morrow Trophy, and then the grand old game was begun on a keen sheet of ice.

Many of the old-timers are back. John Steele, of Millbrook, who has been curling at the Peterborough bonspiels for over 30 years, was matched against J. W. McDermid in the preliminary. Dr. Harvie, of Orillia, is back with a strong rink, defending the Morrow Trophy, which he has won two years in succession.

Three rinks are here from Bobcaygeon, one from Cobourg, two from Dunsford, three from Fenelon Falls, one from Hastings, four from Keene, four from Lindsay, one from Lakefield, two from Millbrook, one from Norwood, one from Orillia, four from Oshawa, fifteen from Peterborough, one from Unionville, and one from Stouffville.

The entry list this year is somewhat smaller than last on account of the big bonspiel in Barrie and several other small 'spiels in other sections.

The draw was made late this morning for the Matthews-Blackwell Trophy and curling commenced in this series late in the afternoon.

NAMES WANTED.

List of City and County Men Who Died is at Present Incomplete.

The attention of those whose relatives or friends gave their lives for King and Country during the Great War is called to the list published in Monday night's Examiner. They are asked to look it over and advise The Examiner of any omissons or corrections. Where only initials are given The Examiner would be pleased to receive the Christian names.

Plan New Building Replace College Hall

VILLANOVA, Pa., Jan. 31. — Canadian Press. — Plans for a new fireproof building to replace College Hall at Villanova College, were announced yesterday by the Rev. James Griffin, O. S.A., President of the college.

Sunday night flames destroyed the old hall with a loss estimated at $2,000,000. New and costly scientific instruments were lost in the fire.

Father Griffin announced that all classes would be suspended for a week and then resumed at temporary headquarters.

The cause of the fire is undetermined.

HAIG FINISHED WAR HISTORY

Reported That It Contains Many Secrets Not Otherwise Revealed.

INSTRUCTIONS LEFT.

LONDON, Jan. 31 (Canadian Press).—The Daily Sketch today said that it was understood that the late Earl Douglas Haig had completed a history of the Great War. The book was said to have contained more of secret history than is now available and Earl Haig decided that it should not be published during his lifetime. It is believed that he left explicit instructions how the book should be dealt with.

EARL OF WARWICK DEAD IN ENGLAND

As Lord Brooke He Commanded Brigade in C.E.F. During War.

HOVE, Sussex, Eng., Jan. 31. — (Canadian Press.)—The Earl of Warwick died to-day after a lengthy illness, aged 45 years. During the great war he was an aide de camp to Lord French and commander of the Fourth and Twelfth Infantry Brigades.

The Earl of Warwick (Leopold Guy Francis Maynard Greville) who only succeeded to the title in 1924, crowded many activities into his life, seeing service in the South African and European wars and serving as a war correspondent for Reuters in the Russo-Japanese war.

As Lord Brooke he was aide de camp to Inspector General of British Forces from 1908 to 1912 and again in 1914. He commanded the Second Canadian Cavalry Brigade in 1913 and was present at manoeuvres at Pettawawa, Ontario, in 1914. He was appointed secretary to the Chief of the Imperial General Staff in 1913.

The Earl's heir is Charles G. Fulke (Lord Brooke) who is nearly seventeen years old. Two younger sons and his widow, former Elfrida Marjorie Eden, daughter of Sir William Eden, to whom he was married in 1909, survive.

A Popular Officer.

MONTREAL, January 31 (Canadian Press).—"The death of the Earl of Warwick, more familiarly known to so many ex members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force as Lord Brooke, recalls a very likeable personality. He commanded for a short time the Fourth Brigade of our Second Division, and was popular with all ranks," General Sir Arthur Currie, Commander of the Canadian Corps in France, said on being informed of the death of the Earl of Warwick in England.

"Yesterday's sad news of the loss of our old chief, followed so soon by the passing of another British officer who served with us, leaves us with heavy hearts and shows how time's ruthless artillery daily leaves its gaps in our ranks," Sir Arthur said.

Legion Notes

Word has been sent to Captain J. Abraham, President of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, that memorial services for the late Field Marshal Earl Haig, who passed away suddenly yesterday, will be held throughout Canada on Sunday, February 12th. Full particulars will be received from Dominion Headquarters in a few days, when the local Executive will meet to make arrangements for the service to be held in Peterborough.

This Woman Saved $125 By Buying Her Fur Coat In Peterboro Store; Changed Her Opinion of Toronto

This is a story that should interest the women of this city and district. Briefly, it relates the experience of a Peterborough woman who saved $125 in the purchase of a fur coat.

Two hours after her husband had told it to The Examiner he telephoned somewhat anxiously: "My wife has been giving me fits since I got home and told her I had been talking to you about the fur coat she bought. If there is any hint of our identity in what you write it will be all up with me."

Some time ago this lady needed a new coat. She decided she might as well buy a fur one. As a preparation for her shopping campaign she read all the available information about furs and fur styles. Gradually this coat of her dreams and fancies took definite shape even to the detailed specifications. It was to be of Hudson seal, and the muskrat fur must be the Rice Lake quality, with Kolinsky collar and cuffs and a certain lining.

The next thought was a trip to Toronto. Summer of that year was passing and the cold weather would soon be here.

"Why not look around the Peterborough fur stores," her husband advised, but the lady of the coat believed that she "could do better" in Toronto. She had been long a resident of this city and sentiment of local loyalty had not developed in her affections. This purchase of a coat was business, and nothing else.

So Mr. and Mrs. X went to Toronto. First they visited a Yonge Street fur store, but nothing she saw there materialized the lady's dream coat. Down Yonge Street they went to another store and spent more than four hours in its fur department.

A saleslady extolled the Rice Lake rat, spoke of its size and weight and said it was peculiarly agreeable and susceptible to dyeing. Besides, the quantity was limited and only a certain number of coats could be made from the supply of pelts reaching Toronto.

Mrs. X was attracted to one coat. Its price was $600. It complied in general with her unwritten specifications; but the price did seem high.

Then, as the husband related it: "I suggested that she delay any purchase until she had looked over the stock of the Peterborough fur stores. It was a matter of plain justice to them, I said, and she might see a coat she liked at a lower figure.

Well, my wife visited the local stores, and was more than pleased with what she saw. However, there was no hurry about buying. The Peterborough Exhibition came on just then, and in a display of furs there she saw a coat that had the collar and cuffs she wanted. But the coat material did not appeal to her. The next week she called at that fur store and found the coat she was looking for. It was guaranteed Rice Lake fur, but my wife did not like the lining. It did not fit in with her ideal, but she saw in the store's stock the lining material she wanted.

"Now, see what the furrier did. First there was the coat my wife wanted, but she didn't like its lining. It had to be relined with the material from stock. And, more than that, the Kolinsky collar and cuffs were on another coat, the one she had seen at the Exhibition. The furrier agreed to make that change and presently my wife had her coat, just as she had dreamed and planned it. It was a composite coat, and required a little trouble to turn out, but in the end everyone was happy.

"And that coat cost us $125 less than the coat my wife was on the point of ordering from the Toronto store. Some saving, wasn't it. There is also the advantage of getting the local service on it whenever it might be needed. That experience convinced us that you don't have to go out of Peterborough for real values in fur coats.

"And I was told that a man who had something to do with the lighting at the Exhibition that year took home two coats with him; one for his wife and one for his sister-n-law. By the way, a friend of mine near Orillia mentioned to me not long ago that he needed a coon coat for getting about the country, and I steered him right down here to Peterborough. He bought it a week ago."

PRESIDES AT ASSIZES.

MR. JUSTICE LOGIE.

The spring assizes opened this afternoon before the Hon. Mr. Justice Logie. On one case, that of Heard vs. May, the result of a motor accident last spring, is on the docket, and at the last moment it was decided to try the case without a jury. As no criminal cases are on the docket and the public institutions were inspected last December, His Lordship dismissed the ten men who answered to their names for Grand Jury service. Those summoned to appear for petit jury service were also dismissed.

THREE INJURED TOBOGGANING

Toboggan Swerves From Course Into Thorn Bush at St. Catharines.

BOY'S LEG BROKEN.

ST. CATHARINES Jan. 31, Canadian Press. — Three persons were injured and three others had narrow escapes when the toboggan on which they were riding swerved from its course, crashed into a large thorn bush, and threw its occupants off on the hill at the rear of a school building on the Pelham road here yesterday.

Charles McClelland, 12, was taken to hospital with a fractured leg; Marian Lake, 17, with a splinter piercing her thigh, and other severe injuries from splinters, and Mrs. Ella Selby, with a long gash on her leg, other cuts, and a severe shaking up.

LOCAL COMPANY'S BUSINESS GROWS

Shareholders of the Gallagher Remedy Company Hold Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of Gallagher Remedies Limited was held last night at Hooper's, where the shareholders enjoyed a splendid dinner before taking up the business of the company. In his report as president, W. H. Kidd reviewed the position of the company and showed very marked progress in the year's work, and announced the payment of the usual dividends on preferred stock. A big step forward has recently been taken by the launching of a comprehensive advertising campaign and the linking up of the present sales staff with one of the largest sales agencies in Canada. Mr. Kidd also announced that the three big sellers of the year were "Gallagher Blood Purifier," 'Gallagher's Kidney Remedy," and "Gallagher's Indian Lung Remedy," although the other remedies continued in steady demand. In speaking to the president's report, E. C. Squire of Norwood stated that he became a shareholder because of the demand for Gallagher remedies in his store and he predicted that the shares would some day be very valuable. E. C. Cuffe of Norwood also spoke in appreciation of the management of the company and the high merit of its products. Issac McNab of Peterborough, in making the nomination for the Board of Directors, mentioned the favorable impression of the medicines and the management of the company which had induced him to become a shareholder. The following were appointed directors for the coming year: Messrs. Walter Kidd, J. E. Smith, Earl Kidd, Joseph Wearing, David Kidd, J. A. Dewart, Fred Fife.

Crucial Questions Involving Latin States Relations Up For Settlement.

PROTEST INTERVENTION.

Scheduled For Discussion Before Conference Commission On International Law.

HAVANA, Jan. 31.—United States policies in the Caribbean region are slated for trial this week when the delegates to the sixth Pan-American Conference take up the fundamental bases of international law and the existence, equality and recognition of States.

Crucial questions involving such issues as intervention and the duty of every American republic to govern itself in an orderly manner and to fulfill its obligations, are scheduled for discussion before the Conference Commission on International Law.

This commission has as its chairman Dr. Gustavo Guerrero, of Salvador. Foreign Minister and recognized as a critic of American policy in the Caribbean.

Against Intervention.

Matters of intervention and the duties of States are to be dealt with in a special report submitted by Dr. Maurtua, of Peru, a recognized authority on international law. The United Sattes is represented on the Commission by former Secretary of States Hughes, Ambassador Henry Fletcher and Dr. James Brown Ascott.

Dr. Maurtua's report, it is authoritatively forecast, will declare against intervention as such, and at the same time will point out the duties of the American republics to comply with their international obligations.

The Peruvian international jurist, it is believed, will indicate that the time has passed when any nation can ignore its obligations to the rest of the world and embark upon a programme contrary to the precepts of international law. A State must have a "constituted government," and also that "degree of civilization such as enables it to observe the principles of international law."

Debate On U.S. Action.

At the same time in accordance with the recommendation made by the Commission of Jurists, which met last year at Rio de Janeiro, Dr. Maurtua's report is expected to contain this significant provision.

No State may intervene in the internal affairs of another.

It will be in this connection that the actions of the United States in the Caribbean region will become the subject of debate. In all probability, no specific act by the American Government will be mentioned in the debate, but the references will be clear enough for all.

The distinction from the American standpoint lies between intervention and interposition. The recent case of Nicaragua, for example, is regarded as an instance of interposition, with the consent of the authorities of the Republic and at their invitation.

Mexico Has Different View.

Mexico and the Dominion Republic have a different view. They already have sought the adoption of a declaration that "the consent given to the occupying State by the State occupied will not legitimatize the occupation." The chief of the Dominican delegation has asserted that his country did not give its consent to the American occupation of ten years ago.

FAMILY SECRETS WILL BE EXPOSED

To Be Introduced in Court to Save Hickman From Gallows.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.— (Canadian Press.)—Family secrets, gathered from the hills of Arkansas and brought to Los Angeles court room in the hope that they would save William Hickman from the gallows, heightened interest in the sanity trial of the youthful kidnapper and murderer to-day.

The State rested after reading the indictment charging Hickman with the kidnapping and slaying of twelve year old Marian Parker and citing his plea of "not guilty by reason of insanity," which is a legal admission of having committed the crimes charged.

Mexican War Official Announces Intention of Troops To Wipe Out Band.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 31.— (Canadian Press.) — Under Secretary of War Migual Pina announced to-day that forty rebels were killed in a clash with Federal soldiers at Cerrovarde, State of Michoacan, Friday. He said the Federal troops would not return until the rebels were completely exterminated.

Hon. R. B. Bennett Wants Resources Given To Alberta

Opens Debate On Address With Domestic Affairs, Imperial Relations as Subjects in His Initial Address as Leader of the Opposition.

GALLERIES CROWDED WITH SPECTATORS; RECEPTION IS TENDERED COSGRAVE

OTTAWA, Ont., January 31 (Canadian Press). — The debate on the address in the House yesterday—coupled with the reception to President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State—brought crowds to Parliament Hill reminiscent of the stirring days two years ago with their constant struggle for party supremacy. Down the corridors, hour after hour, where a long queue waited for admission to the House galleries of the House and to the reception.

It was the first occasion on which Hon. R. B. Bennett, as Conservative leader, and Premier King had been at issue across the floor of the House. Mr. Bennett opened. Domestic affairs, Imperial relations, and foreign relations were the subjects which he set for himself. He found a serious unemployment situation in the Dominion, a decline in railway revenue, and a decrease in population. Emphasizing immigration questions, he urged a committee of the House of Commons to hold an inquiry into the present situation to remove a suspicion that was abroad in Canada regarding the Department of Immigration. Declining immigration threatened the life of the Dominion and the problem must be met in a large way involving large expenditures of money. The Conservative leader was positive in demanding immediate pension legislation and the return of the natural resources of Alberta to that province.

The equality of status claimed for Canada by members of the Government was "a species of deception" to which he could not be a party. "I am opposed to setting up those foreign legations instead of appointing trade commissioners," he said. "It was all nonsense" to talk about improving Canada's status by the sending of a Minister to Japan. The implications of such things were most dangerous.

Dispute on Immigration.

Premier King, early in his speech, took issue with Mr. Bennett on the subject of immigration and unemployment. The employment situation had not been better for years, and the Government did not propose to extend immigration to the point where it would bring about unemployment. Building statistics, bank returns, and the debt reduction were brought into the speech to prove the prosperity of Canada.

A glimpse into the Budget possibilities were offered to the House when the Prime Minister said he would be much surprised if the Minister of Finance would not announce "a reduction in the public debt, a surplus, and further tax reductions."

St. Lawrence Situation.

The Prime Minister took the occasion to give the House the first official statement on the St. Lawrence waterway situation since the Advisory Committee concluded its work. The Government, he said, was communicating with the United States to obtain the views of that country on certain fundamental points which had been recommended by the Advisory Committee and until the Government of the United States had replied, he could not say how far the negotiations would proceed. The question of Federal and Provincial rights in connection with the waterway had been referred to the Supreme Court of Canada by an Order-in-Council recently passed.

The Prime Minister was still speaking when the House rose at 6 o'clock. He will continue his part in the debate on Tuesday. Last night members of Parliament and Senators attended the Government dinner to President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State.

Referred to Court.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 31 (Canadian Press).—Canada is replying to the United States' request for an expression of the Dominion's views regarding the St. Lawrence waterway project. Premier M. L. Mackenzie King, in making this announcement in the House yesterday during the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the Throne, further declared that the question of the jurisdiction of the Dominion and the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec in regard to the power developed was being referred to the Supreme Court of Canada for decision. The Order-in-Council authorizing the reference, stated the Prime Minister, had been passed and approved.

"We are giving to the United States," declared Premier King, "an expression of opinion, based upon the

Kidnapping System Worked For 3rd Time

CHICAGO Ills. Jan. 31. — The "kidnapping" system of bank robbery used for the third time within a month in Chicago yesterday netted its practitioners $3,000. James Dillon, cashier of the Industrial State Bank of Chicago, told the police that he was held a prisoner in the bank all night while his four captors waited for the time lock in the dark vault to open at 7 a.m., The quartette escaped after looting the vault, leaving the cashier bound and gagged.

HAIG'S GRAVE AT BERMISYDE

Marshal Will Be Buried at Scotch Home at Own Request.

NO SERVICE AT ST. PAUL'S.

LONDON, January 31 (Canadian Press).—Although there had been every expectation that the late Earl Haig would be buried in St. Paul's with the highest honors that could be accorded a British military hero, it was announced to-day that burial, at the Field Marshal's own wish, will be at his beloved Scotch home at Bermisyde.

It is likely that there will be no services whatever in St. Paul's, where so many of Great Britain's famous military figures lie buried. It is now believed that the first part of the funeral will be held at Westminster Abbey, probably on Friday.

Rev. W. H. Foley Gives Illustrated Address to Young People.

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 31.— The Young People's League of the Bailieboro United Church held its weekly meeting on Tuesday evening, January 24. After the devotional period, the Rev. H. W. Foley gave a lecture with lantern slides on the commercial and industrial life of India. The congregation of the church, were invited and a large number attended the interesting meeting.

IN POLICE COURT

HAVELOCK, January 31. — Three men pleaded guilty to driving horse-drawn vehicles after dark without the regulation lights, and were fined $2.00, and costs, each. Magistrate Langley, in imposing the fines, said that the law must be kept, and hence forth he would fine the law-breaker $5.00.

The Weather

The temperature this morning at daybreak was 2 degrees above zero; during the night it had been down to 4 below. It is now likely to be considerably milder. This has been a very moderate winter month. To-morrow I hope to give the reader some details.—W. P.

STORMS DISRUPT TRAFFIC ALONG ATLANTIC SEABOARD

Several Ocean-Going Vessels Become Lost During Lashing Gale.

ON LOOKOUT FOR S-3.

Estimated $250,000 Damage Done To Produce By Frost in Florida.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (Canadian Press).—A high wind lashed the Eastern states from the Great Lakes to the Everglades and piled deep snow over wide areas had spent its fury last night, its cost was counted. During the storm the submarine S-3 with 43 officers and men aboard, was separated from several others with which it was proceeding to Cuba and last night it had not yet been found.

The coastguard cutter 107, which was reported missing when communication with it failed, was found safe at the Delaware Capes, having suffered no morse disablement than the stalling of its wireless.

The Norwegian frieghter Arica, which sent out an SOS Sunday, had not been found.

About all that was left of the storm yesterday was general severe cold, but in many sections the temperature was rising steadily if slowly.

Temperature Freakish

The temperature was freakish. It was one degree colder in Washington than it was in Portland, Me. Temperatures throughout the Eastern States varied from 30 degrees below zero, the mark recorded at Saranac Lake in upper New York, to just below freezing.

The mercury was well below freezing in Florida, Saturday and Sunday, and killing frosts, the worst in ten years, caused heavy produce damage. Estimates of the total loss there were not available, but in Dado County alone the loss was believed to be $250,000.

Two-thirds of all the tender truck crops in Southern Florida was reported to have been killed when the temperature was at its lowest and agricultural agents said that replanting was the only course left to growers.

Order Search

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 31 (Canadian Press).—The submarine S-3 lost contact with a convoy south of Watteras at sundown Saturday, and word has not been heard from her since.

While officials expressed confidence that the submarine, a sister ship of the sunken S-4, would turn up all right at Guantanamo, Cuba, her destination, the navy department yesterday ordered an intensive search for the submersible.

The S-3, with its crew of 41 men, became separated from the control force, bound for Winter manoeuvres, in a gale, 100 miles south of Cape Hatteras, one of the worst storm centres on the Atlantic coast. A report that she had lost contact with seven other submarines, the Camden, a submarine tender, and the new aeroplane carrier Saratoga, was received at the navy department early yesterday.

In addition to the ships of the convoy, who have been on the lookout for the S—3, the department late yesterday ordered the light cruisers Milwaukee, Raleigh and Memphis and a squadron of destroyers to proceed from Cuban waters in search of the missing craft. At the department, officers, while plainly concerned, said they would have no grave fears for the S-3 until after Wednesday night, when she is due at Guantanamo. The ship is in command of Lieut. P. W. Warren, of Springfield, Ills.

The official report that the S-3 was missing came from Rear Adimral Frank H. Brumby, aboard the Camden as commander of the control force. Some officers here believed that the submarine's radio apparatus might have been put out of commission, a mishap which such ships frequently have in rough weather.

Disappearance Not Unusual

The navy department announced that such disappearances were "not unusual in small vessels during bad weather conditions which are existing."

Admiral Hughes said that if the submarine had been in a collision, the navy department would have heard of the mishap at least from the other ship. He suggested that any of a number of things such as dampness, the breaking of the antenna mast or engine trouble could have caused the craft to lose contact with its convoy.

The sea, where the S-3 was last reported, is about two miles deep. Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, declined to make public the names of the crew, other than officers.

DON'T STAY FAT IN THESE DAYS

You see countless people who have gained new beauty, new health and vim, by fighting excess fat. Some have done this by abnormal exercise and diet, some in a modern, scientific way. Why not follow their example?

There is a way based on scientific research. It combats a cause of excess fat which starvation cannot fight. That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets, now used for 20 years. Millions of boxes of them. The results you see wherever you look should induce you to accept them.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the reasons for results. So there is no secret, no reason to fear harm. You will know that all the good results come in a natural way. Go learn them now, by asking your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola.

CONVICTION QUASHED.

Appellate Division Hands Down Decision in Elliott Case.

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press).—The conviction and sentence of three years in penitentiary recorded against Harley Elliott, of Oshawa, for an unnatural offense against a boy of 16 years, was quashed by the Appellate Court at Osgoode Hall yesterday when a decision was handed down on Elliott's appeal. Elliott was superintendent of the Children's Aid Society at Oshawa and he had been tried by Judge Ruddy at Whitby, last November.

PLOT FAILS TO MATERIAIZE

New Governor General to the Irish Free State Has Uneventful Trip.

POLICE ESCORT.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Travelling under rumors of a plot against his life by Irish extremists, James McNeill, the new governor-general of the Irish Free State, arrived here safely last night after an uneventful crossing from England. He was accompanied by detectives to guard him and numerous policemen were waiting at the pier but no indications that their services would be needed.

McNeill, who is to be inducted into office Wednesday, replacing Timothy Healy, appeared quite unconcerned. He told waiting newspapermen that he was glad to be back in Ireland. Asked if he had heard of a plot, he said:

"Yes, I read about it in the newspapers. It was not true as regards Euston and Holyhead, and I have not yet read of my death. On the whole, I don't think it is to be taken too seriously."

The new governor-general was welcomed by Hon. Everest Blythe, minister of finance, and Hon. J. M. O'Sullivan, minister of public instruction.

BOY MEMBER ADDRESSES TUXIS

Lawrence Dunbar gives Address at Meeting of Bailieboro Group.

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 31.—On Friday evening Messrs. Laurence Dunbar and Franklin Bannister of Garden Hill were present at Union Tuxis Boys regular weekly meeting in the hall. At the conclusion of the opening ceremony which was conducted by the Pretor, Archie Deyell, Laurence Dunbar, who is the member of this district for the Boys' Parliament in Toronto, addressed the local group, explaining the various projects of the Parliament and also encouraging the local group to sell the bonds as a means of carrying on the boys' work.

The local group are endeavouring to sell eighty-five dollars worth of bonds this year. The remainder of the evening was most enjoyably spent in games, sing songs, etc.

During the evening Fred Bannister presented an invitation to the boys to present their play entitled "The Mascot" at Garden Hill on Friday, February 17. The invitation was unanimously accepted by the local Square. The boys are also planning to stage their play in Fletcher's Hall on Friday, February 10.

Smithson Men To Dig Anew In Florida For Traces of Man In Pleistocene Strata

WASHINGTON, January 31. — A paleontological expedition will be sent to Florida by the Smithsonian Institute, in charge of Dr. J. W. Gidley, assistant curator of vertebrate paleontology in the National Museum, in an attempt to throw further light on the debated question of whether the human race existed on the American Continent in pleistocene times, the period in which the glaciers swept the continent.

The work of the expedition will be concentrated in the neighborhood of Vero and Melbourne, on the Florida east coast, where skeletal remains of man have been found in what appeared to be pleistocene strata.

Three principal geologic strata exist in the area to be visited by the expedition. The Smithsonian experts designate them as Nos. 1, 2, and 3.

In both the places where human bones were found, earlier investigations by Smithsonian expeditions under Dr. Gidley showed the presence in layer No. 2 of fossil animal bones definitely of pleistocene age. Many of the animal bones found in the lower part of layer No. 3 were also definitely of this age, but were often mixed with bones of more modern species.

Numerous evidences of man, bones and artifacts were found throughout layer No. 3, though apparently of no great antiquity, while no remains of this character were found in the lower portion of layer No. 2. At Melbourne, however, there were found at three widely separated areas human bones or artifacts associated with undisturbed and not re-deposited fossil bones of the pleistocene fauna. These human finds were all near the top of No. 2 level, just above the contact plane.

Many paleontologists and anthropologists have accepted these facts as evidence that man actually existed in North America in the pleistocene period. Others have questioned this conclusion, and prefer to explain the Melbourne finds as the result of hurricane or other catastrophic natural causes, burying later man in pleistocene strata.

A Lakefield Viewpoint

The fire on Thursday afternoon gave a practical demonstration of the value a triple combination pumper would be to the brigade in fighting a fire. The water used was from the supply of the Canada Cement Co., and 1,200 feet of hose was used for one line on the fire. It made the work of fighting a difficult fire infinitely greater than it otherwise would have been.

Chef Gimblett of Peterborough strongly recommended the new type of engine and the majority of the larger taxpayers endorse his recommendations.

LYNX HAS RECORD AT FUR AUCTION

Best Labrador Skins Sold To $74.00 at Annual Winter Sale.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 31 (Canadian Press).—Lynx brought a postwar record price at the resumption of the annual Winter fur auction here yesterday, when best Labrador skins sold to $74.00. Prices for the 151 lynx pelts offered averaged 35 per cent above the Fall sale of the New York Auction Company, when the best skins fetched $49.50. The small offering and the active demand for lynx in the open market lately brought about a rise. Fisher, with a top of $182.50 for best skins from Northwestern Canada, advanced ten per cent. Wolverine, which sold to $2.50, declined ten per cent.

Active buying for Canadian account marked the selling of Northern muskrats, which dropped ten per cent. The best of these skins fetched $2.32. Black muskrat prices, which were unchanged, ranged to $2.90. Southern muskrat fared rather poorly, declining twenty per cent and bringing only $1.94 for the best pelts. With two days to go, the sales total is three millions, six hundred thousand dollars.

FLY FROM MEXICO TO NEW ORLEANS

French Aviators Will Hop Off Saturday on 1,000 Mile Flight.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 31.— (Canadian Press.)—The next flight of the French aviators Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix would be a long one—from Mexico City in an airline across the Gulf of Mexico to New Orleans, a distance of about 1,000 miles.

Lieut. Lebrix announced yesterday that he and Costes would hop off early Saturday morning and would cross the Gulf of Mexico, which he thought could be done in 10 or 12 hours. The aviators hope to land at New Orleans before dark.

The daring Frenchmen reached here from Guatemala City Sunday after being formally welcomed by the Mexican officials, made several courtesy visits.

OIL INVESTIGATION BE RESUMED TO-DAY

Probe Further Into Operations of Extinct Continental Trading Company.

WASHINGTON D. C., Jan. 31. — Canadian Press. — Further search into the operations of the extinct Continental Trading Company of Canada, from whose profits the government contends, Harry F. Sinclair sent $220,000 in Liberty bonds to Albert B. Hall, will be made to-day by the Senate public lands committee

Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, will be among those called by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, the committee prosecutor.

It was the contention of Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, prime mover in reopening the oil investigation, that Steward attended a conference with Sinclair and other oil officials, when the Continental Trading Company was organized

The company was organized about the time Sinclair leased Teapot Dome naval oil reserve through Fall and it was disbanded a few years later. M. T. Everhart, son in law of Fall, has told the committee that Sinclair gave him $220,000 in Liberty bonds for an interest in Fall's properties.

Mr. Stewart has informed the committee he would cancel a business trip in Central America to return here to-day. Others summoned in clue Bema C. Dawes a brother of Vice-President Dawes, who is president of Pure Oil Company; John Clark, Denver, president of the Midwest Refining Company; A. C. Carleen, secretary of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company; A. E. Humphreys, Jr., of Denver and E. C. Zuberg, president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

TWO VESSELS FOR DOMINION

Will Be Transferred From Royal Navy To Canadian Naval Service.

CHANGE NAMES.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 31. Canadian Press. — The Department of National Defence yesterday promulgated the following:

On the 1st February, H.M.S. 'Torbay' and 'Toreador' will be transferred fram the Royal Navy to the Canadian Naval Service. Upon transfer these two ships will be renamed H.M.C.S. 'Champlain' and 'Vancouver,' as it is considered that the ships of the Canadian navy should bear names of national historic significance.

There is at present time in the Royal Navy a destroyer named 'Vancouver,' but the Admiralty have agreed to change the name of this ship in order that the Canadian service may have the exclusive use of the name of the great naval explorer of the Canadian Pacific coast.

LIKE O'LEARY'S COW.

BEATRICE, Neb., Jan. 31.—The ghost of Mrs. O'Leary's cow came to Nebraska the other day and caused $5000 damage to buildings on the Kennedy farm near Fairbury. The cow that kicked over a milker's lantern was saved as was other stock in the barn.

Obituary

ASHLEY ROGERS.

NORWOOD, Jan. 31.—The funeral of Ashley Rogers, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rogers, was held from the residence of his parents on Thursday afternoon. The services at the house and grave were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Aitken, assisted by Rev. R. F. Stillman, Rev. McLennan and Rev. T. J. O'Conor-Fenton. All spoke comforting words to the sorrowing parents who have suffered such a loss.

Interment took place in the Norwood Cemetery. The bearers were: Gordon Rathwell, Jack Webb, Roy Fry, Kenneth Tedford, Keith Innis and Roderick Webb.

Surviving the youth are his parents, two brothers and three sisters, who have the sympathy of the whole community in their time of trouble.

GEORGE BURKITT.

BONARLAW, Jan. 31.—Loved and highly respected by all who knew him, George Burkitt passed away at his home in Sidney Township on Wednesday, Jan. 18. The late Mr. Burkitt had been in very poor health for the last five years, being confined to his bed since June.

The late Mr. Burkitt was married to Margaret McKeown in the year 1884 by the late Rev. C. M. Harris, being the first couple married in St. Mark's Church, where Mr. Burkitt was a devoted member, and where he also acted as rector's warden for a number of years. In politics he was a staunch Conservative. He was a member of L.O.L. No. 240 and ex-Reeve of Rawdon Township. He leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing widow, five sons and three daughters, namely, Arthur of Rawdon and Earnest, Thomas, George and John of Sidney; Mrs. Robert Mumby of Rawdon, Mrs. Alex. Bush of Sidney and Kate at home; also four brothers and four sisters, Christopher, John, Frank and William, Mrs. Jane Mumby, Mrs. Sam. McComb, Mrs. Alex. McInroy and Mrs. Fred. Kingston.

The funeral was held under the auspices of the Orange Order. Interment was in Frankford Cemetery. The pallbearers were Fred. Parmer, Earnest Hubbel, George Frost, Dan. Frost, W. Mills and Russel Wiley. The floral tributes spoke silent words of sympathy and love for the deceased. The sorrowing ones have the heartfelt sympathy of the community in the loss of a devoted husband and father.

MRS. CONNOR D. FARRELL.

DOWNEYVILLE, Jan. 31.—After an illness of a few weeks' duration Veronica, beloved wife of Connor D. Farrell, Sprucedale, passed peacefully out of this life on January 24th, in her thirty-third year.

The late Mrs. Farrell was the second youngest daughter of Michael Fitzpatrick of Downeyville. Here Mrs. Farrell was born and passed her early years.

She was educated at St. Joseph's Convent, Lindsay, where she obtained the necessary qualifications for a teacher, in which profession she was engaged five years.

Her married life of eight years was spent at Sprucedale, where her husband was engaged in lumbering

To know Mrs. Farrell was to appreciate her real worth. She was an exemplary Christian lady, virtuous and charitable. Her home life with her family was happy.

During her illness she was frequently visited by Rev. Father Powers, who administered the last sacraments.

On Saturday, January 28, her funeral services were held in St. Luke's church, Downeyville. Solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. P. J. Galvin. The pall-bearers were Alphonse Fitzpatrick, William Herlihey, Martin Herlihey, Ambrose Herlihey, Frank Cavanagh, Jack Kilby.

The deceased lady leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing husband, two daughters, Rita, aged 7, and Margaret, aged 5; her aged father, Michael Fitzpatrick of Downeyville; also two brothers, Dennis and Fred of Downeyville, and four sister, Mrs. John Winn and Gertrude of Downeyville, Mrs. Louis Schnitzler, Cargill, and Mrs. Thomas O'Hearn, Toronto.

EXCELSIOR LIFE IS GOING AHEAD

Statements Presented at Annual Meeting Show Year of Progress.

SURPLUS INCREASED

Statements presented at the thirty-eighth annual meeting of the Excelsior Life Insurance Company by the First Vice-President, Alex Fasken, K.C., showed that excellent progress had been made in 1927.

Total business, issued and revived, amounted to $16,718,472.00. Insurance in force now amounts to $76,386,829.70. Total Income had grown to $3,150,591.04, an increase for the year of $167,635.36.

The rate of interest earned increased to 6.04%, notwithstanding the prevailing lower returns on current investments. Assets total $13,327,152.95, of which $5,903,792.36 is in well selected bonds and debentures and $3,647,155.38 in first mortgages on real estate.

Policyholders had received in profits $290,966.25, or 30% more than in 1926.

Surplus earnings were $445,357 or $125,414 more than in the previous year.

Surplus funds exclusive of special reserve funds now amount to $1,815,408.97.

GOVERNMENT ON SMOKE

WARSAW, Jan. 31.—Tobacco users of Poland pay nearly one-third the total cost of government. The tobacco monopoly of the country was taxed about $115,000,000 last year, while the total government budgets is given as $386,000,000.

Power -in HARNESS

Surging tides and wilderness waterfalls obey your whims. Your finger, pressing the electric switches with which your home is equipped, releases for your service and convenience powers undreamed of by earlier generations.

Four and a half million horse-power hydro-electric energy approximately has been developed at present to build Canadian industries, light Canadian cities and homes, transmit sound over telephone and telegraph lines, and operate street railways. Seven times as much more is awaiting development . . . waiting to serve the greater Canada of tomorrow.

Today everyone accepts electric light, heat, power and the telephone as commonplaces—prosaic things rather than the products of romance. Yet, at its source, the power you use is sufficient to destroy cities. It is useless as an active national asset and everyday convenience but for the fact that it can be transmitted in commercial quantities for safe use in homes and factories. Cables, wires and equipment are needed to carry the electric power in sufficient quantities to fill the needs of city and country, and to divide and subdivide that volume until you may use it simply and with safety by merely pressing a switch.

We are proud of the skill of our craftsmen who work year after year in Northern Electric plants to create, and constantly improve, so much of the material necessary to harness those tremendous water-powers and to carry electric current safely to you for your comfort and benefit.

BRITISH COMMANDER DIES SUDDENLY

LONDON, January 31 (Associated Press). — Earl Douglas Haig, one of the most outstanding of the military leaders during the Great War, his heart weakened by war strain, died suddenly here yesterday.

The Commander-in-Chief of the British Armies in France and Belgium was 66 years old.

With his death, the British Empire bowed her head in sorrow at the passing of the man who led His Majesty's troops to victory across the shell-torn battlefields of Flanders. Field-Marshal Haig had got his call from the Great Commander-in-Chief shortly after midnight. With his death Britain had lost one whom militarists place in the first rank of Britain's soldiers.

Last night the Empire was paying tribute to its hero. Old St. Paul's Cathedral with its thousand hallowed memories, probably will be the last resting-place of the Marshal. A definite decision had not yet been made last night, but St. Paul's has come to be regarded as Britain's Hall of Fame for her military leaders, and if Earl Haig is buried in this ancient house of worship, he will lie in the company of the Duke of Wellington, Lords Roberts, Wolseley, and Napier and Sir Henry Wilson, as well as other distinguished fighters.

Cut shows Earl Haig and Countess Haig, who was a daughter of the third Lord Viviean.

HON. BENNETT ASKS NATURAL RESOURCES

views of the Advisory Board dealing with the scheme, in order to ascertain their opinion expressed upon the Board's views. Until we have had an opportunity of learning from the administration at Washington how they regard certain considerations which we deem all-important. we will not be in a position to say whether or not negotiations are going to be possible for the construction of that great international waterway."

The question had political, economical, national and international aspects, all of which were far-reaching, said the Prime Minister. For these reasons the Government did not propose to "be precipitated in any way into a hasty discussion of all of its features or into any diplomatic action with respect to them except upon maturest consideration." The report of the Advisory Committee which had met in Ottawa recently would not be made public until such time, as at the discretion of the Government, it might be published without prejudice to Canadian interests.

Careful Consideration.

"The Government has given this great project the most careful and thoughtful consideration, said Premier King. "First of all, there was a report of the International Joint Commission which was subsequently considered by a joint board of engineers, which board differed among themselves, before presenting the report and a reference was made back to certain of the topics which they had under consideration. In the United States an advisory committee to the administration was formed, to advise the Government on the findings of the report which was presented to them, and that advisory committee gave its advice, and some publicity was subsequently given to the advice given to that body.

This Government appointed an advisory committee. The advisory committee met. As soon after the report, with the appendices of the joint engineers, was presented as was feasible and as soon as they had sufficient time to study the subject, they came together to advise. They spent some time in the city, considered different aspects of the problem, conferred with the administration, and gave us the benefit of their views and opinions. Among other subjects upon which they gave us advice was what was, in their opinion, the correct form of reply to be made of the United States Government to a despatch which had been sent to us on that all-important question."

Not Made Public.

The report of the Advisory committee had not been made public at the committee's suggestion. The committee had recommended that publication be withheld until such time as the report might be published without prejudice to Canadian interests. The government had acted upon the suggestion.

"I wish the House to realize," said the Prime Minister, "that that is the reason and the only reason why the government has not up to the present time made public the views of the Advisory committee as presented to the governmetn by that body. That body itself, recognizing the many hearings from an international point of view of the advice which they have submitted to the Govrenment felt that in tendering that advice it would be inadvisable to have that report made public at the present time, and may I add in that connection that I hope honorable gentlemen and the public at large and the press of the country in particular will not prejudice this all-important situation by attributing to the Board of Advisors expressions of view and opinion of which they can have no knowledge whatever."

"I should like to ask my right hon. friend whether or not the government is prepared to consider the legal implications as between the provinces and the Dominion before we proceed further, because the provinces assert certain rights, I understand," interjected Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, "that is the question which I regard as the basis of international discussion."

"I am glad to hear my hon. friend express himself as he does, because in that particular we are in entire accord with him, replied Premier King. "When the Dominion-Provincial conference was held the premiers of Ontario and Quebec both intimated to the government that they thought there should be a reference to the courts on the question of jurisdiction with respect to the power developed as the result of the canalization of waters over which the Dominion government have control for the purpose of navigation. The Minister of Justice promised consideration to that quest, and as soon as possible after the conference concluded its proceedings, the minister had prepared by the law officers of the Crown a careful statement of the whole situation as far as it was possible for them to present it, and an order in council was passed on the 18th instant, whereby a reference of the whole question of jurisdiction has been made to the courts in accordance with what we understand are the wishes of the premiers of Ontario and Quebec."

MISLEADING STATEMENTS MADE OF CHURCH OF ENGLAND CRISIS SAYS CAMPBELLFORD PREACHER

Rev. N. Clarke Wallace Surprised at Ignorance Found in High Places.

ATTACKS PRESS.

Primacy and Supremacy Confused—Anglo-Catholics Very Small Body.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 31. — The extent of the interest which local churchmen are taking in the attempt being made in England to bring about certain changes in the prayer book of the Anglican church was evidenced last Sunday evening when there were but five unoccupied pews in the auditorium of Christ Church. In the course of his sermon, the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace detailed clearly the changes that were actually asked for and pointed out that these were practically no changes at all. In the matter of the celebration of the Holy Communion, the proposed new version simply makes more ample provision for the benefit of the sick. As to the garments which the clergy shall wear, there is no change from the present laws.

Taking his text from the eighth verse of the fourth chapter of the second book of Corinthians, "We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; We are perplexed, but not in despair," Mr. Wallace launched an attack against the unfair treatment the entire controversy had received from the press and the general public. Even the local representatives of the press came in for their full share of the blame. "The subject of my sermon this evening," he began, "is the Church of England and the Malines Conversations, and I have been constrained to speak on this subject because there has been so much written and uttered on this subject in the last few weeks that is absolutely false. Now I realize that when I state that individuals and newspapers have made statements that are absolutely false I am required, in justice, to prove my own statement—and I shall do so. But let me make this clear; I do not make the charge that all people and all newspapers have deliberately and intentionally made false statements. I think most of them have done so through ignorance of the facts—and perhaps you will be surprised at such ignorance in such high places. I know I was.

"The old Mother Church of England is going through a period of intense trouble.—Yes, She is down. It is no time to strike her. What do we call a man who strikes another when he is down? No! Let us rather get down on our knees and pray. Because the church needs our prayers and the gifts of the Holy Spirit—Wisdom and Understanding—counsel and Ghostly strength—knowledge and peace and love will only come by prayer. And however much we differ, we do not want the old Mother Church to be stabbed in the back either by its friends or its foes.

Always Two Parties

"I hardly need to tell any one in this church that there have always, or nearly always, been two parties in the Church of England, at any rate since the year 590 A.D., when Saint Augustine landed in England with his forty monks and found that for at least two or three hundred years there had been established there the Christian church among the Britons. Well, today we have the Anglo-Catholic party. They are the extreme party in the Church of England. In questions of doctrine. I disagree with them just about as much as it is possible for anyone to disagree with another. Their views, are, I think, almost entirely those of the middle age—and certainly not those of early Christianity. They will not call themselves Protestants because there is so much difference between most Protestant churches and the Church of England. For one thing, and in this they may be right, the Church of England did not start a new church at the Reformation, but it traces its history right back to the second century A.D. What the Church of England really did at the Reformation was to throw off the authority of the Bishop of Rome and all the errors which were really only the product of the middle ages. But the fact is, the Anglo-Catholics are there and what are we going to do with them?

"They are these, but they aren't nearly so important as people imagine. Their numbers are comparatively small, but they make an awful noise. And the press gives them all the publicity possible because it causes a sensation and the newspapers and the public are always looking for that. We do not have to go very far back in our minds to realize that right here in Campbellford. Church differences are quite as good sensationally as ghost stories. To read the press, one would imagine that the Anglo-Catholics were not only going to Rome themselves, but that they were so big that they were going to take the whole church with them.

Magnified By Press.

"They are magnified by the press. Yes and the public, out of all proportion to their size. Do you realize the power of publicity? Let me give you an example. Some time ago in Toronto, a moving picture put on at one of the theatres was denounced by a very eminent clergyman as being "not fit for the people to see." The press printed the denunciation and also interviews with other clergymen and movie men. It was a very ordinary movie. I saw it myself. After the publicity had aroused the curiosity of the people, the theatre was filled to capacity.

"The fact os the Anglo-Catholics are getting a great deal of publicity and free advertising which hurts them just the same as the clergyman's denunciation hurt that moving picture. The fact is they thrive on it just the same as anything else would. Why make martyrs of them? They would thrive much less if they were ignored. But publicity 'stunts' are not confined to newspapers and revivalists and movies and the Toronto Exhibition, though they may be be very subtle. The Anglo-Catholics engineered the Malines conversations. It took place three or four years ago. Most of us knew all about it at the time. We even knew unofficially everything that is now published in an official report.

"And the Malines conversations had their beginning in two causes that were as far apart as the poles. I suppose you will remember the name of Cardinal Mercier. He was the head of the Roman Catholic church in Belgium when that country was invaded by the Germans. Cardinal Mercier was a Roman Catholic bishop, but he was also a very ardent patriot. He vehemently tried to get the Pope to denounce Germany for invading his native land. He used every means in his power to get the Vatican to denounce Germany. But he tried in vain. He must have been greatly incensed because he spoke much more heatedly against the Pope's inaction than most of us would have expected that he could. And it was with the Cardinal that some of the Anglo-Catholics in England went into conference—without the Pope's sanction—on the question of the reunion of all the Christian churches.

A Glorious Appeal.

"I believe that the German invasion of Belgium without protest or denunciation from the Pope had considerable to do with Cardinal Mercier entering into the Malines conference. The other cause was the Lambeth appeal. All the Bishops of the Anglican church throughout the world including Canada and the American church, met in the palace of the Archbishop of Canterbury—Lambeth Palace. They issued a document called the Lambeth Appeal. It was addressed to the heads of all churches in Christendom, and it was a world call for re-union. It was a great and noble appeal. It stated the basis on which the Church of England throughout the world would be willing to negotiate for a re-united Christendom. They were willing to give up everything but four things.

"That appeal was hailed everywhere in the press and by other church leaders as a noble and glorious lead. The Bishops were praised to the skies for the way they had faced the question, and for the way the Anglican church had taken its share of the blame for a divided Christian church. And what was the reply, officially or otherwise, of any other Protestant church to that appeal? None whatever. But the appeal was sent to the heads of the Methodist churches, in England there are several, the Presbyterian churches and all others including the Roman Catholic. The only actual step taken by any church, so far as I know, was the conference of Malines between Cardinal Mercier, head of the Roman Catholic church in Belgium, and some Anglo-Catholics in England. The Archbishop of Canterbury would have had to go into a conference officially if he had been approached by the head of any church. He refused to give his official sanction to that conference unless the Bishop of Rome did also. The result was that it was never officially recognized by the Archbishopof Canterbury.

"The Archbishop of Canterbury sent out the appeal. But only in the name of all the heads of the Anglican churches throughout the world He has no more authority in the Church of England in Canada or in the Episcopalian church in the U.S.A. than he has over the bishop of Rome, but all Anglican churches as a matter of courtesy only acknowleded him as chairman, in other words acknowledged his primacy, not supremacy.

Conference Unofficial.

"Now when no official step could be taken, some Anglo-Catholics took an unofficial step as did Cardinal Mercier. Is there any power on earth can stop you or me entering into 'conversation' with any other people on any such question? It may be a mad scheme. It may be only ridiculous. But we may, if we wish. That is what happened. The Archbishop of Canterbury may have sent someone over for the purpose of watching and reporting to him exactly what took place. A good thing if he did. If otherwise he would have had to depend for information from at least one report in the Mail and Empire. That paper came out with an absolutely false headline on the front page of its issue of January 19 this year. The headline was over the three right hand columns of the page and ran "Anglican Church acknowledges the Supremacy of the Bishop of Rome," or words to that effect.

"In the first place it is not the Anglican church at all but a very small group. And in the second place they did not acknowledge, and there was nothing in the article that followed to show that they acknowledged, the supremacy of the Bishop of Rome. But they were prepared to acknowledge the Primacy just as the Episcopalian Church in the U.S.A. acknowledged the chairmanship or primacy of the Bishop of Canterbury though he has absolutely no jurisdiction over that church. The Primacy may be bad enough, but the supremacy is ridiculous. And no such idea as acknowledging the supremacy ever entered the heads of even these Anglo-Catholics. That is only one example among many of the utterly silly statements made in the press.

"There is one other by an individual. I should like to give many. But time will not permit more. The whole controversy is so mixed up with the new Prayer Book that one is surprised at the ignorance of many critics, both laymen and clergymen. Surely a clergyman before he criticizes the new Prayer Book as a concession to the Anglo-Catholics, might at least be expected to know what is in the old one. This time it is a clergyman who is a great student and scholar. Laymen have criticized the book for the same reasons, that it permits what they are pleased to call 'Romish Vestments.' The preface to the old Book of Common Prayer says—'And here is to be noted, that such Ornaments of the Church, and of the ministers thereof at all times of their ministration, shall be retained and be in use, as were in the Church of England by the Authority of Parliament, in the second year of the reign of King Edward the Sixth.

"The first Prayer Book of Edward the Sixth 1549 says: 'Upon the dail and at the tyme appoincted for the ministracion of the Holy Communion, the Priest that shal execute the holy ministery, shall put upon him the vesture appoincted for that ministracion, that is to saye: a white albe plain, with a vestement or cope.'

"The new Prayer Book says—'For the avoidance of all controversy and doubtfulness, it is hereby prescribed that, notwithstanding anything that is elsewhere enjoined in any Rubrick or Canon, the Priest, in celebrating the Holy Communion, shall wear either a surplice with stole or with scarf and hood, or a white alb plain with a vestment or cope.'

"The more I read about the Malines conversations, and the more letters I read from those who don't know what they are talking about, the more convinced I become that the best thing I can do is to pray for the church in its hour of stress and trial. What is the best I do not know. But God knows, and if we are faithful in looking to Him and asking Him to bless the Bishops in their task, we can not go wrong. I have great confidence in the English Bishops and the English people. A couple of years ago when he returned from England, Canon Cody said that the Bishops of the Church in England were the acknowledged and outstanding as well as the nominal leaders of the Church, and not only the leaders in the church, but also, to a very great extent, leaders in the State. And the House of Bishops has not changed much since that time. Let us pray for them that they receive the guidance they need at this time.

AYRSHIRE BREEDERS MEET NEXT MONTH

Directors Meet Feb. 8 and Ontario Association Next Day.

The directors of the Ayrshire Association will meet in the Carls-Rite Hotel, Toronto, at 10 a.m., on Wednesday, Feb. 8, and the annual meeting will be held in the same place on Thursday, Feb 9th.

The banquet will be held in the Carls-Rite Hotel on the evening of Feb. 9 and in addition to the excellent fare, "Jamie" Reed will entertain those present with one of his inimitable Scottish programs.

The president and the secretary are endeavoring to secure one or two prominent men to give addresses and if their plans work out all right in that respect there will be a short but interesting speaking program.

The president will present the silver cup to the various class winners, and it may be mentioned that two of the winners are world champions.

The directors are hopeful that they will have a splendid attendance at the annual meeting and that a very great percentage of those present will decide to stay over to attend the banquet. The usual notice has been sent out to all members in good standing but an invitation is given to all those who are not members of the Canadian Ayrshires Breeders' Association but who are interested in the Ayrshire breed to attend the annual meeting and also the banquet.

F. C. Biggs and Sons, Glen Campbell Farms, Dundas, and Mr. Harry McGee of Haranelliel Farms, Islington, cordially invite all who can to visit their barns

RECTOR AND WIFE HOLD RECEPTION

Rev. and Mrs. N. Clarke Wallace Receive Members of Congregation.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 31. — The Rev. and Mrs. N. Clarke Wallace were at home on Thursday afternoon and evening to the members of Christ Church congregation. Mrs. Wallace, who received in the study, wore her wedding gown of white crepe back satin with a most beautiful Spanish shawl. Mrs. J. Wilson Lockhart, Toronto, who assisted Mrs. Wallace, wore a gown of French design of black crepe back satin with a brilliant buckle at the waist. Miss Isabelle Lockhart looked most charming in her bridesmaid's gown of green georgette with velvet sash to match.

In the afternoon, tea was poured by Mrs. Charles Bonnycastle. Her assistants were Miss Norma Nadoo, Miss Lilian Benor, Miss Frances Lazier, and Miss Ethel Bedford. The table was beautifully decorated with Spring flowers and tall yellow candles, all attractively arranged about the wedding cake.

In the evening, coffee was poured by Mrs. J. P. Archer and Mrs. J. M. Bygott. They were assisted by Miss Dorothy Southern, Miss Helen Bygott, Miss Kathleen Bygott, Miss Peggy O'Neill, and Miss Maisie Wheadon.

MOTHERS' ALLOWANCES.

It was noticeable that at the luncheon tendered Dr. Jamieson, Chairman of the Mothers' Allowance Commission, on Saturday there was some difference of opinion as to the advisability of extending the Act to include widowed mothers with but one child.

While F. H. Dobbin, Secretary of the local Board, was opposed to including the one-child widow in the provisions of the Act, Col. R. E. Birdsall, the Chairman of the county Board, was equally emphatic in declaring that such mothers as a rule needed assistance.

There is probably the same variance of opinion in all parts of the Province, and although there is an amendment to be introduced at the coming session of the Legislature to cover the case of mothers with only one child, Dr. Jamieson's opinion was that the Government was not yet prepared to assume the additional outlay of one million dollars which it was estimated would be required to take care of these additional cases.

Provincial labor organizations have strongly urged that the Act be amended in this direction, but evidentally the change is not to come for another year, if at all.

THE NORWOOD FAIR.

Congratulations are in order to the Directors of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society and to the people of the Norwood district upon the success of the Booster Club campaign to wipe out the deficit resulting from the bad weather which hit last autumn's Norwood Fair.

The movement, which was launched in November, has been marked by such earnest efforts on the part of the canvassers and such a hearty response from the public that the deficit has been wiped out, and when all the subscriptions are paid in the East Peterborough Society will have a balance of some $500.

Plans are already under way for next fall's fair, which will mark the Diamond Jubilee of the Society, and which it is hoped will be the banner fair in the history of the Norwood organization.

In these days when the smaller fairs are beginning to deteriorate and the tendency is to concentrate upon the larger exhibitions, the East Peterborough Society stands out as a live, courageous, wideawake and energetic body, determined that its fair shall go on and improve no matter how many small fairs find the struggle too much for them.

The spirit shown in shaking off the blow dealt by the elements last year is evidence that the Norwood Fair means to survive and prosper.

THE DEATH OF EARL HAIG.

Intelligence of the sudden death of Earl Haig, Commander-in-Chief of the British army during the World War and head of the British Empire Service League, has been received with deep regret by all residents of this country, and more particularly by those Canadians with a war record to their credit.

Earl Haig directed the efforts of the British army in France during most of the Great War, and if his leadership never reached the level of military genius it was at all events courageous, intelligent and determined, typical of the resolve of the whole British Empire that the struggle must be carried on at any cost until the cause for which that Empire's forces were fighting was triumphant.

Since the war Earl Haig had endeared himself to the hearts of the Empire's ex-service men by his persistent efforts in their behalf.

He early saw the desirability of an Empire-wide association of war veterans to fight for the remedying of grievances among returned soldiers and the bringing about of reforms that would improve their status, and to the work of developing and expanding such an organization he devoted much of his time and energy, visiting several of the British Dominions in the interest of the movement.

Earl Haig was one of the great heroes of the war, and since the Armistice one of the best friends war veterans of all ranks possessed.

WHAT HAPPENED IN THE WOODSHED?

It was my pleasure, a short time ago, to attend a little Father and Son dinner. I was asked to say a few words to the assembled fathers and sons, and in the course of my talk I made humorous reference to that long-gone time when I most reluctantly accompanied my own father to the woodshed. And I overheard a lad of ten whisper to the man by his side: "Daddy, why did he go to the woodshed, and what happened there?"

Could we have more striking proof of how "times have changed" than that simple query? A lad of ten—or even of six—who does not know what happened in the woodshed? It would not surprise me more to hear a lad of today ask: "Daddy, what is a woodshed?" And while some may consider the passing of the woodshed and what happened there in an earlier and simpler day, a mark of progress, I cannot escape the reflection that both the woodshed and what happened there still might be employed most advantageously in our somewhat complex civilizing processes.

At the moment I have especially in mind these strikes of public school pupils by which they expect to coerce their superiors—or should we refer to them as superiors?—into supine compliance with this, that or the other juvenile whim of the moment. Two recent instances will serve as illustrations.

In one of the smaller cities of the Pacific Coast, the school board engaged a woman as principal. The pupils held a mass-meeting and formulated a "demand" that they be given a man principal. They objected to the board's choice not only because she was a woman, but because she wore both her hair and her skirts long and was otherwise "old-fashioned and out-of-date." No question was raised as to her scholastic attainments or teaching ability, both of which appear to be of a high order. The pupils asserted that seventy-five per cent. of their parents were "with them." When the school board refused to meet their demand, the pupils struck. The strike lasted some days. The woman principal now presides over the defeated and somewhat crestfallen "strikers."

In an Indiana city, one hundred pupils of a high school struck because one of the trustees refused to take action toward the building of a gymnasium. They said they would not return to their classes until the school authorities promised the desired building. I have not learned the outcome of this "strike," but that doesn't matter.

Now, it must be obvious that there is something radically wrong in the school organization or the homes—or perhaps both—in any locality where a majority of public school pupils can carry on an unbroken strike for twenty-four hours. It ought to last at the longest just long enough for the strikers to reach home. There it should be settled—and if necessary in the woodshed—before school-time the following morning. In case the foolish disturbance is in a town without woodsheds and where the discipline of the home-woodshed has been forgotten, it might not be a bad idea to establish school-woodsheds—say instead of gymnasiums—properly equipped for the prompt and efficacious administration of the indicated disciplinary measures.

In their zest for training the top end of the body in the mysteries of a legion of textbooks and the feet to sprint and kick a football, our school authorities seem to have neglected a certain happy medium, which is just as capable of absorbing "instruction" today as it ever was.

What happened in the woodshed? Well, son, something that ought to happen in a great many woodsheds today if our boys are going to receive essential primary instruction in deference, obedience, good manners and plain horse sense.—The Valve World.

CEAD MILE FAILTE.

William Cosgrave, President of the Irish Free State, and Ottawa's guest Monday, is the antithesis of what the world associates with Celtic Irish leaders. Grattan, O'Connell, Parnell and Redmond, though temperamentally different, all had the air of being chieftains. William Cosgrave looks the magistrate rather than the chieftain. He is the embodiment of the change that has come to political Ireland in the past decade. The contrast tells that nationalism is no longer a revolt, a rally, a forlorn hope; that it is now an established thing, a directive force. Ireland a Nation has become Ireland a National State.

As one looks at the photographs of William Cosgrave, with their suggestion of physical frailty, one thinks of an autumn day not many years ago when, at a very uncomfortable hour in the morning, the men who composed the Government that had come into being in Ireland, were aroused from what sleep they had been able to get by an ominous summons. The commander of the army and the head of the Government, Michael Collins, had been murdered. As they went in an armored car to attend that early morning Cabinet meeting, each man must have felt that the situation was very near desperate. Over the greater part of the country the De Valeraites were in control; the Government army was still in process of being organized; there were no police outside of Dublin; the law courts were no longer functioning; the experienced administrators of the British regime were leaving the services. And, worse than all, there were the ominous deaths of the two men who might have been thought of as fathers of the Treaty that was to bring the new Irish state into being. Arthur Griffith had been laid in Glasnevin a fortnight before, and now Michael Collins was dead. It is easy to believe that none of the men who attended the Cabinet session was eager to have offered to him the headship of that quaking state.

William Cosgrave was offered, and accepted the headship. He was a little older than the bulk of his colleagues, men who were yet in their early thirties; he had more administrative experience than the rest of them. He had, too, the power of reconciling divergent personalities. He had something else, also—something that could not have been known about him at the time—the capacity for growth, the power of rising to a situation. The Government that he became head of had an infinity of things to do, and had to do all of them all at once. It had many hard decisions to make; crisis after crisis to face. Yet it steadily succeeded. It gave a whole administration to Ireland; put down the Irregulars; established order; created conditions out of which prosperity can come and is coming.

It was Cosgrave's grip upon affairs that led to his being chosen as President—his grip especially upon concrete affairs, business and finance. His courage was known, of course, for whatever else may be said of the men who stood with Collins and Griffith, it cannot be said they were not courageous. He has shown, however, that he has a courage which is not the sort of courage that is too common in Ireland—civic courage—and that he has it in a conspicuous degree. It is a quality which, coupled with geniality and a grasp of realities, is exercising a powerful influence over Ireland's affairs.

Mr. Cosgrave, too, has been scrupulously loyal to the Treaty with Britain. There have been times when political expediency seemed to dictate a wavering of allegiance, but Cosgrave never wavered. He has met good faith with good faith and good will with good will.

In days gone by it was more than once Ottawa's lot to afford a hearing, and to sometimes give a welcome, to leaders of Irish Nationalism in revolt. Today, under happier circumstances, it greets an Irish Nationalist who governs Ireland as a sister nation in the British Commonwealth. Because of that, because of what William Cosgrave recalls of the past and speaks of for the present and the future, Ottawa extends a hand to him with the kindly Irish phrase, "Cead Mile Failte."—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Jan. 31 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain continued dull here yesterday and little business was transacted. There was no change in the condition of the local cash grain market, prices being steady with a small trade passing with domestic and country buyers.

The movement of Spring and Winter wheat flour continues light but values were firm.

A fair amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed and the undertone was steady. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and steady.

Prices for all grades of eggs were firmly maintained under a small demand. The receipts were 492 cases.

The potato trade was moderately active and firm. Sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were made at $1.20 per bag of 90 lbs; Prince Edward Island White potatoes at $1.15 per bag of 90 lbs.; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk; New Brunswick White potatoes at $1.05 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, and Quebec varieties at 95c to $1 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, ex-track.

A firm feeling prevailed in the market for imported beans under a steady demand. Sales of odd cars of choice white hand-picked were made at $2.90 per bushel, ex-track, and smaller quantities at $3 per bushel, ex-store.

The inquiry for butter showed considerable improvement and a more active business was done. As the offerings were liberal and the undertone to the market was easier and prices were reduced ¼c per pound. The receipts were 103 packages.

Extreme dullness marked the cheese trade but prices were steady. The receipts were 133 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 31 (Canadian Press). — Brisk demand for good grades of corn, and scantiness of rural offerings lifted the corn market yesterday, notwithstanding receipts here were the largest this season. Wheat went lower because of selling ascribed in part to Euorpean accounts. Corn closed firm at the day's top level of prices ¾ cent to 1¼ cents net higher, with wheat at ⅛ cent to ½ cent decline; oats unchanged to ⅛ advance, and provisions varying from 17 to 20 cents decline to a rise of 12 cents.

Snow in various districts where moisture is needed for domestic Winter wheat did a good deal yesterday to send wheat values down and so likewise did Liverpool quotations lower than due. The amount of wheat on ocean passage increased more than four million bushels and yesterday's export business from North America totalled only about 200,000 bushels. Oats had a narrow price range, and trade, taken as a whole, was light.

For the most part, provisions were easier, largely as a consequence of scattered liquidating sales of lard.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 31 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 19,000; best fed steers $17.25; yearlings $15.75; bulk $13.00 to $14.50; most sausage bulls $8.00 to $8.40; shipper kinds $8.40 to $8.50 mostly; light vealers $12.00 to $13.00; shippers $14.00 to $15.00.

Hogs 60,000; numerous sales 160 to 210 pounds at $8.50; bulk good and choice 170 to 210 pounds $8.35 to $8.50; 230 to 300 pounds $8.20 to $8.40; few heavier butchers downward to $8.15; most light lights $7.75 to $8.35; pigs largely $7.25 to $7.75; best strongweights $8.00 and better; packing sows largely $7.25 to $7.50.

Sheep 17,000; bulk 78 to 89 pound wooled lambs $13.85 to $14.25; shipper top $14.50; bulk 95 to 98 pound lambs $13.75 to $13.85; 100 to 115 pound throwouts $12.75 to $13.00; choice 88 pound fall shorn lambs $13.00; fat ewes $8.00 to $8.25; bulk feeding lambs and shearing lambs $13.75 to $14.00.

LOCAL HOG MARKETS.

Live hogs, thick, smooth, $8.25 cwt.; select graded, $8.75; dressed hogs, head on, $14.00; head off, $15.00 cwt.

ABOUT TREE CUTTING.

Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In regards to the fatal accident which happened to Mr. Grierson whilst taking down a tree on the lawn of Miss Thompson, I might say as a man thoroughly experienced in this kind of work that it is a dangerous job and should never be undertaken by a man who has never had this experience. I visited the scene of the fatal accident Saturday afternoon, and made a careful inspection of the scene. In the first place, I found the rope far too small for that purpose; nothing less than an inch rope should be used on any tree in taking it down. And in the second place, the rope was placed in a position where they had absolutely no control of the limb. If this limb had been taken down in short pieces I have no doubt this fatal accident never would have occurred. I have taken down over 50 trees this fall and winter without an accident. One tree, I might mention specially, I took down on the lawn of Mr. Connor, Walton street, which measured 3 feet at the stump, and had no trouble with it.

In conclusion, I might say to those engaged in this business: never use less than a 1-inch rope and place it where you are sure you have full control of the limb you are cutting, and also the way you put in your cut; and if you understand this you will have no fear of an accident happening.

COLLEGE BUILDING BURNED TO GROUND

Loss at Villanova Estimated at $2,200,200—Firemen Prevent Spread.

VILLANOVA, Pa., Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Swept by flames which for a time threatened the destruction of the entire institution, the main building of Villanova College group was a mass of ruins to-day. The monastery adjoining and the lofty tower of St. Thomas' Church were ignited by flying embers but only slight damage resulted. Hampered by the lack of water and floundering in deep snow which covered the campus, twenty-four fire companies from surrounding towns battled the blaze for six hours last night before it was brought under control. Hundreds of students and priests fought side by side with the firemen and some of them risked their lives in salvaging priceless college records and laboratory apparatus.

Father Daniel Driscoll, procurator, estimated the loss at $2,200,000, not including personal belongings of students.

Choirmaster Uses Blackjack On Off-Key Singer; Chorister Fells Leader; Worship Not Interrupted

CHICAGO, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press). — A blackjack in the hands of a negro choirmaster stopped the source of blue notes at the services in Friendship Baptist Church yesterday, and, though the leader and the singer were unconscious, worship continued. Deacon Thomas Chapman disliked the sour notes and silently drawing a blackjack, felled Casey McGurick Jones, baritone, who was singing off key. George Washington McGavock, basso, objected, and tearing a telephone from the wall felled Deacon Chapman.

Later, when Sergeant Mulvihill dropped in, as was his custom, the choir led by McGavock was singing "Throw out the Life Line," with Deacon Chapman and Jones lying unconscious side by side in front of the choir.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 31.—Val Jasiniski is a private detective and as such seemed quite successful. But when he started impersonating a prohibition officer things went into reverse. Federal agents finally brought him to time and he was ordered to pay a $25 fine and stick to his more successful line of private sleuthing.

SUBMARINE S3 LOST OFF CUBA

Sister Ship of S4 Missing Since Sunset on Saturday.

WAS ON VOYAGE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.— (Canadian Press.) — The submarine S-3, sister ship of the S-4, which sank recently, has been separated from the submarine control force en route from Hampton Roads, Va., to Guantanamo, Cuba, and has not been heard from since late Saturday. The Navy Department was informed to-day that the S-3 was lost from the rest of the force at sunset on Saturday about a hundred miles south of Cape Hatteras and had not communicated with any one up to two o'clock this morning.

RUMOR IS DENIED REVOLT IN MOSCOW

Report Declared By Russian Officials To Be "Sheer Fiction."

MOSCOW, Jan. 30 (Associated Press).—Reports in Riga that there had been a military uprising in Moscow, were declared by officials to be "sheer fiction and probably due to press despatches regarding the shortage of staple supplies in the Russian capital."

In Moscow, as every day since Leon Trotsky and his associates were exiled, the daily life of citizens went on in the usual channels. Theatres and movie houses were crowded and the Kremlin was not the target of any shells. The only soldiers seen were in the parks surrounding the building and these were on Sunday leave, cracking sunflower seeds while flirting with giggling lasses—out for a Sunday stroll.

BERLIN, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Unconfirmed despatches from Warsaw report that rumors are being circulated in Vilna, Lithuania, that a military revolt has broken out in Moscow, with General Tuchatschowski, opponent of Joseph Stalin, Communist leader, heading the uprising. These reports say that several divisions are involved and are bombarding Moscow.

LONDON, Jan. 30 Associated Press)—An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Riga, Latvia, says that numerous unconfirmed reports are being circulated there that four Soviet regiments have revolted in Moscow in sympathy with Leon Trotsky, now in exile, and are bombarding the Kremlin with artillery.

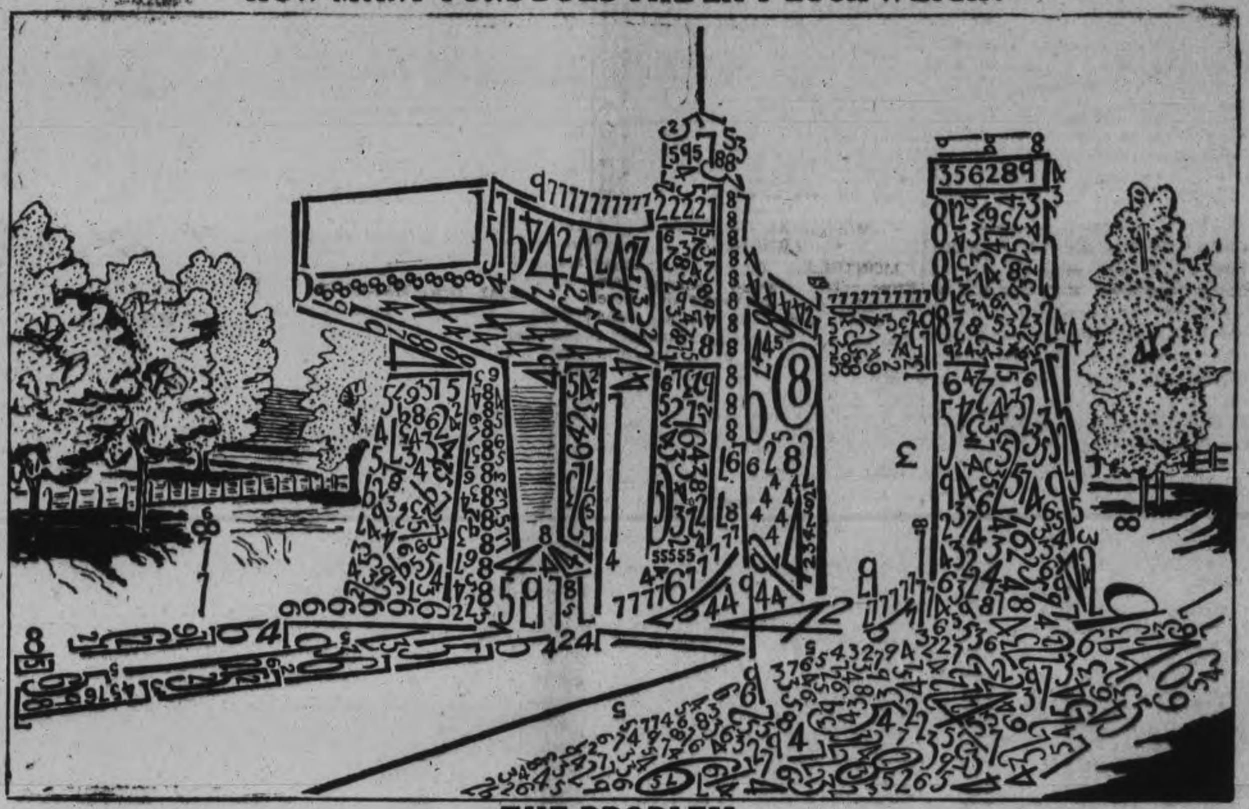
HOW MANY TONS DOES THE LIFT LOCK WEIGH?



GENERAL CONTEST RULES

How to Enter

1. The contest is open to everyone except:
   (a) Employees of The Peterborough Examiner, Ltd., or their immediate family.
   (b) Prize-winners in any similar contest who have won any of the major prizes.

2. Additional puzzle-charts may be obtained free by writing to the Contest Department or by calling at The Examiner Office.

3. Every figure in the puzzle is complete and entirely free from tricks or illusions. If any contestant is in doubt about any of the figures, send in the chart with the figures marked and the Contest Department will gladly give a ruling on the figure.

4. When you have solved the puzzle, fill in completely the solution blank, which must be accompanied by a remittance for at least a six months' subscription at the regular rates to The Evening Examiner. (See subscription rates.) See also the prize-list and note how the value of your prize is increased by paying for a year's subscription and by getting subscriptions from your friends. Renewal subscriptions, or subscriptions in arrears, if paid during contest period, count the same as new subscriptions and will be extended from the present expiry date, but not more than $15.00 will be received on any one solution or subscription.

5. In order that subscribers who pay carrier boys weekly may participate in this contest, books of tickets containing 22 weekly tickets for $3.00, or 44 for $6.00, will be sold. These remittances must be made direct to the Contest Department with your solution. Otherwise it cannot be registered. Each ticket is valued at 15c and will be redeemed from the carrier boy at that price.

6. Readers who give their subscription to some other contestant and later want to send in an answer themselves, may do so providing they fill in the coupon, giving the name of the person they paid their subscription to and the amount paid. No further payment is necessary.

7. The contest will close on March 15, 1928, but send in your solution as soon as possible as we are offering special prizes for the first correct solutions. (See full details under "Special Prizes.") There is nothing gained by holding back your answer once you have solved the puzzle, as a contestant may make several remittances on any answer sent in while the contest lasts up to a total amount of $15.00.

8. Contestants may send in a different answer to the puzzle with each remittance, but if one of your answers is correct the money sent in on your other answers will not increase the total value of your prize, and not more than one regular prize will be paid to one family.

9. Everyone has an equal chance. You can win the first prize and extra cash for only a six months' subscription, but note how the value of the first five prizes increases if you send in more money. Aim to win the maximum Grand Prize. The Evening Examiner is now recognized as the leading daily in Peterborough district and surrounding counties and no difficulty should be found in getting your friends or neighbors to subscribe for it.

10. Contestants who remit by mail or pay at the office should see that these remittances and answers are made on a proper contest coupon to ensure them reaching the Contest Department.

11. If the correct answer is not sent in by any contestant the prizes will be awarded for the nearest correct solutions. In the event of a tie a second puzzle will be presented which will be as practicable and solvable as the first. Only those tieing will be permitted to solve the second puzzle. Should two or more persons be tied in the second puzzle the prizes will be divided equally among those tieing. No cash will be accepted on the second puzzle.

12. In entering the contest, contestants agree to abide by the rules of the contest and to accept the decision of the judges as final. The Contest Department reserve the right to alter and amend its rules if necessary for the protection of contestants or The Peterborough Examiner. THE PROBLEM

The problem is to add together all the figures shown above, which, when added together, represent the total number of tons that the Lift Lock weighs.

The puzzle is entirely free from tricks or illusions, every figure is complete and stands alone. The figures range from two to nine. There are no ones (1) or ciphers (0) in the puzzle. The sixes are curved, while the stem of the nines are straight.

We wish it clearly understood that every figure can be plainly seen. There is nothing hidden in the trees or shadows, but the problem of adding these is a real test of accuracy.

Remember, each figure is added separately. For example, 9777 is counted 9 plus 7 plus 7 plus 7, or, in other words, simply add them as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column.

REMEMBER, NO ONE KNOWS THE CORRECT ANSWER UNTIL THE CONTEST CLOSES

To ensure this we had Mr. E. M. Elliott, County Treasurer, and Mr. Frank Adams, City Treasurer, each erase one or more figures from the original drawing, which they carefully noted and sealed in an envelope and gave to the manager of the Royal Bank for safe keeping until the contest closes.

SPECIAL PRIZES—While the contest will not close until March 15, we are offering Five Special Prizes for the first five correct, or nearest correct, solutions secured by us. The prizes will be: First Prize, $8.00; Second Prize, $7.00; Third Prize, $5.00; Fourth Prize, $3.00; Fifth Prize, $2.00.

A TIP ON HOW TO WIN

Take a pencil and put down the numbers as you stroke them out, then add them up. Some suggest that you cut the chart into dozens of pieces, then check them from all sides; or if you wish, try blotting them out with colored ink or pencil. Others think the best way is to pick out all the twos, threes, fours, etc. Any they miss the first time they find later. Or suppose you try taking a combination of figures which, when added together, makes a total of ten. For example, 5 and 3 and 2 make 10. Tens are not only easily added together, but there is less danger of making a mistake.

Important Points to Remember

1. Everyone has the same opportunity. A person sending in only $3.00 in subscriptions has the same chance of winning the first prize as a person sending in more money. The advantage of sending in more money is to increase the value of the first five prizes.

2. This is a contest for Central Ontario district, or to any subscriber of The Examiner, no matter where he resides.

3. Don't forget to answer all the necessary questions on the solution blank.

4. If you collect a subscription from a friend or neighbour, that person can also submit an answer to the puzzle without further payment.

THE JUDGES

In order that each Contestant shall have fair and impartial treatment, we have arranged with Mr. Roland Denne, Mayor of the City and Alderman Nagel Phelan to act as judges for the contest. Any complaints in this connection will be referred to these judges whose decision will be absolutely final.

BIBLE SOCIETY ISSUES BOOK IN 600 DIFFERENT TONGUES; 10 MILLION PRINTED IN 1927

Rev. T. Smetham Tells of the Hunger of Converts For Scriptures.

MUCH TO BE DONE YET.

In 1806 There Were 57 Versions—Work Described at Meeting in This City.

That one convert had wept when the last of a consignment of Bibles, one of which he had walked 75 miles to obtain, had been sold before the end of the queue had been reached; that a conference of Chinese Christians had listened to one of their number preach twelve sermons each an hour and a half long, on Dives and Lazarus; and that the missionary bishop who caused the abolition of the slave market in Zanzibar lives in the cathedral built on that very spot with copies of the gospels in the Swahili tongue buried at his feet, were among the facts mentioned by the Rev. T. Smetham, in his talk on the work of the Bible Society. For more than half an hour, the speaker, who was for many years one of the British and Foreign Bible Society's secretaries, told of the accomplishments of that society since it was founded in 1806 and kept his audience in rapt attention, willing to hear more.

The address was given in the Murray street Baptist church as a preliminary to the annual canvas for the society and was attended by many of those interested in the work of spreading the Bible among all nations. Last night's meeting followed upon the series of sermons given on Sunday in the churches of the city.

The service last night was in charge of the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe the pastor of the Murray street Baptist church. With him on the platform were the Rev. G. J. Bousfield of St. Luke's Anglican church who read the lesson from the 55th chapter of Isaiah, the Rev. R. K. Mills, of Bethany Tabernacle who led in prayer, the Rev. J. S. Harrington, and the Rev. S. G. Pinnock, of the Upper Canada Bible Society.

The purpose of those attending the meetings, Rev. Mr. Harrington said, was to answer the question in the hymn just sung: "Can we whose souls are lighted with wisdom from on high, can we to men benighted, the lamp of life deny?" by helping to do whatever is possible to carry that light to far off lands.

The Rev. Mr. Pinnock introduced the speaker whom he said would impart a world wide vision of the great parent society's work. He welcomed him to Canada assuring him that, large as her territory is, it is no larger than her heart, to Peterborough calling attention to the number of familiar English names to be found in Canada, and to Murray street church.

Appreciation of the welcome voiced by Mr. Smetham, who proceeded directly to deal with his subject, the origin and accomplishments of the Bible Society. Speaking more in the manner of one telling stories than as a preacher, he nevertheless delivered a message that was informative and inspiring

"The Bible Society in its origin and work," he declared, "gives striking evidence of the providence of God. We are told that there are clouds around His throne but they part and we can see the King in His glory, and I think that when we look on the Bible Society we see one of the places where the clouds are parted."

Came with Mission Societies.

The Bible, continued Mr. Smetham, came with the missionary societies, after the great revival at the close of the eighteenth century. That revival expanded first in the singing of songs, and some of the world's great hymns were written then, but it then turned to more practical channels in the missionary work. Missionaries set out with no fields and no money, with no copies of the Scriptures, and with public opinion against them.

At this time God raised up the Bible Society to be a sister and helper to the missionary societies being organized in the different churches to provide them with what they most needed and to grow up with them. It came from no human planning to help the missionaries. A number of men gathered in a little office which still stands for a meeting of the Tracts Society, and a story told by one brought out the idea of providing Bibles in other tongues than English. They met to do the thing that they had to do in the best way possible, and God gave them a better thing to do. They started the greatest movement for missionary effort ever inaugurated by common men, with the aim of providing a Bible in every human speech, to put a Bible in the hand of every person, and to do it at a price within the reach of the poorest.

Much Still To Be Done.

Though great strides have been made, this aim is not nearly accomplished, as there are at least two thousand dialects in the world and the Bible is issued in only about six hundred. At the time the society was founded there was a famine of Bibles, and those there were cost many times what they do to-day. In North America there were two translations for the Indians, in Africa two for the Africans, in India a translation had been made but not printed. For Japan and China there was nothing, while in the South Seas and many other parts of the world there was no written language. In Europe there were copies in all the different languages, so that the total number of versions was about 57. The Bible Society issues as many new translations every five years as the whole of Christendom had done in eighteen centuries.

Some might ask, continued Mr. Smetham, "Are you getting these books into the world?" "Into whose hands are they falling?" "Are they doing any good?" In answer he told of a conference in a Chinese city, where a number of people met to study the Bible. One old woman had walked 300 miles to get there. During the conference one man delivered twelve sermons, each an hour and a half long, on the one subject of Dives and Lazarus.

One hundred years ago there was not a copy of the Bible in Chinese, declared Mr. Smetham. What has made the change? The Christian religion and the Word of God. There were three times as many Bibles sent into China last year as there are words in the Bible.

Progress in Africa.

Fifty years ago the Uganda Mission was started. At that time there was no written language. Since that time the missionaries have been so blessed that the country has been transformed. Shortly before Dr. Smetham left London there came into the offices an ordained native who asked for a copy of the Bible in English, which he spoke well. Thinking he would not have much money, Mr. Smetham showed him a cheap one, but it was refused. A better one, worth $1.75, was also refused. The man wanted the best there was. Mr. Smetham prduced a Bible bound in morocco, sewn with silk, and filled with all kinds of references. "Ah! that is a Bible," said the man. "It will cost you three pounds," was the reply. "That doesn't matter," answered the visitor, paying for his book and walking away happy, with it under his arm.

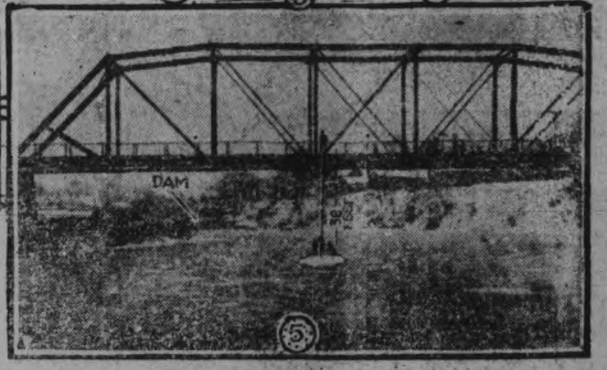
"There was that man," said Mr. Smetham, "whose grandfather had been a slave and whose great-grandfather had never seen a book, an ordained minister of the Church of England and probably with a degree from one of England's universities.

One mission centre had a standing order for 1,000 copies every year. Shortly before shipment was due a letter asked that it be raised to 3,000. Another letter followed right after asking for 10,000, and that had hardly reached the office before a cable arrived increasing the order to 21,000, with 500 to be sent as soon as possible. When the first shipment arrived there was a queue of natives reaching for a quarter of a mile, waiting to buy the book. One man who had walked 75 miles and was near the end of the queue stood and wept when told the books were all sold. Someone told him that some books had gone on to another place, and he turned immediately to walk another fifty miles to get one.

He openeth the eyes of the blind," quoted Rev. Mr. Smetham. "That is what we are trying to do, that men may see where they are going and see God in His glory. Isn't that worthwhile? Last year we sent out about ten and a half million copies that men may find the way home to God."

The vote of thanks was moved by Rev. William Allan and seconded by Commandant Frank Ham, both of whom paid tribute to the great work of the society as outlined by the speaker. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. J. W. Gordon.

FIREMAN SAVES BOYS FROM ICE



Number 1 is a photograph of Robert H. Barnes, London, Ont., fireman, who played a prominent part in the rescue of three lads afloat on an ice floe in the Thames river. The boys narrowly escaped being driven over a spillway and smashed to pieces on a dam. The London city council will be asked to make some public recognition of the work of the fire fighter. In the circles are: Number 2, Jim Compton, 15, who was hoisted, with his younger brother, Ronald, by means of a half-inch rope. Ronald is shown in picture number 3; Jim, fists numb, succeeded in hanging on, with the younger lad on his shoulder, while they hauled him 35 feet to the ridge overhead. The lad in number 4 is Frank Rasten, aged 15, who was also on the original ice floe but was rescued when one part on which he was standing became broken off and neared shore. Number 5 is the bridge from which a half-inch rope was lowered to save the boys.

Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 31.—The C. G. I. T. group of George Street United Church, Peterborough, put on their play, "The Trials of Mary," in the school room of the Regent Street United Church, Lakefield, on Thursday evening. The attendance was not as large as was hoped for, but the storm of Wednesday had blocked the roads rather badly, and with the conflicting reports concerning the Peterborough road, there was considerable doubt as to whether the young people could make the trip. However, the receipts amounted to nearly $25, as Rev. S. A. Kemp announced at the close of the entertainment.

The young people had a hard trip out from Peterborough, and arrived chilled and tired, the male members of the party having walked most of the way.

Rev. S. A. Kemp introduced the manager, Miss Baird, in a short speech, thanking those who had attended despite adverse weather conditions.

Miss Baird begged the indulgence of the audience if the young people showed a lack of "pep" in their performance, for the journey had been trying in the extreme. She gracefully introduced the characters to the audience, giving each stage name and also the real name.

The following was the cast of characters:

Mary Dean—Irene Cox.
Maudie Riley—Olive Elcombe.
Carol—Evelyn Routley.
Miss Elder—Gertrude Butcher.
Lola Wallace—Jessie Irwin.
Elsie—Alice Donelly.
Bess—Miss Ternitt.
Eliza—Vivian Taylor.
Isaac—Jack Pritchard.
Mr. Foster—Albert Delahaye.
Jack Harvey—Walter Outram.
Nicholas Bowser—Clare Northey.

The scene of the play, which was in three acts, was laid at Fairview Seminary, which was co-educational and apparently run in a rather easy-going manner, as the pupils appeared to have leisure in plenty and considerable freedom.

The plot revolved around the plan of a jealous girl, Lola Wallace, to discredit a new pupil, Mary Dean, who had stolen away the heart of the boy Lola thought her own possession. The humorous parts were decidedly the best, and Nicholas Bowser and Maudie Riley were prime favorites with their audience. Nick, fresh but lovable and absolutely natural, was a scream, and kept the audience in roars, and yet never overdid the part. He showed decided talent, as did also Maudie, his petulant, temperamental lady love who proved to be a valiant friend of the persecuted Mary. Isaac, too, was especially good, and played with a zest that carried the audience along. While these three were outstanding, all the parts were well taken, and the part of Lola, the jealous schemer, a really difficult character, was well worth special mention. While the memory work could have been better, there was a delightful absence of affectation in the entire cast, which was responsible in a great measure for its success.

During the intervals Miss Pelly gave several well rendered piano selections, and during one of the intermissions a little girl recited a particularly clever selection in a manner which showed a genuine talent.

The evening's entertainment was very pleasant, and the audience appreciated the effort made by the Peterborough young people to keep their engagement in spite of the heavy roads.

LEAGUE MEETINGS WILL BE RESUMED

Have Been Discontinued at Burnbrae for Two Weeks.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Jan. 31.—League meetings will be resumed this week in charge of Thomas Fry, devotional convenor, after a lapse of two weeks. Storms interfered two weeks ago, while the annual meeting of the Zion congregation was held on Thursday evening last. This event took the form of a banquet in Sentinel Hall at 6.00 p.m. with the usual routine of business afterwards. This innovation in the manner of conducting the annual meeting here proved very successful, practically every family being represented and everyone spent a most enjoyable time.

A general gloom has been cast over the district by the recent storms which have blocked most of the side roads to motor traffic. A few hardy and venturesome motorists still traverse the town line and 8th concession, but the going is very heavy and only a few hours of wind or snow would completely block the roads.

Mr. M. T. Stephens has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Totton and other neighbors of the bygone days when he lived on the town line.

Mr. W. A. Bertrand of Flint, Michigan, is visiting his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Millar.

CHURCH ACTIVITIES

Annual Vestry Meeting Held—Omemee A.Y.P.A. is Busy.

OMEMEE, Jan. 31. — The annual vestry meeting of Christ Church was held on Wednesday, Jan. 25. The financial report of the people's warden, Mr. A. W. Hill, showed the church to be in a sound condition. The reports of the various societies pertaining to the church were very favorable, financially and otherwise.

The past year has been one upon which the members of Christ Church may look with satisfaction. Mr. A. W. Hill and Mr. V. Jones will be people's warden and rector's warden, respectively, for the present year.

A. Y. P. A.

On Monday evening, Jan. 23, a devotional evening was held by the A. Y. P. A. when Rev. A. T. Weir spoke on the third of his chosen subjects, "Christianity of the Fourth and Fifth Centuries." Each of his preceding talks were interesting, but the address given on this occasion was most interesting. The speaker pointed out how the ancient heresies affected the church in the early days, and how even today the eastern bodies are affected by those old beliefs. A devotional evening could not have been spent to more advantage as every member of the A.Y.P.A. should have a knowledge of the history of the church.

Miss M. A. Dickson expressed the thanks of the gathering to the speaker for his kindness.

Next week there will be a musical program at the meeting.

Under the Hammer

THE late F. W. Woolworth, of five and ten-cent store fame, left an estate of fifty million dollars. But his widow was obliged to sell his home in New York City to provide the ready money with which to pay Inheritance Taxes.

If, at the time of your death, your total worldly possessions have a value of $50,000 or more, your executors will be called upon to pay out—promptly and in spot cash—a very substantial sum of money to cover your Succession Duties (otherwise called Inheritance Taxes). In some cases the amount exempted from this Tax is only $25,000, and the tendency is for such levies to become heavier as time goes on.

Not many estates are of such a nature that any considerable proportion of them could be turned into cash on short notice without serious losses resulting, particularly if business conditions or the state of the money market should be unfavorable at the time the money is needed.

If you had a business obligation of several thousands—or even hundreds—of dollars to meet some years hence, would you not commence now making provision for meeting it? Well, if you are even moderately well off, Succession Duties will constitute a first charge against your estate at your death. Have you made a provision for meeting that obligation?

An Imperial Policy offers a most convenient method of providing for Succession Duties. Ask us to tell you all about it.

W——, Ontario, Nov. 6th, 1927.

Dear Sir,—

I am writing to you to tell you of the value of your electric stove to me. I feel it's worth writing about it.

During the Great War, while I was overseas, I made a collection of souvenirs, among them a row of six military bullets. Well, I was showing some visitors these, and my little girl, aged two years, must have noticed them. Anyway, she took them and placed them in the oven with two other minor articles. The result was, not opening the oven door when I switched the heat on for my roast next day, I did not see the bullets inside. The oven was getting' real hot and I happened to be upstairs working when I heard two loud reports in succession. I thought the stove was blowing to pieces. I didn't dream of my little girl finding those bullets and placing them in the oven; it was the strangest accident I ever heard of. I raced downstairs after the second report and switched off the stove and opened the oven door to see what was happening. As soon as I saw bullets in the even I shut it quickly and started to go upstairs again. I had only just crossed the kitchen when the next report echoed. Finally they all blew to smithers. When I thought everything was quiet, I came downstairs, but was too nervous to open the oven until my husband came home. I opened the house doors and let the smell out. When my husband came home and opened the oven we expected to find the oven ruined, but the strange thing is, there's not a wire damaged and no dents, or anything whatever wrong. Besides that, the little girl twice has emptied two pans of water all over the rings. My husband turned to me and said, "Well, my word, I would thoroughly recommend a stove like that," and told me to write and let you know about it. It's stove No. 45376, style E No. 22D.

Yours truly,
(NAME ON REQUEST.)

P.S.—I can send you the pieces of shattered bullets if you wish as proof of what happened.

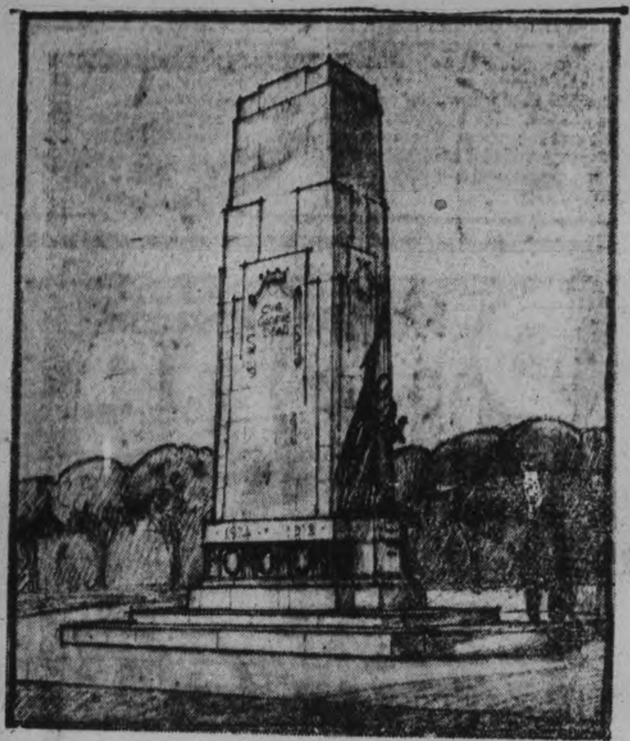
MARRIED QUIETLY

Only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present at the marriage ceremony performed in Toronto when Miss Iva May Gerow of Toronto, formerly of Trenton, became the bride of the Hon. Justice William Wright of the supreme court of Ontario, formerly of Owen Sound. Mrs. Wright was formerly on the staff of a law firm in Toronto for some time. The bride and groom left immediately after the ceremony for Atlantic City and will return to Toronto for Christmas.

REJECTED FINALLY



Here is the sketch of the original prize design by Arthur H. Eadie, Toronto, for the Winnipeg war memorial. Like Miss Elizabeth Woods' first prize creation, Mr. Eadie's design was finally rejected, that of the third prize, won by Gilbert Parfitt, of Winnipeg, being the ultimate choice. Mr. Eadie's design is of a cenotaph, somewhat like Toronto's memorial, thirty feet high, with a bronze figure holding a torch. The inscription is from McCrea's poem, "The Torch—Be It Yours to Hold It High."

To the fervent oratory and impassioned defence of Protestant principles of Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the home secretary, RIGHT, is attributed the defeat of the Anglican prayer book revision bill in the House of Commons. By the vote, the labor of a quarter of a century of the Archbishop of Canterbury, Most Rev. Randall Davidson, LEFT, were nullified and the primate left the House in tears, a broken man. There is speculation now that the primate, who is 80 years of age, will resign his high office.

LEAVING FOR HOLLYWOOD

With a cheery "Merry Christmas and good luck to you," Miss Muriel Sheather, the Port Credit, Ont., girl, who has been selected to play a leading part in the Canadian war film, "Under the Barbed Wire," soon to be filmed in California, left for Hollywood by automobile. Accompanying Miss Sheather on the long motor trip was her mother and two of Muriel's inseparable canine friends, Yum-Yum and Squibs. The ABOVE photograph shows Miss Sheather and her mother just about to start on their long journey.

Flying the Singapore, largest and fastest of the world's flying boats, Sir Alan Cobham hopped off from Rochester, England, recently, on the first lap of a 20,000 mile trip which is scheduled to take him around Africa via Capetown and back to England, where he is expected to land about the end of February. He is accompanied by his wife, who is listed on the ship's log as "cook and stenographer." Captain H. V. Worrall is second, while two engineers and a phonograph completed the Singapore's complement. Among a number of gifts presented to Cobham before he left Rochester was an unusual mascot, a spider from a little Rochester girl who claimed to be a direct descendant of Robert Bruce. The illustration shows the Singapore in flight and Sir Alan Cobham standing upon the tail of the big flying boat.

REPORTS READ FOR HEALTH ASSOCIATION

Annual Meeting For Peterborough Association Held in Chamber of Commerce.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Health Association was held in the Council Room of the Chamber of Commerce on Friday, opening at 5 o'clock, with W. R. Breyfogle presiding. There was a goodly number of members of the association present, when Dr. Cameron, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting which were accorded the approval of the association. The main business of the meeting was then reached. The two main items were the reports of the President and the Treasurer. They follow, and are self-explanatory:

President's Report.

Once again the opportunity is given for this Executive to consider the reports of the previous year's work and for the citizens of Peterborough to gather from the reports made public the extent of the operations of the Health Association and the thoroughness with which it has been accomplished. The report of the Supervision Committee and of the Association Nurse speak for themselves and must call forth approbation for the devoted efforts as expended by these ladies.

By reason of the question of the Municipal Health Organization having been raised by the Provincial Authorities, it is possible that the full time M.O.H. may take into his duties considerable of the work which has heretofore for many years been carried by this organization. It is certain, however, that there will still be responsibilities to be carried out by the Supervision Committee, but of these possibilities nothing more can be said at the moment.

The Kiwanis have again shown their sincere desire to serve the community by assuming the costs of the Children's Camp at Jackson's Park, and in considerable measure have assured part of the responsibilities of supervision and conduct. The Camp this year was certainly well conducted, and that report in itself emphasizes the importance of this work.

It is to be regretted that the Association lost an old friend through the death of Mr. James Rose, better known as "Uncle Jimmie," the custodian of Jackson's Park. He was always interested in the children and their protection, and has been and will be greatly missed.

The thanks of this Association are particularly due to the citizens of Peterborough for their splendid support of the Christmas Seal Stamp sale; to The Peterborough Examiner for its almost unlimited free publicity, both editorially and as reading matter; to Mr. Chas. D. Cook for his conduct of the Advertising Campaign, and to the many individuals who have contributed various sums, some of them quite substantial, for the work.

In retiring as President of the Peterborough Health Association, after some six and a half years' service, I feel that the organization has been thoroughly established and that there is full appreciation of its importance to the community through its several-sided activities. This has all been brought about through the consecrated efforts of the ladies and gentlemen of this Executive Committee, and to them I wish to express my very sincere thanks for the splendid co-operation which they have shown in evidence.

The Secretary, Dr. G. S. Cameron, and the Treasurer, Mr. E. J. H. Vanston, have been the officers who have carried the most of the load of the organization, and their activities, at the expense of considerable time, are reflected in the good conduct of the business in connection with this work.

W. R. BREYFOGLE, President,
Peterborough Health Association.

The Peterborough Health Association.

In submitting the Treasurer's report for your Association the statements attached need only be referred to for information as to the funds we have handled during the year and the manner in which disbursements from them have been made.

The funds for the purpose of financing the Jackson Park Camp for 1927 were provided by the Peterborough Kiwanis Club. All the bills arising out of the Camp activities were passed over to the Kiwanis Club President and that organization paid them. Your treasurer therefore has no record as to the cost of operating the Camp this last year.

During the year we received a legacy from the late Mrs Mary Hazlett of $500 and one Dominion of Canada Bond for $1,000, December 1st, 1927 matured and was paid. I suggest that the necessary resolution be passed at this meeting authorizing the proper officers to invest this money in such securities as, in their judgment, may be considered of the right character.

Up to the 31st of December, 1927, the campaign to raise funds by the sale of December, 1927, the campaign to raise funds by the sale of Christmas stamps has resulted in a return of $1,151.75; on that date, therefore, you had on hand $1,288.45 with which to carry on the activities of the association in 1928.

E. J. H. VANSTON, Treasurer.

MISSION BAND MEETS

Bensford Boys and Girls Go to Home of Mr. and Mrs. George Nurse.

The Lighthous Mission Band of the Bensfort United Church held its meeting on Long Island, the beautiful island home of Mr. and Mrs. George Nurse on Rice Lake recently, with a fairly large attendance.

The meeting, with the president, Miss Velma Nurse, in the chair, was opened by the singing of a hymn, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The secretary's report was read by Miss Ethel Perrin and adopted.

Miss Isabelle Dawson gave an interesting reading which was much enjoyed by all. Mrs. Harry Nicholson read a paper to the Mission Band on "How to get new members." Rev. Mr. Foley gave a short missionary talk to the girls and boys on the "Extraction of a Tooth", by one of our medical missionaries, and the strange customs they have to contend with with the natives in their ignorance. Mrs. Stewart Thompson, the Band superintendent, entertained them on an interesting story about the good work that was done by a little heathen girl after she had received the true spirit of Christ and His love. It brought out the real Christian influence that is so much needed in our foreign fields today.

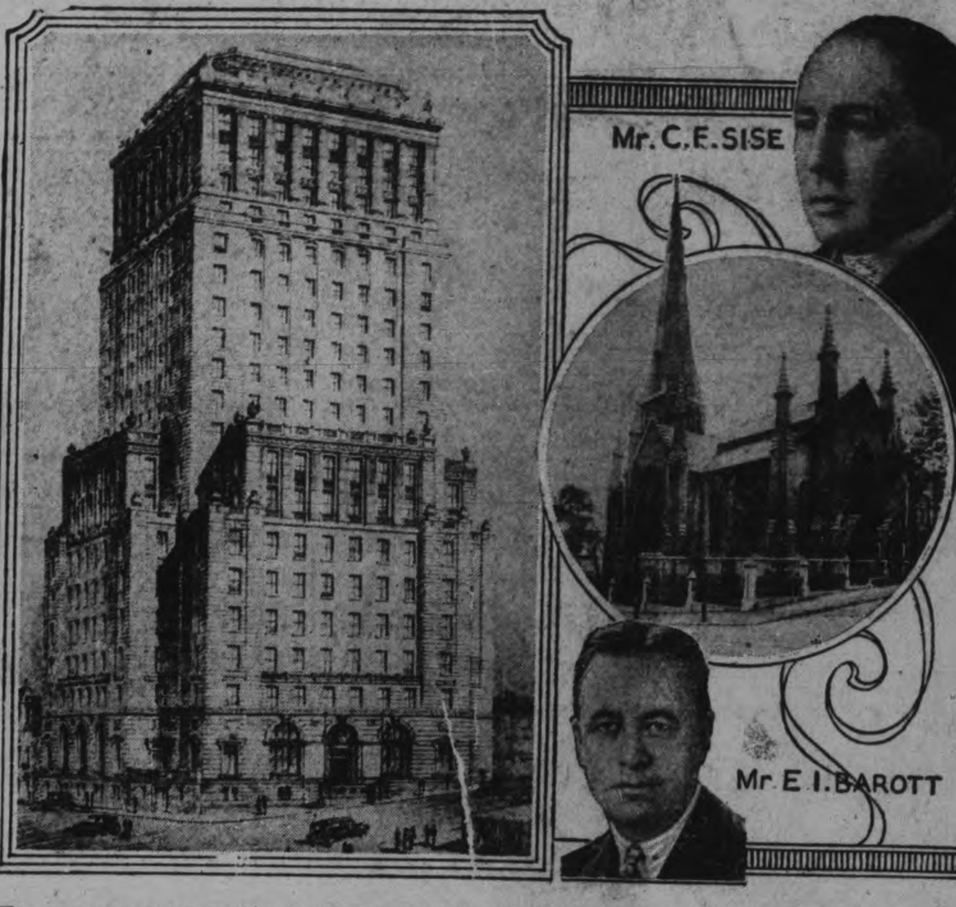
The meeting was then closed by the singing of a new hymn followed by a prayer from Rev. Foley, pastor.

Mrs. Nurse and her assistants, Miss Nurse and Miss Velma served dainty refreshments and a social hour was then spent.

Some of the W.M.S. women were also present, namely: Mrs. Thomas Dawson, Mrs. R. Moncrief, Mrs. W. Dawson, Mrs. Harry Nicholson, Mrs. James Lang and Mrs. Stewart Thompson.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Stewart Thompson.

The Empire's Biggest Telephone Building



The new headquarters building of the Bell Telephone Company on the site of the historic St. Andrews Church of Scotland, Beaver Hall Hill, Montreal, will be the Empire's biggest building devoted exclusively to telephone administrative purposes. This twenty-story structure will bring under one roof the entire headquarters staff of the company. President C. F. Sise, and E. I. Barott, architect, are pictured in the illustration.

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant effervescent lithia water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 31.—Miss Isabelle Lockhart, Powell Avenue, Toronto, who was in town for the Wallace reception, is visiting in Ottawa. She will spend a few days at the Rectory on her return journey to Toronto.

Mrs. J. Watson Lockhart has been a guest of the Rev. and Mrs. N. Clarke Wallace for the past week-end.

Mr. James Johnston of Frankford has disposed of his farm to Mr. E Tucker of Rawdon Township, and will retire to take up residence in the village of Frankford.

Mr. Frank Stapley of East Rawdon Township has purchased the stone mill in Stirling from Anson Connor and will take possession immediately.

Mr. Harold Dunning has purchased the general store of Albert Weaver Hoard's Station, and will officially take possession March 1.

Miss Evelyn Bramhall, Belleville, was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Blue.

Miss Jennie Ballantyne, Toronto, and Miss Ethel Hall, Toronto, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Hall.

A. D. Bennet has added an invalid's coach to his equipment.

WAS SO NERVOUS and SHORT OF BREATH COULD HARDLY SLEEP

Mrs. Louise Baglin, Golden Lake, Ont., writes:—"For several years I was greatly troubled with my heart. I was so nervous and short of breath I could hardly sleep at night, and if I did sleep for a while I had bad dreams.

"I managed to keep at my work, somehow, until I began to have dizzy spells which got so bad I had to give up. I used many kinds of medicine, but found no help until I got a box of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS. After the first box I found a great change, and after two boxes I was as well as I could be.

"I told my mother, who had choking sensations, about them and they helped her greatly."

Price 50c. a box at all druggists and dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHIMNEY FIRE.

Campbellford Brigade Called Out On Saturday Evening.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 31.—The fire alarm that sounded at 8.15 on Saturday evening came as the result of a chimney fire at Bert Gillespie's residence, Thirty-Foot Lane. The Brigade responded promptly, but already every precaution had been taken, and there was no danger. It was only necessary for the residents to keep close watch on the blazing chimney as the fires had already been damped and the pipes were quite cool. The alarm came in by telephone.

INDIGESTION, GAS AND SEVERE PAIN

Of the thousands of people whom Tanlac has saved from the misery of Indigestion and Stomach Trouble, none are more grateful than Mr. Fred Hill, 349 Thames St., London, Ont. "I had about given out altogether", he says, "and was going down hill so fast that I thought nothing could stop me. I ate only two light meals a day and even then suffered untold agonies from indigestion, gas and pains that just double me up. My nerves were wrecked; every bone in my body ached; I could not sleep; and just felt sick all over.

"Tanlac fixed me up so I could eat anything from soup to dessert without having indigestion. All my other troubles vanished like smoke. I picked up twelve pounds and never felt better. I never thought anything could do for me what Tanlac did."

Tanlac corrects Stomach Trouble and builds up the whole system because it is nature's own remedy for the sick—roots, barks and herbs. Remember, your money back if it doesn't help you; so get a bottle at your

BAPTIST CHURCH OFFICERS NAMED

Campbellford Congregation Hears Reports Showing Very Successful Year.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 31.— The annual meeting of the Baptist church was held on the evening of January 19th and in spite of the most disagreeable weather, there was a large attendance. As an added inducement, the Deaconesses' Board ladies served tea and had arranged very pretty table decorations of pink and white. There was also a short but very interesting program. Reports from the church clerk, treasurer, Missions treasurer, Mission Circle, Baptist Young People's Organization and the Sunday school all combine to show a very successful year's work during 1927.

The next order of business was the election of officers for the present year. Those who will hold office during the year: Mrs. Richard Weston, Church Clerk; Miss Verna Shore, Assistant Clerk; Fred Weston, Treasurer; Miss Jessie Weston, organist; Miss Myrtle Hall, assistant organist; Richard Weston, choir leader. Messrs. David Mason and Richard Weston were re-elected to the Board of Deacons. Mrs. L. M. Smith and Miss Margaret Dunn were re-appointed to the Board of Deaconesses. The Finance committee is composed of Messrs. Fred Weston, Garnet Lloyd, David Mason, Dr. Frank Butler, and Alfred Thompson. The ushers for the present term are Dr. Frank Butler, Lawrence Marriot, William Mason, Roland Pettifer, Garnet Lloyd, Albert Gifford and James Simpson.

In his brief address after the election of officers, the Rev. L. M. Smith expressed the opinion that the list of officers and committees chosen by the congregation as their representatives was composed of very efficient and capable persons and it remained only for the members of the congregation to assist them by adding their whole-hearted support. The meeting closed with devotional exercises in the form of a hymn and a brief word of prayer.

TROUBLED WITH RASH ON FACE

Itching Was Terrible. Cuticura Healed.

"My trouble began with a severe rash on my face which for about six weeks caused a terrible itching, burning sensation. The irritation caused me to scratch, and scratching caused sore eruptions which covered my face. My face was disfigured, and the trouble lasted about four months.

"I tried other remedies but they seemed to make the trouble worse. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and got relief after using it. I purchased more, and in a short time I was healed." (Signed) Miss Annie E. McCluskey, Box 113, Grand Falls, N. B.

KEATING HOUSE NO LONGER LISTED WITH WESTMINSTER

Ghost Has Been Laid, While British House Still Harbors Its Spectres.

T. P. SEEN THERE ONCE.

If the mysterious happenings at the home of the Keating family are indeed susceptible of a perfectly rational explanation, then the Seymour house has lost its chance (no doubt without regrets on the part of the occupants) of being listed among the places "favored" as happy hunting ground of visitors from another world.

During the past month the now famous house was one of the places of which the British House of Commons is the most famous, that have special eerie visitors who appear nowhere else on this world. The home of the Mother of Parliaments has several such visitors, who have made periodic appearances over a course of 300 years.

Most famous and most sinister of all the spooks of St. Stephens is the Big Ben Ghost, said to be an apparition of a decrepit old man, rowing an ancient and decayed skiff, which makes a mysterious appearance from under an arch of Westminster Bridge towards midnight on the eve of a death in the British Royal Family. It is a fact, that in comparatively recent years, a number of royal personages have died on the fourteenth of the month, consequently the appearance of the spook took place on the thirteenth of ill-omen. It is further stated, that on each appearance the famous clock of Big Ben in announcing the midnight hour strikes thirteen times.

It is said that Scotland Yard has a report of a chase which followed the appearance of the ghostly boatman on January 13, 1892, the night before the death of the Duke of Clarence. A river police boat saw the unearthly craft, and suspicions being aroused set out in pursuit. The police were close upon their quarry as they approached the Houses of Parliament, but they were baffled as the boat and its occupant simply disappeared within the Terrace wall just as Big Ben struck thirteen times in telling the world that the witching hour of midnight had arrived. The report was furnished by a constable who watched the affair from the Thames Embankment above the river.

In House of Lords

There was little superstition about Earl Grey, the famous Prime Minister of last century. But he has left it on record of a remarkable occurrence which happened during the course of his great speech made on introducing the epoch-making Reform Bill to the House of Lords. He related that three times during the address, he saw a fearsome death's head, gradually resolve itself from the atmosphere half-way between the ceiling and the floor, and stare fixededly at him. Although much disturbed he kept his uneasiness to himself and preserved silence on the matter until he returned home, when he was astounded to find that at the same time a similar vision had caused great distress to his daughter.

Guy Fawkes Again

Two individuals who achieved undesirable notoriety in Parliament are alleged to haunt in spirit the scene of the desperate deed. One is Bellingham, a half-demented Liverpool broker, who shot and killed Prime Minister Spencer Perceval in the lobby of the House of Commons on May 11, 1812. The other is no less a person than our well-known friend, Guy Fawkes, who is said to have made frequent appearance, not only in the old Parliament Building, but in the present one, which was erected long after his earthly days. When the Commons met for the first time in their present quarters in 1852, the time-honored ceremony of searching the vaults was carried through. Soon after the search was completed, an attendant named Gleeson, rushed up and in incoherent tones, declared that he had seen the spirit of the famous conspirator. The Sergeant-at-Arms at once ordered a second inspection, but nothing untoward was discovered. News of the second search and its cause leaked out among the members, and a rather scared legislator addressed a question on the matter to the chair, but was assured that there was no danger of a second Gunpowder Plot. The unfortunate Gleeson was sternly reprimanded for raising a foolish and unmanly clamor.

Lady Ghosts.

Parliament's ghosts are not all males. The Terrace ghost is a member of the fair sex. The Terrace ghost is a long cadavorous figure, dressed in a badly soiled white dress, which is said to rise on foggy nights from space at the western end of the Terrace, and walks the whole length of the passage to bury itself in the river. This spectre is said to have been seen repeatedly, but the best known of her visitations occurred in 1878, on a winter night, when the sudden apparition nearly cost the reason of an attendant named Ralph.

The White Lady.

Another unearthly lady visitor is the White Lady who sixty years ago was a common visitor to the House, after daylight, her appearance being reported regularly by servants and cleaners, who had to be about the House when the Commons were absent. For a long time, her visits ceased until the beginning of the present century, when she was again observed by a butler in the service of A. J. S. Milman, Clerk of the House of Commons.

The Radiant Boy.

Another spectre which is said to confine its attentions entirely to the Lower House is the Radiant Boy. No one knows whom this represents, although some suggest it may be one of the two little Princes who were murdered by their uncle, Richard III, in the Tower of London. The spirit is said to have the appearance of a boy about ten years of age, with white complexion and shining eyes, who groans as if in mortal agony as he faces from corridor to corridor with his bright eyes fixed on the floor.

T. P.'s Ghost.

The ghost of a gentleman who is still very much alive, and is honored by all his colleagues, is said to have appeared in parliament. The gentleman concerned is the famous T. P. O'Connor, and the story is told on the authority of the late J. G. Swift McNeil. During the session of 1897, Mr. O'Connor in response to an urgent message returned to his home in Ireland to sit at the death bed of his father. Mr. McNeil declared that some time after his friend had set sail, he was astonished to see the figure of "Tay Pay" seated in his customary place on the third bench on the Opposition side below the gangway; curiously enough a number of reporters of the Press Gallery were also emphatic in the assertion that they had seen Mr. O'Connor during the debate. The theory advanced to explain the phenomenon, was that spirits are sometimes seen in much frequented places, when the individual is laboring under great emotional stress.

Ghost Cast Ballot.

The climax of ghost stories of Westminster relates that a spirit actually recorded a vote in a division in the Commons.

More than sixty years ago, an M.P. while on the Continent in the endeavour to recuperate his lost health received a five-line whip, the most urgent party summons, requesting him to be in his place at a very important debate which was impending. The sick man declared he would make every possible effort to be in his place and support his party. When the division came the invalid, looking haggard and wearied, was seen by the tellers and his vote duly recorded. Next day a discrepancy of one vote was intimated between the number recorded by the Division Clerks and the total of the Lobby Tellers. Inquiries were set afoot and it was later discovered that at the time of the debate and division the invalid M.P. was dead; Did the spirit of the man return to earth in fulfilment of a promise and cherished wish. Who can tell?

Remove Blackheads

this easy way

Don't torture yourself and ruin your complexion by painfully squeezing out blackheads. The Radox way is quicker, simpler, painless.

Simply tip a teaspoonful of Radox Bath Salts into a cupful of comfortably hot water. Apply by dabbing on the face. After a few minutes' treatment, wipe your face dry. Blackheads will be seen to have vanished. Follow with a little cold cream. Read this letter:

"I wonder how many people know the value of Radox Bath Salts for treating that unsightly complaint, 'Blackheads.' Before using Radox I had to receive medical treatment on account of trying to remove some from my chin by forceful squeezing. This caused ulceration. By using Radox the Blackheads came out quite easily, leaving the skin all aglow. My brothers are also using Radox with equally good results."

D. M. C.

The Radox treatment is more lasting and doesn't leave ugly red skin bruises. A ½-lb. pink package contains many treatments. Get Radox to-day. End those disfiguring blackheads to-night. 60c at any druggist's.

LIBRARY BOARD IS RE-ORGANIZED

A. B. Burrows Re-elected Chairman of Lakefield Board.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 31.—The first meeting for 1928 of the Lakefield Public Library Board was held on Friday evening in the Library. A. B. Burrows was re-elected as chairman of the Board.

A vote of thanks was given to J. F. Lillicrap, who for many years was a member of the Board, serving several terms as chairman, and has always rendered faithful and efficient service. Mr. Lillicrap retired this year as he is a member of the Municipal Council.

Sore throats need this Double-Treatment

RUBBED on the throat, Vicks relieves in two direct ways:

CHRIST CHURCH HAS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Report Shows Finances in Very Prosperous Condition.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 30. — Christ Church closed a very successful year, as was evidenced by the reports of the various societies and organizations presented at the vestry meeting held in the rectory. The reports show the church to be in a very prosperous financial condition at the end of the year. The officers for the present year were also elected at the meeting. These were: A. T. Linton, vestry clerk; A. J. Jenkins, treasurer; J. M. Bygott, rector's warden; C. E. Bonnycastle, people's warden; George Elmhirst, A. Mills, H. A. Lawrie, Jack Free, Roy Hardy, H. Dawson, J. R. Wilkinson, and Gerald West, sidesmen. The lay delegates to the Synod will be A. J. Jenkins, J. M Bygott, and C. E. Bonnycastle, with J. P. Archer, George Goffin, and N. A. McColl, substitutes. The three members of the Advisory Board appointed by the vestry are N. A. MacColl, A. T. Linton and Sam Clegg. S. H. Neale and J. F. Maynard are the two ex-wardens elected to the Advisory Board. J. P. Archer and F. C. Bonnycastle will constitute the Cemetery Committee, and the auditors will be N. A. MacColl and H. A. Lawrie.

The report of the Willing Workers was presented by Miss Lilian Benor, that of the Women's Auxiliary by Mrs. J. P. Archer and Miss Edna Baker reported for the Girls' Auxiliary. Mrs. H. A. Moore presented the report for the Junior Auxiliary. and Miss Ethel Bedford reported for the choir. Owing to the absence of Mrs. Fred Free, the rector presented the report of the Sunday School. Mr. A. J. Jenkins presented the treasurer's report for the Sunday School. J. P. Archer presented the report for the Cemetery Committee. The financial statement was brought in by A. J. Jenkins and the auditors' report by N. A. MacColl.

A most unexpected climax to the meeting came when the vestry clerk was called from the meeting just at the conclusion of business shortly before eleven o'clock. Mr. Linton had just been informed of his mother's death.

Madoc

MADOC, Jan. 30. — The musical comedy entitled "The New Minister," put on at the Empire Theatre Friday evening, by the United Church Dramatic Society of Sulphide, was one of the best and most entertaining programs that has been presented for some time. The play was under the auspices of the Presbyterian Young People's Society, and will ensure the Sulphide dramatic society a hearty welcome whenever they reappear in Madoc.

Miss Mabel Ross of Trinity United Sunday school entertained her class on Monday evening at a snow shoe party. The early part of the evening was spent in snow shoeing after which the party returned to the church parlours for refreshments.

A very enjoyable Progressive euchre party was given by Oakdale Rebekah Lodge in the I.O.O.F., hall on Friday night. The ladies' first prize was won by Mrs. Jesse Reid; the men's first by Mr. K. Stocklose.

After lunch was served the rest of the evening was spent in dancing.

NOVELTY TEA HELD AT NORHAM

Social Gathering Held at the Home of Mrs. B. Isaac.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

NORHAM, Jan. 30.—On Thursday afternoon the Norham Ladies' Aid held a "Novelty Tea" at the home of Mrs. B. Isaac.

Mrs. D. H. Evans, president, occupied the chair. After the devotional exercise, which consisted of a hymn and Scripture lesson, read by Mrs. R. Mitchell, the minutes were read and adopted. Mrs. C. H. Curtis. Mrs. Campbell, and Mrs. D. R. Clare were appointed as programme committee for the next social evening. Mrs. Stanley Brenton, Mrs. F. Huycke, and Mrs. Geo. Palmateer were appointed as programme committee for the next Ladies' Aid meeting.

At this point the programme committee for the meeting, Mrs. B. Isaac, Mrs. P. Windover, and Mrs. C. Palmateer, took charge of the meeting. The programme was as follows:

Piano solo—Miss Edna Evans.
Reading—Miss Orletta Gummer.
Vocal duet—Mrs. B. West and Miss Lulu Mitchell.

A musical contest resulted in Mrs. O. Laver and Mrs. R. Mitchell being the winners. The prize was a box of bon-bons.

A ten cent novelty lunch was then served. This consisted of apples popcorn and various kinds of candy.

The meeting was closed in the usual manner.

Mrs. D. R. Clare returned from Toronto on Thursday, where she had spent a few days.

Miss McCready spent the week-end in Toronto.

As Miss O'Neil teacher of the Warkworth Continuation School, is ill, Rev. Mr. Fowler, pastor of the Warkworth Presbyterian Church, is supplying in her place.

LADIES' AID MEETS

Mrs. William Howden Re-elected by Bethel United Society.

BETHEL, Jan. 31.—The annual business meeting of the Bethel Ladies' Aid was held at the home of the pastor, Rev. and Mrs. Rowland, of Omemee, on Tuesday night, Jan. 24. Owing to the bad condition of the road, the attendance was small.

The meeting was conducted with the president, Mrs. William Howden, occupying the chair. After the opening exercises, the election of officers took place:

President—Mrs. William Howden.
Vice-President—Mrs. Albert Ruth.
Secretary—Mrs. Milton Sherin.
Treasurer—Mrs. Harry Jackson.
Pianist—Mrs. Evans Storey.
Sick Committee — Mrs. Harry Lowes and Mrs. Evans Storey.

The meeting was then brought to a close by prayer.

All present got their partners and enjoyed a very interesting picture contest. Mrs. Evans Storey and Mr. Cecil Casey won firset prize.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Rowland.

ROADS BLOCKED

Traffic Takes to Rice Lake for Smooth Driving Surface.

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 31.—Owing to the recent severe snow storm, the roads have been blocked and traffic stopped in this community for the first time this winter. Mailmen on the different routes were unable to deliver the mail, and a great many snow-shovels had to be employed to make the roads passable at all. However, while the roads have been blocked Rice Lake has made an excellent highway, and automobiles, cutters and sleighs have been taking advantage of the good sleighing and wheeling, and the lake is the scene of considerable traffic.

The ice on the lake has become quite a thickness, and some of the residents are taking out their summer's supply of ice.

Latest Comment on Grain and Industrial Markets. — Closing Quotations on the Principal Active Stocks.

MINES.

F. G. Oke and Company wire as follows:

Toronto, Jan. 31.—Further liquidation and profit-taking in some stocks and in others lack of support appeared to result in a general decline in prices during this morning's trading. Howey, Kirkland Lake, Wright Hargreaves, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, Bidgood and Barry Hollinger were among the leaders of this decline while the other market leaders appeared in need of buying orders to maintain their present prices.

Particularly did a drop in Howey cause surprise on Streets as a report of ore lengths, widths and values encountered on the property is expected to be announced shortly. According to information stated to come from one of the head officials of Howey, ore values, lengths and widths far exceeded even optimistic expectations and $25 to $30 is quite a common occurrence across commercial widths. As a result, it seems as though Howey should appear a more attractive speculation as the price of the stock recedes.

Teck Hughes hovers around $9 per share, which can be considered more or less satisfactory in view of adverse market conditions and a fair amount of selling that is apparent.

The present market action of declining prices seems disappointing to many who anticipated recovery before now, but it must now be forgotten that during 1927 we had a bull market of longer duration than possibly ever before, and that there is no reason why we should not expect a bear market of corresponding length of time. The silver lining of the whole situation is the fact that there is no doubt or misapprehension regarding actual developments at the respective mines up north. The Canadian mining industry has probably never been in better condition than to-day, nor has the outlook ever been brighter. Particularly is this in evidence when we consider the huge deposits of the baser metals that are being discovered in the various parts of our "pre-Cambian shield," and as the world consumption for such metals as copper, zinc, and lead, appears to be greater and will continue increasing for some time to come, great strides in base metal production are anticipated from Canadian mining during the next few years.

Also there is more truth than fiction in the statement made by an authority on mining, "that mining is not only necessary but is vital to modern civilization."

Corn Continues Gains; Wheat Is Still Weak

CHICAGO, Jan. 31. — (Canadian Press.)— Aggressive buying brought about an early upturn in corn prices to-day despite a hesitant start. Stimulating the demand was the fact that arrivals of corn in Chicago to-day and in other main centres were relatively small. Opening 1-8c. off to ½c. up, corn scored an all around advance which, however, was not well maintained. Wheat started at 1-8c. to 58-8c. decline and later held near to the intial figures. Oats were firm. Provisions likewise tended upward. Opening prices were:

Wheat, March 129 7-8, May 130 1-8. Corn, March 88 1-8, May 91 1-8. Oats, March 54, May 55.

Buying Of Utilities Feature At New York

NEW YORK Jan. 31. Canadian Press. — Heavy buying of the public utilities, several of which attained record high prices featured the resumption of the upward movement of prices in to-day's stock market. Earnings and merger reports apparently furnished the background for the rise in public utilities. Montana Power, Brooklyn Union Gas and People's Gas all moved up five points or more, while Radio, Philadelphia Company, Columbia Gas, International Telephone, Adams Express and a number of others advanced two to three points. General Motors and United States Steel Common, which had been lagging behind the general list for the past few days, regained their position as market leaders in the early afternoon.

Toronto Stocks Weak In Active Trading

TORONTO, January 31 (Canadian Press). — Weakness in the dominant leader, Sergram, was reflected to some extent throughout the list on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, in active trading. Two strong features, however, were Northern Mexico, up six at 108, and Steel of Canada, seven higher at 199. Seagram's sold down to 29, a loss of 1⅞. The oils were generally easier, with British-American losing a quarter at 38. The liquors also tended slightly lower, Carlings being the weakest with a one point loss at 40. Northern Bakeries, the unlisted leader, lost a full point at 51. In the regular list Page Hersey sold down a point at 101, and Building Products eased slightly. Canadian Oil, however, receded to 59⅞, and Nickel at 98¾ was fractonally firmer, as were Massey-Harris at 43⅞, Brompton at 67½, and the Canners issues.

Kirkland Lake Stocks Are Weaker To-day

TORONTO, Jan. 31 (Canadian Press).—Kirkland Lake stocks were hammered down again today on the Standard Mining Exchange. Kirkland Gold appeared to bear the brunt of the attack and lost twelve points at 2.20. Beaver came back to 185, a net loss of 161. Wright Hargreaves and Teck Hughes weakened in sym pathy but did not lose a great deal, and while Teck lost 15 at 8.95 Wright Hargraves sold at 5.60 at noon, unchanged.

Bidgood weakened five at 83 and Barry Hollinger was five lower at 81. Crown Reserve lost six at 45. Howey sold back to 1.40, eight points lower and Amulet and Noranda weakened to 3.55 and 20.50. Premier and Capitol Rouyn showed some strength. Sheritt Gordon was another firm spot with a gain of fifteen at 6.65. Hudson Bay Smelting suffered a loss of ¾ at 20.15 and Big Horn moved down two at 42. Pend O'Reille held steady around 8.25.

PETROLEUM ROYALTY COMPANY IS PROGRESSIVE

The recent report of Petroleum Royalties Company shows steady progress due to conservative management and careful purchasing of royalties for the company.

During the past year, the earnings of the company have steadily increased. On December 1st, 1926, the earnings were $10,500 per month, September 30th, 1927, earnings were $25,000 per month, and according to the last statement by the president, the monthly earnings for January will be in excess of $36,000, and after paying the usual 1½ per cent monthly dividend, over $20,000 is invested monthly in new producing royalties, leaving a substantial balance in the reserve account.

In December, 1926, the company was receiving Royalty Oil from 393 producing wells, and in January, 1928, the company was receiving Royalty Oil from 742 producing wells. The company's interest in the gross production from these 742 wells being in excess of 900 barrels of royalty oil daily.

Since the first dividend was paid in February, 1926, the company will have distributed to its shareholders a total of 36 per cent, to February 1st, 1928.

The company's income, which now amounts to over $36,000 per month, is received from its royalty interests entirely free of cost, giving an annual earning of nearly 50 per cent on the outstanding shares, which make it possible for the Peteroleum Royalties Company to pay such large dividends to its shareholders.

The Petroleum Royalties Co. is in a unique position, as its charter restricts it to the one purpose of investing in producing oil royalties in the well-known oil fields of the Mid-Continent, which are being operated by the major oil companies, and no money is invested in any other phase of the oil business or any other business whatsoever.

The royalties owned by the company are actually the first mortgage on the oil produced by the great oil companies of America, and its preferred shares being backed by such excellent security, they can rightly be regarded as an absolutely safe investment.

The above results have been accomplished during a time when oil has been at its lowest prices for some years. When the price of oil comes back to normal—as it will in due course—the earnings of the Petroleum Royalties Company will be greatly enhanced and produce a much larger income and make possible still greater distribution of dividends to its shareholders.

KNOX CHURCH.

Bible Sunday was observed in Knox Church by Rev. Mr. McDonald. The hymns selected and the sermon preached all emphasized the importance of learning the Scriptures. "They were written aforetime for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope." The fruit of having received the truth is manifested by the desire to spread the good news to all peoples. People in Canada have a golden opportunity at this present juncture. To provide all new inhabitants with the Word of God and with faithful teachers and preachers is surely a great opportunity. The Bible in whole, or in part, is supplied in 110 different languages in the Dominion. They could not possibly be supplied with the Bible in their own language except for the Bible Society. This has always been done in a most satisfactory manner, therefore it should be supported most liberally.

SUB S-3 FOUND.

Is Proceeding To Cuba Under Own Power—Fears Dispelled.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Fears that another disaster like that of the submarine S-4 had overtaken the United States' Navy were dispelled to-day with the news that the S-3 was safe in Florida waters and on the way to Cuba.

Missing since sundown last Saturday, the S-3, a sister ship of the S-4, was found last night at eight o'clock. Her position, given in a message to the Navy Department by Rear Admiral Frank Drumby, commanding the control force of which the submarine was a part, was latitude 27.30, longitude 74.7. The message said that the submarine was proceeding under her own power to Guatanamo, Cuba, but gave no further details.

CLARADAY CHURCH IN GOOD POSITION

St. George's Congregation Closes Year of Effort on Right Side Financially.

CLARADAY, Jan. 31.—A very fine attendance, considering the extremely stormy evening, was present at the annual vestry meeting of St. George's Church, held in the basement on Wednesday evening, the rector, Rev. J. C. Hughes, being in the chair. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by Mrs. A. Cuff, secretary. The warden's report, presented by R. W. Butler, people's warden, showed a substantial balance on hand. The allotments had been paid in full, this being about the first time that the whole amount had been reached.

Mr. Butler also gave the envelope report, which showed an increase in contributions. He spoke of this method as being the most valuable way of ensuring financial success.

Immediately after hearing these reports, the vestry accorded to Mr. Butler, on the motion of Mrs. W. H. Andrews, seconded by C. Cole, a hearty vote of thanks for his untiring work, not only in the way he carried out his duties as warden, but in the many other duties he performed in connection with the church.

Reports of the various organizations were presented. In the Sunday School report, given by Mrs. Andrews, a pleasing feature was the fact that approximately one-third of the income was paid out to missionary and other purposes outside the parish, the chief item being the annual contribution of $30 to the support of a boy in the Indian Residential School at Chapleau.

The report of the W. A., read by Mrs. J. Brownlie, secretary, showed a steady membership and much good work done. A Junnor W. A. has been organized recently.

The Ladies' Guild reported a record year for success, over $200 being contributed to the warden's fund.

While no actual report from the A. Y. P. A. was presented, it was stated that the branch since its re-organization in October has a stronger membership than ever, and is displaying great zeal in every department. It was afterwards learned that the previous evening one of the branch teams won the play-off for first place in the city A.Y.P.A. Bowling League.

The rector in his report reviewed the past year, and remarked that in every department of church life and work as shown in both statistics and zeal there was marked progress. He thanked the wardens, and referred to the splendid way they had worked together. A tribute was paid to the Sunday School staff for their faithful services, special mention being made of E. Tucker for his splendid work—week days as well as Sundays—with the senior boys.

Thanks were tendered to the Guild for the wonderful work accomplished, under the strong leadership of the president, Mrs. T. Monk, and the effect of the W. A. was felt in the missionary influence they had created.

During the past year a change of organist had been made, E. Davies now occupying that position. The need for more choir members was mentioned, and the rector appealed for vacancies to be filled.

Other important business was dealt with and discussed, and in the closing stage of the meeting the members partook of dainty refreshments kindly provided by the wardens.

The following were elected to office for the ensuing year:

Wardens—Messrs. H. Ferguson and R. W. Butler.

Sidesmen — Messrs. H. Wilson, C. Cole, S. Robertson, A. Sims, R. King, A. Cuff.

Lay delegates to Synod—Messrs. S. Robertson, J. R. Cleverdon and A. H. Sutherland (Toronto).

Dr. A. A. Cameron, of the dental office of Drs. Craig, Cameron and Crough, returned on Saturday from Chicago, where he spent the past three weeks taking a post-graduate course at the Northwestern University. While in Chicago, he attended the convention of the Dental Society.

The Anglican students of the Normal School were entertained last evening by the members of St. George's A.Y.P.A. in the church basement. The guests were received by Miss M. Huxley, president; Miss M. Scott, vice president, and Rev. J. L. Hughes, after which each was tagged by Miss F. Andrews. The evening was spent in games and contests interspersed by community singing and other musical items. Mrs. Hughes contributed a recitation and a musical monologue. Rev. J. L. Hughes was heard to good effect in two vocal solos, and Mr. Alex. Robertson played violin selections in his usual pleasing way. Mr. S. Robertson acted as chairman for the evening. In a picture contest, where correct titles were required for a number of pictures, Miss O. Smith and Miss McCamus were joint prize-winners. A word-guessing competition resulted in Miss John and Miss Bailey being tied for the prize, and the lucky couple in the birthday dance were Miss Smith and Mr. S. Robertson. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge. At the close of the evening Miss Olive Smith, on behalf of the students, thanked the members of the A.Y.P.A. for the pleasant evening. Rev. J. L. Hughes replied on behalf of the branch.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

It was a subdued, sad-eyed little Cherry who devoted herself to her baby and her sister that first week after Faith's return from the hospital. She seemed to resent the hours that she was necessarily away from the house in Serenity Boulevard, attending to her duties as Bob's secretary, hastening home in the late afternoon to flutter about Faith with anxious offers of service, and then to wheel little Hope out for a long, brisk walk in the early November cold. The baby was becoming more of a problem. She was no longer an unnoticing infant that slept half the time, but an exuberant, healthy, demanding baby of six months. During that first week of Faith's convalescence Rhoda had her hands full, with the housework, cooking and caring for the baby, to which she was slavishly devoted.

But it was Cherry who surprised them all by suddenly taking her responsibilities as a mother very seriously indeed. In some queer way, Faith's expectations of a child of her own aroused a fierce, maternal jealousy in Cherry's heart. She seemed almost to resent that Faith's coming child was already reconciling her sister to the possible loss of Hope, but her jealousy translated itself into a touching and beautiful devotion to the baby.

She refused all evening invitations, on the ground that her baby needed her. Hope responded by being her most charming self when Cherry was at home, a fact that lightened the brooding shadows in the girl's eyes. But Cherry was not happy. It was true, as Rhoda had pointed out to Faith, that the girl was half sick, and that Nils Jonson was responsible. The postman made his morning delivery about half past eight, and Cherry invariably flew to answer his knock, her golden eyes brilliant with hope. But when she returned to the breakfast table with the mail her cheeks were white and her eyes dull again, so that Faith, watching her with pitying eyes, knew that Nils had not yet written. As soon as she returned from the office in the afternoon she searched the small stack of mail on the hall table with quick, trembling hands, then turned sharply away, so that Faith, if she were present, should not see her tears.

A dozen times that week Faith made up her mind to write Nils that he had carried the thing far enough, that Cherry had been sufficiently piqued by his silence, that she was starving for a word from him. But just as often she reluctantly decided to keep her finger out of this particular pie. Perhaps Nils was wiser than she, instinctively knew Cherry better than she did. He had said that Cherry merely desired conquest, that when she was sure of a man she lost interest, that no man had ever really given Cherry a chance to fall wholly in love with him, because conquest had always been uninterestingly easy.

And so Faith held her peace, though her heart ached for her sister. On Sunday, one week after her return from the hospital, she had her reward, for Cherry slipped into her room, her lips quivering over her confession:

"Faith, I want to talk to you about—Nils."

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

THE BUTTER OF LIFE

In restaurants the aproned youth
Who brings our dinner (presently)
Will often bring as many a truth,
If we've the sense the truth to see.
Of many a maxim I've made note,
Both a la carte and table d'hote.

Now, there's the matter of the square
Of butter that a waiter brings
Butter and life, I find, compare
In lots of ways and lots of things.
For, in Virginia or Vermont,
At first he brings half what you want.

And soon you feel compelled to say.
"Some butter, please—I need some more;"
And then the waiter goes away,
Brings twice the butter brought before.
At first you hadn't half enough,
And now you're burdened with the stuff.

But isn't that the way of life?
In poverty our days begin.
Like spreading butter with a knife,
We spread our money pretty thin.
We sigh for joys of many a shape,
But we must pinch and save and scrape.

And then, when we're too old to care,
Have grown too weary, or too wise,
Dame Fortune brings another square
Of butter, twice the usual size.
Half what we want we get, indeed,
And then, too late, twice what we need.

IS YOUR BLOOD THIN?

Thin blood, for which the medical word is anaemia, may become chronic. The symptoms are a feeling of weakness, one tires easily and becomes short of breath on exertion. Sometimes there is faintness, dizziness, palpitation of the heart and the pulse becomes rapid. The victim is pale, sometimes sallow.

If you have any of these symptoms get a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from your druggist and follow the instructions on the direction sheet. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a specific remedy for anaemic conditions and have restored many pale, weak, nervous people to health, strength and happiness.

A little book, "Building up the Blood", will be sent free by The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Send for it today.

Mount Pleasant

MOUNT PLEASANT, Jan. 31.—On Saturday evening the girl friends of Miss Kathleen Sisson met at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Sisson in the village, and presented her with a sterling silver bracelet set with brilliants, prior to her departure with her parents to their new home in Ida.

Miss Alma Downer read the following address when Miss Helen McLean presented the gift.

Dear Kathleen:

We, your girl friends of Mount Pleasant, have learned of your intended departure from our village.

In our many social times together you have always been a willing helper and your kind, pleasant manner has made those times more jolly. We know that we shall miss you very, very much Kathleen and we regret losing you from our midst.

As a remembrance of your many girl friends here we ask you to accept this gift.

(Signed) Alma Downer, Helen McLean, Annie Graham, Hazel McPherson, Laurine Best, Dorothy Morden, Sara Easton, Grace Best.

Miss Sisson was completely taken by surprise and in a few well chosen words expressed her appreciation and thanks to the girls for the kind sprit which prompted the presenting of the gift. The remainder of the evening was spent in the form of a skating party.

CHURCH REPORTS ARE ENCOURAGING

Bailieboro United Church Ends Year in Good Position Financially.

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 31.—The annual congregational meeting of the Bailieboro United Church was held on Thursday evening in the church.

Possibly, owing to the bad condition of the roads, there was not as large a crowd present as was expected, but the reports of the various officers of the past year's work were most encouraging. Each branch of the church showed a decided advance over last year's proceedings.

The pastor, Rev. H. W. Foley, acted as chairman, and gave a most inspiring account of his past year's stewardship. John Porter spoke for the Sunday School and Fred. Barnard for the Y.P.S. The treasurer was unable to give a report of the financial side of the church as he had not as yet succeeded in getting the books balanced. T. E. Dawson stated, however, that he was satisfied there would be a balance after all allocations were met, as there was a balance of fifty dollars over the amount asked for the maintenance and extension fund.

The following officers were appointed for the ensuing year. Secretary, Will. Lang; treasurer, Mr. T. E. Dawson; stewards, Messrs. John Porter, Hadril Dawson, Wilbur Barnard, Harry Barnard and Frank Dawson.

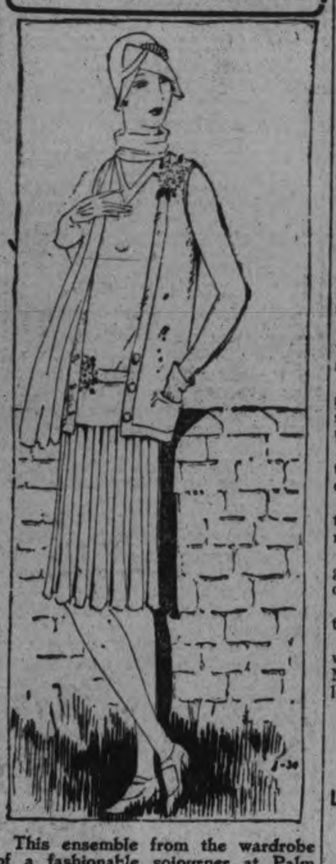
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



This ensemble from the wardrobe of a fashionable sojourner at Palm Beach consists of a yellow crepe de chine skirt and overblouse and a sweater of yellow angora. Please observe that both overblouse and sweater are sleeveless.

Bare arms again—that is, bare arms in the daytime!

As a matter of fact, the fashion never went out, for even last summer when some women held to the opinion that sleeveless day frocks were quite out of date, some of the smartest dressmakers continued to make them—and women with arms that they didn't like to hide continued to wear them. I have noticed that it is the women with not such good-looking arms who are always most eager to cry out that sleeveless frocks are out of date.

Many of the ensembles made for Riviera and Palm Beach wear are in a measure sleeveless. There are four-piece ensembles made with a long-sleeved blouse to begin with—a sleeveless jacket over that, and a long-sleeved coat. The skirt mounted on a slip top makes the fourth piece. As worn that way the effect is that of long sleeves, but sometimes there is an alternative sleeveless blouse which, worn only with the sleeveless jacket, gives the sleeveless costume. Sometimes these sleeveless under blouses are worn with long sleeved jackets which are discarded when the state of the temperature permits.

One of the newest afternoon costumes I have seen among the things just received from Paris consists of a white crepe satin skirt used on the shiny side with a slight flare at the left. There is a long, quite snug tunic of crepe satin used on the dull side—a v-neck with an unusual jabot arrangement at the front and curious little v-topped raglan sleeves that extend as you might say just over the vaccination mark—leaving almost all the arms entirely bare. Pull-on gloves just covering the wrist would be worn with this blouse.

Remember, these new raglan sleeves—they are already much talked about in dressmaking circles. There is the old type raglan arrangement where they are set in, but they are quite snug, with none of the old looseness that we associated with this type of arm-covering. They are found full length on some of the tailored jackets.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1928.

Except in the early hours of this day the planetary government is adverse, according to astrology.

The morning should be an auspicious time for women to seek employment or to obtain favors of any sort.

For the daughters of men born to wealth and luxury there is to be a new form of public service that should engage their energies.

The seers declare that in the next generation women of every class will be trained to wage-earning occupations.

This is read as a fortunate rule for weddings if the ceremony is performed before noon.

Music now comes into the most favorable conditions which make for great progress among Americans.

Under this sway it is well to watch the temper, since there may be a tendency to see other person's faults and to forget one's own.

Quarrels are easily brought about while this configuration prevails and should be avoided as much as possible.

The evening may be a time when the average person is more than ordinarily sensitive and it is wise to be especially tactful.

The Sun at this time is in an aspect to Neptune which is read as presaging disturbing conditions affecting labor.

Statesmen will face new problems in this new year which may develop national heroes.

Politics now come under a planetary government making for surprises and disappointments.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a prosperous, busy year. Children born on this day probably will be industrious and intellectual. Many subjects of this sign enter the learned professions.

SEWING BEE AT CAVAN

Ladies of Cavan W. I. Send Clothing to Needy Children in North.

CAVAN, Jan. 31.—Cavan Women's Institute held two sewing bees, one at Mrs. J. Armstrong's on Tuesday and another at Mrs. J. W. Perrin's on Thursday. Two quilts were put together and quilted and other garments made.

An appeal had come to the Institute asking for clothing to be sent to Haliburton for school children between the ages of five to fifteen, inclusive. It stated that in the inspectorate many children were unable to attend school in winter for lack of warm clothing, unless they received outside help along this line.

Quilts were also asked for. Miss Fisk, a teacher, was named as the one appointed this year to receive parcels.

As a result of the two sewing bees the following garments were shipped in two bales: Nine pairs bloomers, two dresses for children, two felt hats, two skirts for girls and two blouses, one cotton dress for a girl, one cap, two undershirts for men, two combinations for boys of fifteen, two coats for boys and a toque, two pairs long drawers for children, five warm coats for girls, one good flannel dress for a girl, four toques for girls, two vests for youths, three woollen scarfs for children, three new quilts, one used quilt, three pairs Worsted hose for boys, two pairs cashmere hose for girls, one pair gloves, one cushion, three pairs mitts, three pairs gloves, three fleece-lined garments for boys, two undervests for girls, one pullover sweater for a girl.

Much of this clothing was new, while other garments, clean and in good order, were donated.

A letter was read at the meeting from a Red Cross nurse in a northern district, acknowledging a bale of clothing which she had received from another source, and telling of the great need for clothing among those pioneers of Northern Ontario.

A committee of the Institute were voted ten dollars with which to commence relief work for a local family. A sewing bee will be arranged for to fill the needs of this family.

Former Heavy-Weight Champion Laid Up With Injured Eye

JACK DEMPSEY HAS EYE HURT IN TRAINING

Will Not Be Able to Enter Ring Again Until Next September.

NOT SERIOUS

Mauler Denies Report He Will Retire From Fistic World.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press)—Handicapped with an injury to his left eye, Jack Dempsey, erstwhile champion of pugilism let it be known yesterday that he probably will not be ready until next September to take another shot at Gene Tunney's heavyweight crown.

The Manassa Mauler incidentally took occasion to deny reports that the ailment was serious enough to force his retirement from the ring. It was bad enough, he said, however, to suspend his training activities.

Dempsey revealed that the muscle of the eye had been hurt in one of his recent bouts. He does not regard it as serious.

"The injury", he said, "is of such unimportant nature that I did not mention it when I wired Tex Rickard in Miami that I would not be in condition to accept a bout in June.

"I have been working out nearly every day and physically I feel in good shape, but not quite good enough to take on a match as early as June."

There has been no definite arrangement between Dempsey and Rickard concerning another championship match, said the ex-champion but he injected a pair of optimistic "if's" into his conversation about the possibility of meeting Tunney again.

"If I decide to accept another bout this injury to my eye muscle will not interfere with my plans.

"If I believe I can get back in shape for another shot at the title, Rickard and I will get together without much trouble."

GIBSON ARRIVES WEDNESDAY

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 31.—When Billy Gibson arrives Wednesday, fleeing the northern storms, the customers may get a little ballyhoo about the where and when and so forth of the next heavyweight championship fight.

"Billy ought to have something to say," Gene Tunney said yesterday.

"Nothing now; I may have something to say in two or three days, said Tex Rickard, between golf games.

All the elements are here excepting only the ex-title holder and perennial opponent, last reported in Los Angeles.

Tunney Starts Today.

Tunney will begin actual training here under the palms at the Ocean Side Monday. Tex Rickard, who has been playing golf and saying little except the short end sulphurous words necessary to that game, is here for the rest of the Winter.

The Chicago angle is represented by A. J. Cermack, chairman of the Cook County commission and a warm personal friend of Tunney's who also has taken a winter home here, not far from either Tex or Gene.

Cermack thus far is the most frankly voluble of the lot. His objective is simple. He wants Chicago to get the next Tunney fight. Despite the belief among the wise ones that the Yankee Stadium will be the setting of the next title clash.

Chicago Wants It.

Mr. Cermack frankly sets forth his ideas.

"Of course, Chicago would like to get the fight. I've talked with Tunney about it, and Tunney likes Chicago. Before Houston was selected for the Democratic Convention, we wanted to get the convention and the next Tunney fight at the same time, proving, in passing, that Chicago is a glutton for action.

"Now that the convention has gone elsewhere, we still want the fight", Cermack continued, "the athletic commission has the support of Governor Small and Mayor Thompson in trying for it.

"Edward J. Kelly, president of the South Park Commission which controls the stadium where the September fight was held and I have been authorized by the City Council to try to get the fight.

The Chicago interests will work through stricly conventional channels in their attempt to swing the bout westward. Rickard has Tunney on contract. Rickard will promote the fight and he is the man they'll see.

Gene Tunney Ready To Start Training

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 31.—With the arrival of Lou Fink, his trainer and a couple of trunks full of equipment, Gene Tunney is getting ready to start serious training for the defense of his heavyweight championship in two matches this summer.

Tunney has been talking to Tex Rickard about the pair of heavyweights that will be chosen as his opponents and he had given the New York promoter plenty of ground to cover. "I'll take any opponent that is suitable to the public", Tunney said.

Jack Britton, the former welterweight champion, is engaged here as a boxing instructor for some of the young sons of the idle rich and he may act as Tunney's chief sparring partner in the early stages of training.

SNOWFALL KEEPS FANS FROM GAMES

Roads in Burnbrae District blocked for Cars in Most Places.

BURNBRAE, Jan. 31.—The hockey fans in this community were very sorry to see the heavy snow fall of last week, as the roads are blocked for cars in most places and the means of attending hockey games is almost gone. Burnbrae has been well represented at all the Campbellford Trent Valley League engagements and a large share of the team's support at the Stirling game last week came from this district. With two local boys, J. Rannie and T. Shillinglaw, on the Outlaws team, the Campbellford T. V. League also gets a goodly share of the patronage. The only hockey locally this winter will be on the Hoards rink and fans are expecting a few games between Menie veterans and Hoard's before the season ends.

Another of Burnbrae's young men has departed for other fields of labour, in the person of Marshal Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Millar, town line, who is now in Toronto taking a course in auto mechanics, electrical and garage work at a well-known trade school in that city. Marshall has for many years been interested in this branch of work and his friends predict a successful career for him. Always prominent in local circles, he will be greatly missed during the coming season.

In spite of very stormy weather, a splendid crowd of dairymen and their friends visited the home of Humeshaugh Ayrshires, Messrs. Alex. Hume and Son, on Tuesday afternoon last, on the occasion of the first judging class of the year under the auspices of the Central Ontario Ayrshire Breeders' Club. Walter Smith, B.S.A., of Brighton, was unable to be present on account of the storm, but no judging class for dairy cattle need suffer for lackof leadership with veteran breeders like Messrs. Alex Hume and William Stewart present, so that the event was highly successful. The Hume herd is in the pink of condition and the many splendid animals to choose from gives a wonderful opportunity for instruction in the art of judging.

PRICKLY FEELING WHEN GHOST CAME

Mysterious Sounds in Omemee 'Phone Exchange Emanated From Apple Barrel.

OMEMEE, Jan. 31.—While Campbellford and district is recovering from the nervous strain caused from anxiety over the haunted house, Omemee has stepped into the limelight with another mystery which, to the family concerned, was somewhat nerve-racking for several days prior to it being solved. The local telephone office and dwelling was the scene of disturbances and unusual noises would ascend from the basement during the day and night. On investigation, ex-Reeve I. H. Fee discovered that a half a barrel of Northern Spies, which as yet had not been in use, had been consumed by the intruder. Mr. Fee decided it was about time to act, and at once sent out for a local man to assist in the hunt. Lying in wait, the men watched the slow approach of the now famous apple-eater, which on investigation proved to be a huge porcupine, which was soon despatched with a rifle.

The trophy of the hunt has been on exhibition at Mr. Fee's house during the week, and many have marvelled at its weight, which is almost fifty pounds.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.

JOY-RIDE IN HEARSE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Two men and a girl, with rather rare taste for pleasure rides, made off with a hearse belonging to the Bellevue Hospital. They drove it all over town, and abandoned it in an outlying district where police recovered it on the tip of a nearby resident.

EVANS CERTAIN TO PLAY WITH WALKER TEAM

Bob Jones, Captain, to Help Rank America's Amateur Golfers.

U.S.G.A. TO AID

George Von Elm, Jess Sweetser, Francis Ouiment Likely to Be on Team.

Choosing the 1928 Walker Cup team that is to go against the British at Chicago next summer, which is tantamount to ranking the ten best amateurs from Boston to Berkeley, is not a pleasant task Bob Jones will be asked to perform when the captaincy of the squad is thrust upon him by the executive committee of the United States Golf Association.

His Work Easy.

Judging the capabilities of the golfers he has been licking is almost certain to run against the grain of the Georgia gem's nature, but the duty probably will be softenedy by the aid the U.S.G.A. will lend him.

The U.S.G.A. will invite probably a score of linksmen to join the team with the expectation that there will be the usual number of declinations. Only the finest in the land are to get bids, and when the list has been reduced by those unable to render service the difficulties of Jones will be comparatively easy.

In fact the selections of the team this year should be quite simple. No golfing comet blazed a trail over the bunkered firmament in the last twelvemonth, and practically the same team that subdued the British two years ago will be reassembled.

George Von Elm, Jess Sweetser, Francis Ouimet, Chick Evans, Watts Gunn, Roland Mackenzie, with Robert Tyre himself, comprise seven certainties and leave only one other to be picked as a regular and two to be designated alternates. Jesse Guilford, the Boston seige gun, who was a member of the 1926 team, may get the other regular berth, but it is likely that one of the brilliants among the younger set will be tendered it.

Chick Evans was not a member of the last warring force, the U. S. G. A. omitting the Peck's Bad Boy of the links with apparent deliberation. His game at that time was rather cheerless and, though Evans acknowledged the slight with a grim grin, his friends were somewhat vociferous in branding it an injustice.

Chick determined to remove the stain on his reputation, and went abroad and competed in the British amateur championship, but his attempt to vindicate his game was a pitiful failure.

Evans apparently had learned a lesson. He realized he still had much of his old stuff, but could not exhibit it properly because of lack of practice. Whereupon he exercised his clubs more frequently and last year astonished the golf world by mounting to the final round in the American amateur championship. There he was beaten by Jones, but Chick had shown the boys he still possessed much of his old-time skill, and his ability to muff a short putt.

Chick's chuckle was heard again in the land when he knew that he had effaced the blot, and there is little doubt but that he is waiting with impatience the invitation to rejoin the American Walker Cup team he is quite sure is coming to him. The U.S.G.A. can hardly again scratch his name from the list, for Chick is runner-up to the mighty Jones.

Another reason for Chick's inclusion is the fact that the Walker Cup matches next summer are to be played in his own backyard—the Chicago Golf Club, of Wheaton, Ill.

Belanger Shows Well In His Training Work

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—For the first time since he has attained first flight distinction as a flyweight, Frenchy Belanger, who defends his title next Monday night against Frankie Genaro of New York, is exhibiting keen interest in his training preparations, and Manager Garrity looks upon this fact as a happy augury. "Frenchy learned his lesson at Buffalo, and he will not be caught napping again." said Mr. Garrity yesterday. "He was not as fit as he could have been when he fought Frisco Grande, and it was not until the fifth round that he showed anything like real form, and then was unfortunate enough to be thrown out for an alleged foul. There will be nothing like this next Monday night, and I will be surprised if he doesn't win decisively." Genaro will be here Thursday to wind up his training work. Joe Jacobs, who also manages Jack Delaney, will accompany him, and there is a possibility that the lightweight champion who is hot on Tunney's trail will also be along.

SPORT BITS

WANT TITLE BOUT.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press).—The opening wedge of a campaign to place Dick "Honeyboy" Finnegan of Boston in line for a shot at Sammy Mandell's lightweight title was driven here yesterday by Matchmaker Eddie Mack of the Arbonne A.A. who telegraphed an offer of $50,000 to Eddie Kane, the lightweight king's manager, for a title bout at Braves Field here on June 3.

From the Boston end the match would hinge on Finnegan's ability to defeat Bruce Flowers, negro lightweight, in their ten-round bout here next Thursday.

HAD GREAT SEASON.

Pitcher "Lefty" Bolton, who will report to the Indians next spring, established a neat batting record with the Terre Haute club last season. He hit .323 in 75 games as pitcher and at other positions.

CONSIDERED GREAT BOXER

Jim Slattery, Buffalo youth recently beaten by Tommy Loughran for the light heavyweight championship, is said to be one of the greatest boxers in the game today.

LIKES ROOKIE O'DOUL

John McGraw thinks he has a very promising newcomer in Frank O'Doul, from the Pacific Coast League.

COUSIN OF WANERS.

Travea Waner, who will be with the Pirates during spring training next season, is a cousin of Lloyd and Paul Waner.

Hold Out Little Hope For Recovery of Star

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press).— Physicians last night held out little hope for the recovery of Hughey Jennings, noted baseball star, who was stricken with an attack of meningitis last Friday. Although Jennings was conscious at intervals yesterday afternoon, a bulletin issued last night said that his condition is unchanged.

In 1925 Jennings, who was then assistant manager of the New York Giants, suffered a nervous breakdown. He was apparently well on the road to recovery when he was stricken with the latest attack.

NEW STAR DIMS PAAVA NURMI IN RECORD MAKING

Arne Borg Developing Into Rival of the "Flying Finn."

BROKEN WORLD MARKS

New Runner Should Score in Olympic Games at Amsterdam.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Finland, according to word from Finland, is certain to win the 1,500-meter, 3,000-meter, 5,000-meter and 10,000-meter events at the Olympic games in Amsterdam, Holland, in July. In other words, Finland expects to repeat.

It is altogether possible that the Scandinavians may have their plans disrupted somewhat by the foreign menace—that is, the American and German menace—in the 1,500-meter run. Lloyd Hahn, the United States standard bearer, and Dr. Otto Peltzer, of Germany, are not to be discounted at that distance. Nor can Edvin Wide, the Swede, be disposed of with a word. Here is a trio that must cause even Paavo Nurmi to run his fastest.

Have New Star.

But what if they do cause Paavo Nurmi to run his fastest, Finland is not depending upon Nurmi alone. There is an athlete named Arne Borg, namesake of the German record-smashing swimmer, who promises to be even more effective in the coming Olympic games this year than was Nurmi in 1924, when he carried off first places in four events.

In Finland, sport followers are vitally interested in the question of running superiority between Nurmi and Borg. For a long time the speed of both was known to their countrymen, but only in the past year has the possibility of the two meeting in competition become a fact. Political differences kept Borg out of the organization which represents Finland in international competition.

Now that Borg is in the fold, continuous efforts to bring them together are being made. Twice the race was arranged but the two took a runout powder apiece. Borg has broken world's marks that have been made by Nurmi, and Finland is quite sure that he can do it more often.

Where to Put Nurmi?

The Olympic problem, as it presents itself to the Finns, involves Nurmi, Borg and Ritola, and how they can share the burden of the long-distance races to assure the maximum of success. It is still the opinion among Nurmi's folk that he is invincible at 1,500 meters if he points for that distance particularly. Yet Borg several times has approached the world's standard for that distance.

One Swedish sports authority who keeps in close touch with the situation in Finland believes that Nurmi, in the 1500-meters and 3,000-meter events; Borg, in the 5,000-meter race; and Ritola in the 10,000-meter test, will assure their country of a clean sweep in those events. Nurmi won the three shorter races in 1924 and there are few who doubt that he can repeat at two of the three distances.

Ritola Won Longer Race.

Finland, however, is taking the safe-and-sane attitude. Division of the work probably will bring better results. So that, with a rising star supplementing the million candle-power glow of the two old ones, there is little chance of distance running supremacy flitting away from the Finn.

No other cigar in Canada makes the same universal appeal to every class and every age of man .....

A BOXING FIRM FOUNDED ON GRATITUDE

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

One of the best known and certainly the oldest and most durable of the firms operating on the cauliflower market is that of Britton & Morgan.

There have been more broadly advertised firms like Kearns and Dempsey and some that ante-dated the million-dollar days of the business, but they all split up while the former welterweight champion of the world and "Dumb Dan" have been going for twenty years and are still going.

The story of how they became partners may be interesting as it produces some evidence that there still may be such a thing as gratitude in the racket.

Twenty years ago Britton was fighting around Philadelphia and he was a pal of an older and at that time more successful fighter who called himself Young Kid Broad.

Broad got an offer of $20 to fight in New York and he took Britton along with him. The Kid was treated roughly in his bout, but he was satisfied with the twenty bucks and they decided to remain in New York and see the town as neither had been there before.

They got a room on Second avenue near 14th street, paid three days in advance and started out to see the sights. Fourteenth street was then the bright-light district and they were walking along the street taking in all the sights.

Two young huskies were walking toward them and when they met one of them hit Broad across the cheek with a rolled newspaper and said: "Hello, there, kid!" Broad thought he had been recognized on account of the black eye, the cut mouth and the scratched face and was flattered. He said hello right back and stopped

One of the friendly strangers asked: "You looking for a fight?" and the Kid, thinking he was a promoter, said he was and the stranger knocked him flat with a jack. Britton started toward the other stranger, but before he could wing a punch he was dropped from behind. The jack had worked twice.

When they came to they were dragged on a surface car and the strangers showed their badges. They were Ed Reardon, from the district attorney's office, and another detective from a squad assigned to mop up gangsters who had been bothering the neighborhood.

Britton and Broad had little hope of getting identifications, but they were encouraged on the car when a man spoke to Broad. The detectives asked him if he knew the prisoner and when he admitted it he was socked and taken along.

Britton and Broad were tossed in the Tombs charged with vagrancy, disorderly conduct, felonious assault and resisting an officer, a combination which would have assured them of a trip up the river for about three years.

One of the keepers in the Tombs heard their story and went to Dan Morgan, who was then a district Tammany man, but had not been associated with the fighting racket. Morgan had the charges reduced to disorderly conduct and they were fined $10 each. Broad had enough to pay himself out, but he didn't have any left for Britton.

Broad tried for two days to dig up the money while Britton cooled in the Tombs and when he failed he went back to Morgan. Morgan gave him a fine calling, but went down and bought Britton out.

Morgan then told them to get back to Philadelphia as quick as they could and stay there forever, and they went back.

Some time later Britton got back in New York and needing a manager he persuaded Morgan to give up politics and take him.

They have been together ever since. Britton saved his money and could have retired years ago, but hard times fell on Morgan and it is a known fact to inmates that Britton kept on fighting principally to get a cut for the man who had befriended him when he didn't have a friend.

Britton is still fighting—the wonder of the ring—and while it is said that he lost all his money in Florida his friends doubt it and believe he is still working for the firm.

ONE-MINUTE INTERVIEWS

CHARLES C. PYLE SAYS:

Just as I predicted when I decided that the public would be interested in a professional tennis troupe, the officials governing the amateur game are making friendly overtures toward the professionals. So far they have expressed a willingness to co-operate only with the professionals who are engaged as instructors at the various clubs, but in time I am sure they will have to recognize open competition between the amateurs and the professionals.

I am too busy now with other things to give much attention to tennis, but although the pro. game may not be hot stuff now with the public, it will be in time, and I'll be right there when that time comes.

Instead of hurting the amateur game I think the tour of professionals did tennis a lot of good. A great number of the public had an opportunity to see the greatest players in the world in Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, Mary K. Browne, Vincent Richards, and Howard Kinsey, and I know the spectators thought more of tennis after seeing them.

In these modern days there is room in all sports for amateurs and professionals, and it is not in keeping with the times to attempt to place a stigma on an athlete who honestly and openly accepts money for his services.

Four Persons Killed; Car Struck By Train

DETROIT, Michigan, Jan. 31.—Canadian Press. — Four persons were killed instantly and a fifth seriously injured when the automobile in which they were riding stalled on the Wabash Railroad tracks here late yesterday, and was struck by a passenger train travelling at high speed.

The dead are: Joseph Walczak, his wife and baby, and Mrs. J. Napcora, 50 years old.

Walczak's father, Joseph Walczak, Sr., was seriously injured.

JUDGE RULES 'GATOR IS NOT AN ANIMAL

JACKSONVILLE, Jan. 31.—The alligator is not an animal. Take that (or leave it) from Judge M. B. Craig, of this city, who made a ruling to that effect when he dismissed a complaint made by the S.P.C.A. against E. A. Martin. The complaint charged Martin with cruelty to dumb animals because he allowed an alligator to remain in a water tank during a cold spell and ice froze on its back. Hizzoner did not indicate his classification for the alligator.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE TALL WEED

The tall weed was very proud. Tall animals are also proud. Look at the giraffe. Isn't he proud? And the ostrich bird, how proudly he struts, to say nothing of the turkey gobbler who is much taller than a rooster.

Oh, yes, the tall weed was very proud. It grew in a meadow, not far from Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow, and raised itself far above the smaller weeds, like the burdock the tansy, the sorrel and the dandelion

The tall weed was very slender and on top of it grew a bunch of green strands which waved in the wind.

"Why don't you come down where we are and talk to us?" asked the low weeds of the tall one. "Why do, you stick your head away up there where we can't see you?"

"I am tall and proud," answered the high weed. "I am far above you little weeds. Please don't speak to me."

So the little low weeds left the tall weed alone, since it was so proud That was in summer. When the weather grew colder the low weeds began to shrivel and turn brown, getting ready for their winter's sleep. The tall weed also turned brown, but it did not shrivel down, and in place of the green streamers on top there appeared a feathery bunch of plumes which would have tickled anyone brushing against them.

"Now that winter is here," said the Burdock to the Dandelion maybe the Tall Weed will flop down with us to keep warm under the snow."

"Maybe," said the Dandelion, shivering in the cold blast.

But when the snow came, though it covered the low weeds warmly under its white blanket, the drift was not deep enough to hide the Tall Weed. Straight and stiff the tall weed stuck up above the snow.

"This is what comes of being proud!" said the Tall Weed to itself. "I am sure I must look beautiful rearing my head of tickling plumes above the snow. Not everyone is as high and proud as I am!"

So when Uncle Wiggily hopped out of his hollow stump bungalow to look for an adventure, which he did every day, the rabbit saw the Tall Weed above the snow.

"It stands up there like a sign post,' said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "Perhaps it marks the place where there is an adventure under the snow. I will hop over and look."

The Tall Weed saw the rabbit gentleman coming and was more proud than ever. Swaying in the wind the Weed said:

"Ah, I am attracting attention. That rabbit is coming to admire me. That is what comes of being proud and tall."

But if Uncle Wiggily noticed the high weed, so did the Wind. The Wintry Wind was blowing across the fields of snow, whistling through its teeth and making everything twice as cold as before.

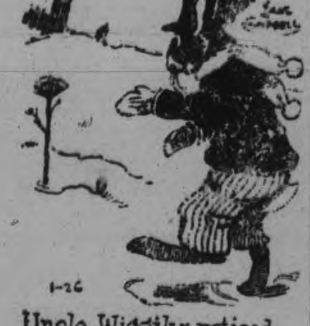
"I alone, of all the weeds, am left to stand up here," said the Tall Weed to itself. "I am higher than the snow, I am very beautiful. I shall stay here forever to be high and proud."

As Uncle Wiggily hopped closer, thinking to find beneath the snow, at the foot of the Tall Weed, some sort of adventure, the Wintry Wind blew harder. And the cold breeze, hearing what the Weed said, whistled angrily and howled:

"So this Weed thinks it will stay here forever; does it? Ha! Not if I have anything to say! With that the Wind blew harder and, all of a sudden, the Tall Weed was broken off close to where it came through the snow. Over on the white drift it fell with its feathery plumes.

"Oh, alas! This is the end of me!" sighed the Tall Weed.

"That is what comes of being proud," whispered the sleeping brown, low weeds under the snow. "That is what comes of being too high and proud.



Uncle Wiggily noticed the tall weed.

And the wind laughed as it toppled the high weed over, breaking its slender stem.

"Alas! Alas! This is the end of me!' sighed the Tall Weed.

Uncle Wiggily reached over and picked up the Weed by its slender stem, for now it was broken loose from its root.

"Why," said the rabbit gentleman with a twinkle of his pink nose, "this weed will make a fine feather duster for Nurse Jane. I will take it home with me." He was about to hop away with the broken Tall Weed, when, all of a sudden, there was a growling noise under the snow. Uncle Wiggily started to hop away, but the growling sounded louder.

LAW—NOT LUCK!

It is thought that the fear of ill-luck on Friday, the 13th, originated from someone who noticed that in the Bible story of "The Last Supper" there were thirteen at the table.

The other night at a dinner party given by a friend there were twelve guests, and so the hostess, who would have made the thirteenth at the table, ate her dinner from the sideboard. She is a lady of an exceptionally fine mind, and I would rate her as being one of the most intelligent women with whom I am acquainted. Yet, she considered that there was some black magic about the number "13."

It is not always the ignorant or uneducated who are superstitious. I have known many keen-minded men who would not walk under a standing ladder, and were fearful when a black cat crossed the road in front of them. It is true there may be some danger in walking under a ladder if the workman above should carelessly drop a hammer or a pail of paint; or if the black cat crosses in front of your machine when you are going fast, you may turn your car over in trying to keep from killing the cat.

If we ever make a change in the calendar, as recently proposed, making thirteen months in place of twelve, the superstitious ones will have a nervous time of it during that last month!

There is no "chance" which marks the sparrow's fall, or controls the rising and falling of the tides. The sparrow drops from the well-directed shot of the skillful marksman, and the tides change because of the magnetic pull from the moon.

Those who are sick in body or mind have reached that condition because they have lived a certain way. Many would like to blame it on Providence, but sooner or later the sick man must realize that he has only himself to blame if he does not live in accordance with the fixed laws of nature.

The Intelligence which created this universe has arranged it so that there can be perfect harmony everywhere, including a perfect co-ordination of all bodily functions!

One who sticks his hand in a buzz-saw need not blame the inventor of the saw or the engineer of the factory. Saws are made for a certain work, and a whirling saw should not be investigated by the fingers.

The human stomach was apparently created as a digestive organ, and not for a garbage pail. Certain foods either digest well or they do not. If one uses inharmonious conglomerations of food, he must not blame his stomach or his Creator for the consequences.

We have the moral teachings of the Bible for our spiritual guidance, and countless thousands have written health books with more or less inspiration. My efforts in this column are to give to my readers what I have discovered regarding Nature's laws.

Questions and Answers.

Questions. E. S. writes. "I have been smoking cigarettes for thirty years. Have tried to stop them but cannot, as I get that feeling in the throat and cannot stop. If there is anything to take, please let me know, as I cannot sleep at night."

Answer. Start in today eating only apples whenever you are hungry. Do not take any other food—no soup, milk, crackers, or anything at all except an occasional apple. Keep this up until you have lost all desire for cigarettes. This apple cure usually takes only three or four days. If you attempt to smoke during that time you will find the tobacco will have a disagreeable flavor. You will soon find yourself cured of the craving for tobacco.

Question. Mrs. H. M. asks. "Will you please tell me what benefit I will receive from eating a dishful of grated raw carrots every day?"

Answer. The raw carrot is an excellent salad vegetable containing several of the most important organic salts and vitamins. Due to its organic arsenic, a raw carrot makes an excellent remedy for improving bad, pimply complexions.

Question. Mrs. H. H. asks. "Will you please state what are the hepatic disorders?"

Answer. Such disorders are derangements of the functions of the gall bladder or liver, such as gallstones, gall bladder inflammation, enlarged liver, cirrhosis, cancer of the liver, etc.

ANNUAL MEETING IN MADOC CHURCH

Encouraging Reports Received With Other Business Items.

MADOC, Jan. 31.—The annual congregational meeting of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church held recently was opened by the Rev. T. G. Marshal with devotional exercises.

Reports were received from the various organizations and all showed evidence of active work and loyalty to all church enterprises.

An increase of 20 in the membership was reported; also 13 baptisms and 6 deaths. The Mission Band raised $55.46 for missions. The W. M. S. receipts for the year was reported as $256.57.

The Ladies' Aid Society raised the sum of $406.00 and expended about $205.00.

The Christian Endeavor Society sent during the year two cheques of $25 each to the building fund of the Presbyterian congregation at Killam, Alberta, and their total receipts were $112.48.

The report of the Sunday School gave an average attendance of 93, with a roll of 114. Total receipts were $251.77.

Total receipts for the year were $4,459.88, and after all expenses had been met a balance remained of $782.95.

Messrs. W. Whytock, F. S. Pollard and James Whytock were elected managers for a three-year term, and as auditors for 1928, Messrs. S. Rollins and A. S. Cochrane.

Refreshments were served and a social hour spent to close the evening.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

BEN HUR.

General Lew Wallace's famous story, Ben Hur, both as a book and as a stage play, has always exerted a tremendous appeal, but it has remained for a new art of moving pictures to realize the great possibilities offered by this remarkable novel and to transform the story into reality. The wonderful picturization of "Ben Hur" seen at the Grand twice yesterday and to be repeated to-day, will be hailed by everybody who views it as the ultimate word in great pictures; intrigued as they may have been by the book version, and thrilled as countless playgoers have been by the stage spectacle, most people will agree that both the novel and the play fade into commonplace things in the face of the stupendous motion picture that depicts the story of Ben Hur.

The production, made under the masterly direction of Fred Niblo, opens with the Wise Men and the Star of Bethlehem, gives a startling glimpse of Jerusalem under Roman tyranny, pictures the condemnation of Ben Hur to the galleys, shows a great battle between the Roman fleet and Greek pirates and follows with the famous Antioch chariot race in which, before one hundred thousand spectators Ben Hur defeats Messala in one of the most stirring scenes in the history of the screen. Final scenes all occupied with Ben Hur's assembling of legions in his endeavor to establish a kingdom of Judea, the procession of Palm Sunday, the healing of the sick by the Saviour, and finally, after Calvary, the re-uniting of Ben Hur and his beloved Esther and his kinsfolk.

It is said that this epic of the screen, which required three years to complete, cost four million dollars. That can well be believed in view of the huge cast and the immensity of a great deal of the settings. In many of the scenes thousands of people are employed, particularly in the great circus ampitheatre at Antioch holding one hundred thousand spectators. Even in the stage version, where the obviously theatrical device of working horses on a tread mill was employed, the chariot race has thrilled generations of playgoers, and the effect produced by the racing of twelve chariots seven times round this great ampitheatre as shown in the film edition of Ben Hur can well be imagined. The chariot race, exciting as it is, however, is not more blood-stirring than the thrilling naval battle in which Romans and pirates fight with every weapon known to their day for supremacy. For sheer realism, this spectacle has not been surpassed by anything the screen has shown. Nor for depth of pathos has there been many bits more effective than the scene in which Ben Hur's mother, stricken with leprosy, takes a silent farewell of her sleeping son whom she has not seen for years.

Photography, direction, and acting leave nothing to be desired. Ramon Novarro in the title role, has given a most wonderful performance of a part full of possibilities. Francis Bushman, once a star himself, comes back to some of his former glory by a striking portrayal of the role of Messala. Betty Bronson, Carmel Myers and May McAvoy all score heavily, and the minor priniciplals make noteworthy contributions to the success of a picture that stands alone in its immensity and power.

Not to see Ben Hur is to deprive yourself of a chance of viewing one of the world's greatest stories, depicted as only the resources of a huge producing company and the genius of a master director could possibly do. The screen version of Ben Hur is an epic of the movies that shows the tremendous possibilities of the silent drama, and to see it is an education.

The effect is enhanced by a striking score in which an augmented orchestra does full justice. The musical accompaniment adds greatly to the success of the production.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE GORILLA"

This is the sort of spooky mystery play which is so popular with most audiences. One of the most pleasant sensations to the average theatregoer is the one experienced while sitting in a comfortable chair and watching a real, honest-to-goodness thrilly picture that goes in for midnight murders and secret panels and sudden disappearances of main characters. "The Gorilla" has all of these and it has also a pair of trick detectives, Mulligan and Garrity, whose antics are calculated to relieve the general tension. Garrity, in particular, comes in for some rough usage at the hands of the gorilla, but he does a surprising about-face in the last few episodes and succeeds in landing his man with the aid of a heavy poker that simulates a gun when it sticks into the ribs of the real criminal.

The old lawyer whose crooked face and bent form was so noticeable in "The Cat and the Canary," is one of the main figures in this picture and he has a narrow escape from the death that finished him in the former production. He is spirited away a couple of times but revives in the last few moments and is able to take part in the capture of the real villain of the piece.

Winding staircases, gloomy midnight rooms, pale faces and startling appearances of ghoulish forms, feature the presentation of "The Gorilla," which has a real man-like example of the species as one of the chief actors in the dramatic story. Coming so closely on the heels of "The Cat and the Canary," to which it bears a strong resemblance, it loses a great deal of its effect, but it has quite a few thrills nevertheless, with an additional air of opera bouffe to its sterner sections, injected by the actions of the pair of heavy and light sleuths.—Jeanette.

AT THE REGENT.

FAMOUS BASKET TRICK IN FILM

What is perhaps the oldest form of deception in the world—a deception originally practiced by strange priests of a Hindu cult, and an illusion that to-day is still almost a fabled miracle, is being seen on the screen for the first time in history at the Regent Theatre in "The Show."

It is the famous "basket trick" of India, one of the much-quoted miracles of India. It forms a part of the queer illusions in the sideshow seen in the new screen play, a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer romance of the Budapest underworld, in which John Gilbert and Renee Adoree are seen together for the first time since "The Big Parade."

The sideshow, or "illusion palace," is the central stage of the strange drama, with Gilbert as a swashbuckling sideshow barker and Miss Adoree as a Salome dancer. Living half-ladies, 'spider women," and a decapitation trick in which Gilbert's head is apparently lopped off are among the thrills of the illusion palace, where tricks of several famous magicians are reproduced.

The cast includes Lionel Barrymore, Edward Connelly and other noted screen players.

That there is inevitable certainty of the Leaning Tower of Pisa at Rome collapsing, but the danger is not imminent, and the crash may not come for 200 years, is the report of two technical committees who recently investigated the stability of the famed structure.

CHURCH MEETING HELD

St. Andrew's Church, Westwood, Reached Objective in Maintenance and Extension Fund.

WESTWOOD, Jan. 31.—At the annual meeting of the St. Andrew's United congregation at Westwood held recently to deal with the business of the nine months' year just closed, the reports of the various departments revealed a healthy condition of church life and work.

The statement of the stewards presented by their capable treasurer, S. C. Warr, showed all obligations met in full with a handsome balance on hand.

Givings for maintenance and extension were comfortably in excess of the allocation, and the women of the auxiliary contributed forty-five per cent. more than their objective.

John Lancaster was re-appointed to the board of stewards, and the session was authorized to proceed with the election of two new elders as soon as possible.

The Sabbath school organization was strengthened by suitable additions with a view to bringing every child within the bounds of the congregation, under the influence of the school.

Expressions of appreciation were extended to the choir and minister for services rendered.

Plans were adopted for a further improvement of its financial position, and the congregation is entering the new year with hopeful prospects.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

THE STORY THUS FAR

Spotswood told Markham it was he who had gone out with Margaret Odell the night she was murdered. When he left her apartment he told Jessup to call him a cab. While waiting they heard a scream from the "Canary's" apartment. Both rushed back and were told everything was all right. But the next morning the girl was found strangled. Vance believes two men were in the apartment at the time of the murder, the strangler and a man who hid in the clothes closet. There is no way to account for the presence of anyone in the apartment. All the circumstances point to the impossibility of the girl's having been murdered, but her strangled body gives the lie to such a conclusion.

* * *

CHAPTER XIV.

"Your Long Island Don Juan has certainly not supplied you with any footprints in the snow," said Vance.

"Anyway, his coming forward at this time closes one line of inquiry over which we might have wasted considerable time."

"If many more lines of inquiry are closed," remarked Vance, drily, "you'll be in a distressin' dilemma, don't y' know."

"There are enough still open to keep me busy," said Markham, pushing back his plate and calling for the check. He rose; then pausing, regarded Vance meditatingly. "Are you sufficiently interested to want to come along?"

"Eh, what? My word! . . . Charmed, I'm sure. But, I say, sit down just a moment—there's a good fellow!—till I finish my coffee."

I was considerably astonished at Vance's ready acceptance, careless and bantering though it was, for there was an exhibition of old Chinese prints at the Montross Galleries that afternoon, which he had planned to attend. A Riokai and a Moyeki, said to be very fine examples of Sung painting, were to be shown; and Vance was particularly eager to acquire them for his collection.

We rode with Markham to the Criminal Courts building and, entering by the Franklin Street door, took the private elevator to the district attorney's spacious but dingy office which overlooked the graystone ramparts of the Tombs. Vance seated himself in one of the heavy leather-upholstered chairs near the carved oak table on the right of the desk, and lighted a cigaret with an air of cynical amusement.

"I await with anticipat'ry delight the grinding of the wheels of justice," he confided, leaning back lazily.

"You are doomed not to hear the first turn of those wheels," retorted Markham. "The initial revolution will take place outside of this office." And he disappeared through a swinging door which led to the judges' chambers.

Five minutes later he returned, and sat down in the high-backed swivel chair at his desk, with his back to the four tall narrow windows in the south wall of the office.

"I just saw Judge Redfern," he explained—"it happened to be the midday recess—and he verified Spottswoode's statement in regard to the poker game. The judge met him outside of the club at ten minutes before midnight, and was with him unti three in the morning. He noted thel time because he had promised his guests to be back at half past eleven, and was twenty minutes late."

"Why all this substantiation of an obviously unimportant fact?" asked Vance.

"A matter of routine," Markham told him, slightly impatient. "In a case of this kind every factor, however seemingly remote to the main issue, must be checked."

"Really, y' know, Markham"—Vance laid his head back on the chair and gazed dreamily at the ceiling—"one would think that this eternal routine, which you lawyer chaps worship so devoutly, actually got one somewhere occasionally; whereas it never gets one anywhere. Remember the Red Queen in 'Through the Looking-Glass —' "

"I'm too busy at present to debate the question of routine versus inspiration," Markham answered brusquely, pressing a button beneath the edge of his desk.

Swacker, his youthful and energetic secretary, appeared at the door which communicated with a narrow inner chamber between the district attorney's office and the main waiting-room.

"Yes, Chief?" The secretary's eyes gleamed expectantly behind his enormous horn-rimmed glasses.

"Tell Ben to send me in a man at once."*

Swacker went out through the corridor door, and a minute or two later a suave, rotund man, dressed immaculately and wearing a prince-nez, entered, and stood before Markham with an ingratiating smile.

"Morning, Tracy." Markham's tone was pleasant but curt. "Here's a list of four witnesses in connection with the Odell case that I want brought down here at once—the two phone operators, the maid, and the janitor. You'll find them at 184 West 71st Street. Sergeant Heath is holding them there."

"Right, sir." Tracy took the memorandum, and with a priggish, but by no means inelegant, bow, went out.

During the next hour Markham plunged into the general work that had accumulated during the forenoon, and I was amazed at the man's tremendous vitality and efficiency. He disposed of as many important matters as would have occupied the ordinary business man for an entire day.

Swacker bobbed in and out with electric energy, and various clerks appeared at the touch of a buzzer, took their orders, and were gone with breathless rapidity. Vance, who had sought diversion in a tome of famous arson trials, looked up admiringly from time to time, and shook his head in mild reproach at such spirited activity.

It was just half past two when Swacker announced the return of Tracy with the four witnesses; and for two hours Markham questioned and cross-questioned them with a thoroughness and an insight that even I as a lawyer had rarely seen equaled. His interrogation of the two phone operators was quite different from his casual questioning of them earlier in the day; and if there had been a single relevant omission in their former testimony, it would certainly have been caught now by Markham's gruelling catechism.

But when, at least, they were told they could go, no new information had been brought to light. Their stories now stood firmly grounded no one—with the exception of the girl herself and her escort, and the disappointed visitor at half past nine—had entered the front door and passed down the hall to the Odell apartment from seven o'clock on; and no one had passed out that way.

The janitor reiterated stubbornly that he had bolted the side door a little after six and no amount of wheedling or aggression could shake his dogged certainty on that point. Amy Gibson, the maid, could add nothing to her former testimony. Markham's intensive examination of her produced only repetititions of what she had already told him.

Not one new possibility—not one new suggestion—was brought out. In fact, the two hours' interlocutory proceedings resulted only in closing up every loophole in a seemingly incredible situation. When, at half past four, Markham sat back in his chair with a weary sigh, the chance of unearthing a promising means of approach to the astonishing problem seemed more remote than ever.

Vance closed his treatise on arson, and threw away his cigaret.

"I tell you, Markham, old chap," he grinned, "this case requires contemplation, not routine. Why not call in an Egyptian seeress with a flair for crystal-gazing?"

"If this sort of thing goes on much longer," returned Markham, dispiritedly, "I'll be tempted to take your advice."

Just then Swacker looked in through the door to say that Inspector Brenner was on the wire. Markham picked up the telephone receiver, and as he listened he jotted down some notes on a pad. When the call had ended, he turned to Vance.

"You seemed disturbed over the condition of the steel jewel-case we found in the bedroom. Well, the expert on burglar tools just called up; and he verifies his opinion of this morning. The case was pried open with a specially made cold chisel such as only a professional burglar would carry or would know how to use. It had an inch-and-three-eighths beveled bit and a one-inch flat handle. It was an old instrument—there was a peculiar nick in the blade—and is the same one that was used in a successful house-break on upper Park Avenue early last summer. . . . Does that highly exciting information ameliorate your anxiety?"

"Can't say that it does." Vance had again become serious and perplexed. "In fact it makes the situation still more fantastic. . . . I could see a glimmer of light—eerie and unearthly, perhaps, but still a perceptible illumination—in all this murkiness if it wasn't for that jewel-case and the steel chisel."

Markham was about to answer when Swacker again looked in and informed him that Sergeant Heath had arrived and wanted to see him.

Heath's manner was far less depressed than when we had taken leave of him that morning. He accepted the cigar Markham offered him, and seating himself at the conference table in front of the district attorney's desk, drew out a battered note-book.

"We've had a little good luck," he began. "Burke and Emery—two of the men I put on the case—got a line on Odell at the first place they made inquiries. From what they learned, she didn't run around with many men—limited herself to a few live wires, and played the game with what you'd call finesse. . . . The principal one—the man who's been seen most with her—is Charles Cleaver."

(To be continued.)

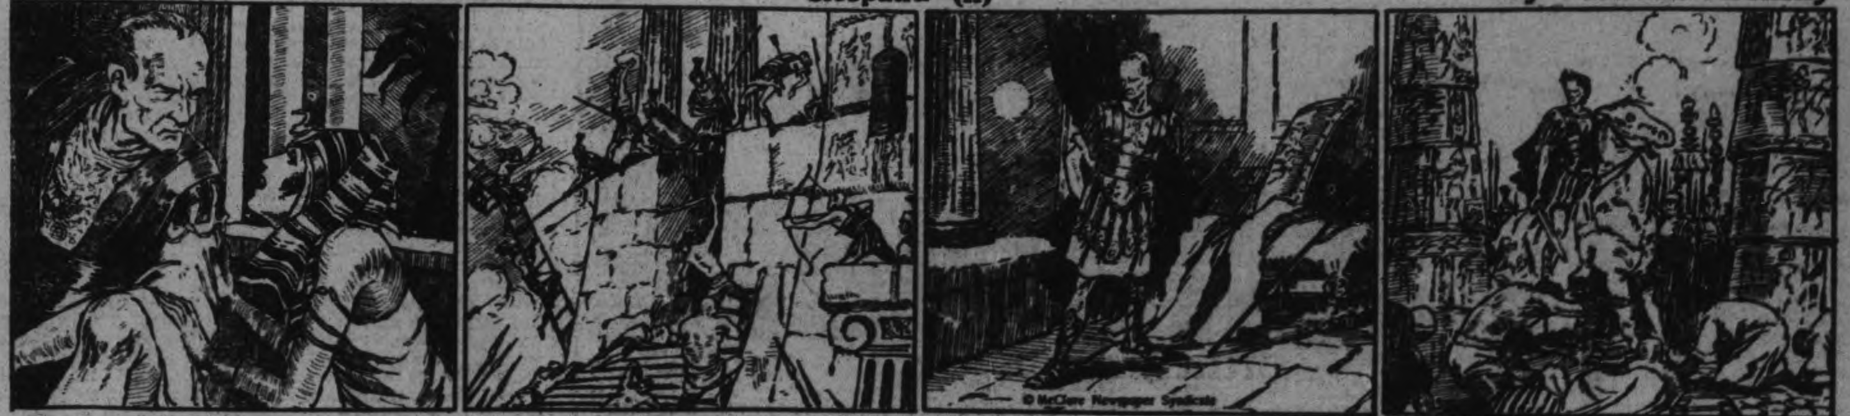
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES Cleopatra (II) By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Caesar, at this time slightly past fifty, was charmed with the high-spirited young Egyptian queen, Cleopatra. Master of the Roman world as he was, he quickly capitulated to her, and after listening to hdr all-night story, he sent, about dawn, for her brother Ptolemy, who had seized the throne for himself.

Caesar upbraided Ptolemy, and pledged his support to Cleopatra. Ptolemy's backers put Caesar's palace under a virtual siege, and the Egyptian queen and her Roman protector spent the winter there. They soon effected a union with each other which was considered honorable in Egypt, and spent their time in pleasure.

It is said that Caesar often was forced to stay awake through the night to protect himself against assassination; and once, when the besiegers were poisoning the water supply for the palace, Caesar was forced to sink new wells within the besieged territory for a safe water supply for himself and Cleopatra.

Finally Caesar conquered the besiegers, and in March, 47 B. C., entered Alexandria in triumph through its opened gates. The inhabitants of the city, dressed in mourning, begged for mercy and declared their submission. In the palace where they had passed the winter together Caesar was received by Cleopatra.

IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH.

Rev. J. W. Gordon preached in Trinity church Sunday morning in exchange with Rev. David Wren, who spoke in St. Andrew's.

Rev. Mr. Gordon took as his subjevt, "When I Read My Bible." Five things emerged as one reads one's Bible.

"We see the kind of men God can use. For example, Abraham, who 'went out not knowing whither he went' who looked forward and not back and was always willing that God should have his way with his soul. Out of such a man God gave mankind the Hebrew people, Jesus Christ and salvation. Moses, Jeremiah, Paul, Luther, Wesley were such men.

"We see the cost of religion. Religion began with tragedy and pain with Abraham. Israel's history is full of pain and agony. Out of thier pain came peace to mankind. Religion has cost man much, but it has cost God much more, and the cost in tears and blood must mean that something great and good is to come out of it. It must mean that man is so valuable that no amount of pain is too much to spend upon his salvation. It means, too, that this life is not all when so much is spent upon a man's soul's salvation.

"We see as we read the Bible, its power to save us—without explanation or comment. History tells us that the Bible without catechism or commentation of any kind was the cause of the reformation, of the rise of Presbyterianism, the Baptist church, the Quakers and Independents, and these all together served to keep England Protestant. The Bible in the hands of lay preachers was the backbone of the great Methodist revival. The best defence of the Bible is just to circulate it.

"The Bible leads us into communion with God and thus nourishes our souls. We infallibly find God in its pages. We meet our Saviour's face. This old Testament nourished the spiritual life of Jesus and Paul and many a saint, and so, too, it nourishes our lives.

"We see the long sweeps of God's providences and are inspired thereby. Let all who love their Bible, therefore remember that many people have no Bible and therefore none of the blessings it brings and do what they can to give the whole world a

A PROTEST.

Editor, Examiner.

Sir,—As one of that small number who attended the public meeting in the interests of the great British and Foreign Bible Society held last night in Murray Street Baptist Church, I am moved to write in protest at what seemed an almost callous indifference upon the part of our Christian city.

"To give the Bible to every man in his own language" would seem to be a business which would call out the enthusiasm and general affection of all Christians. Yet a pitiful hundred people were present in Murray Street Church last night.

Was this due to a lack of interest or to incomplete publicity regarding the meeting, or to what was it due? And will our canvassers as they go about this week be met with the warmth and generosity which the great cause deserves? What will this Christian city do about this matter?

It is to be hoped that the wretched attendance of Monday evening is not indicative of the attitude of Peterborough towards the great cause of God.—Yours truly,

JAMES W. GORDON.

RAIN INTERFERED

Skating Party at Omemee Changed Form—Impromptu Program Held.

OMEMEE, Jan. 31.—When Omemee High School students make up their minds for an evening off they are not going to be opposed by the weatherman as was proved on Tuesday evening. A skating party had been planned and everything was in readiness for a jolly time. Each student had the privilege of inviting a friend and numerous couples were assembled at the rink when, in place of a heavy mist which had been hanging, the rain began to descend. This did not dampen the ardour of the party, who soon made their way to the school. Here, under the supervision of the teachers, they were divided into groups and an impromptu program rendered by each group, followed by games and the serving of dainty refreshments.

The skating party is yet receiving its share of discussion for a future date.

Petroleum Royalties

A SAFE INVESTMENT — NOT A SPECULATION

THE GUARANTEED FIRST PARTICIPATING 12% PREFERRED SHARES of Petroleum Royalties Company—carrying a Bonus of 6% Annually—offers one of the Safest and most Profitable Investments for Bank and Bond Interest—Surplus Funds of Commercial and Industrial Companies—Private Funds, etc., as the following important protection features of the Company give Evidence.

INVESTMENTS RESTRICTED TO ROYALTIES. The Company is absolutely restricted to the one purpose of investing in Producing Oil Royalties and cannot engage in any other branch of the Oil Industry—or in any other Business whatsoever.

NO LIABILITIES. The Company has no Bonds, Mortgages, Debentures, or other Indebtedness.

NO PROMOTION SHARES ISSUED. No Shares of the Company's Capital Stock, whether Preferred or Common, have been, or will be, given to anyone for organizing or assisting in the organization of the Company. All Shares remain in the treasury until paid for.

DIVIDEND RETURNS. The Preferred Shares are Guaranteed First Participating in Earnings, with a fixed dividend of 12% per Annum, payable 1% monthly, on the first of each month to shareholders of record on the 25th day of the previous month. On account of the large surplus income from Royalties owned by the Company, the Preferred Shareholders are now receiving a monthly bonus of ½ of 1%, making a total of 1½% per month.

COMMON SHARES. The Company's Charter provides—The Common Shares will not participate in regular Dividends, and are limited to an Annual Dividend of Six Cents a Share, and then only after the Preferred Dividends have been paid.

INCOME WISELY INVESTED.—All funds received by the Company from the sale of its stock will be used for the purpose of purchasing Producing Royalties—thus assuring permanent income for Dividends, Re-Investments, etc.

THE ENTIRE SURPLUS FROM INCOME AFTER DIVIDEND REQUIREMENTS HAVE BEEN PROVIDED FOR IS TRANSFERRED TO CAPITAL ACCOUNT TO BE RE-INVESTED IN ADDITIONAL PRODUCING ROYALTIES IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE TERMS OF THE COMPANY'S CHARTER.

The Company's Royalty Interests are widely diversified and only a limited amount of capital is invested in a portion of any one Royalty.

ROYALTY COMPANY RECEIVES OIL FREE OF EXPENSE. The Operating Company the Lease must bear all expense of installation of Machinery, Drilling of Wells, Pumping, etc., and deliver One-Eighth (⅛) of all Oil and Gas produced from every well into the Pipe Line, entirely free of cost. Payment for Petroleum Royalties share is made direct to the Company monthly, by the Pipe Line Company.

COMPANY PARTICIPATES IN ALL PRODUCTION. No matter how many additional wells are drilled, or how profitable the flow of Oil and Gas, Petroleum Royalties will participate in the Gross Production from every well drilled, to the full extent of its share of Royalty Ownership without a Dollar of Expense to the Company.

ROYALTY REVENUE CERTAIN. Royalty Interests are purchased only in Proven Oil Fields which are being operated by the Major Oil Companies, such as the Standard—Subsidiaries and the Roxana, Prairie, Peters, Slick, Magnolia, Gulf, Texas, Mid-Continent, Marland, Phillips, Sinclair, Gypsy, etc., which is an assurance of continuous production of "Royalty Oil." It is from such Great Oil Corporations that Petroleum Royalties Company derives its Royalty Income.

EARNINGS. The present earnings are more than sufficient to pay the Regular and Bonus Dividend requirements three times over.

Dividends have been paid regularly since first distribution, besides leaving a substantial monthly surplus for Re-Investment in additional Royalty Interests for the Company.

THIS IS AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY to purchase Petroleum Royalties, which are recognized by shrewd financiers as one of the Safest, Surest, and most Profitable of Investments, due to its FREE OF COST INCOME, thus making possible higher dividend yields—and Greater Margin of Security than is usual in other High-Class Investments.

WE RECOMMEND FOR INVESTMENT. The Guaranteed First, Participating 12% Preferred Shares of the Petroleum Royalties Company, carrying a bonus of 6%, which are now offered at

$1.50 PER SHARE
GIVING AN ANNUAL YIELD OF 12%.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Mr. Editor:

Please allow me to tender my thanks to all who have expressed appreciation, and given me words of encouragement for my humble, limited, and crude efforts to elucidate truth and dispel error. I am quite well aware of the fact that error is strongly entrenched in the theology of churchianity and it will require all the efforts of those who know the truth to oust the enemy of all righteousness. It is a sad fact that many hold tenaciously to error, not willing to listen to "reason" or to "what saith the Scriptures?" Yet there are a number (and that number is increasing) who are in doubt. This is hopeful; for doubt is the prelude of knowledge; doubt is honesty; doubt is "looking for light." Truth will triumph, error shall be vanquished.

PLEADS GUILTY ON MURDER CHARGE

Francesco Caruso Killed Doctor When Son Died After Injection.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (Canadian Press).—Francesco Caruso was permitted today to plead guilty to second degree murder in his second trial for killing Dr. Casper Pendola, in the belief that the doctor had caused the death of his son. Caruso's six-year-old son was suffering from diphtheria when Dr. Pendola was called in. He gave the child an injection, and when the chield died the father believed this to have been the cause. Caruso stabbed the doctor to death, he told the police later, when the doctor laughed on being told of the boy's death.

BIRTH

ALLAN.— At Nicholls Hospital, on January 31st, to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph P. H. Allan, 466 Park street, a daughter.

IN-MEMORIAM.

LONG. — In loving memory of our dear mother Mrs. George Long, who passed away January 31, 1924:

Four years have passed since that sad day,
God called the one we loved away;
Forget her no, we never will,
As years roll on we love her still.

—Ever remembered by daughters and sons.

IN MEMORIAM.

WYNNE. — In loving memory of our dear father, Thomas Wynne, who died January 30, 1924.

Sleep on, dear soldier dead, take your rest;
When we enter there, pray to let us in,
Within those pearly gates keep guard
When we enter there, pray to let us in,
For when we are all together around the throne of God
Broken hearts shall mend.

—Sadly missed by his Children, Beatrice, Thomas, and Harold.

RADIO QUARTET HERE TO-NIGHT

High Praise Is Given Belleville Singers By Other Audiences.

VARIED PROGRAM.

High praise is given the Belleville Radio Quartette, which sings here to-night under the auspices of The Others Class of Murray Street Baptist Church, by the papers of other places where they have sung. On their second visit to Cobourg the auditorium of Trinity Church was filled. The singers sang a great variety of songs, winning for themselves great approval in both quartette and solo numbers. The members are Dr. A. B. Hafner, first tenor; A. F. Stillman, second tenor; J. Arnold Thompson, first bass, and H. R. Moorman, second bass. Mr. Thompson added variety to the program my contributing a number of readings, mostly of a humorous type.

Great tribute was given by the Cobourg audience to the accompanist, Leo R. Riggs, formerly of New York, who displayed great skill and musical talent in his handling of both organ and piano. His accompaniments were sympathetic and his solo numbers held the audience well-nigh spellbound.

Obituary

J. L. R. CAVANAH

The funeral of the late J. L. Robert ("Bobs") Cavanah was held yesterday afternoon from the home of his mother, Mrs. J. H. Cavanah, Grand Central Apartments, to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. Dr. Blagrave officiated.

Six friends of the deceased acted as pall-bearers: Messrs. Leon Webb of Toronto, Max Rishor, Gerald McClelland, Kenneth Routley, W. S. Yelland, and N. Ballard.

Many beautiful floral tributes were received from members of the family and friends, including those from the Western Clock Company and from the F. L. Roy Studio, with both of whom the deceased was employed prior to his departure for Los Angeles some years ago.

GEORGE CROWE.

There was laid to rest yesterday afternoon one of the city's most popular residents in the person of George Crowe, who died on Friday. Mr. Crowe, who was born in this city and lived here all his life, was prominent fraternally and in sporting circles and the large number of people who attended the service, and the great quantity of flowers sent, testified to the high position he occupied in the hearts of all his friends.

Mr. Crowe had been engaged in sporting events from his boyhood. Hardly ever was he dissociated from some line of athletic endeavor. He played baseball and hockey, wrestled and boxed. In late years his activities had been confined to playing softball and bowling and to managerial capacities for other sports.

He was prominent in the Independent Order of Oddfellows, a member of the lodge and of the Encampment branch. He stood high in the order, having gone to a meeting in Syracuse to obtain a degree held by very few Canadian members of the Order.

Mr. Crowe was popular with his fellow workmen at the Nashua Paper Plant, where he was foreman of the machine shop, and the factory was closed down yesterday afternoon to give the employees an opportunity of attending the funeral.

The service was conducted by the Rev. William Allan of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, whose remarks were most fittings. Interment was in the Little Lake cemetery.

DEIGNTON COMMITTED.

Former Army Officer To Stand Trial For Murder of His Son.

TORONTO, Jan. 31 (Canadian Press). — George Deignton, expert linguist and former British army major, was today committed to stand trial on the charge of murdering his four-year-old son Bernard. Bernard was killed and Mrs. Barbara Deignton and seven-year-old Joan Deignton both seriously injured when Deignton attacked his family with an axe three weeks ago.

PREMIER KING OFFERS IMMIGRATION PROBE

HEARD VS. MAY CASE DISMISSED WITHOUT COSTS

Justice Logie Unable To Find Sufficient Evidence To Prove Girl Negligent.

$5,000 CIVIL SUIT.

Plaintiff Had Dashed Across the Street Without Taking Heed of Possible Danger.

The Spring Assizes of the Supreme Court opened at the County Court House on Tuesday at 1.00 p.m., with Mr. Justice Logie presiding. There was only one case, a civil one, slated for disposal, it being a suit of Irene Heard by her father, Richard C. Heard, of this city, for $5,000 damages for injuries received when she was struck by a car driven by Elsie G. May, of Lakefield, on April 30, 1927. This was dismissed by His Lordship.

Since the case did not require a jury, His Lordship dismissed the Grand and Petit Juries, then proceeded with the case in hand. J. W. Stevenson represented the defendant, Mrs. Elsie G. May, while B. E. Park appeared for the plaintiff.

The personnel of the Grand Jury was as follows:

Alfred Bolton, Burleigh, farmer; James L. Boskin, Norwood, agent; Roland Bestard, Peterborough, garage; W. H. Crough, Ennismore, farmer; Frank Kitney, Otonabee, gardener; E. J. Martin, Peterborough, banker; J. A. McPherson, Peterborough, merchant; Herbert W. Morphet, Peterborough, accountant; W. J. Peoples, Belmont, farmer; Sidney Rutherford, Otonabee, farmer; Claude Rogers, Peterborough, manufacturer; Frederick Walsh, Douro, farmer; Charles Weese, Chandos, farmer.

First Witness.

Constable Puffer, of the Peterborough police force, was the first witness. He told of visiting the scene of the accident at 5.00 p.m. on Saturday, April 30, 1927, just north of the C.N.R. tracks on Water street north. He said: "On arrival I learned that Irene Heard, of 891 Water street, and her sister Lillian had just got off the north bound bus which had stopped at the east curb of Water street, just south of the C.N.R. tracks and as there were other passengers getting off, they had come around the front of the bus to go across the street to their home. At the same time, Mrs. May, the defendant in this action, was driving a car north and had swung out to pass the standing bus and was just about to pass the front of the bus when she noticed the two girls. Lillian Heard had stopped and Irene had done likewise after going a pace or two forward. Mrs. May stopped, then started on and the girl darted out in front of her. The car had struck her and carried her thirty or forty feet in a northwesterly direction over the sidewalk, where the girl was picked up, the car having passed over her.

Witness, cross examined by J. W. Stevenson, verified statements in his report, made at the time of the accident.

Irene Heard, the next witness, said: "I am eighteen years of age. I remember the day of the accident. I had been down town and got on the bus at Hunter street. I do not remember much about getting off. The next I remember I was in bed. I was in the hospital about two months and a half. At the time of the accident I was housekeeping at home. Since I got out of the hospital I have done very little work."

J. W. Stevenson, cross-examining, witness continued:

"I had to have my supper and go to a pageant that night."

Lillian Heard, sworn, said: "I was fifteen in May. I don't know anything, but that I saw the car coming. We were going home on the bus. I do not remember whether it was crowded or not. When we got off we went in front of the bus which had been going north. Then we turned left across the road. I don't know how far in front of the bus we were. When I first saw the car, it was coming pretty fast. I don't remember where Irene was when I first saw the car. Then I saw her hat on the sidewalk."

Cross-examined, witness denied telling anyone; "that it was not the driver's fault. My sister lost her head" "I'm not quite sure whether Mrs. May's car stopped or not," she added.

Thomas Tobin.

Thomas Tobin said he was employed at Canadian Woollens Co. "I lived at 193 River Road and was a passenger on the bus going home. I think there were five or six people on the bus. One person got off before Irene Heard and her sister. They got off just before me. I got off and walked along on the curb about six feet north of the bus. I was looking to see if th bus was coming when I saw the car. The girls went across in front of the bus. Just after they crossed the Grand Trunk tracks, north, the car hit Miss Heard two or three feet north of the track. It

Advocates Newcastle Immigration Scheme

LONDON, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press Cable).—Addressing the Royal Society of Arts yesterday on the subject of Empire settlement, Lord Lovat, under-secretary for the Dominions, stressed the government's policy was continuous and not merely temporary. Dealing with the depressed industrial conditions in Great Britain, he pointed out that prewar emigration averaged 200,000 annually, but after the war had not approached this figure, despite the most liberal form of governmental assistance.

Lord Lovat warmly advocated the scheme started in Newcastle where the municipality in co-operation with the Overseas Settlement Committee, placed boys on farms for training before they took up "loafing on the streets," and thereafter drafted them for the Dominions under one of the regular schemes of migration.

He strongly urged continuous development of voluntary settlement efforts.

GREAT CROWD PAYS TRIBUTE

Hundreds Pass By Bier of Dead Field Marshal To-day.

AT ST. COLUMBA'S CHURCH.

LONDON, Feb. 1 — Canadian Press. — The body of Field Marshal Haig to-day lay in state in St. Columba's church, with which he was connected, surrounded by a guard of honor.

At nine-thirty this morning when the public was permitted to enter to honor the dead leader of the British forces, a slowly moving file began to pass by in reverent tribute to him. The body will lie in state until ten to-night and again to-morrow for the same hours for the public to view the body of the great general.

WARRIORS BEAR BODY.

LONDON, February 1 (Canadian Press). — The pall-bearers at the funeral of Field-Marshal Earl Haig will be Field-Marshal Lord Methuen, Field-Marshal Sir Claude Jacob, Field-Marshal Sir William Roberts, General Van Horne, General Viscount Byng of Vimy, General Sir Hugh Gough, General Sir Hubert Lawrence, Marshal Sir Hugh Trenchard of the Royal Air Force, Admiral Earl Jellicoe, Admiral Earl Beatty, Marshal Foch of France, General Faron de Ceyninch of the Belgian Army, and probably Marshal Petain of France.

The Weather

This is the first day of February. One of Canada's winter months has passed with but few extremely cold days and few bad storms although in some other localities storms have been both numerous and severe. We had rain or snow on 12 days. The rainfall was .55 of an inch; the snowfall 18½ inches on the level. There was good sleighing from the 24th. The highest temperature was on the 8th with 50 degrees. The lowest the thermometer went was 17 degrees below zero, on the 30th. There were below zero temperatures on seven days. While the month was milder than average, there were no records broken. To-morrow will be Candlemas Day which besides being a church feast day, is also associated with the old proverb about the bear, after hibernating all winter, coming out to see whether he had better resume his usual activities or retire to his den for another six weeks' snooze. If the sun is shining he retires. At least that is the story. Believe it or no, as you wish. The same old story with variations of the animal, is common to all northern countries.—W. P.

Proposes Highway To Link Continents

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—A conference of the nations in the Western Hemisphere to consider the establishment of a highway linking North and South America was suggested yesterday by Representative Porter, Republican, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House committee on foreign affairs.

Representative Porter expressed this view at a hearing on the McLeod Bill. This bill proposes the creation by Congress of a commission to co-operate with Latin-American nations in the connecting up of roads within their respective boundaries, to make a continuous thoroughfare. Mr. Porter said he felt the proposal could be worked out better by a conference than by a

THREE PERMITS FOR BUILDINGS DURING MONTH

Construction Authorized in the City Will Cost About $7,515.

GAINS IN CANADA.

Many Contracts Awarded Already For Building During 1928.

Three building permits representing an expenditure of $7.515.00 were applied for at the Engineer's office during the month of January. A new gasoline service station, repairs to a garage roof, and a private dwelling are provided for.

H. B. Norwich of Toronto applied for permission to erect a gasoline service station at the corner of Charlotte and Stewart Streets, the building to be 12 feet by 38 feet, of brick foundation, walls of stucco material, one storey high, with shingled roof, brick chimneys and stucco interior finish. It will be heated by a hot air system and on completion about March 31, 1928 will have cost about $4,500.

A. Brotherstone made application for permission to erect a dwelling at the corner of Waterford and London Streets. The house is to be of two storeys, each nine feet high, and to contain seven rooms. The foundation will be of cement, the walls of brick veneer with interior of lath and plaster, the roof of asbestos shingles, the chimneys brick with flue lining, and the heating will be by means of a hot water system.

Robert Brotherstone is the contractor and he hopes to have the building completed by the first of August at an estimated cost of $3,000.00.

The remaining $15.00 of the total is for repairs to the roof of a garage at 586 Harvey Street by W. M. Blewett.

Canada's New Record

While very favorable weather conditions at many points permitted construction work to proceed during the past month in volume not previously experienced in mid-winter the large total of $20,480,000 for contracts awarded throughout Canada is taken to be a further indication of an exceptionally good year ahead. A real soundness is behind all branches of the industry fostered by the records of 1927 and numerous tangible contracts now underway or proposed.

The January grand total for the Dominion apportioned to divisions, according to MacLean Building Reports, Ltd., shows that 53.7 per cent of the estimated value of all construction is credited to Ontario on its total of $10,988,700. In Quebec $6,514,500 worth of new work was contracted for, or 31.8 per cent. The Prairie Provinces took care of 9.7 per cent or $1,993,500, while British Columbia followed with $904,600 or 4.4 per cent, and the Maritime Provinces $78,700 or .4 per cent.

The business building classification continues to show up strongly. During January this classification accounted for $8,123,100 worth of new work or 39.7 per cent on all forms of construction. Residential construction went ahead of the average, accounting for 32.1% or $6572,900. Industrial work shows $3,108,500 or 15.2 per cent, while public works and utilities shows up well with 13 per cent on the valuation of $2,675,500.

CARS DERAILED IN BELLEVILLE

Part of C.P.R. Passenger Train Leaves the Track at Switch.

NO PERSON INJURED.

BELLEVLLE, Ont., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—A derailment of C.P.R. passenger train No. 22 took place at 1.22 this morning at the foot of George Street, in this city, with slight damage to the rolling stock and no injuries to the passengers. The train was in charge of Thomas Hullocher, conductor, of Smith's Falls. Five cars were derailed. The auxiliary was called from Trenton, and the passengers were transferred to train No. 42, which was following one hour behind, and the journey continued with slight interruption.

It is believed the accident was due to the throwing of a switch before the train had completely passed over it. The main line switch at the south station is always set for Canadian National trains, and when C.P.R. trains are passing the intersection a switchman tends to the transfer to the C.P.R. main line. Thomas Sargent, the switchman, threw the switch to allow the train to pass on its own track, but before it had completely crossed, the switch, it is understood, was thrown back, causing the derail-

POLICE SEIZE SMALL LOAVES

Lindsay Pure Bread Company Faces Court Charge as Result.

LOAVES GO TO CHARITY.

Over 200 loaves of bread of the Lindsay Pure Bread Company were seized by the police of this city and weighed, and of the lot the officers say only 26 were of the proper weight. The seized bread, after it had been weighed and found to be deficient, was given to the charitable institutions of this city.

According to by-law, a small loaf of bread must weigh 24 ounces and a large loaf 48 ounces. The company will appear in Police Court on Monday, charged with an infraction of the by-law.

WOMAN OFFICIAL TO BE PROSECUTED

Mrs. Florence Knapp, of New York, Faces Several Charges.

ALBANY, N.Y., Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—Criminal prosecution of Mrs. Florence Knapp, former secretary of state for New York, for acts gorwing out of her administration of the 1925 state centus, was recommended to District Attorney Charles Herrick, of Albany to-day by Governor Alfred Smith.

The Governor's decision was based upon facts presented to him in the report of Randall Leboeuf, Jr., who as Moreland Act Commissioner, appointed by the executive recently conducted a comprehensive investigation into the administration of the enumeration. Specific charges upon which Commissioner Leboeuf recommended that the only woman who ever held a state wide office in New York State be prosecuted are grand larceny, forgery, making of false audits and certifications, and illegal removal of state records.

PRIESTS WANT REVISION DELAYED

Pass Resolution Calling For Postponement Until After Lambeth Meeting.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(Canadian Press Cable.)— The controversy over the Church of England prayer book continues unabated. At a meeting of the London Diocesan Association of the Federation of Catholic Priests, an Anglican body, a resolution was passed urging that the whole question of revision of the prayer book should be postponed until after the Lambeth conference of 1930. The resolution declared that the Bishop's amendments in the deposited prayer book were not likely to commend themselves either to Anglo-Catholics or Evangelicals and it pointed out that there were churches in communion with the Church of England that had not yet been consulted with regard to alterations in lithurgical standards.

SCOUT LEADER WILL ADDRESS CONFERENCE

Dr. George J. Fisher Will Attend Boy Scout Conference Here This Month.

REPORTS READ.

Considerable Business Discussed at Executive Meeting of Local Associations.

A meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Boy Scouts' Association was held in the City Building yesterday afternoon, Mr. J. John presiding. There was a good attendance and considerable business pertaining to the coming conference on February 16th and 17.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by J. J. Turner, after which the regular business was dealt with. A number of current accounts were brought to the attention of the meeting, and were ordered paid.

Dr. Fisher Will Speak.

Communications were received from Scout commissioners in various Ontario cities regarding the coming conference in Peterborough and other subjects. One of them from the assistant Provincial Commissioner, Frank C. Irwin, gave out the good news that Dr. George J. Fisher, Deputy Chief Scout executive of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, has consented to attend the conference dinner on the Thursday evening and give one of the addresses. For many years Dr. Fisher was the International Physical Work Director of the Y.M.C.A., and is recognized as one of the leading authorities on this continent on matters pertaining to physical and recreational education. The other chief speaker will be Judge H. S. Mott, of the Juvenile Court of Toronto.

On motion, the correspondence was received.

Revision of the Billeting Committee personnel was necessary, as it was not possible for all the members of the present committee to act. Accordingly, J. A. McKone was named to replace Dr. J. J. Craig.

Reports Received.

The report of the Financial Committee was read by W. R. Morris, giving a comprehensive review of the financial standing of the Association with regard to the conference.

With reference to the convention dinner and convention hall, W. H. Dickin gave a verbal report of what had been done along this line by the dinner committee.

J. J. Turner gave a report of the work being done by the Program Committee, which included many novel proposals.

The appointment of a committee to meet the Finance Committee of the City Council on Friday evening resulted as follows:

W. R. Morris, J. John, Rev. Father Costello, and J. J. Turner.

This concluded the business of the meeting, which adjourned accordingly.

PETERBOROUGH CITIZENS TO BE FAVOURED

Appearance of Rubanni On Monday Next Will No Doubt Draw a Fine Audience.

It is not often that Peterborough is favored with the appearance of so talented an artist as Audrie Rubanni, soprano, who is to be heard in the Grand Opera House on Monday evening next, Feb. 6.

Audrie Rubanni is well known for her extensive repertoire, and extraordinary ability in memorizing. Canadian for generations back, Rubanni was fortunate in her family. There is an unbroken line of talented musicians from whom she inherited the finest and best musical traditions. During her early training, along with music, she received a liberal and cultured education and lived in an environment where the finest things of life were always emphasized.

Her appearance in large Canadian and American cities has been the occasion for marked enthusiasm in regard to her ability. She will be assisted by a violinist and a pianist, both of whom have splendid merit.

Hickman 20 To-Day; Wanted In Two Courts

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press.)— On his twentieth birthday, to-day, two Los Angeles courts, in each of which he is accused of a separate murder, demanded the presence of William Hickman.

The opening of to-day's session of his sanity trial to determine his punishment for the kidnapping and slaying of little Marian Parker was ordered delayed that the youth might appear before Judge Hardy for the scheduled beginning of his trial for the murder of C. Invite Factions To Hold Conference

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press Cable).—Premier Stanley M. Bruce, in a speech at Box Hill yesterday announced that he proposed to invite five representatives each of employers and organized labor to meet in a conference in an endeavor to solve the differences between Capital and Labor.

Much inconvenience and loss has been caused by recent labor disputes in Australia, notably the railway workers' strike in Queensland and the more recent strike of waterside workers, both of which are now ended.

BOY PREMIER GIVES ADDRESS

Urges Boys To Stress Value of Tuxis Movement in Ontario.

DISCUSSES PARLIAMENT.

Various counter attractions had their effect on the attendance at St. Andrew's Sunday school last evening, yet it was apparent that enthusiasm does not necessarily lie in numbers. The visit of Howard lie in numbers. The visit of Howard Scharfe, Boy Premier of Ontario, occasioned a splendid meeting, despite the limited attendance, and as a result, Boys' Work in Peterborough received a real boost.

John Ward, president of the Peterborough Boys' Work Board, occupied the chair, and in a few well chosen words welcomed the guests and boys. Welcome was also extended by Rev. J. W. Gordon, who expressed his pleasure at having the opportunity of welcoming the friends to the meeting and also to welcome the distinguished visitor, Howard Scharfe, Premier of the Older Boys' Parliament.

Norman Lemay, member from Lakefield, was then called upon by the chairman for a few words. He also spoke a welcoming word to Howard Scharfe and then he emphasized the bond selling campaign which is now being held to finance the boys' work in the province.

The chairman then called upon Howard MacDonald to introduce the premier. Peterborough's member said that he was pleased to have so many friends at the meeting in view of the fact that there were other attractions in the city at the same time. He thought they were especially favoured to have as their speaker Howard Scharfe, Premier of the Boys' Parliament. By the way, Howard ruled the parliament session, it was quite evident that he knew boys' work from the ground up. He felt sure that his message would be of great interest to the boys and any interested in the work.

Although the speaker was invited here to boost the bond selling campaign, his remarks were confined mostly to the work of the boys' parliament and the Tuxis movement he represents. "If I am successful in bringing to you boys a realization of just what we are receiving from this Jesus way of life program, I am satisfied that the financial end will take care of itself—that Tuxis work in this district shall be a guaranteed success." He continued by elucidating the contribution being made by the movement in the four phases of life, the spiritual, the social, the intellectual and the physical. He cited the cases of boys in this province who have found it a practical, an uplifting, a Christian contribution.

"But these things," he said, "constitute a heritage to us. Our task is to be faithful to our trust and hand it on a little richer and fuller than we received it."

He closed with a few remarks on the finance campaign itself, exhorting the boys to not ask people for money —rather should they sell the Tuxis movement and the Christian training for citizenship which it represents.

At the conclusion of his address a vote of thanks was extended to the speaker by Howard Macdonald and seconded by Norman Lemay, and three rousing cheers were given for the premier.

The meeting closed with the singing of 'O Canada."

LINDY CROSSES SEA.

Aviator Flies To St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, From Maracay.

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—This island today celebrated a public holiday in honor of Colonel Charles Lindbergh, who flew here from Maracay, Venezuela, over the islands and waters which have figured large in the history of exploration.

Swinging along a crescent of 1,050 miles, over the coast of Venezuela and the Lesser Antilles, Lindy made his way with clock-like precision. The flight was completed in ten hours and fifteen minutes.

Continue Restriction For Rubber Export

LONDON, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—The Colonial Office announces that for the ensuing quarter, six per cent, of the standard production of rubber may be exported from Malaya and Ceylon at the minimum rate of duty. Thus the same restriction remains in force as fixed at the end of last July, and apparently nothing has been done in the way of modifying or abolishing the restriction as for a time was thought possible.

A Singapore despatch yesterday reports that a protest has been made against the continuance of the restriction by Chairman Robertson, of the Lunas Estates Company, a big rubber concern, who is also an unofficial member of the Legislative Council. He contended that the rubber industry must learn to stand on its own feet and live by its own efficiency.

A maximum output and a minimum price, he declared, would enable Malaya to hold its own against any competition.

Among the rubber interests in London, there is a growing feeling in favor of abolition of the restriction, largely on the ground of the advantage it gives to Dutch planters.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN TRENT

F. G. Stinson Reports Renewed Interest in Touring By Boat.

RETURNS FROM SHOW.

Frank G. Stinson secretary of the Trent Waterway's Association, has returned from New York, where with others, the Association's exhibit at the National Motor Boat Show, had been successfully carried out during the week of January 21-28.

Interviewed this morning, Mr. Stinson reported an intense and renewed interest in watercraft and the possibilities of holidaying with them on the part of the quarter million persons who visited the motor boat show. Sales of expensive watercraft soared to new high figures and a great many new visitors to the Trent Waterway may be expected this year by water in addition to the increased volume of motor traffic, for which the Trent Association is also reaching out.

Mr. Stinson informed The Examiner that following out the program of last year's exhibit the association was again able to get on the air, and President Walter Fowlds broadcast a 15-minute talk on the attractions of the Trent system. The station was WEBJ owned and operated by the 3rd Avenue Railway Co. of New York City.

While in New York it was practically decided that finances permitting the association would put on a Central Ontario exhibit at the second annual Sportsman's Show, to be held in the Coliseum Cleveland, on May 17-23. Details were left in the hands of President Fowlds and the secretary.

Removal of a thick growth of ivy at Llandyfeisant Church, in Carmarthenshire, Wales, recently revealed an old doorway that gave access to a cell-like apartment on the site of an old Roman temple.

Association Council Opposed To Changes

LONDON, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—"Uncompromising resistance to any change endangering the scriptural purity of the teaching of our Church" was expressed in a statement by the Council of the Church Association, an organization of the Church of England, issued yesterday in regard to the new prayer book. The statement declares, "Modifications which the bishops propose to embody in the deposited book are totally inadequate. The most important of the safeguards concerning reservation are shown by the disclosures of the Bishop of Birmingham to be ineffective and delusive."

The statement continues: "As long as the deposited book continues to offer shelter in our Church for what that Church itself teaches to be blasphemy—the sacrifice of the Mass and the abhorrent idolatry of the adoration of the sacrament—so long will it merit the unwavering antagonism of those who venerate the gospel truth for which our martyrs died."

Working in Harmony With Province of Alberta on Resources Question

CONTINUE DEBATE.

Premier Speaks on Matters Concerning Imperial and International Questions.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Important matters of domestic concern, and Imperial and international questions, were dealt with in the House of Commons yesterday by Premier Mackenzie King, who continued the debate on the address. Answering criticisms of the government made Monday by Hon. R. B. Bennett, Opposition leader, Mr. King referred to the choice of the Hudson Bay terminal, the return of Alberta's natural resources, immigration, Dominion foreign trade, and finally to the status of Canada in Imperial and international affairs. Discussion of the latter point involved a statement by the Prime Minister as to why the Dominion is appointing ministers to Paris and to Tokio. Also it brought from him a declaration of his position on the question of Oriental immigration into Canada.

Alberta Premier Satisfied

On the question of the return of natural resources to Alberta, Mr. King informed the House that the Premier of Alberta was satisfied with the progress of negotiations thus far. With respect to immigration, Mr. King enunciated the policy of the government as being "to bring into this country just as many people, of proper physique and general qualifications as the country is capable of assimilating with satisfaction to itself as well as to those brought in." He declared that the government would welcome an investigation into the operations of the Department of Immigration by a parliamentary committee.

"May I say that if it is found that permits are being issued in an illegal manner, no time will be lost on the part of the administration in seeing that the procedure is brought to an end very summarily," Premier King informed the House.

In discussing the status of Canada, Mr. King announced that the British government would appoint a representative in Canada. Canada, he declared, required representatives in Paris and Tokio with the standing of diplomats. With such standing they would be able to meet the representatives of other countries on an equal footing. He pointed out that forty years had elapsed since the post of High Commissioner to Paris had been created. In this interval, Canada had grown and the map of Europe had altered.

Dominion Trade Grown

While strongly advocating a "white" Canada and a "white" British Columbia Premier King stressed the importance of friendly relations with Oriental countries. The trade of the Dominion with the Orient had grown by leaps and bounds, and it was important to preserve amicable relationships. A representative of the Canadian government in Tokio might go far in this direction.

Mr. King was followed in the debate by Robert Gardiner (U.F.A. leader), who suggested that the Prairie Provinces might stop all negotiations for the return of natural resources pending a conference to the supreme court as to whether the Dominion parliament ever had a right to withhold them. He expressed approval of the suggestion that immigration matters should be discussed by a committee of the House.

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre) wished the government to explain why water powers adjacent to mining developments in Manitoba were being alienated.

OTTAWA, Ont., February 1 (Canadian Press). — Resuming his speech at eight o'clock last night, Mr. Gardiner declared that he was glad to hear the statement of the Prime Minister that the question of immigration would go to a committee. There was no immigration policy at

This Day In Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—To-day the debate on the address will be resumed by Sir George Foster in the Senate. In the House of Commons, J. F. Pouliot, (Liberal, Temiscouta) will continue the debate.

Yesterday, Senator Little moved and Senator Lacasse seconded the address in reply in the Upper House. Senator Dandurand and Senator Ross followed. In the House of Commons Premier King concluded his speech and was followed by R. Gardiner (U. F.A., Acadia), J. S. Woodsworth, (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre), Hon. Hugh Guthrie, (Conservative, South Wellington), L. P. Bancroft, (Liberal-Progressive, Selkirk), and T. E. Simpson, (Conservative, Algoma West).

COURSE BEGINS WITH 40 PUPILS

Instructors Expect More Before Close of Bridgenorth Lessons.

CLASSES ORGANIZED.

The short courses in agriculture and home economics being held in Bridgenorth began on Monday with an attendance of forty young people. The attendance was good, considering the extreme cold of Monday morning. It is hoped that all the young people of the district will take advantage of these courses and attend at least part of the time, if not all.

Instructors are J. B. Nelson, B.S.A., and Miss Edith Hopkins, of Lindsay, teaching home economics; Miss P. Pamage, of Clarence, Ont., sewing, and Miss M. Roberts, of Toronto, teaching home nursing and first aid.

The class organized on Monday morning and appointed the following officers:

President Girls' Class — Helen Moore.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mary Middleton.

President Boys' Class—Clarence Mann.

Secretary-Treasurer—Harry Blewett.

Chairman Literary Committee — Betty Edgar.

Literary Committee — Margaret Mann, Leila Sanderson, Clare Grant, Russel Roseborough.

Boys' Committee for Livestock Judging — Clarence Mann, Fred. Mann, Ralph Scott.

POULTRY COURSES NORTHUMBERLAND

One Will Be Held at Colborne and One at Campbellford.

BRIGHTON, Feb. 1.—The local Department of Agriculture is in receipt of information from Toronto relative to the conducting of two three-day poultry Short Courses in the county. One will be held at Colborne, in the town hall, Feb. 21-23, and the other will be held in Campbellford, March 6-8.

Instructors in charge of these courses are: Geo. Robertson, Assistant Poultry Husbandman, Ottawa and J. Fraser, Poultryman of the Agricultural School at Kemptville. These men are rated with the best in poultry lore and poultry keepers in the country would do well to keep these dates in mind and arrange to be in attendance.

Protest Salary Tax On Textile Workers

BARCELONA, Spain, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press.)— Laborers in the shops and factories of this city went on strike yesterday in protest against a tax imposed on the salaries of the textile workers. Later the strike spread through the cities of Sabadell and Tarrasa, two of the biggest industrial centres in the province.

PAN-DELEGATES TAKE HOLIDAY

Representatives of Twenty-one Nations Take Trip To Mariel.

PROPOSES INSTITUTE.

HAVANA, February 1 (Associated Press). — Activities in the sixth Pan-American Congress were suspended yesterday when delegates of twenty-one nations participated in a holiday trip to Mariel arranged by the State Department of Cuba.

The Havana University buildings were deserted yesterday insofar as delegation work was concerned, for the great majority of the representatives had embarked at an early hour for the Mariel trip which, planned for last week, was postponed until yesterday due to pressing business in committee work.

One passenger steamer and the Cuba, flagship of the Cuban fleet, conveyed approximately 170 Cuban officials and Pan-American Congress delegates to Mariel, a picturesque port west of Havana, and noted in Cuban history as the turning-point in Cuba's fight for freedom.

It was there that General Macco, negro general hero, lost his life after he had drawn Spanish forces to that point, allowing Cuban soldiers free entry into Havana.

Establish Geodetic Institute.

HAVANA, February 1 ((Associated Press). — Believing that the Western world has its own distinctive problems involving geographical research and convinced of the necessity for the establishment within the American continent of an agency devoted to the compilation and co-ordination of geographical data, the Mexican delegation to the Sixth Pan-American Conference has submitted a plan for the organization of a Pan-American Geodetic Institute.

In a scholarly review of the history of the science of geography, the Mexican delegation introduced a report prepared by the Department of Agriculture and Public Works of the Government of Mexico, wherein great emphasis is placed on the fact that the existing world geographical institution, known as the International Council of Investigation, does not suffice for the requirements of the localized problems of America.

Functions of the proposed institute, the location of which is to be later decided by the nations, are detailed as follows:

"First—The co-ordination, distribution and propagation of geographical studies in American States.

"Second—It shall serve as an organ of co-operation among the geographical institutes of America, in order to facilitate the study of geographical problems.

"Third—It shall carry out and co-ordinate investigations calling for the co-operation of several countries and control of scientific investigations.

"Fourth—It shall be entrusted with the publication of all reports ordered by the American States.

"Fifth—It shall participate in the study of frontiers in order to facilitate the acceptance of the natural borders of a geographical character and serve as an intermediary between American States for a better understanding between them.

"Sixth—It shall be in charge of the formation of an archive comprising maps of the entire American continent, classified by countries as well as by libraries, containing all the geographical works published by American States."

A special amendment has been offered providing for historical research as well, the Cuban delegation having pointed out the intimate relationship between history and geography.

HIGHEST HONORS WILL BE PAID LATE EARL HAIG

British Commander To Be Buried at Bemersyde, in Scotland.

BODY TO LIE IN STATE.

Interment To Be Preceded With Military Funeral, Service at Westminster Abbey.

LONDON, Feb. 1. — Canadian Press. — Field Marshall Earl Haig will at his own expressed desire be buried at Bemersyde, his estate in Scotland, bought for him by a grateful country after the world war. Interment however will be proceeded by a military funeral, organized by the war office in London, and a funeral service in Westminster Abbey.

This national tribute will take the form of a solemn Flanders poppy pageant typifying the devotion of the field marshal since the war in behalf of his comrades in that struggle and hence such a display for the financial benefit of ex-service men as he himself would have chsosen.

Poppy Wreaths.

It was Lady Haig's wish that all wreaths and floral tributes should consist of Flanders poppies, the sale of which would swell the funds of the soldier organizations. The response to the request has been immediate and splendid. Hundreds of telegrams have come from all parts of the world ordering such wreaths in addition to the thousands ordered at home. Those engaged in making these wreaths will need to work day and night to be in readiness for the funeral.

The body will lie in state at St. Columba's Church, with which Earl Haig was long connected, Wednesday and Thursday, with a guard of honor day and night. On Friday morning there will be a private requiem in the same church for the family and immediate friends after which the funeral procession will leave the church for Westminster, the route passing Constitution Hill, the Hall, Horse guards' Arch and Whitehall to the Abbey, this being the line of march associated for centuries with the country's national life.

Prince will Attend Service.

In the Abbey will be assembled with the Prince of Wales, whose devotion to ex-service men is well-known, the highest representatives of the nation, civil and military, as well as many foreign representatives, including Marshals Foch and Petain. After the funeral service the cortege will re-form and continue by way of Westminster Bridge to the Waterloo station where the coffin will be placed on a train for Bemersyde.

The government had desired that the great Field Marshal should be buried in St. Paul's Cathedral and the war office last night issued a statement explaining that although the honor of burial in the Cathedral was offered to relatives they decided to comply with Earl Haig's known wish and further, that the Abbey was chosen for the funeral service in preference to the Cathedral because St. Paul's would have meant a long and difficult route, with much dislocation of traffic.

Body to Lie in State.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Feb. 1. — Canadian Press. — The body of Douglas, Earl Haig, will lie in state in St Giles' Cathedral here Saturday and Monday, from 9.30 a.m., until 10 p. m., for the public to view it, says an announcement last night.

On Sunday the body will lie in Thistle Chapel, adjoining the Cathedral, from 2 until 5 in the afternoon, also for public view.

A memorial service will be held at St. Giles' Cathedral, simultaneously with the one at Westminster Abbey in London.

NAMES WANTED.

List of City and County Men Who Died is at Present Incomplete.

The attention of those whose relatives or friends gave their lives for King and Country during the Great War is called to the list published in Monday night's Examiner. They are asked to look it over and advise The Examiner of any omissons or corrections. Where only initials are given The Examiner would be pleased to receive the Christian names.

Lindbergh Wings Way Over 1,000-Mile Trip

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Island, Feb. 1 (A.P.).—Winging down the coast of Venezuela and around the inner circle of the Lesser Antilles, on the Caribbean Sea, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh made a magnificent flight yesterday from Maracay, west of Caracas, the Venezuelan capital, to St. Thomas, the "Gibraltar of America."

Steady as a clock, the Spirit of St. Louis swept along over a thousand mile flight, passing at regular intervals and with unvaried speed the islands that mark the Caribbean. Lindbergh hopped off from Maracay at 6.15 (5.15 Eastern Standard time), and reached St. Thomas at 4.50 (3.30 E.S.T.), spanning the great circular space in about 10½ hours.

LAKES PROVIDE SPLENDID ROAD

Farmers Draw Wood Home Over Ice—Roads Very Bad.

COLD AT WARSAW.

WARSAW, Feb. 1.—This Monday morning the thermometer registered the lowest it has so far, twelve below zero, at six o'clock, a white frost over all, and no wind.

Those who have wood to draw are busy at it, and, on the whole, since Wednesday's storm the days, though cold, have been good ones in which to work.

The ice on the lakes is good and several men, whose wood lots are up there, have the wood cut and are started teaming down the lake.

Milford Clysdale was drawing four cords of wood with two teams, tandem, and the whole thing upset in one of the pitch-holes. The road from the woodlot is very bad.

The social held by the U.F.O. on Friday evening was a very pleasant little affair. There was progressive euchre for an hour. The ladies' prize went to Mrs. Albert Cooper, the gentleman's to H. Cooper, and the consolation prizes to Mrs. Anderson and Harold Payne.

Luncheon was served. There was an abundance of good things. Afterwards the floor was cleared and there was dancing until a very little after midnight. The dances were mostly square dances and the "barn dance."

One of the features of the evening was the graceful dancing of the Highland Fling by one of the young ladies. Several present had never seen it.

Three members of Dr. Munro's orchestra kindly supplied the music.

Mr. McCleary motored from Toronto to Indian River on Saturday. He had to use a horse and cutter to reach his charges at Keene, Westwood and Warsaw. The one horse was not good for it all, consequently Warsaw Presbyterians had no preaching service.

Mrs. Stuart Miller spent severay days last week with her sister, Mrs. Stephen Miller in Otonabee.

Miss Hilda Clysdale is home for a short time.

Mr. William Clysdale and son are home from the West and are visiting Mr and Mrs. John Clysdale, who gave a party for them on Friday evening last.

Mr. Sandy Jackson is visiting his brother, Mr. William Jackson.

Miss Helen Bowen is visiting her uncle, George Osborne.

AUDITOR-GENERAL PUBLISHES REPORT

Shows Where Government Has Raised Money and Spent it During 1927.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—The Auditor-General — the country's bookkeeper—has published his annual report showing just where the government has raised money and where it has spent it during the year ended March 1927. It consists of two bulky volumes crowded with information ranging from the details of the national debt to the details of travelling expenses of junior officials of the civil service.

The report shows for example that government departments spent $222,000 more during the year than Parliament voted for them. The administration of pensions took $114,000 more than parliament approved and the coastal and lighthouse service cost $30,000 more than was actually approved. The Department of Agriculture must account for $3.70 which it spent without parliamentary sanction. The Auditor-General points out in a footnote that "a parliamentary appropriation will be necessary to cover these over-expenditures."

Another fragment of information gleaned from the report is that the net revenue from the Department of Customs from fines and forfeitures totalled $305,000, an increase of 100 per cent over the preceding year.

Salaries.

The Government paid almost $15,000,000 in departmental salaries in Ottawa in the last fiscal year and $59,000,000 in salaries outside Ottawa. The latter was an increase of almost a million and a half dollars. Travelling expenses cost Canada $3,600,000. New automobiles for the government service and their repairs cost $434,000. The general election of 1925 cost $1,665,000 and the elections of 1926 cost $1,844,000.

Representation abroad, including London, Paris, Washington, the League of Nations, and the Imperial Conference cost the country $409,000 in the last fiscal year and $345,000 in the preceding year.

The cost of the war is conspicuous in the report for the year 1927—nine years after the armistice. Pensions, war claims, war memorials and soldier settlement cost $46,000,000, more than a million dollar increase over the preceding fiscal year.

BELIEVE MEN ARE ON ISLAND

Reported Figures Seen on Lake Ontario Island Last Sunday.

MISSING TWO WEEKS.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Hopes of finding alive the four men who have been missing since leaving Rochester harbor January 18 in a 50-foot cabin cruiser, bound for Cobourg, Ont., were revived yesterday when it was reported figures of five or more men had been sighted on the Main Ducks, about 30 miles northwest of Cape Vincent.

The men were seen from the plane of Frederick H. Taylor, Sunday, but at that time it was believed they were caretakers engaged by Claude Cole, owner of a large farm on the islands. Since then it has been learned that there are but two caretakers on the island and it is thought the other figures may have been those of the missing men. The Taylor plane will again fly over the island when its landing gear is repaired. A trip to the island by boat from the cape would be hazardous if not impossible at present.

The missing men are Donald Walker of Scriba, William McElhone, and Norman Mallette of Oswego, and a Canadian named Gunyaw.

NOMINATIONS WILL BE HEARD TO-DAY

Three Candidates For Lancaster Parliamentary By-elections.

LONDON, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press Cable).—Official nominations will be heard in Lancaster today for the parliamentary by-election, following the elevation to the peerage of Sir Gerald Strickland, Conservative member. The candidates are Harold Ramsbotham, Conservative; Rev. D. Davies, Labor; and R. Tomlinson, Liberal.

Both in Lancaster and in West Bristol, where a by-election is to be held on Thursday, the electorate is showing disappointing apathy. The candidates in West Bristol by-election, also due to the honor conferred on the Conservative member, Rt. Hon. George Gibbs, are Lady Clare Annesley, Labor; William Marcy, Liberal, and C. T. Culverwell, Conservative.

LADY BREAKS WRIST.

Miss M. Eagleson Slips, Suffering Injury, at Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 1. — Miss M. Eagleson met with a painful accident on Saturday afternoon through slipping on the verandah of Mrs. R. Brown's home where she intended making a call, and fracturing the large bone in her right arm above the wrist.

Apparently the snow on her goloshes, and the painted surface of the verandah, were responsible for the fall, and its unfortuntae consequences.

Dr. H. A. Turner gave the necessary medical attention.

Obituary

THOMAS LANG.

(Contributed.)

Amidst tributes from every sphere of life, the funeral services of the late Sergeant Thomas Lang were conducted by Major McElhiney. Following a short service at the home, the remains were brought to the Temple on Simcoe street and full Salvation Army honors given to our departed comrade. The service opened with a song of hope, "My Home is in Heaven," and Mrs. (Commandant) Smith, of Ottawa, prayed, "The Father of all comfort and strength be with those bereaved." Following the singing of "Jesus Lover of My Soul," Commandant F. Ham said:

"Sergeant Thomas Lang, promoted to glory from his place in the Peterborough corps of the Salvation Army, has laid down his sword and taken up his crown. It would not be his wish that we should flatter him, but we cannot help but say a few things of him. He was a good man — that is the tribute of his family, his workmates, his fellow-comrades of the Salvation Army. He believed in God, loved God, and our dear comrade, his daughter, who today is in that far-off country India, with the rest of the family, bear tribute to the fact that he was a good man in the home.

"He was a good citizen, loved true principles and righteousness. His associations with the societies and orders represented in this gathering affirms this. He was a good workman. The presence of his fellow-workmen from the various parts of the Province bear testimony to that fact. He was a good Salvationist. We in the Army rejoice in that fact. He was true to the principles of the flag he so faithfully served. He believed in the truth emblematized by the colors of that flag—red, the blood of Jesus Christ; blue, purity; the yellow star, the fire of the Holy Ghost. For over 35 years he has rendered faithful service. Just a week ago Sunday, Jan. 22, he stood up in this Temple and witnessed for Jesus Christ.

"What finer tribute could be paid than by the man who spent the last afternoon of life of our comrade when he said, 'He was ready to go.'

"It would be Thomas Lang's wish that I ask you, 'Are you ready?' The same grace that was sufficient for our comrade avails for you, and you can enter heaven as we believe our comrade has entered and hear that 'Well done, good and faithful servant!'"

"Safe in the Arms of Jesus" was effectively sung by the Temple songsters, preceding a solo by Mrs. (Major) McElhiney, of Toronto, who also paid tribute to the life of our comrade.

"What we are speaks so loud that what we say many folks cannot hear." Thus said Major McElhiney in his tribute, and continuing said: "The sailor who, when the storm was fierce and threatened to engulf his ship and all seemed hopeless, looked to heaven and cried, 'Oh, God, you can save me if you will, you can sink me if you like, but do as you like—I will keep my rudder true?'

"That was Tom Lang. He didn't say as much as some of us say, but his life speaks loud in this city still.

"God's providences are not understood by our minds. The Old Testament tells of the trials and difficulties of God's good men. He allowed three boys to be put in the fiery furnace. We might think it cruel, but God's purpose in it was fulfilled. Another young man was put in a den of lions. Cruel, we say, but God's purpose was fulfilled by the decree of the king that no one would worship any God but the God of Daniel. Coming to the New Testament we wonder why were His servants cast into prison; why was Stephen stoned. The records of the apostles, sealed with their own blood, have only made these stories most precious.

"Why He allowed His son to suffer shame and ignomy and died. How could He? But there would have been no open fountain if it had not been so, and we may now enjoy His presence evermore.

"Why does God allow the best to be taken, as Tom was taken? Why the suffering of the widow and mourners? I don't know. I give it up. But out of it all shall come joy abundant and one day we shall understand.

"One of the best tributes was paid by one of his superiors at work in that 'You didn't need to tell him to do his duty.' He went out knowing full well the storm would damage the lines, and he met his end doing his duty. He stood four-square for all that was right and good.

"I believe Tom would have me say to you this afternoon a word of the Master he served. Jesus Christ came into the world at a time of great speculation. He had the temptations we do, the world, the flesh and the devil, and came off a conqueror. He didn't come to argue if prayer could be answered, nor to speculate as to whether labor was divine. He went into the carpenter's shop. His language was not in platitudes, but went to the home of a friend and wept.

"In the Bible reading it said, 'I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.' What a terrible thing if there was no hope beyond the grave? But, hallelujah! there is a hope, and one day we shall meet in heaven. This should be to those of us who believe an incentive to quicken our steps and work, for the night cometh when no man can work. To you who do not believe, seek Him."

With bowed heads the congregation stood while the Temple Band played, "Promoted to Glory," a tribute to the life of our comrade.

Left to mourn the loss are his widow, Mrs. T. Lang; Ensign Caroline Lang, a missionary on service in India; Mr. and Mrs. G. Sage, daughter, and family, city; Mr. and Mrs. E. Butcher and family, of Brandon, Man.; Mr. and Mrs. V. Lang, son, city; Messrs. William and Wesley Lang, brothers, of Poplar Point, Man.; Mrs. Willmount, sister-in-law, Orillia; Mr. Perrin and Mr. T. Thompson, Cobourg; Mr. and Mrs. J. Lang and family, of Ballieboro.

The pallbearers were Mr. E. Reid, representing the Orange Order and Hydro; Mr. E. Robinson, Orange Order; Messrs. Drury and Mulligan, Canadian Order of Foresters; Envoys Brooks and Payton, of the S. A.

Among the many floral tributes were wreaths from the family, Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario, Toronto; employees of the power house, city; Court Little John, C. O. F.; H.E.P.C., Belleville; H.E.P.C., Campbellford; L.O.L. 80, S. A. Band, Rangers Band, sub-station operators, G. B. Smith, Belleville, and numerous others.

There was present at the service also Messrs. G. B. Smith, O. R. Thompson, E. A. Hoyle, G. E. McKinnon, J. McNamara, R. L. Brown, W. H. Geary, W. Wandervoort, W. Coulby, J. Anderson, all of the H.E.P.C., Belleville; Messrs. R. Long, E. Roberts, C. W. Duncalf, of H.E.P.C., Campbellford; Mr M. Todd, of Millbrook.

Major and Mrs. McElhiney conducted the services and were assisted by Commandant and Mrs. Smith, of Ottawa, and Commandant and Mrs. Ham, of the city.

KILL COLDS!

Don't Neglect That Cold!

You can't afford to treat colds lightly. They often mean far more than discomfort and reduced efficiency. Many dangerous diseases gain a foothold when a cold has weakened you.

There's one sure way to get rid of colds and stay rid of them —Gallagher's Indian Lung Remedy. This good herbal medicine works in nature's own way. It aids the body in building up rich, red, virile blood. A wonderfully healing remedy, it provides you with needed vitality to ward off disease.

In the past 50 years Gallagher's Indian Lung Remedy has stopped thousands of colds and has relieved hundreds of sufferers from coughs, bronchitis and ills of a similar kind.

This fine old remedy contains no harsh mineral drugs. It is made according to the original formula of James Gallagher, a noted herbalist. Besides checking colds and coughs, it soothes and heals the inflamed tissues.

Mrs. Napoleon [illegible], 243 Frank Street, Ottawa, a staunch advocate of Gallagher's Indian Lung Remedy, writes:

"I had bronchial trouble. I took one bottle of Indian Lung Tonic which gave me wonderful deliverance from that trouble. I recommend Gallagher's Remedies most heartily to every one."

You can now obtain this long-tried remedy at drug stores. Keep a bottle constantly on the medicine shelf ready to ward off colds, coughs, lung trouble. Stay well. Enjoy life. Gallagher Remedies Ltd., Peterborough, Ont.

Terrible skin now lovely and clear

"AFTER three months of regular treatment," writes Miss A., "I now have the clear complexion I used to dream about and long for. Only the girl who has suffered as I did, with continual eruptions on my face just when I wanted to look my best, can know how I felt. I feel I owe a lifelong debt of gratitude to the friend who told me the best thing to do. There's nothing like it. I tried everything and I know. Lotions and salves help but they don't get at the root of the trouble. Like most skin troubles mine were signs of poison in the body. Nujol cleared those all out in three months. I took a tablespoonful every night. Never missed once. I've got my reward now."

Not Like Medicine

Nujol is a natural substance unlike anything else. Contains no drugs or medicine. Harmless and pure.

Every corner druggist has Nujol. Get the genuine. Perfected by the famous Chemical Products Division of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Don't be satisfied unless you get the Nujol bottle with the label on the back which you can read right through the bottle. Start this safe beauty treatment tonight. Don't delay a minute.

GENERAL CONTEST RULES
How to Enter

1. The contest is open to everyone except:
   (a) Employees of The Peterborough Examiner, Ltd., or their immediate family.
   (b) Prize-winners in any similar contest who have won any of the major prizes.

2. Additional puzzle-charts may be obtained free by writing to the Contest Department or by calling at The Examiner Office.

3. Every figure in the puzzle is complete and entirely free from tricks or illusions. If any contestant is in doubt about any of the figures, send in the chart with the figures marked and the Contest Department will gladly give a ruling on the figure.

4. When you have solved the puzzle, fill in completely the solution blank, which must be accompanied by a remittance for at least a six months' subscription at the regular rates to The Evening Examiner. (See subscription rates.) See also the prize-list and note how the value of your prize is increased by paying for a year's subscription and by getting subscriptions from your friends. Renewal subscriptions, or subscriptions in arrears, if paid during contest period, count the same as new subscriptions and will be extended from the present expiry date, but not more than $15.00 will be received on any one solution or subscription.

5. In order that subscribers who pay carrier boys weekly may participate in this contest, books of tickets containing 22 weekly tickets for $3.00, or 44 for $6.00, will be sold. These remittances must be made direct to the Contest Department with your solution. Otherwise it cannot be registered. Each ticket is valued at 15c and will be redeemed from the carrier boy at that price.

6. Readers who give their subscription to some other contestant and later want to send in an answer themselves, may do so providing they fill in the coupon, giving the name of the person they paid their subscription to and the amount paid. No further payment is necessary.

7. The contest will close on March 15, 1928, but send in your solution as soon as possible as we are offering special prizes for the first correct solutions. (See full details under "Special Prizes.") There is nothing gained by holding back your answer once you have solved the puzzle, as a contestant may make several remittances on any answer sent in while the contest lasts up to a total amount of $15.00.

8. Contestants may send in a different answer to the puzzle with each remittance, but if one of your answers is correct the money sent in on your other answers will not increase the total value of your prize, and not more than one regular prize will be paid to one family.

9. Everyone has an equal chance. You can win the first prize and extra cash for only a six months' subscription, but note how the value of the first five prizes increases if you send in more money. Aim to win the maximum Grand Prize. The Evening Examiner is now recognized as the leading daily in Peterborough district and surrounding counties and no difficulty should be found in getting your friends or neighbors to subscribe for it.

10. Contestants who remit by mail or pay at the office should see that these remittances and answers are made on a proper contest coupon to ensure them reaching the Contest Department.

11. If the correct answer is not sent in by any contestant the prizes will be awarded for the nearest correct solutions. In the event of a tie a second puzzle will be presented which will be as practicable and solvable as the first. Only those tieing will be permitted to solve the second puzzle. Should two or more persons be tied in the second puzzle the prizes will be divided equally among those tieing. No cash will be accepted on the second puzzle.

12. In entering the contest, contestants agree to abide by the rules of the contest and to accept the decision of the judges as final. The Contest Department reserve the right to alter and amend its rules if necessary for the protection of contestants or The Peterborough Examiner. It also reserves the right to refund any subscriptions and to disqualify any contestants whom they consider should not be in the contest. Contestants are assured of the same impartial treatment which characterizes The Examiner in all its dealings.

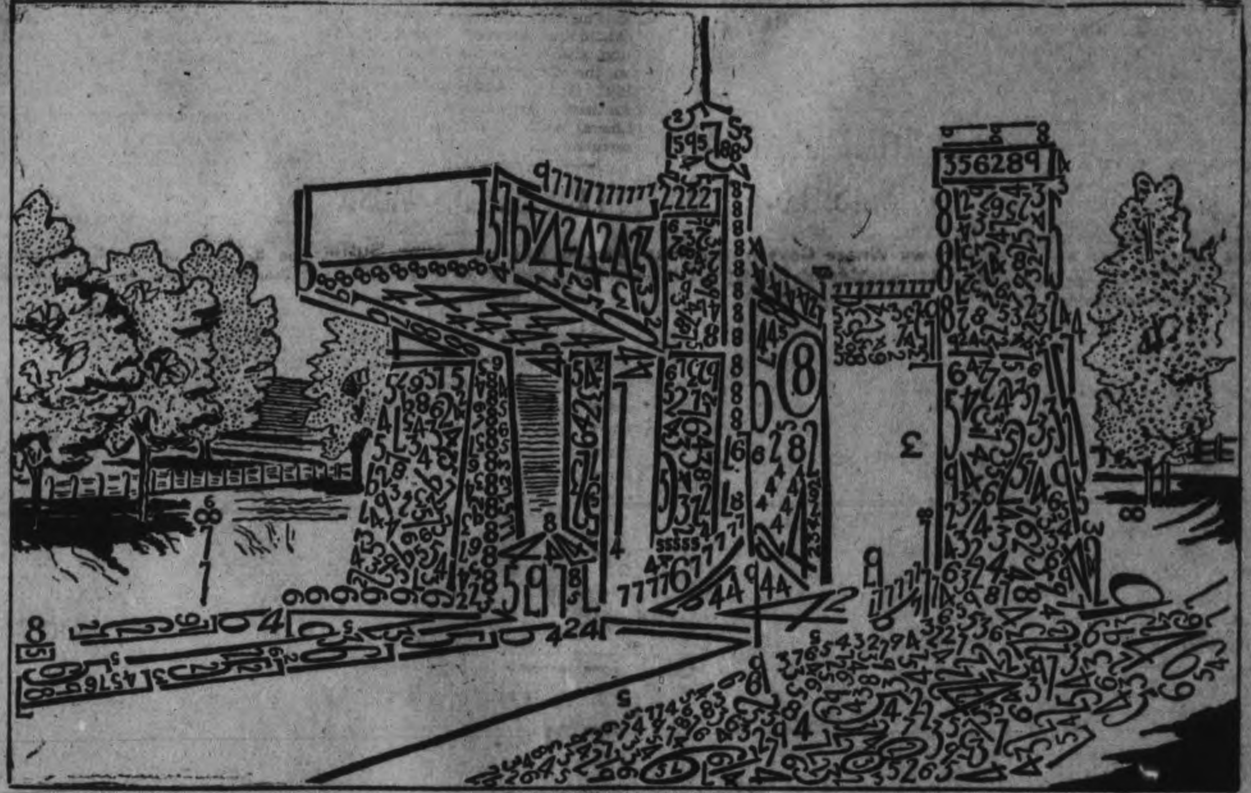
HOW MANY TONS DOES THE LIFT LOCK WEIGH?



THE PROBLEM

The problem is to add together all the figures shown above, which, when added together, represent the total number of tons that the Lift Lock weighs.

The puzzle is entirely free from tricks or illusions, every figure is complete and stands alone. The figures range from two to nine. There are no ones (1) or ciphers (0) in the puzzle. The sixes are curved, while the stem of the nines are straight.

We wish it clearly understood that every figure can be plainly seen. There is nothing hidden in the trees or shadows, but the problem of adding these is a real test of accuracy.

Remember, each figure is added separately. For example, 9777 is counted 9 plus 7 plus 7 plus 7, or, in other words, simply add them as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column.

REMEMBER, NO ONE KNOWS THE CORRECT ANSWER UNTIL THE CONTEST CLOSES

To ensure this we had Mr. E. M. Elliott, County Treasurer, and Mr. Frank Adams, City Treasurer, each erase one or more figures from the original drawing, which they carefully noted and sealed in an envelope and gave to the manager of the Royal Bank for safe keeping until the contest closes.

TWENTY-SIXTH TO FIFTIETH PRIZES—$5.00 in cash each.

SPECIAL PRIZES—While the contest will not close until March 15, we are offering Five Special Prizes for the first five correct, or nearest correct, solutions secured by us. The prizes will be: First Prize, $8.00; Second Prize, $7.00; Third Prize, $5.00; Fourth Prize, $3.00; Fifth Prize, $2.00.

A TIP ON HOW TO WIN

Take a pencil and put down the numbers as you stroke them out, then add them up. Some suggest that you cut the chart into dozens of pieces, then check them from all sides; or if you wish, try blotting them out with colored ink or pencil. Others think the best way is to pick out all the twos, threes, fours, etc. Any they miss the first time they find later. Or suppose you try taking a combination of figures which, when added together, makes a total of ten. For example, 5 and 3 and 2 make 10. Tens are not only easily added together, but there is less danger of making a mistake.

Important Points to Remember

1. Everyone has the same opportunity. A person sending in only $3.00 in subscriptions has the same chance of winning the first prize as a person sending in more money. The advantage of sending in more money is to increase the value of the first five prizes.

2. This is a contest for Central Ontario district, or to any subscriber of The Examiner, no matter where he resides.

3. Don't forget to answer all the necessary questions on the solution blank.

4. If you collect a subscription from a friend or neighbour, that person can also submit an answer to the puzzle without further payment.

THE JUDGES

In order that each Contestant shall have fair and impartial treatment, we have arranged with Mr. Roland Denne, Mayor of the City and Alderman Nagel Phelan to act as judges for the contest. Any complaints in this connection will be referred to these judges whose decision will be absolutely final.

WILD STORIES.

A Toronto evening paper used its streamer line on Monday evening to hint the possibility that derailing of the special train bearing President William Cosgrave of the Irish Free State to Ottawa was the result of a plot.

There does not seem to be the slightest justification for considering the mishap as anything but an accident occasioned by the fast moving train jumping a switch and crashing into the ditch.

Why publicity should be given to alarmist stories suggesting that Canada harbors men vile enough to wreck a train to serve their political or religious ends is a mystery.

Not the least bit of evidence to warrant the charge that the derailment was deliberately planned can be found, nor is there any reason whatever that the impression should be created through wild rumors of this kind that this country is the home of creatures lawless enough to plot the destruction of a distinguished visitor and to jeopardize the lives of all those on the train with him.

Harm is done the reputation of Canada by featuring such foundationless yarns as that circulated about Monday's train wreck.

GOOD THINGS COMING.

Premier King's forecast of what the Budget will contain means that the Canadian people will be justified in looking forward to Mr. Robb's Budget speech with a great deal of pleasurable anticipation.

In answer to Mr. Bennett, the Premier declared in his speech in the debate on the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne that when the Budget was brought down it would be found to include a further reduction in the public debt, a cut in taxation and the announcement of a Federal surplus.

All these things are of great national importance, and while the Premier has stolen some of Mr. Robb's thunder by announcing the good news instead of letting the Finance Minister have that pleasant task on his own account, he has lifted the curtain for the benefit of the public, and the people will thank and Mr. Robb forgive him.

Speculation will turn in the direction of just what tax reductions will be announced by the Minister of Finance.

Slashes in the last two sessions have amounted to many millions of dollars, and from the tone of the Premier's reference to the subject the reductions in the coming Budget will be material and will add to the general prosperity.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

By the beginning of the new fiscal year—that is to say, by May 1—the aged people of Manitoba who are eligible for assistance under the Old Age Pensions Act, passed at the last session of the Dominion Parliament, will begin to reap the benefit of that legislation.

Manitoba has decided to take advantage of the Federal measure by which the Dominion Government will pay half the cost of old age pensions in any Province agreeing to meet the balance of the cost.

The Province of British Columbia was the first to adopt the scheme, and Manitoba has been quick to fall in line, the necessary legislation coming before the Legislature within the next two weeks.

What about Ontario?

Do the people of this Province believe that our aged citizens should be given the same assistance as those of British Columbia and Manitoba are to receive?

Do they think that the Ontario Government should enter into an agreement with the Dominion Government to put the Act into force here?

If they do they had better see that the Provincial Government is impressed with the strength of public opinion in favor of old age pensions.

So far at least Mr. Ferguson and his Government have shown no sign of moving in the direction of accepting the Federal plan, nor will they so move unless they can be convinced that the people of Ontario demand action.

It can be taken for granted that unless there is a much more emphatic expression of opinion favoring the scheme there will be no old age pensions in Ontario for some time.

GOING TOO FAR.

Because of an exhibition of economy carried on to an abused degree by the Finance Committee, Renfrew practically finds itself without a Town Council, most of the members of which resent the policy of the committee.

Among the changes advocated were the discharge of the night policeman to save his wages and the dropping of the annual grant to the town band.

The Renfrew committee is working under a mistaken sense of its responsibility to the people of that town.

While extravagance in the administration of public affairs should be eliminated and every effort made to see that full value is obtained from every dollar of public money that is spent, retrenchment cannot be carried to the point where essential services are scrapped or impaired.

Surely there is no real economy in doing away with police protection at night in a town like Renfrew, where the presence of one man on duty might easily result in the saving of his year's salary through the discovery of a fire or the prevention of a crime.

And while a town band may not be a necessity, it serves a very useful and desirable purpose in community life, and the majority of the citizens of Renfrew, The Examiner imagines, would be heartily in favor of supporting an organization that is responsible for providing a great deal of pleasure and adding a little brightness to life.

Cheese paring in public affairs goes too far when it does away with police protection and the community band.

Mr. Cosgrave should be given to understand that it is not customary for Canadian trains to be derailed.

NGOISM.

[illegible] an, of Idaho, protests, and with reason, against the jingo talk of Rear Admiral Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, and other "big navy" men. Mr. Borah describes such talk and such action as they suggest, as "sheer madness," and calls upon the people of the United States to make themselves heard "before this mad policy becomes fixed."

Admiral Plunkett, addressing the National Republican Club in New York, made the drastic statement that "We are nearer war today than ever before in our history as a nation." And he added: "The penalty of commercial and industrial efficiency inevitably is war." Furthermore, Senator Borah quotes Admiral Plunkett as saying, in response to a question, that Great Britain is the nation with whom the threatened war is to be waged.

Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of American naval operations, is asking the Government for a million dollar building program, while Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, in an address Monday night, made a strong plea for an up-to-date fleet.

All this talk is highly alarming and certainly not in line with the peaceful instincts of the United States. What possible reason can be found for war between Great Britain and the American Republic? It is perfectly true that they are trade rivals, but is there any excuse for trade rivals engaging in physical combat any more than there would be for a battle of this kind between the owners of two great department stores in the same city?

Talk of war constitutes one of the greatest obstacles to peace. If Admiral Plunkett is thirsting for a battle with someone, he should take up golf or some other diversion of this kind. The men who have to do the suffering and the people who have to pay the taxes—long years after the war is over—are not interested in 1928 jingoism. The last great conflict proved the fallacy of the old theory that the way to avoid war is to be 100 per cent. prepared for it. But it is difficult to convince some professional naval and military men that this is the case.—Border Cities Star.

WHEAT IN 1927.

The western wheat crop has hardly been stooked before estimates are forthcoming of its aggregate cash value. So large does wheat bulk in our national economy that they are always eagerly read. Nevertheless, since much of it is slowly marketed through the year, and the payment to the farmer is based upon a long average of sales—more especially when the wheat is harvested several weeks later than usual, as in 1927—it is unwise to depend on such estimates. Clearly, however, for the third year in succession a very large crop has been gathered and it is at least likely that this will bring satisfactory prices.

The year just concluded was one of extraordinary vicissitudes. It will be remembered that rain in the spring made seeding unusually late. A swing of the pendulum occurred, and excellent growing weather followed in July. Hopes were clouded when in August a severe frost and, following the frost, rust took toll of the standing grain. Another reversal of fortune in September gave a spell of very fine weather for the reaping. Rain and sleet and snow succeeded one another in October, when confidence again gave way to fears. Threshing was held up and the prospect opened before farmers of a winter in which the wheat, left unthreshed in the fields, must have become almost unsaleable. Once more the weather changed suddenly. Storms were succeeded by the mildest of Indian Summers, the grain dried quickly, threshing proceeded apace. Most heavily handicapped in the race against time that now began were the small farmers without equipment who had patiently to wait their turn. It seems, nevertheless, that the proportion of the crop which reaches contract grade is little less now than at this time twelve months ago. The net result of these remarkable and trying changes has been a delayed crop movement, and an increase of grain in store at country points.

With the close of the season in Canada, price now becomes the main interest; and since the size of the Canadian crop is now known with fair accuracy—about 444,000,000 bushels—the ripening wheat of the Southern Hemisphere becomes for the time a dominant factor. Growing conditions in Australia have not been satisfactory. She will only harvest some 109,000,000 bushels this season. Argentina has experienced a series of weather changes not unlike those that lately tantalized the prairie farmer. Hot winds and rust were persistently reported. It was not till mid-December that the situation cleared. With the statement that Argentina would probably have 168,000,000 bushels for export (an increase of 23,000,000 bushels over the figures for the previous season) prices broke on the world's market to levels lower than any recorded for eight months past.

More remarkable by far, however, than the decline in December, is the fact that even after its occurrence, in relation to past years the purchasing power of wheat is still so high. During the five years immediately preceding the war, the combined wheat crop of thirty-eight countries averaged rather less than 2,400,000,000 bushels. In the present season these countries are marketing almost 3,400,000,000 bushels. The crop has increased by more than 1,000,000,000 bushels; yet there is no disastrous break in wheat values. Russia's exports are still very small; but of perhaps even greater importance in keeping the market stable is the silent revolution in human habits which has also taken place. Millions who lived on rye bread till a few years ago now look on wheat bread as their staple diet; other millions in Asia, who never ate bread before, now turn to wheat. That this should have occurred in the same generation with the most disastrous of all conflicts is one of the strangest paradoxes of our time.—Bank of Nova Scotia's Monthly Review.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—The trade in cash grain here yesterday continued of a very limited character owing to the absence of any export business. The demand was confined to car lots for domestic and country account.

The demand for Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour was inactive but prices were firm.

A fairly active business was done in all lines of millfeed and values were unchanged. The inquiry for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and prices were steady.

Little business was transacted in eggs, but the undertone was firm. The receipts were 875 cases.

The potato trade was moderately active and firm. Sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were made at $1.20 per bag of 90 lbs; Prince Edward Island White potatoes at $1.15 per bag of 90 lbs; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk; New Brunswick White potatoes at $1.05 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk; and Quebec varieties at 95c to $1 per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, ex track.

There was no change in the condition of the market for imported beans, prices being firmly maintained with a small trade passing. Car lots of choice white hand-picked sold at $2.90 per bushel, ex-track, and in broken lots at $3.00 per bushel, ex-store.

The demand for butter was confined to small lots and the volume of business was smaller but prices were maintained. The receipts were 6,548 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade, but prices were firm. The receipts were 409 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Ills., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press). — With immediate delivery corn in Chicago quoted yesterday in some cases at 4 cents a bushel advance, prices for future deliveries also averaged higher. The corn export basis at the Gulf of Mexico, however, was ½ cent lower at 6¼ cents over Chicago May.

Closing quotations on corn future deliveries were nervous at the same as Monday's finish to ⅝ cent higher, wheat unchanged to ½ cent lower; oats ⅝ to ¼ cent up, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

It was only in the last part of the day that export demand for corn appeared to cut much figure. Throughout the day, the corn market as a whole had a choppy trend, profit-taking sales increasing on the price bulges, but offerings being readily cleaned up on declines.

Wheat was governed largely by weakness of Liverpool quotations and by word of increased selling pressure both from Argentina and Canada. Something of an offset was talk of Winter killing east as well as west of the Mississippi River.

Oats showed firmness, helped by upturns in the corn market.

Provisions advanced with hogs, but met selling on the part of cash interests.

CHURCH REPORTS SHOW PROGRESS

United Church of Havelock Hold Annual Meeting.

HAVELOCK, Feb. 1.—The annual congregational meeting of Havelock United church was held on Thursday evening, January 26th. The first event of the evening was the annual Sunday school supper and sleigh ride, greatly enjoyed by the youngsters. Later, the congregational supper was served and following this the meeting was formally opened with devotional exercises by the pastor, Rev. W. R. Archer.

It was moved that G. W. Denike act as secretary for the meeting. The first report submitted was that of the Treasurer, Mr. Charles Roberts, and was as follows: balance from previous year, $8.08; total receipts, $2043.87; expenditures, $1911.92; balance on hand, $140.03.

The report was adopted on motion of C. Brewster and B. Smith.

A hearty vote of appreciation was tendered Mr. Roberts for his work as treasurer of the church during the year. A selection was then given by the choir. The report of the Maintenance and Extension Fund Committee was given by A. C. Denike. The report contained a brief sketch of the missionary enterprises of the church, and the suggestion that a "Dozen Club" be formed among the members of the church. The members of this club would undertake to read during the year twelve books (one each month) on United Church missionary work.

The report of the Ladies' Aid was given by Mrs. Roberts in behalf of Mrs. Laing, the treasurer as follows: balance from previous year, $17.33; amount raised during year, $325.92; expenditures, $114.74; balance on hand, $229.51. A vote of appreciation of her work as President of the Ladies' Aid during the year was tendered Mrs. Roberts.

Henry Campney gave a vocal solo. A vote of thanks was tendered the drivers of the sleighs and the orchestra gave a selection.

The report of the treasurer of the Sunday school was given by Mr. Brewster. On motion of Mr. B. Smith, seconded by Mr. A. C. Denike, the report was adopted. The report of the secretary of the Sunday school was given by Mr. Roberts, showing a total enrollment of 200 with an average attendance of 85. The Sunday school has a good library of 140 books.

The report of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary was given by Mrs. E. Fennell. Total receipts, $232.03; expenditures, $13.85; forwarded to Presbyterial treasurer, $128.18. The auxiliary exceeded their allocation by a few dollars.

It was moved by Mr. Brewster, seconded by Mr. E. Spencer that J. Harrison Wing and Rae Williams be added to the scrutineers for the election of church officials.

Mrs. W. R. Archer gave the report of the Mission Band as follows: amount raised, $28.39; forwarded, $25.00. Paid-up membership 18.

Miss L. Morrison, treasurer of the choir reported that the choir had contributed $130.28 to general expenses, balance on hand being $140.00. It was moved by Mr. Brewster and seconded by Mr. Fennell that the matter of setting the date for the next congregational meeting be referred to the new Official Board.

Mr. Bonny then gave a vocal solo.

The meeting was dismissed with the Benediction.

DISTRICT CHURCHES.

ST. PAUL'S, MARMORA

MARMORA, Feb. 1.—Bert Cooper's setting to "Saviour, again to Thy Dear Name we Raise" was delightfully rendered at St. Paul's on Sunday evening, Mrs. G. R. Hartley and Mrs. H. R. Pearce taking soprano and alto solos respectively. Owing to snow-blocked roads, the Rev. M. J. C. Levason, Rector of Rawdon, who was to have been the special preacher, was unable to be present. The service was taken by the rector, who preached on "Being ashamed of Jesus." In the morning the reverend gentleman's subject was—"Seeking the best" and was based on the parable of the pearl of great price. In commencing, Rev. Caldwell brought out the idea of the inhabitants of the kingdom of heaven being kingly. One of their distinctions is that they seek goodly pearls. The kingly life is a life in quest of big things. Everyone is painfully aware of the temptation to fritter away life in the interests of things that are small and mean. The preacher then touched upon the lives of Judas Iscariot, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, and Demas, as Scriptural types of the wasteful and belittled life. "The big thing," he continued, "is not luxury but contentment, not a big house, but a big satisfaction, not a big estate, but a large vision. The big things are not always the things that are seen, but the things that are not seen. The quest of the kingly man is not only for the big things but for the bigger things among the big and for the biggest among them all.

Knowledge is a good thing, wisdom is a better thing. Acquaintance is a good thing, friendship is a better thing. Love is the best thing. Respect for others is a good thing; self-respect is a better thing. Love for our lovers is a good thing; love for our neighbours is a better thing. Love for our enemies is the best thing. There are pearls, and there are pearls of great price." Summed up, the sermon showed that we are to be like the merchant man, broad in outlook, vigilant for detail, intelligent in method and decisive in action.

GILMOUR MEMORIAL

In the Gilmour Memorial church on Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. W. S. Edgar preached from the following text—"For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish, foolishness, but unto us which are saved it is the power of God." 1 Cor. 1-18.

Mr. Edgar said: "In this first chapter of the first epistle to the Corinthians, Paul asserts his apostolic authority, exhorts them to brotherly love, reproves them for the diversions which he had heard were among them, and vindicates the doctrine of a crucified Saviour and his own plain way of preaching it. He did not try to imitate the Greek philosophers by making the preaching of the Gospel an occasion for displaying his own wisdom and knowledge. Eloquence of speech and all the graces of oratory were greatly coveted by the Greeks and many a philosopher delivered a speech, not to teach the people anything, but simply to tickle their ears with his oratory and display all his powers of eloquence. I am afraid that many preachers to-day have a greater desire to preach brilliant sermons, sparkling with wit and graced with all the charms of eloquence, than to win souls for Christ.

"Sir Astley Cooper, an eminent British surgeon, on visiting Paris, was asked by a distinguished French surgeon how many times he had performed a certain very difficult and wonderful surgical operation. He replied that he had performed the operation thirteen times. The Frenchman declared that he had performed the feat, no less than a hundred and sixty times. Then he asked the British surgeon how many lives out of the thirteen he had been the means of saving, and he replied that he had saved eleven. 'How many did you save out of the hundred and sixty?' 'Ah, monsieur, I lost them all, but the operation was very brilliant.'

"Of how many popular preachers might the same verdict be given. Souls are not saved, but the preaching is very brilliant. Thousands are attracted by the eloquence of the preacher, but none are saved, although the sermons are very brilliant. Paul felt that by introducing into his preaching the claims of eloquence, and the graces of oratory and the wisdom of philosophy, the cross of Christ would be made of more effect.

"I want to ask two questions in connection with our text. What is the meaning and the purpose of the cross of Christ? What is the meaning of the cross of Christ. In our text, we have two classes of people to whom the cross means different things. We have the perishing to whom the cross means foolishness. Then we have the saved to whom the cross means the power of God. Is it not strange that the people who are perishing should look upon the instrument divinely ordained for their deliverance and salvation divinely ordained for their deliverance and foolish expedient. Sin hath warped their judgment and obscured their vision to the beauty of Christ's character, and the wondrous meaning of His death. We are not at all surprised at this because the Word of God informs us that this will be so. The things of the spirit are foolishness to the natural man; he cannot know them, for they are spiritually discerned.

"The power and wisdom of the cross can only be known by experience, and until men get that experience they lack the principal means by which the cross is to be judged. I remember one time seeing at a distance a company belonging to an excursion party having highland games and highland dancing in a field. I could see them making certain movements and revolutions, and to me at the distance from which I viewed them, they seemed to be acting in a very foolish manner. But when I drew nearer and heard the music to which they were dancing, what I thought was foolishness proved to be a highly skilful art. If the ungodly and the sinful would only draw near and hear the music to which we Christians dance, they would dance too.

"That great power comes to us through the weak medium of the Saviour's broken body. Just as in nature, some of the greatest forces known to man require a very delicate medium for their expression. The great force of electricity best expresses itself, not through an iron girder or a crowbar, but through the hair-like wire; magnetism works through the trembling needle in the mariner's compass, and so the great power of God comes to us through the cross.

"Then we have also the purpose of the cross. The death of Christ was not aimless, it had one great and glorious design in view, the highest and noblest which thought can conceive, even the rescue of fallen man, and the salvation of a lost world. The story of the cross, that story of grief, and love and wonder with which we are all so familiar is related in the New Testament to stimulate our love to God, and lead us to Him by faith that we might be saved.

"The purpose of the cross was to satisfy the claims of divine justice—to manifest the power of divine love. Oh! the depth of that great fountain of love, welling up at the cross—the Son of the Highest dying for sinful man. The third and last great purpose of the cross is to provide a full and free redemption for man as this idea has been running through our meditation; a few observations will now suffice. The world needs a Savior. Humanity is not now what it once was.

"In a word, let us return from the cross in strong faith, making Jesus our own. Faith is no new principle in the history of man. When we walk along the street, build a home, or accept a bank note, we are exercising faith. Oh! that men had a similar faith in Christ. Will men trust their fellows and distrust their God. Christ, the object of Christian faith, is the highest and most glorious that can be presented to man.

"A missionary tells of a Chinese doctor, who lived the life of a hermit and gave himself up to alleviate the misery of the sick poor, sacrificing himself for others, living what he believed to be the highest life. One day he entered a Christian place of worship, and saw a picture of the crucifixion of Christ, and asked what it meant. He was told the story of Christ's life and death. He stood motionless for half an hour, gazing intently upon the picture, without uttering a word, and then with his eyes full of tears, he exclaimed, 'This is the only Buddha whom men ought to worship and serve.' Have you reached this point yet my brother, when you feel that you cannot keep your heart any longer from Christ, but must love and give yourself to Him, who loved and gave Himself for you?"

SOCIAL EVENING

Held Under Auspices of Tuxis Square in Cavan United Church.

CAVAN, Feb. 1.—On Friday evening "The Hearts of Oak" Tuxis Square held a social evening in Cavan United Church.

There was a good attendance and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

The admittance fee was determined by height. Each person was measured and paid three cents a foot and one cent for each additional inch.

The programme was contests and community singing.

Lunch was served at the conclusion of the games.

Next Friday evening the Bailieboro Tuxis Boys will give their play, "The Mascot," in Cavan Community Hall, under the auspices of Cavan Tuxis Square.

On Sunday evening, February 12, a male choir will have charge of the music for the service in Cavan United Church.

Miss Gwen Hunter, Peterborough, spent the week-end at her home in Cavan.

Miss Dorothy Falls, Peterborough, was a week-end guest of Miss Gwen Hunter.

Miss Alma Perrin, Peterborough, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Perrin.

Mrs. Paul was a visitor to Peterborough on Saturday.

Orland

ORLAND, Jan. 31.—Thomas Webber and Frank Cooper are busy cutting wood on shares for A. Dingman.

Norval Kenny has moved from Codrington to Cankerville on the George Delong place, near the evaporator.

Yesterday's heavy storm has nearly blocked the highway between Campbellford and Brighton and Earl Williams, the mail driver, had to hire the overseers to open it up for auto driving.

C. A. Lawson was lucky to get a sawing machine to cut his wood before the big storm.

Much ado is caused over the action of the Municipal and Railway Board in granting the request of the Murray System, and the Commissioners of the Cramahe Municipal Telephone System for privilege to a levy of a five-cent fee on all calls from neighboring systems. The Commissioners of the Haldimand Municipal and Brighton Municipal Telephone Systems opposed the charge.

RAJAH'S EMISSARIES PREPARE WEDDING

Proceed With Plans in Spite of Great Opposition To Wedding.

BOMBAY, British India, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Unbaffled by the many obstacles which have arisen to the proposed marriage of the former Maharajah of Indore to Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, the Maharajah's emissaries yesterday continued to make preparations for the ceremony. Orthodox Hinduism is opposed to the marriage and the Bombay Chronicle yesterday suggested that Miss Miller was a minor. If this were true, the paper said, it will be a formidable bar to the union.

SIBERIA HAS FROZEN MILK

Siberia, as well as America, has frozen milk, according to recent disclosures, but the Asiatic country has the lacteal fluid refrigerated all the year round. For convenience the natives let it freeze around a stick, which serves as a handle to carry it. "Don't break the milk," is an admonition of Irkutsk parents to their children.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith was luxuriously comfortable in her bed, from which she would not be permitted to rise until time to dress for the two o'clock Sunday dinner which Rhoda was preparing to the gay accompaniment of an aria from "Carmen."

Cherry, who had perched upon the edge of the bed, looked about the room as if she were seeing it for the first time—seeing it, not merely as a room, but as Faith always saw it: the heart of her home and of her marriage, the chamber that was sacred to love. Then she suddenly bent her bright head until her copper-and-gold curls lay against the shining, sleek brownness of Faith's hair.

"It pays to be good, doesn't it, darling?" she murmured huskily. "I've never realized before—just how much—it does pay. You've been so good, so good all your life, and you're happy now—"

"No, no!" Faith cried protestingly, the memory of her recent sins of jealousy and suspicion hurting intolerably. "I haven't been good, Cherry, but—I am happy, or I would be if you were. I'm glad you want to tell me about it."

"I've been working it all out," Cherry quivered, raising her head so that Faith could see the humility and despair in her eyes. "I'm not happy because I don't deserve to be. I always thought the copy-book rules were silly, concocted for morons, to hornswaggle them into being good, so that all the most gorgeous things could be left to the magnificent sinners. I've had a lot of fun out of life—probably a lot more than if I had been good—like you. But now that I've had my fun, I've got to pay for it, and paying means—missing the biggest thing in the world, because I'm not worthy. I've worked it all out," she reiterated childishly, nodding her head solemnly, but the pain and despair in her eyes were not childish.

"You mean—Nils?" Faith asked softly.

"Of course!" Cherry cried. "I'm in love, Faith, terribly in love, for the first time in my life, and I've lost him. Oh, he wanted me at first, until I showed him the kind of girl I've become. Like an utter fool, I tried to make him want me more by flirting violently with Bruce Patton. Cheap little rules of the game! 'Make him jealous,' let him see that others want you'—my God!" she groaned, striking her quivering lips with her small clenched fist.

"You were afraid of him, tried to make yourself less attractive at first, were deliberately rude to him," Faith reminded her. "Why, Cherry?"

"Because I knew he was bigger than I, stronger, that he'd master me once I let him see I loved him," Cherry stated dully. "And I didn't want to go away off to his farm to live."

"But—now?" Faith prodded gently.

"Now I'd follow him to the Antipodes, wherever they are, if he wanted me!" Cherry cried. "Now I'm willing to have him conquer me. I know I need him. I am conquered—but he doesn't know it!"

"Then why not write and tell him so?" Faith suggested softly.

A STUDY OF CHRONIC RHEUMATISM

For some time physicians have been trying to discourage the use of the word "rheumatism." They prefer to classify the different forms of that which has been called rheumatism into "rheumatic fever" "gout," "arthritis deformans," "rheumatoid arthritis," "osteo-arthritis," etc. As far as the layman is concerned, it is just as well to make the simple classification of "acute rheumatic fever" and "chronic rheumatism."

In a case of chronic rheumatism the area of inflammation is always around the joints, either in the cartilage and bone covering, or in the synovial membranes and peri-articular tissues. When the joints become deformed from the inflammation and subsequent calcification, the condition is then known as arthritis deformans, which simply means deformity of the joints caused by rheumatism.

The majority of cases of chronic rheumatism occur between the ages of twenty and fifty: only about five per cent under the age of twenty. Whenever arthritis does appear during childhood or adolescence, it is a great deal more serious and more difficult to eradicate.

The first signs of chronic rheumatism are usually noticed in some soreness in the joints of the fingers, and this gradually extends to the wrist, elbows and shoulders. It may take several months before enough inflammation has developed so that one can be sure he is acquiring rheumatism.

In most cases tenderness in the joints of the extremities will come and go for a time before settling down into any permanent locations. There will finally be a noticeable swelling of the joints, and whether this occurs in the synovial membrane, in the cartilage, or in the bone, itself, it little matters as far as the cause and cure are concerned.

After the inflammation has gone on for some time, the patient will sometimes notice little lumps forming on the outside of the finger joints. This is caused by the deposit of calcium which is apparently thrown out to protect the joints against irritation.

If the causes of rheumatism are not removed, there may be such extensive changes in the joints of the fingers and toes that the normal hinging tendency is destroyed, and some of the joints will bend backward, and even become subluxated, or drawn out of position.

When arthritis has been allowed to continue, it often settles in the spine, and when bony changes take place in the vertebrae it places the patient in a very helpless condition and makes a cure more difficult. With the spine involved, the patient is practically forced to remain in bed, owing to the extreme pain when moving and also because of the difficulty in bringing about a cure if the vertebrae are further irritated by their normal movement against each other.

The development of chronic rheumatism is usually quite slow, so the patient has plenty of time to eliminate the causes before the disease has progressed sufficiently for the vertebrae of the spine to be affected.

Chronic rheumatism may be easily cured at the start, but becomes more difficult as each new joint is involved.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. A. W. J. writes: "I have a most annoying feeling come over me at times. It begins in my head, then seems to make my body stiff. Does not last long, but when it goes away leaves me with a very bad headache all the rest of the day. Could you tell me what it is and what to do about it?"

Answer: It would be necessary for me to know more about your trouble in order to give you a correct explanation of the cause and cure. I cannot attempt to diagnose cases through this column.

Question: Mrs. L. B. asks: "What is a Tree-tomato, and is it ever found in this country?"

Answer: This is a fruit-vegetable native of West India and South America. It is borne on a small tree, is egg-shaped, about two inches long, of a purplish or brownish red color with a flavor similar to our tomato When fully ripe it is used as a fruit, both cooked and raw, and is prepared in various ways as a vegetable.

Question: Daisy writes: "Am 32 years old and my hair is just beginning to get curly. Could there be anything wrong with my health or scalp? Am feeling fine, but would just like to know the reason for this change in my hair."

Answer: Hair frequently turns curly toward middle age, and this change is no doubt due to the results of a bad fever or to a radical change of diet. I have known many cases where thin, straight hair became curly after a fasting and diet treatment.

SCHOOL CLOSED FOR CONVERSION

Turkish Government Orders American School Closed—Girls Converted.

AGAINST LAW.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The government has ordered the American school at Broussa, Turkey closed on the ground that it has broken Turkish law by converting students. The government recently investigated the school after it had been reported that four Moslem girl students had been converted to Christianity. Turkish law prohibits religious propaganda in the schools.

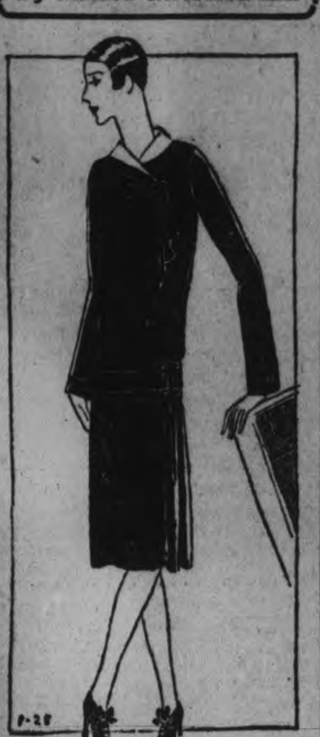
RAZ-MAH

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



One of the new frocks which are suited to the demands of the up-to-date American business woman. It is of dark blue flat crepe with detachable white collar.

One of the reasons why a girl almost always has a good time at a dance and looks forward to it with pleasure is because she takes time to dress carefully and has taken thought over her dance ensemble. And one reason why so many office girls you know don't enjoy the six or seven or eight hours they spend at work very much is because they have not dressed with care and have given hardly any real thought whatever to the choosing of their working ensemble.

Once a girl thinks of her job as a role for which she must plan a definite sort of costume then she begins to take more interest in her work. The actress who plays the part of the efficient private secretary is dressed usually in a dark, trim little frock, short and scant, with a touch of white at the cuffs and collar. Private secretaries are supposed to look like that.

Nowadays one may be very trimly dressed—and very business-like too—without looking at all mannish. Long-sleeved frocks I do think look better in an office but high collars are certainly not necessary and they are rather hot and uncomfortable. Sheer silk stockings and high-heeled slippers are perfectly appropriate, providing they don't look as if they had first served their term of usefulness as dancing footgear.

I have been very much amazed recently to learn how large a proportion of their wages a very large number of business girls spend on their clothes. Quite frequently I am afraid much of this money is spent to rather poor advantage. A fur coat often takes up a very large share of the total amount and stockings use up another goodly sum. There are girls who feel that a good fur coat is really essential, and who spend fifteen or twenty dollars a month for fine stockings who would feel that they could not afford to have a frock specially made at a good dressmaker's or even to have a good quality ready-made frock specially fitted.

Hints on Etiquette

1. How can a girl help her escort to be polite?
2. Should a girl ever open a door, just because she precedes her escort?
3. What should she do?

The Answers.

1. By knowing exactly what her escort should do, according to social usage.
2. No.
3. Stand aside to allow him to open and hold it wide for her to pass through.

Does Ill Health Detract from Your Good Looks?

Hamilton, Ont.—"I was in a rundown state of health, my nerves were bad and I suffered from backaches and pains in my side, which would be so severe that I would get weak and have to lie down. I could not eat without being distressed. Upon the advice of a relative I started to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it relieved me of all my distress, and I do not suffer in any way from any of the above conditions. I have a good appetite and my nerves are in splendid condition. I am strong and healthy in every way."—Mrs. George Turansky, 373 Ferguson Ave. North.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1928.

Again the morning hours are more favorable for human endeavor than a later time in the day, according to astrology.

There is an aspect encouraging system and method that will aid in domestic as well as business activities.

The morning is a first rate time for attending to banking matters and for paying one's bills.

The planetary influences today should encourage wise foresight for they are supposed to assure clean vision regarding one's affairs.

This is read as an unfavorable sway for aviation and it is well not to start any hazardous air journeys.

Congress may be the scene of bitter controversies under this direction of the stars, which stimulates personal antagonisms.

The evening is held to be an unlucky time for lovers and engagements contracted while this configuration prevails will be easily broken.

There is a sign today that is menacing to certain business enterprises, but it probably will cause false apprehensions.

Prosperity in the United States is to continue in 1928, despite a national campaign that will bring about many amazing partisan and non-partisan alignments.

Venus continues in aspects threatening the welfare of women and children, who will be victims of frightful crimes, the seers warn.

Pleasure-seeking will be if possible more prevalent in the new year than ever before in America, it is forecast.

Theatres of every sort are to flourish, and many devices to put entertainment within reach of all will be tried.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have unexpected good luck through legacies or other sources. They should avoid extravagance.

Children born on this day may be unusually talented, but too fond of luxury. There may be a marked tendency toward egotism.

Nursing As a Profession

So often one hears "Jane would like to be a nurse," or perhaps Jane herself says, "O, I would just love to be a nurse!" and so often the reasons are that the Jane in question can stand anything, would like to do something, meet more people, make good money, seem to have a good time—and such like trivial reasons, or the somewhat better one, "I think I would like it." A would-be nurse, with such reasons, will be happier if her aspirations are nipped in the bud. The girl who thinks she would be a nurse because she can stand anything, is fairly apt to be hard hearted and unsympathetic; she must be so interested in her work and so intensely concerned about her patient that she can nerve herself to stand or do anything that may be necessary, do it without flinching, and then forget.

Once a girl went to her family physician for a certificate of health, to enter a certain hospital. The doctor, who had seen her faint after she had assisted him in her own home, sat back in his chair and laughed heartily, then reminded her of what he had seen. She replied, "But I never failed you, doctor, and I never will." He acknowledged the truth of her plea and wrote the certificate. She trained in a large hospital and in private duty had many most revolting cases, cases that few could have stood, and no one could have blamed any for not doing, so but she never failed those who needed her.

If a girl wants to do something, it might be well for her to find out about different lines of work, and choose that for which she is best fitted.

A nurse does meet many people, some of them most charming, some far from it, and it is just as well for a nurse not to try to push herself upon her patients, but let the patients go more than a good half way. At that, many warm and life-long friendships will be formed.

Five dollars a day looks big, it is big, generally, to the patient if it lasts long, but it must last, if it is going to be big to the nurse. At times a nurse, and she may be the best, gets a run of two or three day cases, which barely suffice to pay room rent, laundry and provide food and clothing. As good a nurse as the writer ever knew had a run of such cases for many weeks, and ended by going into the country to a diphtheria case, which provided several patients, and coming down with the disease herself. A nurse may not pick and choose her cases. If humanity calls her, she has as good a right to go as anyone else, unless for some good reason she chooses to specialize in some particular work. Then she should stick to it. If there be some good reason for her not taking certain kinds of cases, she should mention it when she registers. Nurses do have a good time, but not just in the way the good-time seeker thinks.

The one who thinks she would like it may be all right and may not. A girl, who appeared very enthusiastic over the idea of being a nurse, managed to be accepted as a probationer, when it soon appeared her idea of being a nurse was to sit beside the patient, bathe his fevered brow and read the Bible to him. She was quite indignant at being expected to do anything else. She soon moved out.

It does not seem wise ever to urge a girl to enter a training school. If a girl be normally healthy, has a good education (a few years at college, or a few years' teaching or something of the kind is so much the better) has patience and tact, both of which may be cultivated and feels a strong pull at her heart-strings to help a suffering humanity, because she loves humanity, and is willing to take what comes, and absolutely forget herself, she is likely to become a good nurse, beloved by her patients, trusted by the family and the doctors.

Hours on duty now are shorter than formerly, so that part is easier. However, there are more studies and lectures. Having had a serious illness herself will help make a better nurse.

No knowledge of any trade, profession, art or anything else she may pick up, but will at some time come in useful.

Nursing, in its truest sense, is one of the grandest and noblest professions, and demands the best in any one. It gives far more than it ever takes perhaps not in money, but in life, in friends, in the consciousness of having done some little good.

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

TIME LEAVES THE GOLD

Once I had friends,
  Friends by the score;
The wealth one spends Brought many more.
Once I had loves,
  Who put on men
As they put gloves,
  And off again.

Once I had hours
  With merry clowns,
Of paper flew'rs
  And tinsel crowns.
Once I knew gay
  And mad delight,
Knew nights made day,
  And days made night.

But all that ends
  When youth is done.
Once I had friends,
  Now I have one.

One still was mine,
  Of all the crowd,
One not too fine
  And not too proud.

We need not weep
  When friends depart
If one we keep
  Within the heart.
As men grow gray,
  And women old,
Time runs away
  And leaves the gold.

PAPER NAPKINS

Paper napkins save time and energy in summertime. Use them in the kitchen to wipe greasy pans before washing, to clean drain board and to shine gas stove.

Unpardonable Perspiration Odour readily avoided

What quality can match the beauty of a lovely skin? And what social error can so readily embarrass its possessor, as that subtle offence — perspiration odour?

Of course, every one perspires. In this way nature rids the human system of one to two pints of moisture every day.

But this perspiration, so necessary and so healthful, need not be offensive.

Why not be sure of absolute personal daintiness? All you need to do is use Lifebuoy for face, hands and bath — and perspiration odour will vanish.

Lifebuoy, besides being a delightful, all-sufficient toilet soap, possesses mild but effective antiseptic qualities which clear away clogged pores, purify them, and make perspiration odourless.

To Keep Well

Drink plenty of water, perspire freely, bathe often with Lifebuoy Soap.

And there is no price penalty, because Lifebuoy costs no more than toilet soap that is just "soap."

HEARD VS. MAY CASE DISMISSED

would not take me more than a minute to get to where I was. Miss Lillian Heard was in about the middle of the street railway tracks when her sister was hit. Irene was about a step over the west street track (street car line). The street is wide at that place.

"I saw the car hit her. I didn't see the girl stop nor the car stop. I was with the constable until after the accident. I heard Mrs. May say she had blown her horn.

"After she was struck, the car went in a north-westerly direction. Miss Heard was under the car.

"I saw the car coming, within ten feet of Miss Heard. It was about in the middle of the road. Miss Heard was doing a kind of fast walk with her back partly to the approaching car. Lillian stopped and came back toward me in an easterly direction. I did not see Irene stop and then dart forward. The car was going about twenty miles per hour.

"After the girl was struck I ran over and helped picked her up. The car had gone on toward a fence and stopped shortly. From the time it struck Irene until she came out from underneath, the car travelled thirty-five or forty feet. It went four or five feet afterward and stopped over the sidewalk.

"There is only a footpath at that point, ending at Water Street. The footbridge starts at the power house."

Witness then explained the location of the bridge and footpaths, and generally described the locality near the scene of the accident. He also told where Miss Heard lives. "She would have to go in a north-westerly direction on leaving the bus, to go home. There were six people in the motor car—three in the front and three in the back."

Cross-examined, witness explained the position of the railroad and was dismissed.

Passenger on Bus.

Lawrence Gibson was also a passenger of the bus. He told of the order in which the passengers got off just as Mr. Tobin had.

"I would say that Irene Heard was in about the centre of the railroad tracks and not very far west of the street railway tracks when struck.

"I went over to pick her up. She was in about the centre of the sidewalk and I took her to her home. It was an old street car stop and had been adopted as a bus stop. There was no bus stop sign. The bus had been in operation three years or more.

"I did not hear Mrs. May's car horn. It would take a minute and a half maybe to get off the bus and get to the scene of the accident. I saw Mrs. Allison get off first. I would judge the car was going about twenty miles an hour."

Witness gave his opinion of the time it would take for a car to reach that speed from a standing start. He also indicated on a chart locations regarding the accident.

Semi-conscious Condition.

Dr. H. M. Yelland told of being called to attend Irene Heard. He had found her in a semi-conscious condition suffering from various injuries which he described. He also told of her condition at the present time as a result of the accident. He mentioned a possibility of further disability and percentage of her disability so far as her work is concerned. Witness also said that it would be possible for her to suffer some loss of memory regarding the accident due to the injury to her head.

Dr. A. W. McPherson said he had been called to the hospital in connection with the case. He told of probable effects of Miss Heard's injuries.

R. C. Heard.

R. C. Heard, father of Irene Heard, said he had not seen the accident. He read a bill of incidental expenses totalling something over $300. Besides this, another daughter from Detroit had to be here for over six months. Irene was not able to do any work for some months. Mrs. Heard has been an invalid for about 4½ years. Before the accident, Irene was looking after the mother. She had had to leave Public School to undertake this duty.

This concluded the case for the plaintiff.

Defence Witness

Herbert S. Rodgers, first witness for the defence, said that he was familiar with the scene of the accident. He operated a poultry farm as an occupation. He knew of the path in question and described its location.

Takes Stand

Mrs. Elsie G. May, defendant in the action, said: "I lived in Lakefield; I had been in Peterborough on the day of the accident. There were six of us in the car." (She gave the names of the occupants, all of whom were school children).

"I noticed the bus as I approached I was following it. I approached it and blew my horn. It was just stopping, though I am not sure whether or not it had actually stopped. I was just about opposite the bus going slowly, when I saw these two girls come out from in front of the bus.

They stopped and drew back, so, thinking they would stay there, I swerved to the left to pass them. Then I saw this one girl dash in front of my car. I turned further, thinking to go around her, hoping she would stop. I was gaining headway and I saw something loom up. I think it was a tree to my left. I swerved around to the right to avoid the tree.

At this juncture, Justice Logie withdrew in conference with the counsels for plaintiff and defence.

Continuing, the witness said: "I was beside the bus when I saw the Heard girls. I started to apply my brakes. I saw them stop; they saw me. I had no thought of an accident and curved to the left to pass them. Then one of them dashed toward the other side in a northwesterly direction. If I had put on my brakes I would have hit her. It would have been almost impossible for me to have missed her by turning to the right. I might have hit both of them as I hadn't room. So I swerved to the left and kept going. She kept going also. Then I saw what seemed to be the tree, so I turned. I thought it was on the sidewalk that I hit her.

"I have been driving a car for twelve years, in places where traffic was heavy. My brakes were in good order at the time of the accident.

Cross-examined: "As I was passing the bus I was going slowly. I tooted my horn. There were two others in beside me."

Mr. Park read extracts from records of the examination for discovery.

Requestioned by her counsel, witness said: "Miss Heard was hit when she was 30 or 40 feet north of the track. When I hit her, I started to apply the brakes; then, realizing she was underneath, I went on through the trees.

Was In Car.

Margaret Strickland said: "I was in the car with Mrs. May. As we came up to the bus, we slowed down. Then we saw the two girls—I don't know what they did. My only vivid recollection is of the girl about three feet in front of the car. Then Mrs. May turned to the left. The girl had started to walk and then began to run as we turned to the left. The girl kept in front of the car only about two feet in front. I think she was struck on the side of the road. There was the tree, telephone pole and fence nearby. I was in the front seat between the other two. Mrs. May came very close to the tree. If she had turned further to the left she would have hit the fence or tree.

"I'm pretty sure Mrs. May sounded her horn."

Cross-examined, witness said: "There were three in the front, and we had plenty of room. I had asked Mrs. May if she had plenty of room to drive and she had said 'Yes'."

The next witness was Lillian Grace Stewart. She told of being a passenger in Mrs. May's car. She could not say for sure that Mrs. May sounded her horn. She first saw the two girls as they came from in front of the bus. "They both looked at our car," she continued. "I could not say whether they stopped or not. I think they stopped.

"Mrs. May did not exactly stop the car, but she was going quite slowly. One girl started to go with the car, faster than a walk. She was running quite fast about two feet in front of the car. I couldn't exactly state the distance. If the car had swerved to the right, it would have hit the girl. I don't know whether the girl was on the road or on the curb when she was hit."

Witness also told of the location of a tree and telephone post and other details of the scene of the accident.

"After the accident I heard Lillian Heard talking," she said. "My sister was hurrying home and got off the bus and lost her head."

Cross-examined, witness said that her glasses helped her see normally. There was quite a number of people around. She knew that Lillian Heard said that about her sister hurrying home.

Muriel Strickland, also a passenger in Mrs. May's car, said: "I had seen the girls. One of them had stopped —the other had started running.

"After the accident, the injured girl was lying on the sidewalk."

Witness was quite sure she had heard Lillian Heard make the statement about her sister hurrying home to go to the pageant.

Cross-examined, witness said she had stood up to see. (She had been in the back seat).

Margaret Edith Bench said she had been in the car. Her evidence did not vary greatly from that of previous witnesses. She described how the one girl had stopped and the other run on, and also described the scene of the accident. She remembered someone saying something about "the pageant."

Cross-examined, witness said she had not talked the matter over with Mrs. May.

Constable Puffer, recalled, told of the fence and tree mentioned. He indicated on the diagram where the fence would be.

His Lordship, in summing up the case, stated that though he had a great deal of sympathy with the injured girl, he felt that the defendant and her witnesses had very well satisfied the onus cast upon her. He could not find sufficient evidence to prove her negligible. The accident had apparently been due to the girl dashing across the street without taking heed of possible danger.

"The case would therefore," he said, "be dismissed without costs."

APSLEY BURIED BY HEAVY STORM

Sustains 26 Below Zero on Sunday—Books to be Audited.

APSLEY, Feb. 1.—Apsley has just emerged from what was, some of the old timers say, the worst storm in fifty years. Starting on Tuesday about 9 a.m. and lasting until Wednesday at noon, about twelve inches of snow fell, which accompanied by a high wind, resulted in a complete blockade of the roads. The stage which left here in the teeth of the storm on Wednesday morning did not return until Saturday evening. Snow ploughs have restored most of the surrounding roads to a passable condition. On Wednesday night four teams and sleighs arrived from Peterborough about twelve o'clock on their way to a lumber camp some miles north of Apsley, after a most gruelling trip. On Thursday night the thermometer reached 23 below zero, the coldest to date, but this was surpassed on Sunday morning when 26 below was registered.

Audit Ordered.

The Municipal Council of Chandos has decided to have an independent audit of the township books for some years back on a motion of Councillor Davis. A deputation from the council was authorized to offer the Rev. J. W. Ogden, the minister of the United church, the task on the understanding that he would receive a commission on any sum recovered, but no renumeration for his services if the accounts were found correct.

Vestry Meeting.

The annual vestry meeting of St. George's church was held on Monday evening, and reports showed the year 1927 to have been one of progress in all departments, taken all round perhaps the best in the history of the church. All allotments have been paid in full. Total receipts were $478.59 and expenditures $495.73. Officers for 1928 are:

Church Wardens, George Tanner and C. S. Windsor; Lay delegates, J. A. New, Toronto, Thomas Tanner, George Kilborn, and Hubert James, substitute. Special efforts will be made this year to raise money for necessary repairs to the parsonage, parish hall, and outbuildings. Mrs. J. Downing was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for her faithful services as organist, as also was the rector for his good work.

MINES.

F. G. Oke and Company wire as follows:

Toronto, Feb. 1.—Prices again show moderate drags in this morning's market, the one bright spot being that of Arno, which advanced a few cents in face of quite a diverse market condition. The reason for the strength in Arno is apparently due to a report which came from the north to the effect that No. 1 diamond drill hole had cut some 42 feet of mineral and was still in massive chalcopyrite. An intrusive rock was reported cut at a depth after which chalcopyrite was again encountered. The actual significance of this intrusive rock is better understood when it is known that the rich ore deposition of Abana is also considered closely connected with a diabase intrusion. The cutting of this ore opens up further great possibilities for the Abana mining area and those properties engaged in active operation in this section of N.W. Quebec. The exploration and development of other promising propositions such as Abonde, which is tied to the south of Abana and also Deamara which is in a similar location, should be watched carefully by speculators interested in what can be considered one of the most promising new camps of N.W. Quebec.

Bullish news in circulation regarding the activities of Amulet, Noranda, Abana, Teck, Wright Hargreaves, Howey, Kirkland Gold, Bidgood, Hollanger, Arno and many others, but favorable comment does not seem to have much immediate effect on prices. However, the present liquidation and easy prices of mining stocks will no doubt come to an end shortly and then a start on the upward trend of the price cycle can be anticipated. As a result and understanding the lack of confidence the average speculator has in falling prices, we believe mining stocks should be bought on these re-actions and held for much higher prices which seem inevitable.

Corn Prices Fall;
Wheat Holds Firmer

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Auspicious weather for the movement of the corn crop tended to favor early sellers in the corn market today and prices averaged lower. Wheat values were steadied by persistent complaints of drought southwest. Opening unchanged to ⅜ cent off, corn later sagged a little all around. Wheat started at ½ cent decline to ¼ cent advance and held near to the initial range. Oats were steady. Provisions went lower. Opening prices were: Wheat, March 129⅝, May 130. Corn, March 88½, May 91¼. Oats, March 54⅝, May 55½.

Toronto Opening Firm
But Weakness Develops

TORONTO, February 1 (Canadian Press). — After a firm opening, stocks turned irregular on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, in fairly heavy trading, and despite occasional firm spots a generally easier tone was displayed. Seagrams, the leader, lost fractionally at 27⅛ at noon after touching 29¼, and Walker's lost 1½ at 62½. Other liquors, coincident with merger rumors, tended slightly lower. Canadian Oil was a strong spot with a gain of 2¼ at 62, with Imperial firming at 62 and British-American steady at 37⅞. Page Hersey recovered two at 99 and McKinnon was marked up four at 34¼. Nickel, Massey-Harris, and the Canners Issues, however, lost fractionally. Northern Bakeries and Service Stations, in the unlisted, lost a point or more at 48¾ and 44½.

Mine Shares Weak
With Few Exceptions

TORONTO, February 1 (Canadian Press). — The mining market was very weak again to-day, with almost the entire list selling below the closing prices of yesterday. Among the few exceptions was Coniagas, which climbed up ten at 5.00, and Malartic, up more than a point at 77. The Kirkland Lake issues continued weak, Beaver selling down to 175 and Kirkland Gold to 212, then closing slightly firmer. Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves eased again to 8.90 and 5.55. Among the Porcupines, Dome and Hollinger were steady, but McIntyre sold below 28.00 for a loss of twenty cents. Barry Hollinger eased to 75 and Bidgood sank to 71, with Howey going below 140. Amulet suffered a fifteen point loss at 345 and Noranda ten at 20.50. Hudson Bay Smelting lost 55 cents at 19.50. Mining Corporation, Nipissing, Premier, and Argonaut all lost slightly.

Railway Statement
Turn Prices Down

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. Canadian Press. — A renewal of the selling pressure against the railroad shares, presumably in reflection of the disappointing December railroad statements now being published, turned the course of prices reactionary today after an early period of quiet strength. Trading which had been dull, on the rally quickened perceptibly when large selling orders appeared in some of the popular issues. A five point break in Western Maryland common started the selling movement. The publication of an unfavorable quarterly report of the United States Steel Corporation apparently had been fairly well discounted and the traders appeared more interested in the further increase in the mill operations of the corporation to around 89 per cent. of capacity. Talk of a further advance in sheet prices also was a bullish factor.

TEN-YEAR TERM IS GIVEN ROBBER

Sentence For Bank Robbery Concurrent With Previous Term.

TORONTO, February 1 (Canadian Press). — Ten years in Portsmouth Penitentiary for participation in the robbery of the bank at Campbellville, Ontario, some weeks ago, was the sentence imposed by Magistrate Brown in Court to-day on A. E. Smith. The sentence is concurrent with one of ten years and twenty lashes previously imposed for other offences.

CHILDREN BURNED.

Three Little Ones Lose Lives When Father's Home is Burned.

PRESQUE ISLE, Maine, February 1 (Canadian Press). — Three children, aged two, three, and six years, lost their lives at Eagle Lake, near the Canadian border, last night when the home of Joseph King was burned.

Operation To Straighten Bowed Legs Results In Girl Losing Both Limbs

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—The slightly-bowed legs Miss Sadie Holland, stenographer, hoped to have straightened were lost forever today and she was near death because gangrene set in after a plastic operation. She went to hospital less than two weeks ago to undergo a straightening process.

"From what I understand, the large bone of her legs was cut completely through below the knee with a circular electric saw," her brother, Joseph Holland, told John Follmer chief investigator of the State Department of Registration and Education, in requesting information. "Then a plaster cast was put on. In less than two hours it had to be removed. First the family physician and then the surgeon who performed the amputations was called after Miss Holland's condition became serious" he said.

TORONTO CUSTOMS REVENUE GOES UP

Monthly Increase of Last Year Maintained in January.

TORONTO, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Customs revenue at the Port of Toronto in January totalled $4,664,431, compared with $4,649,321 in January of 1927. The increase corresponds to the regular monthly increase for the past year.

37 PRIVATE BILLS ALREADY SENT IN

Only 23 Had Been Received at This Time Last Year.

TORONTO, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press.) — Thirty-seven private bills have already been received for the session of the Ontario Legislature which opens on February 9. Last year at this time only twenty-three of the total of fifty-eight bills had been received.

To-day a new bill was received from the Owen Sound Presbyterian church, in connection with the dispute over property with the United church there.

QUESTIONS SEEM COMPREHENSIVE

Premier Ferguson Has Not Time To Go Over St. Lawrence Matter.

TORONTO, Feb. 1. — Canadian Press. — "From a cursory glance at the questions they seem comprehensive enough, but I have not had time to look them over carefully," said Premier Ferguson to-day, commenting on the submission by the Federal Government of seven questions covering the dispute over the waterpower rights between the Dominion and the Provinces which is to go before the Supreme Court.

The questions filed with the Supreme Court concern the validity or otherwise of provincial proprietory rights and Dominion control in connection with the proposed development of the St. Lawrence River.

SHORT SESSION TO-DAY.

House and Senate Will Adjourn For Presentation to Senator.

OTTAWA, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—To-day's sitting of the House of Commons will be a short one. When the debate on the address is resumed, J. F. Pouliot, (Liberal, Temiscouata) has the right of way. He will be followed by Dr. McGibbon of Muskoka, who will be succeeded by John Evans, (Progressive, Rosetown. The list of speakers so far contains a further dozen on both sides of the House. Late this afternon the members of the two Houses will meet in the Senate chamber for a presentation to Senator Desseaulles in honor of his having passed the century mark.

CARILLON UNHURT.

Bells of Metropolitan Church Tested—Mechanism Damaged.

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The valuable carillon of the Metropolitan United church was not damaged by the fire which wrecked the body of the church on Monday, John Skillicorn, the carilloneur, decided after a personal inspection of each bell Monday night. The damage to operating apparatus will be repaired quickly and Mr. Skillicorn believes he can give a recital on them next Sunday as usual. The carillon is worth $55,000.

PRIZES OFFERED FOR AUTO RACERS

Sir Charles Wakefield Offers Cup and Cash To Record Breaker.

LONDON, February 1 (Canadian Press).—Two prizes have been offered to the first man who beats the existing world motor speed record of 203 miles an hour held by Major H. Seagrame, who established the mark at Daytona, Fla., last March, after coming especially to the United States for the purpose. The prizes are a gold trophy valued at one thousand guineas, and an income of a thousand pounds yearly for so long as the winner is unbeaten up to the end of 1930. Sir Charles Wakefield, British oil manufacturer, is the donor of the prizes. Both prizes can be competed for by drivers of all nations.

LIQUOR BILL IS CONTESTED

Amendments Dealing With Expenditures and Advertising Defeated.

ON SECOND READING.

WINNIPEG, February 1 (Canadian Press). — The third reading of the Government's new Liquor Bill, providing for the establishment of beer parlors and a cash and carry system for hard liquors, was not reached in the Legislature last night, the members continuing to discuss various contentious clauses of the Act. Several amendments aiming at the elimination of certain clauses dealing with law enforcement expenditures, the right of the Government to purchase breweries, if necessary, and prohibiting of advertising, were defeated.

FREE STATE MAY BE REPRESENTED

Considers Appointing Man in Canada To Link Commercial Interests.

OTTAWA, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The Irish Free State has been considering representation at Ottawa for a number of years, said William Cosgrave, President of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State, here yesterday and the question was now one of securing men for the position. Such representation would be one of "service" as apart from a political appointment, one that would have for its aim the closer linking of the commercial interests of the two countries. The president did not indicate when such an appointment would be made, but emphasized that the Free State Government had it in mind.

VISITORS WIN WADDELL CUP

Twelve Picked Rinks Defeat Locals By Six Stones—Prolongs Bonspiel.

DR. HARVIE LOSES.

The twelve Peterborough rinks were down six points this morning when they met the twelve chosen by the visitors for the try-out in the Waddell Trophy. The win for the visitors will prolong the curling bonspiel one day, as this allows all visiting rinks to compete for this cup. The visitors scored 134 points and the locals 128. The games were very close throughout and with two ends to play, the visitors were leading by one point; but R. E. Edmunds, who had been tied with R. L. Dobbin on the 10th end had a lead of five points at the end of the game.

Dr. J. N. Harvie of Orillia suffered his first defeat of the 'spiel this morning, when he lost out to Alex. Kay by four points. Only four of the local rinks were up on the morning's play: A. C. Kay, J. W. McDermid, J. H. Sedgwick and R. G. Sturgeon. Sedgwick got the high score when he ran in seventeen points on J. J. Moore of Keene, and Dr. Harvey and Downey were the low score men with six points.

Curling for this trophy commenced this afternoon with 28 visiting rinks competing against each other. The Peterborough Trophy is being run off at Brock Street Rink, with twelve visiting rinks entered. H Foote is in charge.

Two of the cups, the Peterborough Trophy and the Waddell Trophy, will go out of the city this year because all Peterborough rinks won one or more primary games, and hence could not qualify for the consolation series, and the locals lost out in the Waddell series this morning.

RADIO FOUR CONCERT

(By Jeanette.)

The concert given in Murray Street Baptist Church last evening by the Radio Four Male Quartette of Belleville, assisted by Leo B. Riggs, organist, also of Belleville, was a very pleasing affair. It was presented under the auspices of the Others' Class and was attended by nearly three hundred people.

The program rendered was delightful. It was composed of melodious and popular selections, both in vocal and instrumental music, the five musicians apparently having the faculty of presenting attractive music in a very attractive manner. The singing of the quartette is made exceptionally pleasing by reason of the fine ensemble work. It is seldom that a quartette sings with such "all togetherness" as marks the numbers by this aggregation, composed of first and second tenors, in Dr. A. B. Haffner and Al F. Stillman, and first and second bassos, in J. A. Thompson and Harry R. Moorman. The assisting musician, who gave organ and pianoforte solo numbers and also provided accompaniments for the quartette, is Leo M. Riggs, organist of St. Paul's Presbyterian church in Belleville.

The musicians announced their own numbers, opening their program with the old hunting song, "John Peel," and following up later with "Lucky Jim," sung as a tenor solo by Dr. Haffner, with humming refrain by the others, and "The Boys of the Old Brigade," as an encore, with plenty of bass in the deep tones of J. A. Thompson. "The Jolly Blacksmith's Lay" and its encore, "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes," were both loudly applauded and the quartette sang 'Swing Along' in darky dialect," with the same notable quality of rhythmic beauty which characterized all of their numbers, The faculty of perfect rhythm was noticeable in the entire program, giving the impression that an insistence on this much-desired quality in music is made by all five. Combined with the four fine voices of the quartette, the smooth blending of tone and the attractive selections, it made their singing very pleasing.

"An Old Cornfield Medley," and an arrangement of "Old Black Joe" were further dialect numbers, with final quartette renditions in "Open the Gates of Glory" and a negro spiritual, "Steal Away to Jesus."

Instrumental Numbers.

The applause which greeted each number on the vocal program was accorded with enthusiastic appreciation also to the organ and piano playing of Leo Riggs, whose music was very fine and just a little different to what is often heard. Perhaps the quality of temperament and emotion was slightly more marked than is usual in organ music. He has a fine technical equipment, a firm, almost brittle tone that clarifies his music to a great degree, a masterly touch and a bright, vivid manner of presenting his selections.

The first organ group opened with an atmospheric thing called 'Christmas in Sicily" with the bagpipes simuated throughout this music, according to Mr. Riggs, being a favorite inclusion in Sicilian Christmas numbers. The well known, Schubert's "Marche Militaire," with its swift, vibrant beat, and Kreisler's "Caprice Viennois," followed, the church service in the hymn, "Abide latter's swinging rhythm and pulsating melody beautifully interpreted through the "vox humana" stop. An encore to this group was the "Rosary."

The big organ number of the evening was "The Storm," or "A Day in Camp," a wonderful descriptive tone picture of a soldier's day which called forth all the resources of the instrument and of the player, and wove a magic tapestry of varied sound for an intent audience.

This selection, said by Mr. Riggs to have been played daily in the Hotel Astor in New York City, for the past twenty years, opens with several marching songs and includes a bit of the monody of nature in its faintly heard bird songs, also a portion of a With Me." The storm was magnificently interpreted, in the bass roar and ominous wrath of the raging elements, and when it passed, the notes of "Rock of Ages" were heard, and the soldiers singing "Tenting to-night on the Old Camp Ground." "Taps" sounds and the theme closes with "Home Sweet Home." It was a splendidly rendered number that brought renewed applause from an enraptured audience.

The piano music of Mr. Riggs was featured by a quality often noticed in pianists who are also organ players: a meticulous shading, a loud and emphatic tone, and almost staccato type of rendition. The theme from "Rigoletto," with the fugitive melody accented in isolated, cameo-like sections, exhibited this quality. The encore was a brilliant bit of rapid, sparkling music, like a fountain at play or an elfin dance and had in it that same element of captivating brightness that colored all of this musician's work.

Vocal solos by members of the quartette were well sung and elicited encores in every instance. Dr. A. Haffner sang "There's a Land," with an encore in Kingsley's noble composition "A Farewell," demonstrating a soft and sustained sweetness in the pleasing melody.

J. A. Thompson's bass solo was "Invictus," the deep rich resonant voice bringing much applause which was followed by a little variation in a couple of Scotch jokes and a whimsical rendition of an Irishman's conception and rendition of the song "Annie Laurie." In this voice was a curious quality. In attack of many of the notes the tone seemed to shift as a violin player's does when the finger moves slightly on the vibrating string.

Al. Stillman had a pleasing tenor solo and sang also in duet with Mr. Thompson the old favorite, "Excelsior."

SIMPLE HOME RECIPE FOR BAD STOMACH GIVES SWIFT RELIEF

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this good advice.

Artificial digestants and starvation diets are seldom needed. Within reason, most folks may eat what they like, if they will keep their stomach free from souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion. And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a little Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless form of Magnesia that swiftly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A few days' trial of Bisurated Magnesia (powder or tablets), which any good druggist can supply at trifling cost, should quickly convince you that fully 90 per cent. of ordinary stomach distress is absolutely unnecessary. Try Bisurated Magnesia today!

HAVELOCK IS DEFEATED 3-2 IN FIRST GAME

LAKEFIELD WINS FIRST GAME OF HOME AND HOME SERIES

Combination Play and Checking Wins Hard Fought Encounter For Homesters.

THREE PENALTIES.

Goalkeepers For Both Sides Star in Minding the Nets.

(By a Staff Reporter)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 1.—Lakefield Intermediates will take a one-goal lead to Peterborough with them for the second game of the group play-offs on Thursday night by virtue of their 3-2 victory over Havelock here last night. Consequently tomorrow night's game may be expected to be a hard fought encounter, with both teams out to get goals, and with half the populations of the respective villages on the sidelines cheering for them.

A little more consistent combination and checking won for the Lakefield crew last night in a clean hard fought encounter. The teams paid attention solely to the puck and only three penalties were assigned by Referee Nip Dwan.

The home team, consisting mostly of smaller and younger players, and lacking Blewett, their sturdy defence man, played a hornet-like game, the forwards buzzing around the Havelock goal most of the night. Louie Sabatino moved back beside his brother John on the defence and did well. In the third period he moved up to the forward line to take part in the drive which produced the winning goal. Jack Sabatino captained the team and directed the play, performing well in a defensive capacity and rushing dangerously. He received one of the three penalties when he spilled Hooper when the latter was right through, saving a goal as a result.

Wannamaker, Loosemore, Stabler, and Northey formed the attacking squad. They tried hard all the way and played unselfish hockey. Stabler scored two of the goals, being on the receiving end of passes in combination rushes. Wannamaker got the other one. Hudson relieved on the forward line and also helped out on the defence.

For Havelock Wright was the star. He played clean hockey and was one of the fastest men on the ice. His tactics of rushing down the centre, shooting from the blue line with a shot that was hard to smother and usually bounced back to give him a rebound, endangered the Lakefield citadel time after time, and he scored one goal.

Quinn and Hooper formed a solid defence, though their rushes proved fruitless, the speedy little Lakefield forwards checking them to a standstill. They played a clean game, using their superior weight in a legitimate manner, although Barney served one penalty when he skated over one of the opposition.

Brennan and Pollock were useful forwards, checking and rushing well and playing combination. They covered their positions nicely, Brennan scoring the first goal of the game when he took a passout from a scrimmage right in front of the Lakefield net. McArthur and Jack were the relief men and maintained the pace set by the regulars while they served.

The goal keepers had a great deal to do with the low score. Both teams were inside time after time but all three goal minders used feet, hands, and sticks to turn aside the attacks. Fox was the Havelock custodian and the three that beat him were a minor quantity compared to the dozen he tsopped. Junkin started for the home team but he stopped a fast shot with his eye and had to retire in favor of Moore. Both played cleverly and helped their team win.

Referee Nip Dwan of Toronto had a busy night, rushing up and down the ice after the two teams. He disallowed at least four goals, two for each side, on offsides or other reasons.

First Period.

Loosemore had the first shot on goal when he nearly beat Fox with a back hand scoop in the first minute of play. Both teams were playing a sort of hit and follow up game, with Lakefield having a little the better of the exchanges which, however, rarely got beyond the blue line. On one occasion when play shifted down to the Lakefield net Brennan, camped in front of the goal, picked up a loose puck from a scrimmage and slapped it in for the first marker. A couple minutes later Pollock shot a hard one from near the blue line which hit Junkin just under the eye and glanced into the net. Referee Dwan refused to allow the count and after Moore had donned the goalies pads, faced the puck at the side of the goal. Just before the period ended Stabler took a pass from Northey and shot the puck into the corner of the net to even the count.

Second Period.

Play was better after the interval, both teams checking better and passing more frequently. The period was barely under way when Stabler made another goal on a side shot. A few minutes later Wright went down alone and equalized. Lakefield then had a goal disallowed, when Northey took a pass and scored, only to be chased for loafing in front of the net, the play being called offside. A similar fate befell a Havelock goal before the end of the period.

There was little to choose between the two teams in this period. Both worked hard and used much the same tactics, two and three man rushes followed by close checking as the attack was returned.

Third Period.

Lakefield had the edge in the third period, although only one goal was scored. The home team had the visitors bottled up in their half for a great deal of the time. Before the winning goal was scored the two defences indulged for a time in shooting the puck back and forth, declining to rush with it. Then, on a rush, Wannamaker went into the corner. His passout just cleared the corner of the net and when Fox tried to slap it back behind the goal he hooked it in. A few minutes later Stabler nearly scored, beating Fox with another shot from the left boards. The puck hit the goal post just enough to bounce back out instead of sliding in. In fact, the goal judge started to raise his hand and then changed his mind. From then on Lakefield pressed hard but could not increase the count, while a number of Havelock attacks were also fruitless.

Havelock — Goal, Fox; defence, Quinn and Hooper; centre, Pollock; wings, Brennan and Wright; subs., Jack and McArthur.

Lakefield — Goal, Junkin and Moore; defence, J. Sabatino and L. Sabatino; centre, Wannamaker; wings, Loosemore and Stabler; subs., Hudson and Northey.

First Period.

1—Havelock, Brennan, 9 mins.
2—Lakefield, Stabler (Northey) 10.

Second Period.

3—Lakefield, Stabler, 2 mins.
4—Havelock, Wright, 4 mins.

Third Period.

5—Lakefield, Wannamaker, 10 mins.

Abandon All Hope For Hugh Jennings

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Physicians abandoned all hope for the recovery of Hugh A. Jennings, one of baseball's outstanding figures, late yesterday afternoon. His personal physician, Dr. Martin T. O'Malley, said that he is constantly growing weaker and that the end is but a matter of hours.

Jennings has been in ill-health for the better part of three years. On Saturday he suffered an attack of meningitis, but his condition did not become alarming until Sunday, when he became unconscious.

GIANTS ARE FIRST TO INVADE SOUTH

Yankees and Robins Follow Soon After—Baseball Comes Back.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—It won't be long now. One week from next Sunday Secretary Jim Tierney, of the New York Giants, will climb aboard a rattler, closely followed by Catcher Frank Hogan, Catcher Al Spohrer and two or three other Giant batterymen who reside in this section. They will journey to Hot Springs picking up players here and there along the route, and two weeks from Wednesday morning a score of ball players, wearing New York uniforms, will be at it again.

It seems only a few weeks, rather than months, since John Miljus shot the wild pitch past Tony Lazzeri to bring an end to the 1927 season in the major leagues, but another campaign is looming up just ahead. This week brings the schedule meetings, the American League gathering at Chicago today and the National Leaguers convening here on Friday. These meetings are not expected to bring out anything sensational, but it is customary for the owners to gather and to ratify the dates.

Three weeks from next Friday the Yankee parade into Dixie gets under way. George Pipgras already has reported at St. Petersburgh, and he will have plenty of company on February 26, when all the recruits will be due in camp, as well as some of the regulars. Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Benny Bengough have expressed a preference to start work with the recruits and both Waite Hoyt and Stanley Coveleskie are planning to do some early training. As the first Yankee squad leaves New York, the Giant rookies will move to Augusta.

The Brooklyn delegation will be heading for the South about the same time that the early Yanks make their start. Manager Wilbert Robinson is expected here this week to complete plans for the departure of his players.

Another baseball event in the offing, the fifth of the annual series of Baseball Writers' dinners will take place two days after the National Leaguers meet here. This dinner, which has grown steadily from an unpretentious star back in 1924, now attracts baseball men from all the major league cities and from the leading minors, as well.

Manager Art Ross Misses First Game

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press)—Manager Art Ross, of the Boston Bruins, last night missed his first Bruin game since he came to Boston four years ago to handle the reins of the Hub National Hockey League sextet; a stomach disorder and worry over the slump into which the Bruins appear to have tumbled in the last two weeks combined to send the Boston manager to bed yesterday, leaving Captain Sprague Cleghorn to carry on against the New York Americans last evening. Cleghorn was scheduled to depart on a scouting tour through the Middle West before the February 15 player trade limit is reached.

F. C. WEBER WINS NEILL TROPHY

Defeated W. M. Lang in Finals at Peterborough Curling Rink.

SCORE 18 TO 11.

F. C. Weber won the Neil Trophy on Monday night in a hard fought game against W. M. Lang at the Peterboro Curling Rink. The Neill Trophy is the district championship cup to be competed in by rinks from Keene, Norwood, Lakefield, Havelock, Millbrook and Peterboro. All the outside rinks were defeated in the third round, and the final game was left until Monday night.

SPORT BITS

MAY GO TO AMERICANS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Manager Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Americans, has established communication with Tris Speaker, famous outfielders, and the lanky leader of the Athletics said last night he may have an "important announcement" to make from Mount Plymouth, Fla., the last of the week.

Speaker receives his official release from Washington today, and he will then be free to sign with any major league team. Mack would like to have the veteran fly-chaser provided satisfactory terms can be arranged.

BELGIAN DISQUALIFIED

PARIS, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—"Tiger" Humery, French featherweight champion, defeated Henri Scillie, Belgium, former champion of Europe, last night when the Belgian was disqualified in the sixth round for a foul.

Humery, as winner, is due to meet Johnny Cuthbert, British featherweight champion, soon.

COLLINS TRADED

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Rip Collins, right-handed pitcher of the Detroit American League baseball club, has been traded to the Toronto team of the International League, for Vic Sorrel, another right-handed hurler, it was announced here last night. No cash or other player considerations were involved in the deal, according to officials of the Detroit club.

IS DEMPSEY OUT?

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Questioned yesterday concerning a story in The Miami Daily News saying that Jack Dempsey definitely was out of the heavyweight championship fight scheme, Tex Rickard told The Associated Press, "If I were you, I'd go ahead with about the same story." He refused to elaborate on his statements.

The News said it had learned through "reliable sources" that Dempsey was out of the picture. The paper also said that it was in a position to say that Rickard and Billy Gibson, Gene Tunney's manager, would be unable to announce today the champion's opponent for a match this summer at New York.

WILL BE A GREAT GAME ON THURSDAY NIGHT

When Havelock and Lakefield Meet in the Final Game To Decide the District.

What will be the last game this year between Lakefield and Havelock will take place to-morrow (Thursday) night at Brock Street Rink, when the return game of the play-off series will be played and a winner declared. It will be a fight to the finish for supremacy. Lakefield has given Havelock more strenuous opposition than was anticipated. Special trains are coming from both towns, and as there is not likely to be much more hockey this season, don't miss this game.

FEDERAL GOVT.

the present time which fitted into the conditions of to-day. Since 1900 new conditions had arisen and new policies were required. There had been at that time considerable railway construction and much Crown lands for the absorption of large numbers. The situation was different to-day, and a land settlement policy was essential. Care must also be taken to ensure that no more immigrants should come into the country than the country could absorb. At the present time a partial land settlement scheme was in existence, but that could absorb only 3,000 farmers.

Mr. Gardiner declared that he had been informed of large numbers of immigrants who had entered Canada under the assisted passage scheme, and who had gone to the cities. This he submitted was not to the best interests of Canada. With regard to the medical examination of immigrants, Mr. Gardiner recorded his approval. He had, however, received complaints as to the severity of this examination, and also complaints that the examination on the Continent of Europe was not so severe as that applied in Great Britain. This resulted, he had been informed, in the British being discriminated against.

Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Health, interposed to say that this was not the case, and Mr. Gardiner accepted the Minister's denial.

Soldiers Destitute.

Mr. Gardiner directed the attention of the House to destitution which he asserted existed among many returned soldiers who required medical examination and care, and who had not the money to secure this.

He urged the Government to consider grants for the construction of inter-provincial highways. He also desired that money should be made available for continuing technical education. Touching on the St. Lawrence waterway, Mr. Gardiner said: "We are partial to the St. Lawrence development, but we need more information. We are sympathetic, but that is as far as we can go at present."

He urged that instead of reduction in national debt being taken from annual surpluses that the Government should establish an annual sinking fund to take care of it. He closed his address by protesting that the new rule of the House limiting members to 40 minutes, while permitting the Prime Minister to speak as he had done for three and three-quarter hours, was incongruous and undemocratic.

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre), characterized the speech from the Throne as disappointing if it were to be regarded as an indext of the government program.

Approves Assistance.

The speech seemed to be a peg on which to hang elaborate ceremony. He congratulated the government on its intention to send a minister to Japan and approved assistance to industrial and scientific research. Mr. Woodsworth quoted figures to show that the percentage of wages to the value of manufactured goods was 33.4 and declared that when labor received only one-third he did not wonder that those who received the two-thirds found satisfaction in the prosperity of the country. The average wage in Canada is only $20.00 a week. How could a man live and maintain a decent standard of living, he asked, on this amount and how could a country in which these wages were paid be considered prosperous.

Why could not the government enact legislation to forbid public utilities from splitting melon stocks. He hoped the government would tell the House why trade relations had been broken with Russia when no charges of any kind had been made against the Soviet agents in Canada. Why should a Liberal government in Canada be tied to the apron strings of a Conservative government in Great Britain.

It was to be hoped that the government would also tell why the Whitney syndicate had been allowed exemption from mining royalties for 20 years and why the water powers adjacent to the mining developments in Manitoba be so ruthlessly alienated. If the negotiations for the return of natural resources went on much longer there would be no natural resources to return.

Speaking of the financial dominance of the United States in Canada and of Mr. Bennett's warnings against selling our estate, Mr. Woodsworth proceeded to say, "I give the honorable gentleman credit for resigning his dictatorship." Mr. Woodsworth quickly substituted the word "directorships" and continued, saying "slips sometimes are not so serious after all." He proceeded to read a list of the companies in which Mr. Bennett had been a director and quoted from the Scriptures, "can the Ethiopian change its skin or the leopard his spots."

FAST HOCKEY IS EXPECTED

Campbellford Plays Stirling on Friday—High School Boys Busy.

TED BLUTE LEADS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 1. — The Campbellford representatives in the Trent Valley Hockey League are really practicing for the game with Stirling Friday night. The game between these teams played in Stirling went well into the overtime allowance, and the same may be expected to be the case when they meet in Campbellford. That is, unless some unforseen misfortune occurs on either side to upset the balance.

Some of the High School boys are finding plenty of work ahead of them. The High School commencement is timed for next Thursday and Friday evenings. There is the Campbellford-Stirling game here Friday. The High School Grads, and they are not all actual grads, some are still undergrads, have some games left on their schedule And besides all this pile of duties, there is the usual amount of studying to be done. And still more than ordinarily handicapped is Ted Blute. In the last town league hockey fixture, Ted managed to get his eyebrow cut open far enough to require stitches. He is a member of the Grads line-up. The town team has his name on theirs as well. He is to play a part in the musical comedy which is to be part of the commencement program, and unless he is "super-normally" clever, he must do a little studying with his uninjured eye assisted by the opposite, less fortunate member.

Canadian Mushers Will Enter Derbies

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—To match their prowess against the leading dog "mushers" of the continent, Emil St. Goddard, Earl Brydges and "Shorty" Russen, of The Pas, Man., left for the east yesterday to compete in Derbies in New Hampshire and Quebec.

With these famous northern "mushers" were shipped twenty-six thoroughbred dogs, that in previous years have raced their way across snow and ice to capture honors in the leading dog classics.

The Manitoba representatives will first compete in the Derby at Conway, N.H., on February 9, 10 and 11, and will then journey to Quebec for the next big event on February 20, 21 and 22.

TORONTO GIRL LEADING FIELD

Ada Mackenzie and Helen Payson Leading in Qualifying Round.

BERMUDA CHAMPIONSHIP.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 1 (Associated Press).—Miss Helen Payson, of Portland, Me., and Miss Ada Mackenzie, of Toronto, former Canadian champion, led the field in the qualifying round of the annual women's Bermuda championship at the Riddell's Bay Golf and Country Club yesterday. Each turned in a 79 for the 18 holes.

Covering the first nine holes in 40, Miss Payson came back in 39, despite a disastrous eight on the 15th hole, where her second shot was sliced into the roadway. Miss Mackenzie turned in a brilliant 36 in the last nine holes after playing spotty golf going out.

Maureen Orcutt, Metropolitan champion, was tied for third place by Betty Guthrie, a local player, each having 82.

Mrs. Paul Wells, the former Virginia Weltman, turned in an 83, 9 strokes back was Mrs. E. Roughvie of Ottawa, with a 92. Trailing the leaders were Mrs. Dorothy Higbie Tracey, Summit, N.J., and Mrs. J. J. Lawlor, both of whom took 93; and Mrs. Willow Gage McLeod, Toronto, 95.

O.H.A. BULLETIN

Peterborough Juniors have defaulted their remaining games in Group No. 3. Bowmanville juniors have two games to play at Oshawa, Feb. 3 and 6, the latter fixture being postponed from Jan. 9.

The Bowmanville at Oshawa intermediate game scheduled for Feb. 8 has been cancelled.

To break the tie for second place in intermediate group No. 6 Georgetown will replay the tie game of Jan. 19 at Elora, Friday, Feb. 3 with A. Mollenhauer, of Toronto as referee.

Chatham, Glencoe or Alvinston will meet Windsor in the second round of the intermediate series, likely on Monday and Wednesday of next week.

Clubs are asked to watch the O.H.A. daily bulletins and govern themselves accordingly.

Intermediate Series.

Brantford at Port Colborne, Ernie Parkes, Toronto.

Lakefield at Havelock (at Peterboro)—'Nip' Dwan, Toronto.

Port Hope at Oshawa—Stan Burgoyne, Toronto.

Belanger Very Much In the Public Eye

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—With the ciyt fathers planning a presentation to "Frenchy" Belanger some time this week in commemoration of the honor that he brought his native city in winning the world's flyweight championship, and his big bout on Monday night with Frankie Genaro in defense of his title, these will be large days in the life of the little champion. He considers both affairs the greatest in his career, transcending in importance even his contest with Ernie Jarvis when he won the crown. It was with fear and trembling that he anticipates the presentation proceedings, but his feelings are different in regard to his match with Genaro. He realizes, however, that in New York he is meeting a boy who is probably the outstanding boxer in the 112-pound division, and that he will take much more beating than on the occasion of their first bout when Belanger barely earned the decision. Belanger is determined to win decisively this time and is training with that end in view. Manager Garrity declares that Genaro saved himself from a slumber sleep in their other scrap by his holding tactics, but he says that he will not get away with it on Monday night with another official in the ring.

SIX RINKS REMAIN IN TWO SERIES; PLAY BEGINS FOR WADDELL CUP

Three Locals and Three Visitors Remain in Morrow and Matthews-Blackwell Trophies.

GAMES GOING STRONG.

Martin Chenhall Wins Out By Two Points From Veteran R. Edmunds, of Millbrook.

Peterborough's big curling bonspiel was carried well into the wee hours of the morning before the tired curlers were told that they could go home to rest and to be sure to be back by 8.30 this morning for the first round of the Waddell Trophy.

Twelve local rinks and twelve selected by the visitors will compete in the first round of the Waddell Trophy with the aggregate score to count. Thirteen rinks are entered in the consolation series. The Matthew-Blackwell trophy has reached the second round and five games of the second round in the Morrow Trophy have been played.

Six rinks remain in the Morrow and Matthew-Blackwell trophies with the locals having three: R. P. Best, J. W. McDermid and R. G. Sturgeon; and the outsiders represented by the veteran Dr. Harvie of Orillia, W. Aldous and H. Forsythe of Lindsay.

The second extra end game of the 'spiel was played this morning at 12.30, when R. Edmunds of Millbrook, last year's winner of the Matthew-Blackwell trophy, was defeated by Martin Chenhall on the Brock Street ice by two points.

The finest curling of the 'spiel was exhibited last night when Dr. Harvie with his rink that has won the Morrow Trophy twice in succession, defeated J. N. Bacon by three points. It was a pleasure to watch the curling of the visitors, who followed the directions of their skip in a most able manner. W. Aldous of Lindsay has a rink that will be reckoned with before the 'spiel ends, and when the two war horses meet, curling at Peterborough will be tested.

The bonspiel committee of J. Mayneord and H. Martin worked strenuous yesterday to have the games played on schedule and after many handicaps with rinks arriving late they were able to have the Peterborough 'spiel progressed, so that by midnight tonight it would be far advanced into the semi-finals. A prompt and courteous service was given all the skips and in many cases their tempers were more than tried, but they passed it all off with the old game. Angus Macdonald, the veteran caretaker of the local rink who has seen bonspiels in Peterborough for almost half a century, acted as umpire and never once was his decisions questioned.

Peterborough has a strong representation left in the two major trophies, and those who have fallen by the wayside have been by no means weaklings, as no local rink is eligible to enter in the consolation series as they have won one or more games. J. J. Howden lost out early this morning to W. Aldous by the width of a finger between two stones, and R. P. Best eliminated H. Foote from the Matthew-Blackwell.

The ice at Curling Club Rink and Brock Street held up well yesterday and both were classed my many curlers as the best in Peterborough for years.

Curling

At Campbellford

The second round of the local bonspiel is beginning and the interest among the curlers is beginning to rise above normal Unlike other years the play is only in progress in the evenings. Thus the 'spiel will last over several days in place of the usual two or sometimes three days' curling with three sessions morning, afternoon and evening each day.

OLD COUPLE ARE 60 YEARS MARRIED

Mr. and Mrs. John Waters Celebrate Diamond Jubilee of Wedding.

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 1—Mr. and Mrs. John Waters, who are spending the winter with their daughter, Mrs. George Cook and family, near Campbellford, celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their marriage recently. Mr. and Mrs. Waters were married at Centreville in January, 1868, by the Rev. Mr. Sherwood. After their marriage they lived at Camden for 15 years, when they moved to Trent River where Mr. Waters engaged in farming until some years ago he was appointed bridgetender at Trent River. The family consists of two daughters, two sons, five grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren. Those present from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. P. Storey, Mr. and Mrs. B. Stacey, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Waters, and Mrs. Silas Clarke, of Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Waters and son, Leo, of Norwood. About 60 guests were present at the celebration. After a sumptuous repast, an appropriate address was read and a purse of money was presented to the bride and groom of 60 years ago by their devoted children, nieces, and nephews.

The many friends of Trent River extend to Mr. and Mrs. Waters heartiest congratulations and wishes for them many more years of happiness together.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Wildman and family were visitors Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Spencer, Norwood Road.

Miss Winnifred Spencer spent the week-end with Miss Barbara Fennel, Havelock.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McQuaig were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George Spencer.

The postponed L.O.L. card party was held Thursday night at "Cedar Isle." Ten tables of progressive euchre were played. After lunch was served, dancing was the enjoyment to all to the accompaniment of violin and piano.

Stover Brothers' bread delivery truck had to be left at Havelock, Thursday, and the drivers were forced to make the return trip to Campbellford by foot, on account of the drifted condition of the roads.

Scout News and Notices

THE KANGAROOS WIN.

There was excitement every minute of the meeting last Thursday. The competition of the Fourth Peterborough Troop was to end at nine o'clock.

The meeting started with flag break and then inspection.

A new game was introduced by Mr. Corbett in the form of a corral race. A number of ropes were joined together to form a circle. The three patrols were put in different corners and pulled opposite each other until they reached a handkerchief. The Kangaroos won this game and received three points.

The game was followed by two ten-minute instruction periods, in which a number of tests were passed.

A game of stalking was played. Stalking is a game which develops the sense of hearing. The Owls won and received three points.

A sharp-eyed Crow got the observation point. The Scoutmaster did not have his Gillwell badge on.

The troop was drawn up in a line in front of the Scoutmaster. Stars were given to Ronald Asquith, Jack Penrose and Jack Miller, of the Kangaroo Patrol, for test passing.

Then came the supreme moment of the meeting, the adding up of the points. The Owls' points were added up first and the total came to 241¾ points. The Kangaroos' points were added up next and came to 242. The Crows' points added up to 230¾. Mr. Corbett presented the prizes to the Kangaroos.

On Friday evening the Fourth Troop played the Sixth Troop at the Sacred Heart rink. The Fourth was victorious with a score of 4 to 2.

Hockey League Opens.

The Scout Hockey League got under way last week when the Third and Fifth Troops met on Thursday night at the Sacred Heart rink. It was a close hard fought game from start to finish, with neither team able to gain a decided advantage over the other. The Fifth, being the heavier, confined its play to one-man rushes but the Third played a passing game that with better ice conditions might have changed the final score. There was considerable snow on the ice that made the puck very hard to handle. At the end of the hour's play the Fifth came off the ice victors by the score of 3-1. The scorers for the Fifth were Beatty, V. Johnson and Asling; for the Third Jack Gray notched the only counter.

The Fourth defeated the Sixth on Friday night by 4-2. Individual rushes were the order of the day and all goals were scored by one man attacks. At the end of the first period the score stood 3-0 for the Fourth but the Sixth come back strong and out-scored the Fourth 2-1 in the next period. For the Fourth Asquith scored 2 goals, Welch and Routley, one each.

	Won.	Lost.
Fifth	1	0
Fourth	1	0
Third	0	1
Sixth	0	1

Games scheduled for this week at the Sacred Heart rink are:

Sixth vs. Third: Thursday 7.00 to 8.00.

Fifth vs. Fourth: Friday 7.00 to 8.00.

All the players are asked to be at the rink by 6.30 so that the game can start promptly at 7.00.

DIED THIS MORNING.

HUGHIE JENNINGS

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Arrangements for the funeral of Hughey Jennings, famous in the world of baseball, who died early today at his home here, will be completed later to-day, it was stated by members of the Jennings family. Indications are that the funeral may be held Friday.

Messages of sympathy and tributes to the memory of the man who led Detroit to three pennants in the American League, and who was compelled to quit as assistant manager of the New York Giants in 1926, arrived at the Jennings home to-day from all parts of the United States.

Two companies interested in the Namaqualand diamond fields are said to have offered the British government $35,000,000 for a strip of Crown land.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE LOST PENNY

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily was hopping over the fields and through the woods, the old rabbit gentleman reached an open place beneath the trees, on top of a little hill. There was some snow on the ground; smooth, white snow, with a little hole in the middle of it.

"Oh, ho!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily to himself, twinkling his pink nose like an ice-cream cone. "Oh, ho! I wonder who made that hole in the snow? It couldn't have been the Bob Cat, unless he did it by sticking his silly little tail down there. But I hardly think any of the bad chaps can be hiding in such a little hole. I guess there is no one in there, so I'll hop along and have an adventure. There's no one in the hole."

"Oh, yes there is!" suddenly cried a tiny, squeaking voice. "I am down in this hole and I wish I could get out."

"Ha! Who are you, if you please?" asked Uncle Wiggily, coming to a sudden stop as he was about to hop along "Who are you?"

"I am a lost penny," was the answer, "and I wish you would take me out of this snow hole and carry me home in your pocket, so I could get nice and warm, like the cold pumpkin you made into a jack o'lantern."

"Oh, so you are a lost penny, are you?" asked the rabbit, looking at the hole in the snow as if he expected a jack-in-the-box to jump out.

"Yes, I am lost and I am cold," was the answer. "Please help me!"

"But how does it happen that a penny can talk?" asked the rabbit gentleman. "I am afraid, after all, that you are one of the bad chaps. How an a penny talk?"

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the squeaky little voice down in the hole. "Did you never hear it said that money talks?"

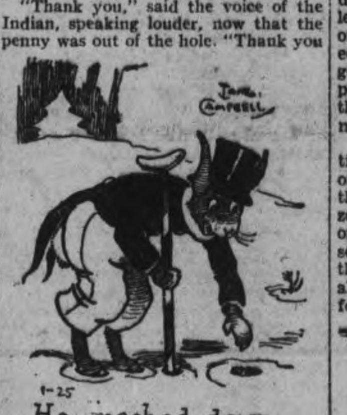
"Yes, I have heard that said," replied the rabbit.

"Of course money talks," went on the voice, "and I am money, though I am but a penny. Besides, I am an old-fashioned penny with an Indian's head on me and it is the Indian you hear talking—a little penny Indian."

"Oh, then I guess everything is all right," said Uncle Wiggily. "And I will help you out and take you to my bungalow where you can warm your feathers."

Looking down into the snow hole, Uncle Wiggily saw, at the bottom, the round Indian penny. With his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch, which Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy had gnawed for him out of a cornstalk, Uncle Wiggily made the hole larger. Then he reached down in and pulled out the penny.

"Thank you," said the voice of the Indian, speaking louder, now that the penny was out of the hole. "Thank you very much. Now if you will put me in your pocket—"



He reached down.

But just then, all of a sudden, there was a growling noise behind the rabbit. Turning, he saw the Woozie Wolf looking at him, and Uncle Wiggily was so surprised that he dropped the penny on the ground.

"Oh, ho!" snarled the Wolf. "Is that your penny, Mr. Longears?"

"No, it isn't exactly mine," answered the rabbit gentleman. "It is a lost penny and—"

"Then it's mine!" impolitely interrupted the Wolf. "I lost a penny the other day, so this is mine!"

"Oh, what a story-teller you are!" whispered the Indian penny. "You didn't lose me at all. A little boy squirrel dropped me out of his pocket Oh, what a bad Wolf!"

But the Wolf didn't hear what the lost penny said, and, what is more, the Wolf didn't care.

"Yes," snarled the bad chap, "that is my penny. I'll put it in my pocket and then I'll nibble your ears, Uncle Wiggily!"

"Oh, will you! Well, I guess I have something to say about that!" cried the Indian penny. "First you must catch me!" Then, all at once, the penny began rolling down hill.

"Ha! I'll get you!" howled the Wolf. "Come back here!"

But the penny rolled faster and faster down the hill. The Wolf started to run after it, but the bad chap slipped on some snow, and head over tail he went, bang into a tree.

"Ow! My nose! My nose!" howled the Wolf and tears came into his eyes so he could see neither Uncle Wiggily nor the penny. The penny rolled to the bottom of the hill, coming to rest against a stone. Uncle Wiggily saw it there and ran down after it before the Wolf could wipe the pain tears from his eyes. Then the bunny picked up the penny, which wasn't lost any more, and took it to his warm bungalow. Next day the bunny gave the penny to the little squirrel boy who had lost it.

AT THE GRAND.

RUBANNI IS COMING.

Attention is again directed to the appearance here on Monday night, in the Grand Opera House, of Rubanni, Soprano, who is coming to Peterborough under her own auspices and will on Monday night present a program that should be most pleasing to her audience.

Miss Rubanni, although capable of singing in various languages, prefers English, if we are to judge from the many compliments by her critics on her perfect diction.

The program will be widely varied and those who love to hear our beautiful language in song at its best will not be disappointed.

Alma VanBuskirk, Toronto Globe, says:

Audrie Rubanni sang a beautiful program the other night. The selections throughout displayed a voice of astonishing range, rich and even in its entire compass and endowed with much power, to which is joined unusual flexibility. Her absolute command of her resources and her versatility of expressiveness were noteworthy, a lovely E Alt sustained pianissimo for twelve bars, for beauty and execution equalled the feats of many a famous soprano.

Rubanni will be assisted by Edgar Goodaire, phenomenal Boy Pianist, and Tony Remouch, widely heralded Canadan Boy Violinist.

Plan of Opera House opens Friday morning.

AT THE REGENT.

REMARKABLE SETTINGS IN INCE FILM FROM THE PACIFIC TO CHINATOWN.

Perhaps the most noted foreign section in America is San Francisco's China Town where many scenes were taken for "Shanghaied," the Ralph Ince FBO sea picture, coming to-morrow to the Regent Theatre.

This district of the Golden Gate city is as distinctively a city in itself as would be possible to conceive amidst an alien country. With the dividing line between the American and the Oriental city as pronounced as the difference between day and night, China Town resembles a bit of the Far East transplanted without alteration into the midst of Western civilization.

In a distance equivalent to an ordinary city block one may pass from distinctly modern streets with trolley cars, concrete buildings, and the ordinary traffic, to a fairyland painted wooden structure, flaunting weird gold and black symbols before which parade their yellow inhabitants in the gaily colored costumes of their native land.

Dens and dives of every description lie buried beneath the surface of the streets to provide retreats for the tong leaders, underworld denizens and smokers of opium. It is in one of these retreats that many scenes of "Shanghaied" were laid and that the atmosphere might be as realistic as possible, the director was forced to enter a number of them at the risk of his life. What is seen on the screen is said to be a real picture of one of these picturesque dives.

CLERK FOOTBALL-SINGER

T. E. McCracken, who won an Irish amateur international prize for Association football, is a subway ticket agent in London. He is also noted locally as a singer and appears at concerts and Masonic events two or three times a week. He sings in Italian and English.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

THE STORY THUS FAR

There were finger-prints in the apartment of the murdered Margaret Odell, but the thing that baffles Vance most is the jewel case. It had been opened with a steel chisel after unsuccessfully being pried with a poker. Spotswoode had gone out with the girl the night of the murder. When he left her he told Jessup to call a cab. They heard a scream from her apartment, rushed back to her door and were told everything was all right. The next morning she was found strangled. Vance believes two men were in the apartment, the murderer and another who lay hidden in a clothes-closet. Investigation discloses that Cleaver is the man who has been seen with her the most.

* * *

CHAPTER XV

Markham sat up.

"I know Cleaver—if it's the same one."

"It's him, all right," declared Heath. "Former Brooklyn tax commissioner; been interested in a pool-room for pony-betting over in Jersey City ever since. Hangs out at the Stuyvesant Club, where he can hobnob with his old Tammany Hall cronies."

"That's the one," nodded Markham. "He's a kind of professional gay-dog—known as Pop, I believe."

Vance gazed into space.

"Well, well," he murmured. "So old Pop Cleaver was also entangled with our subtle and sanguine Dolores."

"I thought, sir," went on Heath, "that, seeing as how Cleaver is always in and out of the Stuyvesant Club, you might ask him some questions about Odell. He ought to know something."

"Glad to, Sergeant." Markham made a note on his pad. "I'll try to get in touch with him to-night. . . . Any one else on your list?"

"There's a fellow named Mannix—Louis Mannix—who met Odell when she was in the 'Follies'; but she chucked him over a year ago, and they haven't been seen together since. He's got another girl now. He's the head of the firm of Mannix and Levine, fur importers, and is one of your night-club rounders—a heavy spender. But I don't see much use of barking up that tree—his affair with Odell went cold too long ago."

"Yes," agreed Markham; "I think we can eliminate him."

"I say, if you keep up this elimination much longer," observed Vance, "you won't have anything left but the lady's corpse."

"And then, there's the man who took her out last night," pursued Heath. "Nobody seems to know his name—he must've been one of those discreet, careful old boys. I thought at first he might have been Cleaver, but the descriptions don't tally. . . . And by the way, sir, here's a funny thing: when he left Odell last night he took the taxi down to the Stuyvesant Club, and got out there."

Markham nodded. "I know all about that, Sergeant. And I know who the man was; and it wasn't Cleaver."

Vance was chuckling.

"The Stuyvesant Club seems to be well in the forefront of this case," he said. "I do hope it doesn't suffer the sad fate of the Knickerbocker Athletic."*

Heath was intent on the main issue.

"Who was the man, Mr. Markham?"

Markham hesitated, as if pondering the advisability of taking the other into his confidence. Then he said: "I'll tell you his name, but in strict confidence. The man was Kenneth Spottswoode."

He then recounted the story of his being called away from lunch, and of his failure to elicit any helpful suggestions from Spotswoode. He also informed Heath of his verification of the man's statements regarding his movements after meeting Judge Redfern at the club.

"And," added Markham, "since he obviously left the girl before she was murdered, there's no necessity to bother him. In fact, I gave him my word I'd keep him out of it for his family's sake."

"If you're satisfied, sir, I am." Heath closed his note-book and put it away. "There's just one other little thing. Odell used to live on 110th Street, and Emery dug up her former landlady and learned that this fancy guy the maid told us about used to call on her regularly."

"That reminds me, Sergeant." Markham picked up the memorandum he had made during Inspector Brenner's phone call. "Here's some data the professor gave me about the forcing of the jewel-case."

Heath studied the paper with considerable eagerness. "Just as I thought!" He nodded his head with satisfaction. "Clear-cut professional job by somebody who's been in the line of work before."

Vance roused himself.

"Still, if such is the case," he said, "why did this experienced burglar first use the insufficient poker? And why did he overlook the living-room clothes-press?"

"I'll find all that out, Mr. Vance, when I get my hands on him," asserted Heath, with a hard look in his eyes. "And the guy I want to have a nice, quiet little chat with is the one with the pleated silk shirt and the chamois gloves."

"For myself, I have no yearning whatever to hold converse with him. Somehow, I can't just picture a professional looter trying to rend a steel box with a cast-iron poker."

"Forget the poker," Heath advised gruffly. "He jimmied the box with a steel chisel; and that same chisel was used last summer in another burglary on Park Avenue. What about that?"

"Ah! That's what torments me, Sergeant. If it wasn't for that disturbin' fact, d' ye see, I'd be lightsome this afternoon, inviting my soul over a dish of tea at Claremont."

Detective Bellamy was announced, and Heath sprang to his feet.

"That'll mean news about those finger-prints," he prophesied hopefully.

Bellamy entered unemotionally, and walked up to the district attorney's desk.

"Cap'n Dubois sent me over," he said. "He thought you'd want the report on those Odell prints." He reached into his pocket and drew out a small, flat folder which, at a sign from Markham, he handed to Heath. "We identified 'em. Both made by the same hand, like Cap'n Dubois said; and that hand belonged to Tony Skeel."

"'Dude' Skeel, eh?" The sergeant's tone was vibrant with suppressed excitement. "Say, Mr. Markham, that gets us somewhere. Skeel's an ex-convict and an artist in his line."

He opened the folder and took out an oblong card and a sheet of blue paper containing eight or ten lines of typewriting. He studied the card, gave a satisfied grunt, and handed it to Markham.

Vance and I stepped up and looked at it. At the top was the familiar rogues'-gallery photograph showing the full face and profile of a regular-featured youth with thick hair and a square chin. His eyes were wide-set and pale, and he wore a small, evenly trimmed mustache with waxed, needle-point ends.

Below the double photograph was a brief tabulated description of its sitter, giving his name, aliases, residence, and Bertillon measurements, and designating the character of his illegal profession. Underneath were ten little squares arranged in two rows, each containing a finger-print impression made in black ink—the upper row being the impressions of the right hand, the lower row those of the left.

"So that's the 'arbiter elegantiarum' introduced the silk shirt for full-dress wear! My word!" Vance regarded the identification card satirically. "I wish he'd start a craze for gaiters with dinner-jackets—these New York theaters are frightfully drafty in winter."

Heath put the card back in the folder, and glanced over the typewritten paper that had accompanied it.

"He's our man, and no mistake, Mr. Markham. Listen to this: 'Tony (Dude) Skeel. Two years Elmira Reformatory, 1902 to 1904. One year in the Baltimore County jail for petit larceny, 1906. Three years in San Quentin for assault and robbery, 1908 to 1911. Arrested Chicago for housebreaking, 1912; case dismissed. Arrested and tried for burglary in Albany, 1913; no conviction. Served two years and eight months in Sing Sing for housebreaking and burglary, 1914 to 1916.'" He folded the paper and put it, with the card, into his breast-pocket. "Sweet little record."

"That dope what you wanted?" asked the imperturbable Bellamy.

"I'll say!" Heath was almost jovial.

Bellamy lingered expectantly with one eye on the district attorney; and Markham, as if suddenly remembering something, took out a box of cigars and held it out.

"Much obliged, sir," said Bellamy, helping himself to two, and putting them into his waistcoat pocket with great care, he went out.

"I'll use your phone now, if you don't mind, Mr. Markham," said Heath.

He called the homicide bureau.

"Look up Tony Skeel—Dude Skeel—'pronto,' and bring him in as soon as you find him," were his orders to Snitkin. "Get his address from the files, and take Burke and Emery with you. If he's hopped it, send out a general alarm and have him picked up—some of the boys'll have a line on him. Lock him up without booking him, see? . . . And, listen. Search his room for burglar tools; he probably won't have any laying around, but I specially want a one-and-three-eighths-inch chisel with a nick in the blade. . . . I'll be at headquarters in half an hour."

(To be continued.)

*Vance was here referring to the famous Molineux case, which, in 1898, sounded the death-knell of the old Knickerbocker Athletic Club at Madison Avenue and 45th Street. But it was commercialism that ended the Stuyvesant's career. This club, which stood on the north side of Madison Square, was razed a few years later to make room for a skyscraper.

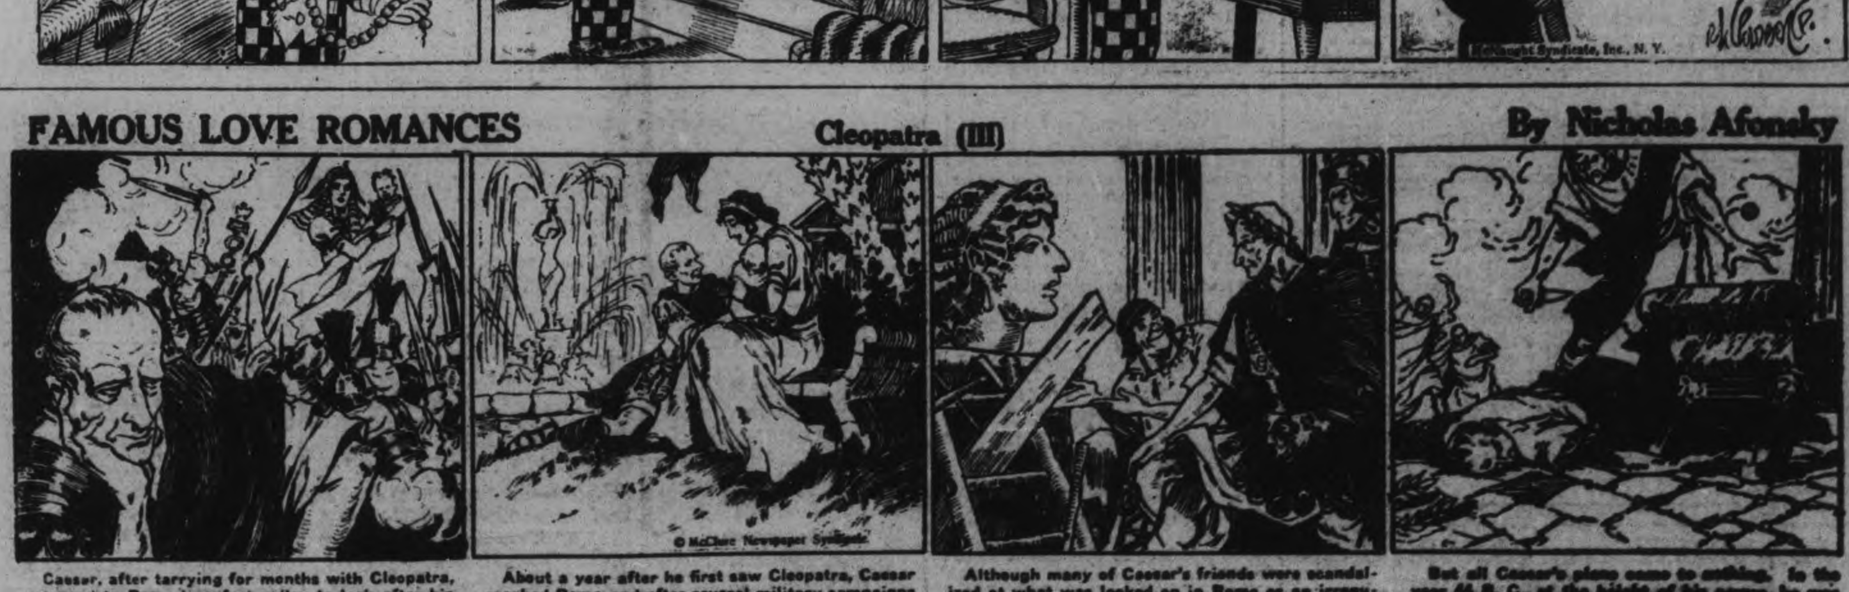
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES Cleopatra (III) By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Caesar, after tarrying for months with Cleopatra, returned to Rome in a fast galley to look after his affairs there. He was well content with his plans and dreams, which included making himself ruler of the world, Cleopatra his empress, and their baby son Caesarion their heir to the thrones of Rome and Egypt.

About a year after he first saw Cleopatra, Caesar reached Rome, and after several military campaigns sent for her to join him. Caesar established her in one of his villas on the banks of the Tiber, where with her young son she was to live in comfort until he could divorce his Roman wife and marry her.

Although many of Caesar's friends were scandalized at what was looked on in Rome as an irregular alliance, they were all delighted to take part in the festivities that marked the consecration of a temple to Venus by Caesar. In the temple he placed a statue of Cleopatra, to suggest that she was of godly descent.

But all Caesar's plans came to nothing. In the year 44 B. C., at the height of his power, he was assassinated as the result of a conspiracy of aristocrats who feared that he would establish a hereditary monarchy. And what of the hopes and plans of Cleopatra, waiting for him to call her from her retreat?

CAMPBELL SAILS WITH BIG RACER

Hopes To Break World's Speed ecord on Daytona Beach, Florida.

BUFFALO, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Friends here have been informed that Capt. Malcolm Campbell of London is expected to sail for New York with a racing automobile with which he expects to break the world's record of 203.8 miles an hour set last year at Daytona Beach, Fla., by Major Seagrave. After speed trials at Daytona, Capt. Campbell will tour the country. The car is said to have attained a speed of 240 miles an hour.

CALIFORNIA LURE.

At the first it was gold which incited the pioneer-adventurer to round the Horn or take the trail of the covered wagon. There was gold to be discovered, gold to be claimed, gold to be possessed. One man stumbled over it, another saw it and the two words "gold" and "California" rang throughout the world. From the genesis of known Californian history the stream of humanity pouring into its borders steadily increased. As it increased transportation demands became greater until now, when Royal trains may cater to the eager numbers with ease and comfort. For Canadians who are lured by the gold of the sunshine, of the beaches or the groves, or by the quaintness of its Spanish settlements or its golden opportunities for recreation, pleasure and health, the Canadian Pacific Railway offers direct connections and assures ease of travel and service unexcelled in rapid transit.

Apply to any Canadian Pacific ticket agent or to J. Skinner, City Passenger Agent, 343 George street.

Had a Severe Cold Coughed Incessantly

Mrs. C. Fehrman, Selkirk, Ont., writes:—"Last winter I suffered from a very severe cold. I coughed incessantly which irritated the glands and caused sore throat.

"I tried several medicines without any luck, but one day I picked up your almanac and read about

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

"I got a bottle and after taking a couple of doses felt much relieved and when I had finished it my cold had simply disappeared."

"Dr. Wood's" is 35c. a bottle, large family size 60c.; for sale at all druggists and dealers; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BOY OF 14 HAS 64 "BABY HOLDUPS"

That he had committed 64 thefts from children in four weeks, was the confession made by a four-teen-year-old boy in Glasgow, Scotland, recently. He is said to have waited at store doors and when children came out with purchases he held them up and told them that the wrong change had been given them and that he had been sent to get the change back that the error might be righted. He then disappeared and used part of the money to gamble with adults.

TWO GREAT PALS IN FLIGHT GAME

Bobo Baxter and his pal, confidante, trainer, and fellow aviator, Nosedive Kelly, are the two busiest guys you ever saw. They have built a contraption that flies without gasoline. They call it the "Demi-Tasse" because it only has a couple of drops in it. You can follow their amusing antics daily in The Examiner.

AUCTION SALE OF VALUABLE CITY PROPERTY

Under and by virtue of the Powers of sale contained in a certain mortgage that will be produced at the time of sale there will be offered for sale by Public Auction at the hour of three o'clock in the afternoon of the 23rd. day of February 1928 at the Munroe House in the City of Peterborough the following property, namely: All and singular those certain parcels or tracts of land and premises situate lying and being in the City of Peterborough in the County of Peterborough and Province of Ontario being composed of Lots Numbers FIVE and SIX north of Smith street and west of Bethune street according to Registered Plan Number FIFTY-THREE for the said City of Peterborough.

Sickly Boy, 7, Gains 15 Lbs—Father Happy

"My boy, 7, would not eat. I gave him Vinol and the way he eats and plays now makes me happy. He gained 15 pounds."—J. F. Andres.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. The very FIRST bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and a BIG appetite. Tastes delicious. McDermid & Jury, Druggists, E. L. Payne, McDermid Drug Company.

PRESIDENT HOLDS DINNER FOR STAFF

W. S. Gordon Entertains Employees of Steel Trough and Machine Company.

About 130 employees, with their wives and friends, attended a banquet in the Tweed Auditorium on Monday last, tendered by Wilber S. Gordon, president and general manager of The Steel Trough and Machine Company, Limited. Mr. Gordon, in his opening speech, outlined the growth of his company from a small business, struggling for its very existence, up to the present time, with its activities extending from Halifax to Vancouver. He also voiced his acknowledgment of those gentlemen who had stood behind the company in its lean years, their belief in its future being vindicated by the benefits and publicity the town of Tweed has enjoyed through the company being located there.

W. E. Tumman, M.P., also spoke in eulogy of the company's strong financial position.

Among others present were W. B. Pennock, manager of the Windsor branch, L. F. Simpson of Toronto, R. G. K. Ward of Montreal, H. W. Borbridge of Ottawa, all of whom testified to the pleasant relations existing between the different branches and the head office.

Vocal and instrumental selections helped to make up a very interesting program.

SURVEYORS MEET TO DISCUSS WORK

President, in Opening Address, Emphasizes Great Areas Not Yet Mapped.

OTTAWA, February 1 (Canadian Press). — After months spent in uninhabited or sparsely settled sections of Canada, Dominion land surveyors are here this week to exchange notes, compare experiences, and to law before the Government and the people of Canada the results of their summer's work. The convention opened to-day, and about one hundred surveyors and engineers took part. R. Cautley, of Edmonton, the president, occupied the chair.

The tremendous area in Canada which still remains practically unexplored and unknown was emphasized by Mr. Cautley. "No surveyor has ever set foot on the greater part of Canada," ne said, "and less than one-quarter of our wonderful country has ever been adequately mapped or can be until surveys are made."

ENGINE KILLS DEER ON TRACK

Algoma Central Train Comes Suddenly on Animals Lying Down.

SNOW DEEP IN BUSH.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press.) —Hunting big game wtih railway engines bids fair tobecome a popular sport along the Algoma Central Railway. A few days ago, an engine ran down a wolf after a half mile chase in a defile made by snow thrown up by plows and yesterday another engine came suddenly upon a herd of six deer lying on the track. The crew had no opportunity to stop the train before hitting them and four of the deer were killed. Reports from along the railway are that moose and deer are coming out to the right of way to avoid the deep snow in the bush.

GAS HEATER CAUSED FIRE

Deputy Fire Chief Makes Report On Metropolitan Church Fire.

FOUND RED HOT.

TORONTO, February 1 (Canadian Press). — Failure to turn off the gas under a small water heater was the cause of the fire which destroyed the Metropolitan United Church here on Monday, with a loss of half a million dollars, according to Deputy Fire Chief Walter Sinclair, who has been investigating. After the fire had been extinguished the gas heater was found still red hot, he said.

Rev. Dr. Sedgwick, the pastor, stated that four or five old ladies of slender financial resources had been in the habit of staying in the church basement through Sunday, preparing their meals in the little kitchen and brewing tea on the heater.

CARDINAL HOME TIRED BUT HAPPY

Declines to Discuss Trip to Europe or Controversial Religious Topics.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.— (Canadian Press.)— Tired from his eight day voyage from Cherbourg through stormy weather, but cheerful and well, and anxious to resume the duties of his Quebec archdiocese, Raymond Marie Cardinal Rouleau, Canada's third and only living Prince of the Roman Catholic church, arrived here at noon to-day on the liner Empress of Scotland.

His Eminence, although besieged by newspapermen, smilingly declined to discuss either his trip abroad, in the course of which he received the red hat at the hands of the Pope,or any of the controversial religious topics of the day.

GROUP PLANS WORK.

St. James' W.M.S. Section Discusses Program For Month.

The executive of St. James' W.M.S. Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. William Sollitt, Romaine street, with the four group leaders, Mrs. F. D. Armstrong, Prince street, Mrs. W. Rose, Morrow street, Mrs. F. D. Elliott, Lock street, and Mrs. T. E. Curvin, Water street, to appoint the auxiliary members to their respective groups, for work and study.

The north group held their first meeting last evening, Mrs. T. E. Curvin, the leader, being hostess.

The month's work was systematically and definitely planned, also an excellent program for the February W.M.S. meeting. Tuesday, Feb. 14th the group members were Mesdames Curvin, Bonney, Young, Bannon, Bromwell, Fry and Wagar.

At the conclusion of the business dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

REPORTS REVEAL WORK FOR HEALTH

Nurse of Health Association Has Done Great Deal During Past Year.

At the recent meeting of the Health Association, reported elsewhere in The Examiner, the following reports were read. They are of particular interest to those interested in the various phases of work covered and fully deserved the appreciation of the Association as voiced by President Breyfogle and others present at the meeting.

Nurses' Supervision Committee

During 1927 the monthly meetings of the nurses' supervision committee have been held on the first Monday of the month, with an average attendance of seven, and with the president, Mrs. Hall, always in the chair. The secretary's report is first read, and then the nurse's report, and the different cases are discussed. When milk or eggs are given out the patient is first visited by Mrs. Hall or one of the committee. During the year twenty-three people have received milk, making five thousand, two hundred and thirty-eight quarts of milk given away, and five people have received eggs, making one hundred and eighty-four and one-half dozen eggs given. Mrs. Merrell, the capable secretary of the N.S.C. for the last two years, has left the town, and is a great loss. We have three new members: Mrs. Spence, Mrs. H. Morrow and Mrs. W. Hall A great many of the homes of the children attending the summer camp have been visited by the members of the committee during the winter and if found in need of help the case reported.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Mary Archer, Sec. (pro tem).

Report of Children's Camp, 1927

The children's camp opened July the 5th and closed August, 27th, making eight full weeks. Miss Hazelton was nurse in charge and Miss Smith again acted as cook, both were most satisfactory.

Mrs. Gilgour, representing the ladies of the Kiwanis Club, visited the camp in July and was most interested in all that was being done for the children.

Dr. Scott was again convenor of the clinic, for the camp. The doctors who examined the children were Doctors Morgan, Waite, Hammond, Louden, Howson, and O'Reiley.

Drs. Buchanan and Cragg operated on 17 children for tonsils free of charge, and Dr. Scott made very satisfactory arrangements for the operating rooms at both hospitals.

One hundred and seventy-eight children attended the camp. Some of the more delicate were kept on for seven weeks, others for from one to three, according to their condition. They all gained in weight and seemed stronger for their outing. The average attendance was 63.

The ladies in charge of the camp for a week, this year were: Mrs. Aylmer, Miss Archer, Mrs. Spence, Mrs. W. T. Hall, Mrs. Coulthard and Mrs. Hall. Some of the ladies of the committee gave money to buy material for dresses and made them up, and also bought things from time to time needed for them.

Nurse's Report

During 1927, fourteen hundren and fifty visits were made, covering care of obstetrical, medical, tuberculous and surgical patiens, also assistance at minor operations.

The medical and surgical patients were visited, in some cases daily, over a period of time, or as often as the attending physician requested and were treated according to his instructions.

At the beginning of the year there were four tuberculous patients on the visiting list. One who died in August had been visited three times a week for seven months. Two others are now almost well. When visiting these patients care is taken to try to impress on them and their families the great necessity of carrying out instructions given for the protection of those about them.

Seventy - nine obstetrical cases were attended. Each receiving from ten to fourteen visits after confinement and usually one or two prenatal visits were made.

We had no deaths among our seventy-five obstetrical patients, many of whom though most willing to coof wh omt ,ohuhmg E pnfl 12121 operate, owing to financial conditions find a great difficulty in supplying even the absolute necessities required in observing proper care.

Fees are collected only from patients who are in a position to pay. This year, two hundred and eighteen dollars was received and has been handed to the Health Association.

This report is respectfully submitted by

Margaret O'Loughlin,
District Nurse.

IN POLICE COURT

Two local young men pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place and were fined $20 and costs, or 30 days in the common jail. The two young chaps, according to Chief Newhall, stole a bottle of legally purchased liquor from another man with whom they had been to Lakefield. They had a little party down on Bethune Street, and were arrested about midnight by a constable.

A local farmer who has a wife and nine children pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place on Saturday, January 21, and was fined $10 and costs. He also pleaded guilty to having been intoxicated in a public place on Saturday, January 28, and acknowledged a previous conviction on the same charge on September 3. On the last charge he was sent to jail for one month, and on the first he was given the privilege of paying the fine or serving 30 days in jail, the sentences not to run concurrently.

Henry Succee was found guilty of failing to transfer his motor license into is own name when he purchased a car, and was fined $10 and costs.

Albert Mills pleaded guilty to same charge, and was given the same fine.

Goitre
is an enlargement of the thyroid gland. This is usually accompanied by a general rundown condition of the body and by a direct interference with the nerves supplying the thyroid gland. Excess poisons accumulate throughout the system and the thyroid enlarges in its effort to supply a secretion to combat these poisons. If this effort goes on for a length of time the gland becomes chronically enlarged and a period of systemic upbuilding is necessary to bring about recovery. Chiropractic has been successful in aiding many persons to overcome goitre and as this is done in a natural way it means renewed strength and vigor for the sufferer.

STOUFFVILLE CURLERS WIN PETERBOROUGH CUP TO-DAY

Consolatoin Winner Eliminates Two Millbrook Rinks in Last Rounds.

YIELDS WADDELL GAME.

Fenelon Falls and Peterborough Rinks Meet in Finals For Morrow Cup.

W. S. Armstrong of Stouffville won the Peterborough Trophy this morning when he defeated R. H. Edmunds of Millbrook, last year's Matthew-Blackwell Trophy holders, by six points. The final score was 14 to 8. The Peterborough Cup, the emblem of championship in the consolation series, was contested for on Brock Street Rink yesterday, with thirteen visiting rinks entered in the first draw. The winning rink defeated Ridpath of Lakefield in the first round and John Steele of Millbrook in the semi-finals. Mr. Armstrong was matched against Mr. Edmunds this afternoon in the Waddell Cup, but to show his good sportsmanship, after winning one trophy he defaulted the game to Mr. Edmunds.

Two of the best games of the 'spiel were played this morning when McCallum of Fenelon Falls, defeated J. W. McDermid, and R. G. Sturgeon beat H. Forsythe, of Lindsay, in the semi-finals of the W. G. Morrow Trophy. Mr. McDermid was down two, but on the 12th end he evened the score, to lose out by one point on the extra end. Sturgeon came within an ace of losing his game in the 12th end. R. G. Sturgeon is in the finals of the Morrow Trophy against H. H. McCallum and he is in the semi-finals of the Matthews-Blackwell Trophy. H. Forsythe, the boys' rink from Lindsay, remains in the Waddell series and the Matthews-Blackwell.

J. Mayneord and H. Martin had a very busy day yesterday keeping the four series running in full swing, as many rinks remained in more than one competition.

R. G. Sturgeon, J. W. McDermid, M. B. Chenhall and D. C. Thomson are battling out this afternoon to enter the finals of the Matthews-Blackwell Trophy. Both final games will be played to-night.

Along with the Peterborough trophy each member of the Stouffville rink was presented with a silver bread tray and the the members of the Millbrook rink a smoking set each.

TO-NIGHT'S THE NIGHT LAKEFIELD VS. HAVELOCK

Lakefield, Leading By One Goal, Hopes To Retain Lead.

The final game for the championship of this group in the Intermediate series, will be played at Brock street rink, Peterborough, to-night, when Havelock meets Lakefield on the best sheet of ice of the season.

Lakefield has put up remarkable resistance and comes to Peterborough with a lead of one goal, which they hope to keep.

There will be hundreds from around the district to see the game and Peterborough fans will turn out in large numbers.

GERMAN BIRTH RATE DROPS

In the schools of Berlin are only 353,000 children as compared with 700,000 before the World War, and the birth rate is less than half that of 15 years ago. This was the declaration of the Ober-Burgermaster of Berlin, speaking recently in the Prussian Council of State. He attributed the decrease in the birth-rate principally to the insufficient number of houses.

Youthful Bandits Taken By Police

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 2 (Canadian Press). — Two gangs of youthful burglars, the members ranging in age from 14 to 20 years, and totalling eleven in number, were rounded up by the police during the past two days. One gang devoted its efforts exclusively to stores and residences in the west-end of the city, while the other gang operated over a wide area in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The first group of youthful bandits were gathered in by police as the result of an investigation into series of store robberies. The second coup was made when the youths were surprised by police while in the act of robbing a local drug store.

Six of the boys appeared in court yesterday, charged with housebreaking and theft. They were remanded until Feb. 6. Other members were sent to the Juvenile court on similar charges. A number of suspects are still at large.

POLICE GUARD NEGRO DANCER

Fear Outburst Against Darling of Paris By Vienna Students.

STREETS CLEARED.

VIENNA, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press). A police guard was placed around Josephine Baker, negro dancer, who has become a darling of Paris, on her arrival yesterday from the French capital as university students had declared their intention of preventing colored artists from playing in Vienna.

A detachment of police escorted the dancer from the station to a hotel in front of which students assembled. The streets were afterwards cleared by police.

In view of the students' resentment against the jazz opera "Johnnie," in which a negro boasts that all white women capitulate to him, police are taking precautions to protect the young woman all the time she is here.

Students threw chemical bombs containinf sneezing powder at a performance of "Johnnie" Saturday, causing a number of women to faint. Twelve students were arrested.

English Pastor To Run For Parliament

LONDON, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press Cable).—Rev. Mr. le Valentine, a graduate of Bangor University and pastor of the Welsh Baptist Tabernacle at Llandudno, Wales, has accepted an invitation of the Welsh Nationalist party to be a candidate in the Carnavon constituency in the next Parliamentary election there. Major G. Owen is Liberal member for Carnavon County, and Labor and Conservative candidates are already in the field.

Rev. Mr. le Valentine is an ardent Nationalist and one of the leaders of the new party formed three years ago. The objects of the Welsh Nationalist party include a parliament for Wales, separate representation for Wales on the League of Nations, and recognition of the Welsh tongue as the official language of the principality.

IRISH 'REPUBLIC' URGES TRAINING

Posters in Donegal Call For Preparedness To Fight England.

FOR IRISH FREEDOM.

BELFAST, Ireland, February 2 (Canadian Press). — Posters headed, "A Manifesto from the Dail Eireann" calling upon the young men loyal to the "Republic" to train for its defence, have been posted on public buildings throughout Donegal.

The "Dail Eireann" is the title that a section of the Irish Republicans claim the sole right to use, regarding the present Parliaments in Dublin and Belfast as usurpers. The posters read:

"When England is at war, this country will also be at war, but against England, not at her side.

"England seems not far from war now.

"It is better to fight for the freedom of Ireland than as English conscripts."

YOUNG PLAYERS ASSIST SINGER

Boy Pianist and Violinist Here Next Week With Rubanni.

AT OPERA HOUSE.

What promises to be a very interesting musical event is the visit here on Monday next and appearance in a concert program at the Grand Opera House, of Miss Audrie Rubanni, soprano singer, assisted by Edgar Goodaire, the remarkable sixteen-year-old pianist, and Tony Remouche, the widely heralded Canadian boy violinist. This little boy appeared ith the foreign-born children who put on the Pageant of New Canadians at the Kiwanis Club's Produced-in-Canada Fair at the Armories, last fall, and delighted his audiences with his precocity and skill in playing the violin.

Miss Rubanni is a new vocalist to the city who is now making a temporary home in Toronto and is giving a number of concerts throughout the province. Canadian by birth, she has sung a great deal in cities of the United States, and is a protege of the late Lillian Nodica. Her voice is described as a dramatic coloratura soprano, and she has sung much over the radio from station WJZ, New York City.

The New York Corrier d'America says of her: "Miss Audrie Rubanni, Canadian, gave a marvellous execution of the famous 'Casta Diva' from 'Norma,' by Bellini." The Detroit Times speaks of her voice as being "a delight to the audience," and The Buffalo Courier says her program was "an edifying exhibition of flexibility and brilliant quality of voice." From The Ottawa Journal: "Displayed musical talent such as seldom graced the boards of any theatre in this city"; Mr. Wiggins, Toronto Daily Star: "Showed a delicacy of shading and expression that was exquisite. So roused the enthusiasm of her audience that though she had sung fourteen numbers they still clamored for more." Alma Van Buskirk, in The Toronto Globe, says: "Audrie Rubanni sang a beautiful program the other night. The selections throughout displayed a voice of astonishing range, rich and even in its entire compass and endowed with much power, to which its joined unusual flexibility. Her absolute command of her resources and her versatility of expressiveness were noteworthy. A lovely E Alt sustained pianissimo for twelve bars, for beauty and execution equalled the feats of many a famous soprano."

The American League has now won fourteen World's Series and the National League ten.

Look Over the List

Please look over this list, and also the list in Monday's Examiner, and make any corrections that are needed. It is desired to have this list complete for the memorial, and full names are desired to replace the initials. Should any names be transferred from County to City list, or vice versa? Are names spelled correctly?

To assist those who have lost Monday's copy of The Examiner, a copy is being placed on the bulletin board for a few days, and a copy may also be consulted in the Editorial Department, upstairs.

LIBERALS PLAN OPEN MEETING

Men's Association Discusses Matter at Enthusiastic Meeting.

EXPECT MINISTER.

A most enthusiastic meeting of the Men's Liberal Association of West Peterborough was held last night in the Board room of the Duffus building, with Mr. J. J. Hartley in the chair. Matters of general interest to the Liberal party were fully discussed and arangements were made for an open meeting of the Men's and Women's Association in the course of a week or so. It is expected that a Cabinet Minister will visit the riding in the near future.

MORE BIRTHS; FEWER DEATHS

Weddings in January, 1928, Show Decrease From 1927 Figures.

NATURAL INCREASE 23.

Peterborough's increase in population got off to a good start in 1928 when January showed an increase of seven in the number of births over the same month last year. Marriages were decreased by one, and deaths by six. During January there were 51 births, 13 marriages, and 28 deaths, for the same month in 1927 there were 44 births, 14 marriages and 34 deaths.

Would Re-establish Peruvian Currency

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—A careful investigation of the finances of the republic of Peru is to be made shortly, it was learned yesterday, with a view to re-establish the Peruvian currency on a gold basis.

At what point the Peruvian pound will be stabilized has not yet been determined.

Although the government is understood to favor a return to par value of $4.8865, sentiment in banking circles here leans to a stabilization point close to this level for several weeks.

MARCIL QUITS CHAIRMANSHIP

Wants To Avoid Misconception in Discussion of Mexican Question.

HAS PRESIDED AT CAUCUS.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press) —The Hon. Charles Marcil has tendered his resignation to the Prime Minister as chairman of the government caucus for the present session. In a statement issued today, Mr. Marcil says: "The newspapers having published that I had presided at the Liberal caucus yesterday at which my motion on the Mexican situation was considered, I have received numerous requests for an explanation which I am glad to give. I have been chairman of the Liberal caucus for some years past. The chairman of the caucus is no more responsible for what is said than is the Speaker for what is said in the House.

"However, as I want the people to know that I am a free lance on the Mexican persecutions, I have sent my resignation to the Premier as chairman of the caucus for the present session to remove all possible misconception."

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS HIGHER THIS YEAR

Increase of $ 22,000 Shown in January Over last Year's Figures.

Customs receipts at the port of Peterborough for January showed an increase of $22,387.80 over the same month last year. In January the total collections amounted to $145,581.97 and for the same month in 1927 they amounted to $123,194.17.

The total collections for the first ten months of the government fiscal year shows an increase of $22,228.09 over the total amount of the preceding year. The collections for the ten months of this fiscal year have amounted to $1,479,421.29 and for the previous year they were $1,451,193.20.

CLAIMED ROBBERY; HAS DISAPPEARED

Los Angeles Woman at Niagara Falls Wednesday Cannot Be Traced.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Dora Violet MacDonald, of Los Angeles, who reported yesterday that she was robbed of a considerable sum of money, jewellery and wearing apparel, has disappeared, and police can find no trace of her. She told the police that she was robbed on a lonely country road and her motor car being stalled, she spent the night in it. They have been unable to find the car so far. It is asserted that Mrs. MacDonald enquired at the railway station last night about the possibilities of riding without cost to London, but it is not thought she left by train.

DEBATE ON ADDRESS LASTS TILL TUESDAY

Dozen More Speakers Wish To Say Something in Matter.

OTTAWA, February 2 (Canadian Press).—The debate on the Address in the House is expected to run until Tuesday or Wednesday of next week. There was some talk of the possibility of ending the debate to-day, but another dozen or so speakers are still waiting their turn. Unless there are unexpected developments, however, the middle of next week should see the end. Next will come the tabling of the main estimates and the opening of business.

DOES NOT APPROVE EXPANSION OF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS

Canadian Cardinal Arrives At New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—Raymond Marie, Cardinal Rouleau, Canada's newly-created prince of the Roman Catholic Church, halted his homeward journey from Rome to the Archdiocese of Quebec last night to receive the felicitations of Canadian and United States clergymen and laymen.

The Cardinal, who arrived yesterday from Cherbourg on the liner Empress of Scotland, was in good health, but he said he was very tired after the eight-day voyage. He was not interviewed, asking that he be excused.

"I have worked very hard and am very tired," His Eminence said in French. "I would rather wait until I can speak to my people."

Cardinal Rouleau was entertained last night at an informal dinner at the rectory of the Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament of St. Jean Baptiste, where he will stay until he leaves for Montreal on the private car, "Van Horne," at 8.45 this morning. The train is scheduled to arrive in Montreal at 8.05 to-night. Following the dinner, there was a reception, which was attended by many prominent clergy and laymen.

SIX OF FAMILY BURNED IN HOME

Father, Mother, and Four of Five Children Lose Their Lives.

IN PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, February 2 (Canadian Press). — Father and mother and four of their five children were burned to death in a fire which wrecked their home in west Philadelphia to-day. All the victims but one, the youngest child, were burned while they slept. The dead are: Armando Mantici, 38, Carline 29, his wife, Anna eight, Ophelia six, Henry four, and Armando, Jr., two.

The other child, Albert, seven, was found struggling to open the door by firemen upon their arrival at the scene. The shock of the fire had left him speechless, and he was unable to tell the attendants at the hospital what had happened. He was only slightly burned. The origin of the blaze is undetermined, but the police learned that an oilstove downstairs was the only means of heating the house, and they advanced the theory that it might have exploded.

BANQUET MARKS LODGE BIRTHDAY

Eastern Star L.O.B.A. Members Celebrate Anniversary of Opening.

Eastern Star Lodge No. 525 L.O.B.A. celebrated its fifth anniversary by a banquet held in the grill room of the Empress Hotel last evening. Community singing was a portion of the opening program, with Miss May Pollock at the piano. County Master Fred Brown acted as chairman and proposed a toast to "The King," followed by a brief address, welcoming the guests to the fifth anniversary celebration of the lodge's foundation.

The toast to the "Grand Lodge" was responded to by Mrs. C. Wright, Provincial Treasurer, and the toast to "Peterborough," proposed by William Lockie, was responded to by Mayor Denne. The toast to "Eastern Star Lodge," proposed by George Porter, was responded to by Worthy Mistress Miss F. Brown, and the Deputy Mistress Miss M. Maynard. The toast to "Our Visitors," proposed by Past Mistress Miss Rose Sexsmith, was responded to by F. Millard of Vimy Ridge Lodge and Mrs. E. Tate of Star of Bethlehem Lodge.

During the evening, a pianoforte solo was rendered by Miss May Pollock and a reading by Miss Verna Huffman. The presentation of a bouquet of roses to Mrs. Sexsmith, who has been treasurer of the lodge for a number of years, was made by Miss Ada Huffman.

At the conclusion of the banquet, "Auld Lang Syne" was sung, with clasped hands, and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Rt. Hon. Sir George Foster Continues Debate on Address in Senate.

OUT OF DATE.

Says Serious Questions Settled Between the Heads of Governments.

OTATWA, Ont., February 2 (Canadian Press). — Disapproving the expansion of Canada's diplomatic relations with foreign countries on the score that the diplomat was now out of date and that when any serious question arose, the ambassador was set aside and the matter settled in conversations between heads of Governments, Right Hon. Sir George Foster yesterday continued the debate on the Address in the Senate. Sir George's remarks followed the disposal of Senator Willoughby's Bill to grant divorce courts for Ontario, this going over until next Tuesday for the third reading.

Sir George traced the origin of diplomats from the days when they went to kings with spices and rich gifts in order to sue for friendship and to make peace. What, asked Sir George, had Canada to do with that sort of thing? Personal contact between the heads of Governments brought what the diplomats failed to bring—accord. In the course of his address, Sir George was asked by Senator Dandurand, Government leader in the Senate, if the Ambassador to the United States "had not been arranged by the Borden Government." The speaker agreed, but answered that there were many other policies instituted by the Borden Government which the present Government had not felt itself necessarily obliged to carry out.

Discusses League.

Sir George devoted a considerable part of his address to the League of Nations, and took occasion to congratulate Senator Dandurand on his appointment as Canada's representative on the League Council. He agreed with the wording of the Speech from the Throne with regard to the "striking recognition that had been accorded Canada's position in the League," by her election to the Council. But, he said, Canada had not secured that position at the last assembly because Canada's status had been changed. "She laid the foundation when she entered and passed through that four years of war with such a sacrifice of men and money," Sir George said.

Canada claimed at the peace conference full equality, and there and then became subject to all the obligations and in full possession of all the rights and privileges which went with that equality.

Too much, declared Sir George, had been said of the position given to Canada because in the interim something had happened to change her status, and that it was this which had caused Canada's entry into the League.

Sir George declared that the Canadian representative on the League was there not to look simply to what Canada wanted, but had to keep in mind what all the other nations wanted. She was there by virtue of their vote and to represent them.

He agreed with Senator Dandurand's opinion that Canada's representation was a protection for Canada, and he felt that this country could depend upon him to see that only the obligations and necessary duties of Canada were discharged in so far as that representation was concerned.

Imperial Relations.

Dealing with the matter of Imperial relations, Sir George said that the prime ministers of the empire had met and agreed that while there were tsill certain legalities in force they had been superseded by progress and the march of the constituent parts of the empire. That had been the practice in the past. Of these legal powers only the shell was left; the vitality had died out. Canada had certain well understood rights, but she had also imperial obligations, and the fault he found with the present government was that while it had been swift in the matter of greater freedom it had been remarkably slow in its efforts to link together the other parts of the empire.

"You have pushed forward your right to representation in foreign countries," said Sir George. "You have gone far towards opening up a full-fledged plenipotentiary arrangement with foreign powers, but I have yet to find out anything done or planned which would go to build up and keep this dominion in close touch with the United Kingdom and the other dominions."

Urges Caution.

In the course of his address, Sir George examined the government's financial position and urged caution in the matter of exhausting Canada's natural resources. No government he said, could leave out of its plans the possibility of the decrease of these resources. Canada had a right to use them for the present generation but the country had also

LAKEFIELD COUNCIL APPOINTS COMMITTEE ON FIRE PROTECTION

Councillors and Citizens Discuss Value of New Pumper.

WILL INVESTIGATE

Proposal to Put Matter to People is Advanced at Meeting.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 2. — A special meeting of the Municipal Council of Lakefield was held in the Council chamber on Monday evening, Jan. 30th, at 8 o'clock. There were present Reeve Tanner in the chair, Councillors Doidge, Harrison, Lillicrap and Tedford, also Fire Chief Gimblett of Peterborough, Mr. Ritchie of the Fire Marshall's office, Toronto, Fire Chief A. H. Clarke, Deputy Chief L. J. Charlton, Firemen S. A. Grylls and C. H. Hunter and a number of representative citizens.

The Reeve called the meeting to order and called on Fire Chief Allan H. Clarke to introduce the question for which the meeting was especially called.

Chief Clarke stated that he had asked for the meeting to be called in connection with the recommendation contained in his annual report that a triple combination pumper be purchased. "It is not necessary to say we need it, the need is obvious," he said. The Chief said he was not asking for personal favors, but the village stands in great need of more adequate fire protection. As far as the present equipment goes it is all right but it does not go far enough. There was a practical demonstration here on December 10th; the present system can handle small fires, but it cannot hold a big fire. It is a question of money, but we can burn the price of a pumper in a few minutes if a big fire gets going here," he said. "We have an arrangement with the Peterborough brigade who came to our assistance on December 10th. The cost of the machine came up two years ago and after the new motor was installed the insurance rates on residences were lowered. If further equipment is added and the brigade can make a showing there will be further reductions."

Fire Chief Gimblett, of Peterborough, was the next speaker. Chief Gimblett is of the same opinion which he expressed on the morning of December 10th after the fire was under control, that it was the duty of the council to supply the brigade with equipment so that they could handle a big fire and reiterated his recommendation of a 600 gallon pumper with at least three outlets. In Peterborough on Sunday at the fire the new pumper paid for itself over and over in the adjacent property which was saved. The arrangement with the Peterborough brigade is good, but if Lakefield had had a fire on Sunday they could have got no assistance from Peterborough, as the brigade was engaged. Because of the present condition of the roads the Peterborough pumper can not get through.

"There is no guarantee about insurance, but there is no doubt there will be a lower rate if a new pumper is put in. By all means increase the efficiency of the department and if you have occasions to lay hose lines arrange that it can be done quickly," he urged. The present pumper, the Chief said, is obsolete and he advised the appointment of a committee to consult with the Chief on this matmatter. The brigade is doing one of the finest bits of community service, taking their time, spoiling their clothes and risking their lives and health in their work to protect the community.

Mr. Ritchie of the Fire Marshall's Office, Toronto, was the next speaker. 'It is a pleasure to give a helping hand to any volunteer fire brigade," said Mr. Ritchie. "Firemen, whether volunteer or not, are performing a valuable service to the community. They take their lives in their hands and at recent fires, both in Peterborough and Lakefield, firemen have been injured. People may say, O yes, they are volunteer, but we pay them for every hour spent in fire fighting.' Yes, but they are underpaid for the risks they take of their lives and health, and are among the most public spirited citizens of the town, protecting not only their own property, but also yours, and also the lives of your citizens. Because you have never had any narrow escapes does not mean you never will have.

"Two children were smothered in Toronto on Sunday with smoke. If that happens here you don't want to feel that you failed the firemen. Let us learn our lessons from those who have suffered. The cost; well one gets nothing worth while for nothing, and Lakefield is singularly fortunate in only having to buy the pumper, as towns smaller than this, without a river flowing through, have spent $100,000 to get water several

HOUSE GUTTED BY SLOW FIRE

DAMAGE $1,500.

CAMPBELLFORD, February 2. — About eight o'clock on the evening of Friday, January 27, the Fire Department was called on to extinguish a chimney fire at Bert Gillespie's residence on Thirty-Foot Lane. At 3.15 yesterday afternoon, they received another call to the same place. This time the fire was more serious. The loss has been unofficially estimated as exceeding $1,500, but no official report has yet been put forward.

Smoke was issuing through the walls of the frame house when the Brigade arrived. About the eaves it was the thickest. Apparently there had been no one in the house for several hours, because the blaze was not of the nature that spreads rapidly and fiercely. It had eaten its way in between the ceiling and the floor of the upstairs, and burned out a large section of both. When the firemen forced an entrance through the front door, the smoke rolled out in dense clouds, but there was no easily discernible trace of flames. Chemicals were used at first as the men worked their way through to where there was a stove in the kitchen, but it was found that water would be necessary since the blaze had gained too much headway before the alarm had been given. It was a slow, methodical battle, and though not of immense proportions, the blaze was a stubborn one to subdue.

Some time after the firemen had arrived and taken over the situation, two sons of the family returned in response to a telephone call sent in by one of the neighbors. Mr. Gillespie arrived a few minutes later. In a little more than an hour, the firemen had completed their duties. The inside of the house is badly damaged both by fire and chemical, and it is believed that the loss will exceed fifteen hundred dollars. There is insurance to the amount of $1,500 on the building.

Springville

SPRINGVILLE, Feb. 1.—The many friends of Mrs. Allister Murray will regret to learn that she has been unfortunate enough to fall, breaking her arm between the elbow and shoulder. The Rev. Mr. McConnachie took her to Nichols Hospital where an X-ray was taken and the arm set. Mrs. Murray is at present with her niece, Mrs. Gillis, Rubidge street. We all join in wishing her a speedy recovery.

Mr. Joseph Staples and family have moved into their new home near Scott's Corners.

Mr. J. O. Ball is expected home this week. He and Mr. Jack Gillespie, Mr. T. Hooper motored to Florida for a three weeks' vacation.

The funeral of the late Ross Lillico took place on January 26th to Little Lake Cemetery.

The many friends of Mrs. Harry Brown will be glad to know that she is progressing favorably after her recent illness at Nichols Hospital, and is again able to be home. Mrs. Brown has not been in good health for over a year, but her friends hope for her recovery.

The Literary Society of Springville and Fairmount meet on Friday evenings in the Springville basement, where debates, singing and games make the evening a real treat to the rural people and we hope to see the membership roll increase as it brings the people together and helps to pass the winter for not only the young people but the old as well and has a tendency to make rural life more attractive for the young people.

Question Of Politics In Pan-Union Again Big Problem Before Conference

HAVANA, February 2 (Canadian Press). — The question of politics in the Pan-American Union came up yesterday more definitely than it has appeared so far in the two weeks of the Pan-American Conference here. For the second time the committee on re-organization of the Pan-American Union was asked to decide whether its report should take the form of a permanent treaty or of a resolution. When the question came up two days ago, Charles Evans Hughes, representing the United States on the the committee, suggested that the delegates could hardly decide that point until they knew just what they were committing their Governments to, and also what was the general trend of opinion in the conference.

When the question came up at yesterday's session, Gustave Guerrero, from Salvador, submitted that the committee should decide now whether its report would be a draft convention or merely a working code for the guidance of the governing board of the Union. In this sugestion, Senor Guerrero was supported by the Argentine, Peru, Mexico, Bolivia, Costa Rica, and San Domingo. Mr. Hughes, for the United States, repeated his suggestion that the "reporter" or spokesman for the committee, should go over the suggestion submitted for a draft convention and pick out those which seemed to have fundamental relations to the aims and the activities of the Pan-American Union before any final submissions were brought to vote. The proposals are before the committee, which adjourned yesterday before the debate was finished.

Cosgrave Outlines Policy of Free State At New York Dinner Tendered In His Honor

NEW YORK, N.Y., February 2 (Canadian Press). — Solid foundations, constitutionally, and internally, and economically, have been laid down for the Irish Free State since 1921 upon which future generations can build "a worthy edifice," William T. Cosgrave, Free State executive, declared last night. Speaking at a banquet tendered in his honor by the Mayor's committee for the reception of distinguished guests, Mr. Cosgrave said the principles of democracy enunciated by his country's great statesmen formed the basis of the Irish Free State constitution. In describing the function of his Government and its Civil Service, he said:

Mr. Cosgrave described the re-orginization of Government machinery in his country since the establishment of the Free State, and the progress that had been made along the lines of education, public works and agriculture. Touching on finances, he said the Free State's national debt is at present $38.00 per capita, or approximately one year's revenue, and taxation has been reduced from $52.50 to $32.50 per capita. The Free State now faces the future with a balanced budget and a stable currency, he said.

The Irish statesman declared he came to the United States to discharge a debt of gratitude, to convey a message of thanks from the Irish to the American people for the many favors thay had shown. Because of the welcome accorded him on his tour, however, "our debt is being daily added to." The encouragement he and the members of his official party had received from this visit, he continued, "will give us an immense impetus." The interest manifested in every city he had visited had been immense.

CONFESSES TO BRUTAL MURDER

Ex-Policeman Acknowledges He Dismembered Dead Body of Arthur Richard.

POLICE SEEK ACCOMPLICE.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 2 Canadian Press).—Jules Coulombe, ex-Montreal and Verdun policeman, confessed yesterday afternoon that he dismembered the dead body of Arthur Richard, aged 45, of Quebec, after killing him with his bare fists on the night of January 4 last, according to a statement made by the police late yesterday. Coulombe is serving a sentence in Bordeaux Jail at present.

The trunk of the victim was discovered yesterday morning on the roof of a shed in the rear of a two-storey house in the district where the self-confessed killer lived. Police are still searching for a woman said to have been known as Blanche, who lived with Coulombe, and whom is thought to have been the caues of the brawl between the two men which led to the murder.

OTHER CHAMPION COWS IN DISTRICT

W. F. Fallis and T. A. Brethen Have Had Record Producers.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 2.—The honor brought to Cavan Township through J. I. Seymour and Sons having in their herd of pure-bred Holstein-Fresian cattle, a cow which has a world record in butterfat production, and a Canadian championship in both milk and butterfat, on a 305-day test, with twice a day milking, has led to the recalling of the fact that this is not the first Holstein championship which has been won in this vicinity.

In 1915 W. Fred Fallis had in his herd of pure-bred Holsteins at 'Windermere Farm' a cow, "Mercena Calamity Posch", which held the Canadian championship for milk production, 26,448 pounds being her record in a 365-day test; this cow was milked four times a day for the first six months of the R.O.P. test, three times a day for five months, and twice a day in the last month; her butterfat production was 1,042¼ pounds over the period mentioned.

G. A. Brethen, of Norwood, was the next claimant for the cow with the championship record, one of his herd, "Rauwerd Count DeKol Lady Pauline", which was part of the time on the American R.O.P. test which differs in some particulars from the Canadian standard for Record of Performance, having the fine showing of 29,007 pounds of milk and 1,113 pounds of butterfat, in a 365-day test.

ADVOCATES NEW PEACE POLICY

Stresemann Appeals To France For Franco-German Understanding.

WANT CO-OPERATION.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—(A. P.)—Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany yesterday declared that all parties in the German Cabinet, including the Nationalists advocate a policy of Franco-German understanding and made an appeal to France to do her share to make this policy possible. "I have demanded evacuation of the Rhineland again and again in order thereby to make possible real conciliation and active co-operation between these two peoples," Dr. Stresemann told the Reichstag in a speech closing the two-day debate on the foreign office budget.

"There are no people which has so little interest in warlike complications and which, in the event of war, would so risk its very existence in Germany. The Locarno agreements are intended to clear the track for co-operation between all the nations concerned. Precisely because I wish that this idea of co-operation shall become the common property of the whole German people, do I, who always fought for this policy, consider myself entitled to warn the French nation—do your share so this policy may become the common property of the German people."

Then raising his voice, Foreign Minister Stresemann made the plea to France:

"Raise the iron curtain in the Rhineland which separates us, make it possible for an era of active co-operation and good will to ensue."

Asserting Germany's willingness to come to complete understanding with France, the Foreign Minister said that this doctrine had gained ground in Germany daily.

"The doubting voices in the Reichstag are isolated and do not represent the majority of the German people nor the Cabinet which unanimously stands for a policy of reconciliation," he declared. "Germany demands evacuation of the Rhineland for political and not material reasons, because she does not want this genertaion to fail to seize the opportunity for a Franco-German rapprochement."

In France also, the foreign minister asserted, the circle of adherents to this policy of rapprochement is constantly widening.

MARSHALL FOCH HEADS LIST

Will Be One of the Pallbearers at Funeral of Late Earl Haig.

THOUSANDS VIEW BODY.

LONDON, February 2 (Associated Press). — When the body of Field-Marshal Earl Haig, who commanded the mightiest Army Great Britain ever mustered, is taken to Westminster Abbey to-morrow, it will be borne on a historic gun-carriage—the carriage of the gun which fired the first British shell in the Great War, and the one that was used at the burial of the Unknown Soldier.

War widows and battle-maimed men trudged in the slow column which moved through St. Columba's Church last night past the Field-Marshal's bier.

All day long and until late at night, thousands of men, women, and children filed past the flag-draped coffin, guarded by tall, smartly-uniformed soldiers, whose heads were bowed, with hands resting on the hilts of inverted sabres.

Many in the solemn throng which paid farewell homage to the war chief were weeping, many brought bouquets of red poppies—memorials of the terrible, gallant Flanders' fighting and emblem of the beloved Field-Marshal's tireless efforts to aid the war's victims who still survive.

First to come to the church where the dead leader lay was Countess Haig her face obscured by a heavy veil. For a time she stood alone by the bier of her husband—then scattered poppies on the coffin, near the medals, the helmet, baton and sword of the Marshal.

As she departed the great gates opened to admit the first of the long line in which stood in rich furs and others in faded cloaks; men in silk hats and others with ragged caps in their hands.

To-day again the public will be permitted to pass the bier, and on Friday, after a memorial service at St. Columba's Church, the nation will honor its faithful servant by a funeral at Westminster Abbey. The body will then be taken to Glasgow, where it will lie in state from Saturday to Monday, before interment—the time has not yet been determined—at the Haig home at Bemersyde

Marshal Foch, generalissimo of the Allied and associated Armies in the World War, heads the list of distinguished soldiers, whom the War Office has announced as pall-bearers. They are: Marshal Foch of France, Field-Marshal Lord Methuen, Field-Marshal Sir Claude Jacob, Field-Marshal Sir William Robertson, General Lord Horne, General Sir Hugh Gough, General Sir Herbert Lawrence, General Lord Byng, Marshal of the Air Force, Sir Hugh Trenchard, Admiral Earl Jellicoe, Admiral Earl Beatty, General Baron de Ceuninck of the Belgian Army, Marshal Petain of France, and General Sir Ian Hamilton.

The King will be represented at the funeral by the Prince of Wales.

Bridesmaids who attempt to enter Buwell Parish Church, Nottingham, England, with heads uncovered, will be refused admission, according to a recent warning given by Rev. S. M. Wheeler, the rector.

ASPHODEL COUNCIL APPOINTMENTS

Will Advertise for Road Superintendent and Township Assessor.

WESTWOOD, Feb. 1.—The inaugural meeting of the municipal council of the Township of Asphodel was held on statuary date in the Town Hall, Westwood.

The members, after having signed the necessary declarations of office, took their seats as follows: Reeve, John Scott; Councillors, Adam Humphries, Lewis Beavis, James Brown, and Samuel Buck; tax collector, F. Gardner was present and stated that there were still some taxes unpaid.

On motion of L. Beavis and A. Humphries the time for returning the roll was extended until the April meeting.

On motion of A. Humphries and J. Brown, Fred Dodd was paid $5.00 for damages to car.

On motion of J. Brown and S. Buck the Reeve and clerk were authorized to sign and submit to the Minister of Public Work and Highways the petition of the corporation showing that during the year 1927 there had been expended for township roads $4,729.78, and asking for the statutory grant.

On motion of A. Humphries and J. Brown, the following appointments were made:

D. Drummond, caretaker town hall and memorial lot; auditors, Chas. McNulty and G. A. Humphries; school attendance officer, J. J. Fitzpatrick; sheep valuers, Chas. Finn, James Humphries, George Humphries and John F. Buck; Board of Education, J. H. Webster and John Marks; members of Cemetery Board, W. E. Pakenham.

The clerk was instructed to subscribe for copies of the Municipal World, also to procure dog tags.

The resignation of Gordon Girven, township road supervisor, was read to the council, and on motion of A. Humphries and L. Beavis, resignation was accepted.

Moved by L. Beavis, seconded by S. Buck, that a township road supervisor be advertised for, also an assessor and that the applications, stating salary expected, be received by the clerk not later than Feb. 11. Carried.

NO COMMUNICATION TO DUCK ISLANDS

Watertown Men May Be There, Owner Says—Two Men Live There.

KINGSTON, Ont., February 1 (Canadian Press). — Claude Cole, owner of Duck Islands, stated to-day he had heard rumors but had received no further information concerning the report that searchers in an airplane had sighted six men on Duck Island, and four of these were believed to be the four men missing since they left Watertown, N.Y., in the Sea Hawk more than a week ago.

Mr. Cole stated he keeps two men on the islands, and if anyone else was seen there they would possibly be the missing men. The islands are about twenty-five miles south-west of here, and there is no telephone communication with them. It is also believed the water between the islands and the mainland is not completely frozen over.

Aguascalientes, Mexico, is to have a modern moving picture theatre seating 2,900 persons.

"I am writing you again to express my sincere gratitude for the continued success I have maintained through my daily dose of Kruschen. Only last week a representative of a leading Insurance Co. met me (who saw me a few months ago when I was crippled with rheumatism). His first remark was how well I looked and how I could now move about. I replied, 'Yes, I have only Kruschen Salts to thank.' He remarked, 'Really?' I replied 'Certainly,' and he said he was feeling 'off colour' and would start the Kruschen habit next day.

"My business brings me in contact with scores of similar cases and I always recommend Kruschen Salts. I am writing this testimonial quite unsolicited and you may make what use you like of same. Wishing you every success."

Riding the girders—matching muscle against steel

But no stiff aching muscles for these construction men

WHETHER you're riding the girders a hundred feet up in the air, holding the drill, or tossing the red hot rivets—a construction man is using his muscles all day long.

Out in the open, too, mostly—sometimes in a biting wind or a chilling drizzle.

Unless you look out for yourself, your muscles are likely to get stiff and painful—or you find yourself laid up with a bad cold or an attack of rheumatism.

And yet, you'll notice, everywhere you go, that construction men are an especially fine, healthy-looking lot of men. We asked them what they do to keep in such splendid condition.

About half of them said, "Sloan's is our great standby."

It's the same everywhere on strenuous jobs

Active men and women on strenuous jobs all over the world have known for years that there is nothing like Sloan's Liniment for limbering up stiff muscles, for warding off the effects of exposure and for taking care of all sorts of minor injuries.

A painter tells this remarkable story of quick relief: "A severe pain came in my instep while I was on top of a roof painting. I was two and a half miles from home, and had to walk. How I suffered, no one knows. It was something terrible. A friend of mine gave me some Sloan's and by ten o'clock it commenced to quiet down and I rested well. The next morning I rubbed it on again. The way it hurt, I thought I never would be able to finish my paint job, but I went right out and walked the two and a half miles and the pain left me entirely and I finished my job." Frank Daton Hayes, St. Louis Park, Minn.

And read this story of relief from a painful injury:

"I tore a ligament loose in my hand. I tried other remedies, but none of them helped me, until I used Sloan's Liniment. It destroyed the pain completely. While I was trying other medicines I had to use my one hand, and by the time I found Sloan's it was very much fatigued so I applied Sloan's. In one-half hour it was all right. I wish you would inform everyone who is suffering. I cannot give Sloan's enough gratitude." Robert Whisler, 127 N. Benton St., Mansfield, Ohio.

Sloan's Liniment requires no tiresome rubbing. Just pat it on over the place where the pain is. At once you feel a pleasant, glowing warmth. Knotted tendons relax, stiffened joints limber up as fresh blood begins circulating through the aching spot. The pain stops because the cause is removed.

Get a bottle today—35 cents at all druggists. Then tonight, at the end of your day's work, try it and see for yourself what quick, genuine comfort it gives. Use it for:

Rheumatism Lame muscles
Sciatica Stiff neck
Lumbago Colds and congestions
Neuralgia
Sprains and bruises

Here's what a company doctor who cares for the ills of hundreds of working people every year says of Sloan's: "People whose work exposes them to strain or to damp and cold usually suffer from a good deal of muscular soreness. We find that Sloan's gives them quick, positive relief."

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD MEETING

Musical Program Given at Regular Meeting of Pontypool League.

PIE SOCIAL HELD.

PONTYPOOL, Feb. 2.—The regular meeting of the Young People's League was well attended on Thursday evening. The meeting was under the leadership of the Social Vice-President, Miss Mildred Delahaye. The Scripture reading was read by Mrs. R. Fowler, which was followed by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Boomhour. Community singing, songs by the Sloman-Parker family, readings by Miss Muriel Matchett, contests, etc., composed the evening's program. At the conclusion cake and coffee were served by the ladies. Proceeds for the meeting amounted to over $3. The contest (attendance) is proving very exciting, and the Orange Group, under John Payne, were victorious over the White Group, under M. E. Hinton. The result was: Orange, 22 points; White, 17, giving a lead of 12 points, with just one meeting more to finish the contest. The next meeting will be under the leadership of the Devotional Vice-President, Rev. Mr. Boomhour.

Pie Social.

The pie social in connection with the Ballyduff Presbyterian Church was fairly well attended, in spite of unfavorable weather. Rev. Mr. Walker, the pastor, was chairman for the evening, and was in his usual good form. A good program, consisting of dialogues by the Lotus and Ballyduff people; duet, "I'll Take Care of You, Grandma," by two children; readings, by Mr. J. Payne, and readings, by Miss M. Matchett. The pies were auctioned off by Mr. George Chapman and brought good prices, the total proceeds amounting to over $40.

News Briefs.

Rev. Mr. Boomhour's sermon on "A Christian's Attitude Towards Politics," was well given on Sunday evening. He gave a very interesting talk, which was listened to with considerable interest by a good audience.

The Ladies' Aid will hold their annual box social on Feb. 14. They are preparing a good program for the occasion.

Mr. Archie Masters has been confined to his home through illness.

At the JOURNEY'S END

You cannot ask for anything more refreshing than a cup of fragrant Seal Brand Coffee. Years ago travellers looked forward to it at the journey's end. To-day, tired business people expect to find it on the dinner table.

a duty to retain and reproduce them so that they should not fail in the future.

Sir George deplored that so much of the national revenue was derived from alcohol, indicating as it did that the government was taking money from an industry which operated towards diminishing efficiency.

He agreed in the references of the speech from the throne to the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee and said that its chief lesson was to inculcate into the young the pride and responsibilities of Canadian citizenship.

Sir George adjourned his speech for the presentation to Senator Dessaulles of the portrait of himself a ceremony that was carried out with the members of the House of Commons in attendance. Following this the Senate adjourned until to-morrow.

TURNING THE TRICK

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2.—"Turning the Trick," an amateur play put on in the Regent Theatre on Monday night by the young people of the parish of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, and under the auspices of St. Mary's Church, Campbellford, played to a most appreciative audience. The entire cast of eleven players are from the village of Hastings and displayed remarkable talent for their respective roles. The play is a three-act drama with a generous sprinkling of clean, wholesome humor that carries it along at a lively and interesting pace. After the play, the players were entertained at supper at the Clifton Tea Room, the Rev. Father Phelan, occupying the place of honor at the table. Everyone who was present at the theatre speaks in glowing terms of the excellent evening's entertainment which was offered them.

The cast:

Patrick Casey, retired conductor—John Doherty.

Mary Ann, his wife—Eva Doherty.

Michael Doherty, his son—David Walsh.

Kathleen Doherty, his daughter—Mary Coveney.

Maggie Doherty, his second daughter—Nellie Doherty.

George Drake, a family friend—Fred Barrie.

Eileen, the maid—Mary Walsh.

"Humpy" Steel, janitor — Louis English.

Jim Doherty, of the U.S. Treasury department—Daniel O'Sullivan.

Madame Anna Gairshy, a bolshevik lady—Mary Jones.

LAKEFIELD COUNCIL

miles. Let us learn from others. There is not only the danger of one house or one store being burned, but all the town. In Berkeley, Cal., a ten million dollar fire resulted from a grass fire. In one small town in Eastern Ontario forty-four buildings were burned, and in a village twenty-nine buildings were burned, and all because of the lack of adequate fire protection. In nearly every town or village in Ontario you find relics of fires. Each building burned represents a direct loss to some citizen and a loss of revenue to the town, for a pile of ashes pays no taxes, and if fire is allowed to play too much havoc it will keep people away from the town.

"In addition to the moral obligation to the citizens, every man who invests money in the town has the right to have his investment portected. In handling a fire it is essential that the brigade get to the fire early. An efficient alarm system help, but that is not all, for there must be equipment to follow it up with a ready response. After reaching the fire they must be able to put water on in sufficient quantity and force on all sides for water is only efficient when the volume and force is sufficient to acequately fight the fire. You have an arrangement with Peterborough, but if Chief Gimblett and his pumper had been here on Sunday, Peterborough woldu have made a howl."

Reeve Tanner remarked that they could be back in Peterborough in twenty minutes.

Mr. Ritchie replied that twenty minutes is a long time when a fire gets a start. He suggested that if the committee was formed that Chief Gimblett be asked to act in an advisory capacity, as he has lots of experience and could give valuable advice.

Reeve Tanner told of an arrangement made with the Canada Cement Company and now four streams of water are available if there were sufficient hose. A proposition has been made that a pump be put at the foot of Reid street, with a hydrant at the corner of Queen street.

Mr. Ritchie reminded the Reeve that the present pumper had twice broken down when it was most needed and that arrangement would serve only one section of the town.

Councillor Lillecrap said the present engine could take care of other fires.

Mr. Ritchie came back with: "The one which broke down in an emergency." He also said that by the time a main was put in with a pump and hydrant the cost would be little less than a large pumper.

Reeve Tanner said that if a large pumper was purchased it would be necessary to junk some of the smaller equipment as the fire hall would not hold it all.

Councillor Lillicrap stated that Kitchener, North Bay and Smith's Falls are all up against the same difficulty as Lakefield and have installed an 800 gallon Fairbanks-Morse pump for the congested districts. In Kitchener, they have just the pump and hose. Mr. Lillecrap was inclined to support the idea of the pump on Reid Street and the hydrant on Queen Street, and the present engine for the outside district. Mr. Lillecrap appreciates Mr. Clarke, who is a man above board in all his actions.

Mr. Ritchie assured the Council that the reduction in insurance rates was due to Mr. Clarke, who was highly thought of by the underwriters.

Mr. Clarke spoke of the use of the Canada Cement Company's pump on Thursday last, when they had 1,260 feet of hose on one line. The underwriters say not more than 800, preferably 500, feet in a residential area and 300 in the business section. A thousand feet of hose attached to a small pump [illegible] the pressure as does every hundred feet of hose added. The present engine is of only 263 gallons capacity and in a fire of any dimensions in the congested area, the pump can do only so much. On December 10th, with two lines of hose the fire could only be held on two sides, and on the other two sides it was getting away. The present equipment can be turned in and a triple combination pumper bought with booster tank to take the place of the chemical engine. The mercantile rates here are still too high, and Lakefield can expect no reduction till more up-to-date equipment is installed. Then the present engine depend on being drawn by horses and often when needed the village team is away in the country drawing gravel and is not available. Mr. Charlton has three trucks but they are not always in the village. The men have to wait for the pumper. The fire truck which can tow the chemical engine can get out in three minutes, whereas it takes seven minutes for the pumper.

Chief Gimblett did not recommend the idea of the pump on Reid Street. It is not feasible, he said. Pumping stations often run into more money than a pumper and there is less service to the community.

W. J. Charlton spoke briefly, announcing that he stood for better fire protection. He paid $2,000 in 1927 for insurance and felt that while the present equipment was all right in its day, it was now obsolete and he was greatly in favor of modern equipment. Mr. Charlton is one of the largest ratepayers.

Mr. Ritchie warned the meeting against dwelling too much on the insurance reductions. Better protection is worth what it costs whether the rate is cut or not. Insurance will not reimburse the town for the loss nor the owner to the full, for it means inconvenience and lack of continuity in business. When the village goes after protection and gets it, the rate will take care of itself. The safety of life is of greater value than that of property, and safety to life depends upon quick action and half a minute often means the difference between life and death.

Councillor Tedford said: "We have to crawl before we can walk, and I am no big ratepayer and don't want any great expense and I think this matter should go to the people. If they are in favor of the pumper, I am; for I believe in fire protection."

Councillor Harrison feels that the villagers placed the responsibility on the council for the protection of their property and it does not matter what other towns have, Lakefield should get the best it can. If fire came and children's lives were lost the Councillors could not forgive themselves that they had been negligent. Mr. Harrison is not in favor of unnecesary expense but sometimes people spend money to save money.

Councillor Doidge was not optimistic. He feels that a house which takes fire burns down; still he feels that there should be protection.

Mr. Lillecrap recalled a serious fire on the Main Street years ago, when the men of the village checked the flames on a cold winter day with a poor engine and no organized brigade. While Mr. Lillecrap was in favor of the pump on Reid Street, he fully agreed with the suggestion to appoint a committee.

Mr. Ritchie said that the Council can spend money up to a certain amount without going to the people and this provision is made because the Councillors are in a better position than the average ratepayers to know the situation and to act in the best interests of the town. The ratepayers are not always conversant with the situation, and if it is not brought to their attention may vote against a measure because it may raise their taxes a dollar or two and the town would be denied what it needs by that kind of vote.

Reeve Tanner said he thought Councillors Tedford and Harrison might have in mind the Biblical phrase: "All things are lawful, but all things are not expedient."

Chief Clarke spoke of the good shape the village is in financially, and in reply to Councillor Doidge said he could produce the record book which shows dozens of houses saved by prompt action. Forty calls were answered two years ago and thirty-five last year. In April last one of the worst fires in his experience was handled at the Imperial Oil tanks which might have meant the loss of many lives and thousands of dollars. He did not bring a petition on this matter to the Council on the advice of several large ratepayers.

In answer to Councillor Doidge's inquiry, as to the cost of new equipment, the Chief said that depends on what is bought. The cheapest is not always the best. Enough money was paid for the present pumper to buy a real one. It will have to go to the factory within two years anyway.

Reeve Tanner asked if the Chief would suggest keeping the present truck.

Chief Clarke said: "By all means, for we would not take the pumper to every chimney fire. If the Council does not see its way clear to keeping the small pumper, it could be turned in.

Councillor Lillecrap spoke of the visit made to Peterborough in connection with the arrangement with the Peterborough brigade for assistance in case of need. They were shown the equipment of the city station. The machine was in the streets in eight seconds and in less than twenty minutes they were in Lakefield and working, lending invaluable aid. "We can't expect them in Lakefield if they are needed in the city or in the present condition of the roads," he said.

The Council in looking for other assistance applied to the Canada Cement Company and received a courteous reply promising assistance, which was asked, within a week or ten days of receiving the reply. Mr. Lillecrap feels that a committee should be appointed and as the councillors are put in to use their judgment, he is not in favor of going to the people.

Councillor Tedford said: "I object to that; I think the people should be consulted.

Chief Gimblett suggested that the committee consist of the Reeve, the Fire Chief, and one Councillor, and he himself would gladly help in any way.

In reference to the fire on Thursday last, Mr. Clarke paid a tribute to the work of the brigade, for although the fire got away it had got a tremendous start before the alarm was turned in, but the boys spared no effort in their work.

Councillor Tedford corroborated this, as he was present and would heartily recommend their work.

It was moved by Councillors Tedford and Harrison: "That a committee consisting of the Reeve, Councillor Lillecrap and the Fire Chief, be appointed to investigate the question of fire equipment, and that they report fully to the Council as soon as possible." Carried.

60 YEARS MARRIED.

CAMPBELLFORD, February 1. — Mr. and Mrs. John aWtters, Trent River, are now entering upon their sixty-first year of married life. The sixtieth anniversary of their wedding was celebrated at their home on the twelfth day of last month, when the children and grandchildren, as well as about sixty guests, gathered to pay tribute to the fine old couple. Mr. and Mrs. Watters were married in Centreville on January 12, 1868, by Rev. Sherwood. For the first fifteen years of their married life, Mr. and Mrs. Watters resided in Camden. From there they removed to Trent River, where they have resided since that time. For several years Mr. Watters was engaged as a farmer, but for several years past, has held the position of bridge tender at Trent River. Their family group embraces two sons and two daughters, five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. The four generations were represented at the family re-union.

After dinner had been served and a certain amount of entertainment indulged in, the elderly bride and groom were presented with a purse of gold from the family, the names of three generations appearing among the signatures at the end of the presentation address.

"Dear Father and Mother and Grandparents,—On this, your sixtieth wedding anniversary day, we have come to join with you in celebrating this most happy event.

"We rejoice that God has spared your lives so long, and to us your relatives and friends. We feel that as God has honored you with life, it is a joy to us to observe His commands, namely, 'Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long in the land. But we esteem it a privilege to come together tonight. For it takes us back in our memories to our childhood days, and recall your patience, care, and love for us in all our childhood troubles. You were never too interested in other things that you could not attend to us. Nor too tired to attend to us; nor too tired to provide for our needs. We also recall the days when one by one we left you to establish homes of our own. At those times you made us feel that you had one supreme desire, and that was for us to go straight in life and do what was right. To you we owe more than we can tell. Therefore, to-day we want to lovingly express our gratitude and good wishes to you for what you have been and for what you have done for us. In our humble way, therefore, we extend to you our heartiest congratulations, also this purse, proof of our unfailing love and remembrance of all you have been to us. Praying that God's richest blessing may rest upon you. May your latter days be your brightest, being lighted by Him Who is the Light of the World.

"Ever your devoted children, nieces and nephews, P. K. Watters, R. E. Watters, E. J. Babcock, B. D Storey."

Mr. Watters replied to the address in a very suitable and appreciative manner. His sincere gratitude was appropriately expressed.

Wedding Bells

SHARPE—WEIR.

OMEMEE, Feb. 2.—A very quiet wedding of much interest was solemnized in All Saints' Church, Windsor, Saturday, January 21, at eight p.m., when Eva Mabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Weir, of Omemee, was united in marriage to Arthur Sharpe of Detroit, formerly of Peterborough.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was partaken of at the home of the groom's brother, Mr. Charles Sharpe, of 1237 Webb avenue, Detroit.

On Tuesday evening a number of Omemee and Detroit friends presented them with a miscellaneous shower, accompanied by a host of good wishes.

TAXING UTILITIES.

The Chamber of Commerce of Niagara Falls has passed a resolution for submission to the Ontario Government and the Hydro-Electric Commission of the Province asking that legislation be sought authorizing municipalities to collect taxes from publicly-owned utilities on the same basis as on other enterprises.

In such a proposal there is much logic.

The exemption of Hydro-Electric Commission property from taxation while private companies are taxed is undoubtedly not fair to private capital invested in power development, nor to the municipalities in which Hydro plants are located.

The Niagara Falls body, in bringing forward a proposal that should receive a large measure of popular support, shows itself to be awake to a situation that requires attention.

These utilities should pay their own way as private companies have to do if there is to be anything like a fair comparison between the operations of publicly-owned and privately-owned utilities.

The exemption they enjoy at present gives them an advantage that is not justified.

MR. GARDINER SPEAKS OUT.

The denunciation of the activities of Ku Klux Klan organizers in Saskatchewan by Premier Gardiner in the Legislature of that Province will be applauded by most Canadians who fail to see any reason for the existence in this country of an organization founded on religious and racial intolerance.

The Premier of Saskatchewan deserves thanks for his emphatic condemnation of the Klan, and his declaration that he, as leader of the Government, did not want the support of that kind of an organization.

The Ku Klux Klan is, of course, the off-shoot of a similar body that had its origin in the United States, where its under-cover operations and its influence have never had a beneficial effect.

We need no such organization in Canada, and public men like Mr. Gardiner are contributing a real service to the people of this country when they publicly denounce activities of bodies like these.

There may be some features of United States that we on this side of the line could profitably copy and adapt to our use, but the night-shirted, hooded Ku Klux Klan is not one of them.

OUTSTANDING SPEAKERS.

The Peterborough Boy Scouts' Association is fortunate in the speakers that have been secured for the Provincial conference which is to be held here on the 16th and 17th of this month.

The coming of Dr. George J. Fisher, who is the Deputy Chief Scout executive of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, will make the local conference one of outstanding importance.

Dr. Fisher's reputation as one of the leading authorities on the Continent in regard to physical and recreational education, a reputation gained during his long service as international physical work director of the Y.M.C.A., is a guarantee that his address here will be of the greatest interest and importance, while the committee has been equally fortunate in securing the services as a speaker of Judge H. S. Mott of the Juvenile Court of Toronto.

It is hoped that the presence of such celebrated speakers and the attendance of Scouts from all over the Province will contribute materially to a revival of interest on the part of Peterborough citizens generally in the development and welfare of the movement here.

A healthy Scout organization means a healthy boyhood, and the coming conference should do much to create more support for Scout work in this city.

GOOD WORK.

The reports presented at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Health Association, covering last year's activities, have been published in full by The Examiner, and it is hoped that they have been read by the citizens of Peterborough, because of the evidence they provide of the great work the organization is doing in this community.

The district nurse, it is noted, paid 1,450 visits during the year in providing care for obstetrical, medical, tuberculous and surgical patients, many of whom were visited several times daily.

The obstetrical cases alone last year totalled seventy-nine, and each of these patients was visited from ten to fourteen times after confinement.

There was not a death among these patients, from whom fees were collected only when the families were in a position to pay, and the value not only to the families but to the community at large of this nursing service can be readily seen.

During the year 5,138 quarts of milk and 184½ dozen eggs were provided to people who needed nourishment and were unable to pay for it.

The other chief branch of the Association's work, the children's camp, it is seen, had an average daily attendance of 63 children, and altogether 178 youngsters attended the camp.

"They all gained in weight and seemed stronger for their outing," says the report, modestly.

Isn't that work that deserves the support of the whole community?

FOR CANADA—

The speeches of the Premier and the new leader of the Opposition, and also the remarks of Mr. Robert Gardiner, leader of the United Farmers of Alberta group, in the Commons, at the opening of Parliament this week, constitute a happy omen for the general success of the present session.

It was Mr. Bennett's first appearance in the House in his new role as leader of the Conservative party, and Mr. King, in courteous and well-measured sentences, made suitable reference to the fact, stressing the importance of the Opposition leadership, congratulating Mr. Bennett on his elevation and paying high tribute to the Calgary man's ability and manifold qualifications for the position. Mr. Gardiner spoke along similar lines, emphasizing the fact that the Conservatives had found it desirable to again go to the West in seeking a man to lead a party that has its great strength in the East. To all these flattering and kindly references, Mr. Bennett made graceful reply, expressing his complete appreciation of the responsibilities of his new position, acknowledging his own defects and assuring the Speaker of his keen desire to perpetuate, in co-operation with the gentlemen opposite, the best traditions of parliamentary practice.

The three addresses appear to have been models of friendliness and good-will and should be read in full by the few remaining voters who cling to the idea that political leaders should always be at daggers drawn, and who still think that all the goodness is to be found in one party and all the badness in another. It is too much to expect, of course, that Mr. King, Mr. Bennett and Mr. Gardiner will always see alike on various questions as they arise. This would not be human nature. But there is every reason for believing, if these opening day speeches mean anything at all, that the men who are leading the various groups in the House of Commons are all imbued with the same general desire to do their best for the country, and that they are sufficiently broad-minded to find a common ground for action whenever the occasion warrants.

The average man is coming more and more to see that political parties mean really very little. The line of demarcation between Conservatism and Liberalism in this country is very thinly drawn. At times it is hardly visible to the naked eye. Partyism is, to a large extent, pure froth. More than anything else, it is a battle of the Ins and the Outs. Those who are out wish to get in and those who are in, desire to stay in. Consequently there is a great deal of shouting and beating of drums, and many hours of valuable time are consumed in orations about the grand old party and other flub-dub of this kind. It is entertaining, perhaps, but it costs a great deal of money, and it hasn't nearly the attraction for the vast majority of the people that it used to have a few years ago. The public eye has pierced the veil of mystery that used to surround the old parties. The shibboleths of other days are found to have a hollow sound. The parties are still with us, but their lines have become more and more elastic in exact ratio to the ever-growing number of voters who have no particular political affiliations.

The people of Canada are more interested in good government than in anything else. The fortunes of one party or another, or the success of this politician or that, make little difference to the average man. With us, of course, we always have the job-hunters, and it does make some difference to them which party happens to be in office. The number of job-hunters, however, is negligible. There is also, a certain percentage of the population that still clings to hide-bound partyism. If they are Conservatives they can see no virtue in Mr. King or any of his works. If they are Liberals they have a similar feelings toward Mr. Bennett and his colleagues. But the job-hunters and the old party people do not control election results. The latter are in the hands of the vast thousands of more or less independent voters. Many of the latter have political affiliations of one kind or another, but they are not of the narrow type referred to. They are primarily interested in the success of Canada and they will vote for the man or the platform that, in their opinion, is best calculated to advance the country's interests. It may be a Conservative platform today and a Liberal platform tomorrow. The name matters little. The quality, or the apparent quality, of the article means everything.

After all, is there any sane reason why the greatest business in Canada—the business of the people—should be conducted on anything but business lines? Is there any sane reason why fundamental business principles should be sacrificed to political expediency? Is there any sane reason why party considerations should come first and national considerations last? Is there any sane reason why the problems of the nation should not be approached as one would approach the problems arising in his own business?

More and more, the people of Canada are demanding sound business administration at Ottawa and in their Provincial Legislatures. The political shadow-boxing of other days has become out of date—because it doesn't mean anything and because it costs money that can come from only one source, the pockets of the people, and slowly, but surely, even the politicians are learning the lesson.—Border Cities Star.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, February 2 (Canadian Press). — The demand for cash grain here yesterday showed no improvement, and in consequence business was generally quiet, but the undertone was steady.

Owing to the continued indifferent attitude of both foreign and domestic buyers, the trade in spring wheat flour was again quiet. The winter wheat trade was also slow, but prices were unchanged.

A fairly active trade was done in all lines of millfeed, and values ruled steady. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet, but the undertone was firm.

The egg market continued active and firm. The receipts were 969 cases.

The inquiry for potatoes continued good and prices were unchanged. Sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were made at $1.20 per bag of 90 pounds; Prince Edward Island White potatoes at $1.15 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.10 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk; New Brunswick White potatoes at $1.05 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk; and Quebec varieties at 95c to $1.00 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The demand for imported beans was steady, and the tone of the market was firm. Car lots of choice white hand-picked were quoted at $2.90 per bushel, ex-track, and smaller quantities at $3.00 per bushel, ex-store.

Owing to the heavy stocks of creamery butter on spot and the reports that further arrivals are expected from New Zealand early in March, a weaker feeling developed yesterday, and prices were reduced ¼c per pound. Sales of broken lots were at 35c per pound. The receipts were 45 packages.

An easier feeling prevailed in the cheese market and values declined ¾c to 1c per pound. This was attributed to the small demand. The receipts were 52 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, February 2 (Canadian Press). — Grain took an all-around upward swing yesterday, with corn receipts everywhere curtailed and drought complaints from winter wheat territory increased. The wheat market advance here was aided by an unexpected rise in wheat quotations at Liverpool.

Wheat closed firm, ⅜c to 1⅛c net higher, corn ¼c to ⅞c up, oats showing ⅛c to ⅝c gain, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of the same extent.

In connection with persistent dry weather south-west, much significance was attached to reports that the outlook for grain had become so unfavorable as to make probable an increase of cotton planting to replace cereals. Low temperatures as well as drought complaints were also receiving greater notice as likely to bring about damage to domestic winter wheat. Word that stocks of wheat in Europe were diminishing tended further to lift the wheat market.

General falling-off in the volume of arrivals of corn despite favorable weather for movement of the crop, did much yesterday to keep the corn market pointing upward. Other bullish factors included talk that a big expert demand for corn was awaiting price recessions and that ocean freight rates were so much lower from the Atlantic seaboard that corn shipped east from here is considerably cheaper than via the Gulf of Mexico. Meanwhile, assertions that 43 per cent. of the Illinois corn crop and 51 per cent. of the Indiana cannot safely be carried into warm weather failed to act as much of an offset. Oats were firmer, sympathizing with corn and also with wheat.

Provisions rallied with grain, notwithstanding a setback in hog values.

NAMES ON WAR MEMORIAL.

The Editor of The Examiner.
Dear Sir:

I notice that in your list of names to be engraved on Peterborough's War Memorial you give the ranks of the men.

Is this correct?

Most of the war memorials give only the names, without "Private, Lieutenant, Corporal", etc., and it seems to me that this is the correct way. Every man whose name appears on the memorial certainly gave the same measure of service—life itself—and no distinction should be made.

I have no relative—or even friend—in the list of Peterborough's war dead, unless service in arms counts for friendship. My interest, therefore is not personal.

Yours truly,
ONE WHO CAME BACK.

RE TRIMMING TREES

Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir.—Would like to say a few words with regard to the letter in Tuesday evening's paper regarding cutting trees signed Robert F. Glover. We all know that in cases like this there is always some one that knows more or rather thinks he does than the parties engaged in the work. He, in his letter, states that anybody without experience should not attempt this work. I wonder where he learned that my father was not experienced in this work. I would like it understood that this work of trimming and pruning trees has been part of his occupation for the past twenty years. He also states the rope was far too small for the purpose. Probably he will be surprised to learn that this was one of the ropes used last summer and fall by the Davey tree experts from Ohio, who were in this city for some time. Also that I myself saw heavier limbs than that in question being lowered by these same ropes. As he was not on hand at the time of the accident I do not see how he believes we had no control of the rope. He does not know anything about what position the rope was in at the time of the accident and I think has written a very crude letter made up merely of surmises. Regarding ways of cutting the limbs, I would like it clearly understood that my father was familiar with all these things, and I myself know quite a little about pruning and trimming of trees. A man may cut a hundred trees and not have an accident, and he may also cut one and be fatally injured. More than one experienced man, as the writer of that letter claims he is, has met death this same way. In closing, I would like to again state that my father was thoroughly experienced in all that concerns tree trimming.

Respectfully yours,
J. GRIERSON.

Jinx Follows Sleigh-Ride Party

MARMORA, Feb. 2.—The sleighing party held by the senior A.Y.P.A. on Monday evening when the home of the President, Miss Annie Bailey, was the rendezvous, was attended with experiences which will implant it on the memories of all the participants for days to come. The party set out from the rectory at 7.30, a goodly sized sleigh and two cars being requisitioned to convey it to the destination in Marmora Township, six miles distant. The first sign of the presence of the jinx was seen when one of the horses stumbled about half a mile out of the village. With everything righted again, the sleigh restarted on its trip. Another half mile being covered, after taking the Goat Hill turn, in climbing a small grade, the crossbar became detached, releasing the tongue. With the impossibility of repairing the sleigh facing the party, members repaired to the nearest house and 'phoned to the residence of Mr. James Hughes, soliciting the use of his sleigh. A 'phone call was also sent to the President's home for the return of one of the cars. On receiving favorable reply, the pilgrims of the night followed the walking team to the farm a mile further, where, with utmost generosity, Mr. Hughes had his sleigh in readiness for the weary travellers. Without further mishap the tail end of the party arrived about 10.30 at the scene of the social.

A musical contest was put on in the evening's program at that point, followed by a choice supper. A short business session concluded the visit.

The return trip was made without the slightest misfortune and with no one downhearted over the altered plans which the double set-back occasioned.

Dare Storm To Get To Marmora Hotel

MARMORA, Feb. 2.—Marmora's Hotel Royal, as designated by its handsome brass lettering, has been the mecca this week of a goodly bevy of debonair salesmen. So fond have some of these knights of the road became of Marmora that their comfort in travelling there becomes a second consideration so long as the village is reached according to schedule. Leaving Belleville on Wednesday night by the bus which daily plys between that city and the marble village, four of the travelling fraternity, A. W. Richardson of Gunn's Limited, Thomas L. Thomson of The Bell Paper Company, V. A. Wilson of Neilson's Limited, and R. J. Brayford of Willard's Limited bucked drift after drift in what threaened to be a losing battle. After considerable shovelling the party finally reached T. J. Thompson's residence near Springbrook, having taken three hours to travel the eight miles from Stirling. The gallant effort to bring the bus through to its destination was given up at this point. The four salesmen, however, with courage born of hope, entered the sleigh procured by the bus driver and completed the remaining eight miles behind a pair of perspiring steeds. Reaching Marmora ere midnight struck, the optimist of the party gazed up and down the deserted streets. Their appearance, however, did not inspire him to any immediate ambition as he was heard to exclaim in a plaintive way: "This is one time business is at a standstill in the old town."

Bailieboro

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 2.—The weather was the coldest here on Monday morning that it has been during this winter. At eight o'clock the thermometer registered twenty-six below zero.

Roland Johnston, of Peterborough, spent Sunday the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Johnston.

Franklin Bannister and Laurence Dunbar, of Garden Hill, were visitors to the local Tuxis Square on Friday evening.

The motor traffic is very heavy now on Rice Lake as the lake offers the only course for the farmers east of the village to get to the Provincial highway. The snow on the side-road is too deep to travel through by motor. The bread trucks have been unable to travel over their routes during the past week.

Mr. Norman Jewison sold a valuable horse to Mr. Harry Patterson, of Millbrook, last week.

A number of the farmers residing off the highway have stored their automobiles in the village and intend using them all winter on the highway.

Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Marling and Mrs. Stuart were joint hostesses at bridge at Mrs. Stuart's home on Friday evening. Mrs. C. E. Strickland and Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald were the prize winners.

Miss Lilian Mason entertained a number of girl friends on Friday evening, the occasion being her thirteenth birthday. The girls all spent a very pleasant time in games and contests.

The Badminton Club will hold their second dance of the season on Thursday evening, February 2nd, in the Memorial Hall.

Eleven tables of euchre were played at the A.Y.P.A. party on Thursday night. Prizes were won by Mrs. Lake and Mr. William Hamblin. Miss Hampton and Mr. Petrie won the consolation prizes.

Buckhorn

BUCKHORN, Feb. 2.—Dr. E. E. Willis, educated in London, Cambridge, Edinburgh and Glasgow in the Old Country, beside holding the diploma of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario. He served at sea and abroad four years during the war. Dr. E. E. Willis arrived in Buckhorn by stage Tuesday and the residents of the village were pleased to know that Dr. Willis had come here to open an office at Mr. H. W. Pearson's residence. It is understood that his wife and daughter will be joining the doctor in the near future, and as Mrs. Willis is a highly qualified maternity nurse she should be a great help to the doctor, and the residents of the surrounding country.

The Buckhorn stage could not make Lakefield on Wednesday as the roads were impassable from the snow and wind storm that has been raging here for the past two days, but we hope to see the stage going soon. The Stock's Bread Co. of Peterboro was the last car to run from Buckhorn to Peterboro.

WOOD-CUTTER IS BADLY HURT

Harold Petherick Cut on the Forehead When Tree Kicks Back.

INJURY NOT SERIOUS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2.— Harold Petherick, aged 20, met with a painful accident Tuesday afternoon when struck by a falling tree. He sustained a severe laceration of the forehead which required several stitches, but was otherwise not seriously injured.

Petherick along with some other men, was engaged in cutting wood on the Leviscomte farm near Bradley Bay about five miles south of Campbellford. The large tree which they had just felled, lodged against a smaller maple and Petherick went up to remedy the trouble. In some manner the tree kicked back and struck him in the forehead, inflicting a grievious wound.

His fellow workmen at once improvised a stretcher and carried Petherick to the road where they summoned medical assistance. Late yesterday, it was considered that while the wound was severe, it was not of a terribly serious nature and the injured man is resting as comfortably as can be expected.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BEAR'S TICKLER

Uncle Wiggily stood in the snow, near the place where the wind had broken off the Tall Weed with its feathery top like a duster. The rabbit gentleman listened to a growling that seemed to come from beneath the snow, as I told you in the story last night.

"I guess it was the wind," said Mr. Longears to himself as he held the proud weed up the better to look at the feathery bunch on the end. The Tall Weed had been very proud until the wind broke it off. Now the Weed was sad and humble. "That wasn't a growl I heard," said Uncle Wiggily with a sigh of relief as he made ready to hop to his bungalow. "It was only the wind."

"It was NOT the wind!" suddenly growled a voice beneath the snow.

"Wha-wha-what was that?" stammered the rabbit.

"I said it wasn't the wind!" went on the voice.

"Then was it—I beg your pardon, really I do," half whispered Mr. Longears, "but was it—could it have been er—a—growl?"

"It could have been a growl," was the snarling answer, "and, what is more, I am the GROWLER!" And with that there was a scattering of snow and out from beneath the white drift popped a big, black Bear.

Shaking off the snow that clung to his shaggy fur, the Bear looked at Uncle Wiggily, who stood there holding the feathery weed, not knowing what to do. Then the shaggy bad chap opened his mouth and growled:

"What are you bothering around my den for, picking my flowers?"

"Excuse me," spoke Uncle Wiggily as politely as he knew how, "but I don't see your den, so I don't believe I could have been bothering around it, really I don't!"

"Little it matters to me what you believe," sneered the Bear. "I tell you my den is down there, under the snow. You can't see it because the drift covers it. But I was asleep in my den under the snow and I heard you tramping around over my head and it awakened me. Now I am awake, I am hungry and your ears look very good to eat."

The Bear glared at the rabbit's ears, and Uncle Wiggily, knowing it was his turn to speak, said:

"Excuse me again, if you please, but I'm afraid you will find my ears very tough. Oh, most certainly tough!"

"I like tough ears!" growled the Bear. "I'm hungry, I tell you!"

Uncle Wiggily thought perhaps he had better talk of something else, so he said:

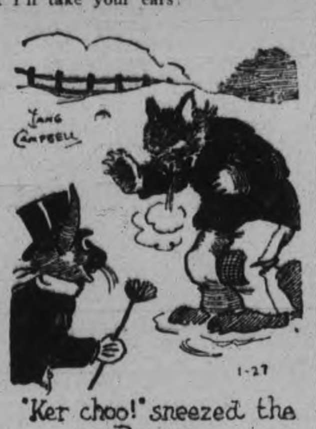
"Maybe I did tramp around over your den, Mr. Bear, but I didn't mean to, and I am sorry for having awakened you. But surely I didn't pick any of your flowers, for this is winter and flowers don't grow now. So you made a mistake when you said I picked your blossoms."

"What's that?" growled the Bear, pointing one paw, with its long claws, at the tail, feathery tipped weed in Uncle Wiggily's paw. "What do you call that?"

For a moment the rabbit gentleman did not answer. He didn't know what to say. Truly enough he had picked up the broken stem.

"But this isn't a flower!" suddenly exclaimed Mr. Longears.

"No? What is it then?" sneered the Bear. "It's mine, for it was growing near my den. You picked it, for you have it in your paw now. I say it is one of my flowers and, just for taking it I'll take your ears!"



"Ker choo!" sneezed the Bear.

Suddenly the once proud Tall Weed whispered to the rabbit.

"Tickle the Bear's nose with me! That will make him sneeze and when he is sneezing you can hop away."

"Good!" I'll do it!" said the rabbit in a low voice.

Then Uncle Wiggily laughed ha! ha! and ho! ho! and exclaimed:

"You call this a flower, Mr. Bear? You must be crazy! This is a weed that the wind broke off because it was too tall. It is a weed, but I am going to turn it into a Bear's Tickler!" With that Uncle Wiggily thrust the weed into the Bear's face and tickled his nose with it.

"Ouch! Wow! Ker choo! Ker foo! Ker snitzio!" sneezed the Bear, and he sneezed so hard that tears came into his eyes and he couldn't see. So Uncle Wiggily had a chance to hop safely away, which he did, taking the Tall Weed with him.

"Thank you for telling me what to do to save my ears," said the rabbit to the weed. "I shall take you to my bungalow where Nurse Jane will make a Piano Duster of you for you are soft and feathery."

"Ah," said the Tall Weed with something of his old, proud air. "I always knew I would have a musical life, somehow." And he did. He became prouder than ever, when used to dust the piano, but as there were no other weeds in the bungalow it didn't matter. And he lived happily.

INITIAL TEAS COMMENCED

St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid Begins Popular Series of Socials.

GREAT SUCCESS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2. — The first of the series of Initial Teas held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, took place in the church Sunday school room on Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. The ladies whose initial began with A, B, C or D were responsible for the arrangement of the intials of the entertainment generally. William Pearson, A. L.C.M., organist of the church, was largely responsible for the excellent program. There were over two hundred paid admissions which brought the proceeds up to $50.85.

As an introduction to the program, the Rev. James Grier, chairman, brifely addressed the audience, welcoming them and expressing the hope that they would be pleased with the program which was to be presented. At the close of the program, Mr. Grier took the opportunity to thank those who had assisted with the program and particularly those who, though members of another church, had so generously given of their talent. Nor did Mr. Grier neglect Frank DeCarrol who had given his expert services to the church during the rewiring operations. Mr. DeCarroll, rising when requested by Mr. Grier, received the applause of the evening.

After the program, lunch was served. Sandwiches, dill pickles, cake and coffee were the main items on the bill of fare. The program:

Selection— Frances Anderson and the Misses Blue, Hawaiian guitars.

Solo—Miss E. Meiklejohn, Golden Dancing Days (Clarke).

Recitation—Miss Marjorie Ackerman, You (Edgar Guest).

Piano duet— Miss Cherry Turner, Miss Irene Stephens, Imps Revels.

Recitation—Miss Lilian Hay, Wakin' Up (Anderson).

Solo—Miss Cherrie Turner, In the Heart of the Hills.

Violin—Cecil Searles, First Liebesfreud Refrain (Kreisler).

Solo—Mrs. Frank DeCarroll, Kashmiri song.

Selection— The Misses Blue, Hawaiian instrumental medley of popular Hawaiian airs.

Each number on the program was heartily applauded and encored. Miss Turner's solo with a piano accompaniment and a violin obligato was particularly pleasing.

SOLVE THIS PROBLEM.

Simply add together all of the numbers shown below, just as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column. There are no combinations. All are single figures running from two to nine, and each figure is clearly indicated, the sixes having a curved stem and the nines a straight stem. Do not count the two L's in "Dolly" as two 7's.

NO ONE KNOWS THE CORRECT ANSWER.

To make certain that no one knows the correct answer and to guarantee every contestant an equal chance to win, several figures were removed, by different persons at different times, from the original drawing before it was printed. Each person noted on a slip of paper the total of the numbers he erased, enclosed it in an envelope and sealed it, and these envelopes, along with an envelope containing the original total, were deposited in the safety deposit vaults of the Capital Trust Co. at Toronto, from whom no one can get them until the contest closes The correct answer now is the sum total of all the figures appearing in the puzzle below, and what this is no one will know until the envelopes have been opened and the total of the figures removed subtracted from the original total by the judges, of whom there are three.

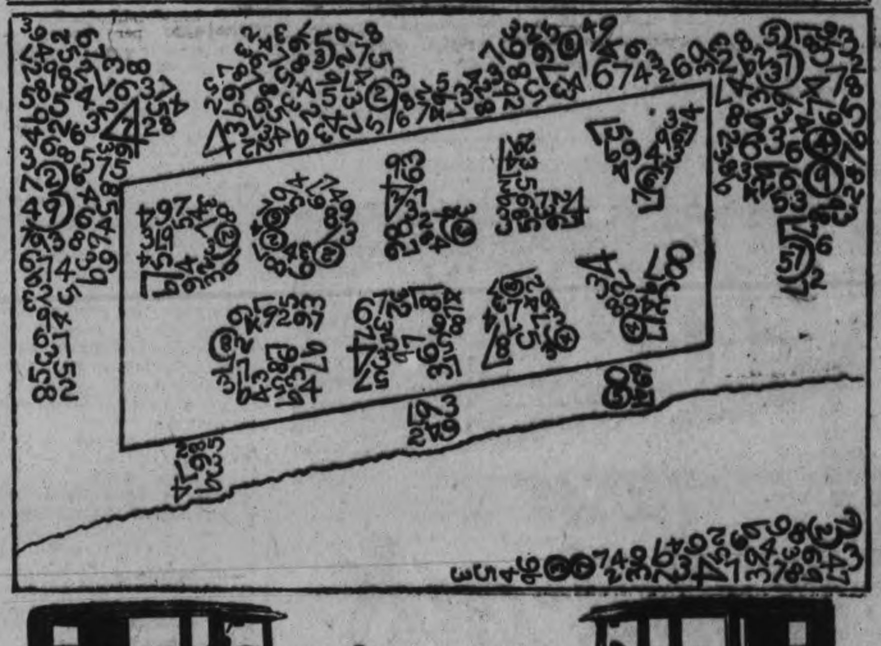
(1) A well-known Church of England clergyman.

(2) A Toronto High School teacher.

(3) A Chartered Accountant, formerly with two of the largest departmental stores and mail order firms in Canada.

There are no tricks to or hidden figures in this contest. It is purely and simply a matter of skill in finding all the numbers shown and then adding them correctly, and the degree of skill and care you use will determine the prize you will win.

The only requirements for entry and to qualify for the prizes are those listed here. YOU WILL NOTE THAT THERE IS NOTHING WHATEVER FOR YOU TO SELL. The rules are simple. Read them carefully now and avoid misunderstanding and confusion later.



FIRST PRIZE—Chrysler Four coach sedan. Without a doubt the finest powered and most beautiful-looking car in its class. Has a pick-up of from 5 to 25 miles per hour in eight seconds, and a speed of 50 miles per hour. Exquisitely upholstered, distinctively smart, wonderfully smooth riding, and built to ride the roughest roads. Value, $1,065.00, plus bonuses noted in prize list.

FIRST PRIZE—Chevrolet Coach Sedan—a car that anyone would be proud to drive. Body by Fisher in the latest and most pleasing color combinations, beautifully upholstered, roomy, smooth riding and easy to drive on any road. Value $850.00, plus cash bonuses noted in prize list.

THE PURPOSE OF THIS CONTEST

The main purpose of this Contest is to advertise and introduce into every home in the Province the only thing we sell—DOLLY GRAY Silk Stockings—and to accomplish our purpose we have adopted what we think is the most amazing advertising idea that has ever been used in connection with Women's Silk Hosiery.

There are no tricks to this Contest. No conditions for you to meet except those shown in this folder. No selling. No trick figures. Nothing except that you are required to answer the puzzle, and, with your answer, send in an order for our Silk Stockings.

The prizes, or their equivalent in cash, as described elsewhere on this page, will positively be given away without strings of any kind attached whatever. Contestants will not be required to buy or sell anything further in order to secure the prize they win.

If any of the figures in the puzzle are not perfectly clear to you, write to our Contest Department about them before sending in your answer. No answers may be changed after we receive them. New answers must be accompanied by a new order for stockings in accordance with the rules.

We guarantee every pair we sell.

A WORD ABOUT DOLLY GRAY SILK STOCKINGS

Throughout the country—from Nova Scotia to British Columbia, from the border to the Yukon—thousands and thousands of women in all walks of life are enjoying the luxury of Carefree silk stockings—stockings that don't easily rip or run from the hem; that don't easily get "holey" at the heels and toes; that don't rip or run when they are slipped off or on; that look smart always; that embarrass—never.

Such are DOLLY GRAY, one of the best known and most widely worn good silk stockings made in Canada.

Made of soft, lustrous, service-weight silk, in the newest and most exquisite colors by the largest mills in Canada; with a double ladder or run-stop on a four-inch elastic hem; reinforced soles and heels; shaped ankles; seamed at back and form-fashioned to fit well and wear well, DOLLY GRAY Silk Stockings are in a class by themselves.

We are the largest mail order house in Canada Selling Women's Silk Stockings only. We sell as many pairs in one day as most retail merchants sell in one month.

THE DOLLY GRAY KNIT GOODS CO.

is owned and controlled entirely by born-in-Canada Canadians, and we have satisfied authorities who have enquired that our resources are ample to carry out this contest successfully.

READ THESE SIMPLE RULES CAREFULLY

1. Anyone except (a) employes of The Dolly Gray Knit Goods Co. and their immediate families, (b) the judges and their immediate families, may enter this contest and compete for the prizes.

2. Entries must be accompanied by at least $3.00 for two pairs of Dolly Gray silk stockings, $4.00 for three pairs or $5.00 for four pairs. By looking at the list of prizes now you will notice how the value of your prize is increased and the cost of your silk stockings decreased when you order more than two pairs.

3. A contestant may solicit orders from friends if he or she wishes, and for such orders will be entitled to submit solutions of the puzzle. Friends who order through a contestant may also submit solutions of the puzzle.

4. No solutions will be accepted unless accompanied by a cash order. All solutions are recorded and none can be altered once they are received.

5. Contestants need not send in the full amount of money required at any one time. For instance, a contestant intending to win the Packard Car and the bonus, may send in a $3.00 order with his or her solution and later on an order for the balance necessary to qualify for the Packard. Accurate records are kept and every time a contestant sends in a remittance, the amount of it will be added to what the contestant already has to his or her credit.

6. Contestants may send in a different solution of the puzzle each time they make a remittance, but only one correct answer will be awarded a prize.

7. All money orders and cheques must be made payable to The Dolly Gray Knit Goods Company, Cheques must be marked and include exchange. Acknowledgments will be made at once and stockings forwarded as soon as they reach us from the mills.

8. Every effort has been made to show each figure clearly. If in doubt about any figures do not attempt to send in a solution, but send in the puzzle with a ring around the figure that is giving you trouble and our Contest Department will be glad to tell you by return mail what it is.

9. Contestants may have as many puzzle forms as they wish free, by writing to our Contest Department, care of P.O. Box 392, Toronto.

10. If no contestant sends in the correct answer, prizes will be awarded for the nearest correct solutions.

11. Should more than one contestant send in the correct answer, a simple tie-breaker requiring skill only for its solution will be sent to each contestant concerned. Only those tieing will receive this second problem, and NO MONEY WILL BE REQUIRED OR ACCEPTED FROM THOSE REQUIRED TO SOLVE IT. NOR WILL YOU BE ASKED TO SELL OR BUY ANYTHING.

12. The closing date of the contest is February 20, 1928. Solutions postmarked as having been mailed after that date will be returned unaccepted. Contestants are advised, however, to send in their solutions as early as possible and win the special prizes offered for early solutions.

13. The Dolly Gray Knit Goods Company reserves the right to reject any entry they deem undesirable to accept, and to return all money received with such entries.

14. Contestants in entering this contest agree to abide by the rules and regulations herein set forth and to accept the decision of the judges as being final.

MINES.

F. G. Oke and Company wire as follows:

TORONTO, Feb. 2.— For the most part prices did not show much change over yesterday's close and in general those stocks regarded as market leaders held fairly steady. Advances were made by Bidgood.

Opening this morning 15 points above yesterday's close and then gradually eased off to around 76c. per share. Also Arno showed an appreciable gain, selling as high as 37c. but later lost most of this gain.

On the other hand, Kirkland Lake Gold opened up 12 cents below yesterday's closing price and sold off gradually to $1.96 bringing out a large volume of stock.

The most severe decline of this morning's market was in shares of Gold Hill, which sold as low as 20 cents, showing a net loss of 8 cents per share on opening prices. A reason is sought for this sharp decline in Gold Hill but apparently no news was available on the street. Judging by the way the selling came out, it appears as though some large block of the stock was liquidated quickly and so some reaction in price to more favorable prices may be anticipated.

Teck Hughes are reported to have located ore widths of 12-ft. running as high as $40.00 per ton on the 19th level—at a depth of 2,230 ft. Also another very favorable feature regarding the ore deposition at this horizon is the strong indication that this ore being developed is in the south section of the ore zone. We are informed that a north section is evident which is to be explored as soon as possible, signifying that more extensive and profuse ore deposition may be expected as greater depth is attained. Daily milling capacity is stated to be around 850 tons from which a revenue of approximately $400,000 per month is being obtained. A further 300-ton milling unit is expected to be added to milling capacity during 1928 which will likely bring annual production to approximately $7,000,000. With such splendid profits in view and estimates of ore reserves to a depth of only 2,230 ft. of between $60,000,000 to $80,000,000, the recent market action of the stock does not seem justified. This is only one instance of market action being greatly opposed to the splendid developments at the mines of the north country and no doubt sooner or later, prices will re-establish themselves to levels more in keeping with mine values and developments.

Kirkland Lake Shares Lead Miens Downward

TORONTO, Feb. 2. — (Canadian Press.)—Kirkland Lake stocks were sold down again on the standard exchange to-day despite good reports from Bidgood, which made that stock the feature of the day. Bidgood sold up 13 points at 86 in the first few minutes but slipped back with the rest of the group and closed at 75 bid, up two points from yesterday. Kirkland Lake went down to 195, a loss of eleven. Beaver lost nine at 168, while Teck Hughes was steady. Wright Hargreaves firmed nine at 5.60. Some of the cheaper issues lost sharply, Gold Hill selling down to 20 for a loss of eight points and Granada and Lebel Oro also declining.

Trend Easier To-day With Seagrams Leading

TORONTO, February 2 (Canadian Press)—The break in Seagrams came to-day, the stock being hammered down to 22 on the Toronto Stock Exchange in heavy trading this morning. It recovered to 24, however, at noon, a net loss of three points. The whole list tended easier, despite occasional firm features. One of the latter was King Edward Hotel, up three at 58, and another was Northern Bakeries, up 1¼ at 49¼. The liquors as a whole were steady, though Walkers at 62¾ and Carlings at 37¾ were fractionally lower. The oils were easier, Imperial losing one at 61 and British American fractionally losing at 37½. Massey Harris at 42 and Brompton at 67½ were both a point lower in the general list, and two point drops were recorded by Christie Brown and Loblaw Common. Page Hersey was a firm feature of the regulars with a gain of 2½ at 100½. In the active bank section, Standard led with a two point gain at 260.

Gains In Majority In New York Today

dian Press). — Major speculative activity in to-day's stock market was again on the up side, although weakness cropped out in oils, most of which sank to a new low ground, and some of the minor specialties. Violent advances again took place in a number of business appliance, public utilities, and independent steel shares.. Motor and baking issues also presented several points of strength.

Despite the continuance of the 3½ per cent. re discount rate by the Philadelphia, Boston and St. Louis Federal Reserve Banks, some uneasiness was still apparent over the credit situation. Call money dropped from 4½ to 4 per cent. as the February dividend and interest disbursements returned to the banks. The directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank hold their weekly meeting after the close of the market.

Weakness At Liverpool Sends Wheat Price Down

CHICAGO, Feb. 2. — (Canadian Press.) — Unexpected weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool, together with predictions of ir[illegible]ing shipments from Argentina, gave an early downward trend to-day to wheat values here. Corn prices were also easier, owing largely to favorable weather for the corn crop movement. Opening at 1-8c. to 1-2c. lower, Chicago wheat held near to the initial figures. Corn started unchanged to 1-4c. off and later showed a slight general set back, with oats likewise inclined downward. Opening prices were:

Wheat, March 130, May 130 5-8. Corn, March 89 1-4, May 91 5-8. Oats, March 34 7-8, May 55 5-8.

This Day In Parliament.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—To-day the Senate will sit. In the Commons the debate will be resumed by E. J. Garland (U.F.A., Bow River).

Yesterday in the Senate a bill to give divorce courts to Ontario was read a second time. Sir George Foster continued the debate on the Address. Senator Dessaults was presented with a portrait. In the Commons the following speakers took part in the debate on the Address: J. F. Pouliot (Liberal, Temiscouata), Peter McGibbon (Conservative, Muskoka, Ont.), John Evans (Progressive, Rosetown), and T. L. Church (Conservative, Toronto North-West).

Obituary

MRS MERTON STOREY.

The death took place in Peterboro, on Thursday, February 2, 1928, of Abbigal Daniels, wife of Merton Storey, in her 39th year. She leaves to mourn, a sorrowing husband, one son Reginald, and three sisters, Mrs Goheen, Mrs. Curtis and Mrs. Yeoman—all of Toronto. One brother, C. W. Daniels of Cobourg, also survives.

The funeral will be held from the family residence, 531 Aylmer Street, on Saturday, Feb. 4, at 2 p.m., to the Little Lake cemetery, with the Rev. Mr. Todd officiating.

JOSEPH GRIERSON.

The funeral of the late Joseph Grierson took place from the family residence, 258 Rogers street last Monday to the Little Lake Cemetery. A large number of friends, members of the Sons of Scotland, and Caledonians followed the remains to the graveside.

The Rev. Mr. Bousfield, St. Luke's, read impressive services at the home, and also at the cemetery. The Sons of Scotland had the casket draped with the Scottish standard, and they read their funeral service over their late Past Chief, after which each placed a sprig of evergreen on the casket as a token of remembrance.

Many beautiful floral tributes were in evidence testifying to the high esteem in which the late Mr. Grierson was held in the community, and much sympathy was expressed for the widow and family.

Messrs. H. Hendry, T. F. McArthur, A. Clark, R. Veitch, G. G. Low and J. B. Millar were the pall bearers.

I.O.D.E. OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Mrs. F. L. Robinson Becomes Regent of Otonabee Chapter.

Election of officers for the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. took place yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. and resulted as follows:

Regent, Mrs. F. L. Robinson; 1st Vice Regent, Mrs. C. A. White; 2nd Vice Regent, Miss M. Archer; Secretary, Mrs. J. Cameron; Treasurer, Mrs. J. A. Robinson; Standard Bearer, Mrs. J. P. Pulkinghorn; Educational Secretary, Mrs. F. H. Dearborn; Echoes Secretary, Mrs. J. A. Aylmer; Councillors: Mrs. T. C. Eliot, Mrs. H. W. Darcy, Mrs. R. Harstone, Mrs. K. S. Wightman, Mrs. D. R. Fleming, Mrs. M. N. Clark, Mrs A. Murphy, Mrs. G. H. Roper, Mrs. H. Beal and Mrs. Wm. Comstock. Mrs. E. B. Clegg was nominated as Provincial Councillor and Mrs. D. L. McLaren of Toronto as National Councillor.

The retiring regent, Miss S. A. Tomkins, thanked the officers and members for their support and co-operation during her term as regent, and asked for the same generous treatment for the incoming regent and executive. The newly-elected regent, Mrs. F. L. Robinson, spoke of Miss Tomkins' energetic endeavors to further the good work of the organization, and a vote of appreciation was passed by the ladies.

The report of the treasurer, Mrs. J. A. Robinson, will appear in full in tomorrow's issue. Mrs. W. J. Stacey gave the annual report, outlining the work during the past twelvemonth. Seven new members were admitted during the year and the programs of the monthly meetings were featured by musical selections and by various addresses. Magazines were sent by members to five rural schools and the society took a prominent part in the Diamond Jubilee celebrations. The sum of $90 was donated toward assistance to pupils in local schools and contributions were made to the Sailors' Mission and the Navy League, books being sent to the latter at Christmas time, in addition.

A donation was also made to the memorial fund for the late Mrs. Clarke Murray. The sum of $100 was sent to the Armenian home, $101.10 was donated to the Well Babies' Clinic and the members, by individual contributions, gave $5.60 to the National War Memorial Fund.

IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES

ST. ANDREW'S UNITED CHURCH.

Rev. David Wren of Trinity Church, who spoke in St. Andrew's Church Sunday morning in the interests of the Bible Society, said in part:

"We are to think today upon the work of the Bible Society, one of the organizations of the church, which, next to the Missionary Society, is one of the greatest institutions of the world. In the past 100 years this organization has seen its work grow from 30 translations until today the Bible is translated in more than 600 languages and dialects. Nine-tenths of the world today have the book printed in their own tongue. The Bible Society has supplied over 40 Missionary Societies with the Scriptures, and in Canada alone over 110 languages have been interpreted and translated into the word of God, thus making a great contribution to the work of the church in supplying the Scriptures to all who come to our shores.

"The Bible," Mr. Wren said, "was the most marvelous thing ever submitted for human inspection. It lies before us like an ocean boundless and unfathomable, like a mountain whose summit no foot of man hath trod, and whose foundation is in the undiscovered heart of God. It answers life's great questions, 'What am I?', 'Whence did I come?', 'What am I here for?', 'Whither am I going?' The mission of the Book is to set forth the ways of God with men.

"Our life is like a journey for which we need a chart, a compass and a light. The Psalmist said, 'Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a guide unto my path.' There is no other book to which we are so much indebted. It is here that poetry has its birth. To this stream have come Dante, Tennyson, Wordsworth, Bryant, Longfellow and Whittier. From it great prose writers have gathered their inspiration, such as Dickens, Scott, Hugo and Emmerson. From it music has found its song. We think of the Mendelssohns, Beethovens, Handels and Mozarts. The Bible is most unique and wonderful. Some things about it interests us.

"We think of its authorship. The Book was written by the best men, in their best mood, and they belonged to the best nations in their greatest epoch. Of them we read. Holy men of God wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. We are not concerned as to your particular theory of inspiration, but of this we are sure it is God's Book. Some things impress us as to the genuineness of its authorship. In the first place, it gives a true mirror of mankind. When man writes biography it is not always true, but in God's Book man is pictured no greater, no less, no better, no worse than he really is.

"In the second place, the Bible bears the mark of divine authorship because of its prophecy. The Book foretells things, and so long as Babylon, is in runs, Ninevah lies empty and waste, Egypt is the basest of kingdoms, Israel is scattered among the nations of the earth, and great empires march in their predicted courses, so long will we have proof that God inspired the predictions of this Book. Eeventeen books of the Bible are prophetic, and of the 1,000 or more prophecies they contain none have been miscarried. We are deeply impressed by the unity of the Book and the continuity of its thought.

"It took God and 36 men 1500 years to write the Book, between the first man and the last man no communication, yet there is no book so marvellous in its continuity of thought and programme. The Book comes from all quarters, all classes, through 1500 years, and yet it fits together with a continuous story and programme.

"We could speak of many things in connection with the Book, but perhaps the greatest that can ever be said is the influence it has had in the world. The testimony of men everywhere has been that in the reading and study of this Book a new day has dawned for them, and salvation has come to their souls. Some things about it we cannot understand. This world is full of mystery, and there will always be problems awaiting to be solved. The Bible is the only record of the redeeming love of God. Man draws near to Jesus Christ in his word, and herein is its strength. That is why we have a Bible Society and a Bible Sunday, that we may rejoice in our heritage and blessings, and by our sympathy and support seek to give to the millions of mankind this supreme record. this undying testimony of a Father's grace and love."

PARK STREET BAPTIST CHURCH.

A very inspiring message was given by the Rev. J. L. Harton on Sunday morning to the assembled worshippers. The topic was the second of a series of "Messages of the Bible" and was entitled, "The Message of the Rainbow." Mr. Harton emphasized the word "remembered" in the 8th chapter of Genesis, verse 1, and pointed out how God always remembered the faithfulness of His servants. In this case, that of Noah and the Ark, God had remembered the faithfulness and obedience of Noah and had shut him away from the floods. Mr. Harton then went on to draw a picture of Noah and his sons and their wives as they stepped out of the Ark, and, from the peak of the mountain on which the Ark rested, gazed round about them. What a scene of desolation it must have been, yet in the midst of it all Noah's heart was filled with thankfulness to God for his deliverance, and the first thing he did, on coming from the Ark, was to offer sacrifices to the Lord.

But what of the others? What assurance had they that there would be no recurrence of the flood? They would thereafter look on life in terror. Every cloud that appeared would scare them and perhaps they would not feel like building homes, lest they should be swept away again. The imagination of the natural man is evil from birth upwards, but God cheered them with the convenant of the rainbow, and still we have it yet. The rainbow is the most marvellous thing that can ever be seen. Men may try to imitate it, but no hand has ever been able to paint such a wonderful sight. Niagara Falls is a wonderful sight at evening, and the experts surely have achieved much in illuminating it so splendidly, but yet the rainbow stands above them all, a wonderful token and remembrance of God's covenant and His mercy.

Herein lies the beauty of God's mercy. The rainbow is dependant on cloud and sun alike, so that it shows that God has made the rainbow from the same drops of water that caused the flood.

"We think of the French Revolution and all its sordidness, and yet we must admit that it was necessary to have it, in view of the conditions in the country at time time. We think of the Great Fire of London and how it swept away a whole city, yet Lord Macaulay writes, 'It burned the town but destroyed the plague.' We can clearly see the hand of God behind it all, and now as we see the rainbow, caused by the sun's rays entering the drops that caused the flood, we can only think of it as God's mercy. We read of Peter's downfall through a woman, and how all seemed black to Peter after he betrayed his Lord, and yet his uplifting was through a woman also, another example of God using the raindrops to make the rainbow. We must pass through trial and tribulation to realize the love of Christ. We must first taste the sorrow of soul before we can ever comprehend the rainbow of God's mercy.

"'Ever He walketh beside me
Brightly His sunshine appears,
Spreading a beautiful rainbow
Over the valley of tears.'"

In concluding, Mr. Harton spoke of the many clouds that had settled on homes in Peterborough. "We do not know whether they can see the rainbow through all their tears and sorrow. Many God grant they may, and may God help us all to see the great mercy and loving kindness of our Lord Jesus Christ, and grant that we may always be able to trace the rainbow through the rain and see in it the rainbow of His love."

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

By JEAN MACON

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

SOCIAL EVENING HELD AT NORHAM

Ladies' Aid Hold Social Gathering in United Church Hall.

DISTRICT NEWS

NORHAM, Feb. 2.—On Friday evening, in Norham United Church Hall, the Norham Ladies' Aid held the first of a series of monthly social evenings. The meeting opened with hearty community singing. After many "Old Favourites" had been once more sung, Mr. Fred Huycke presented a couple of his ever-popular comic songs. A recitation was given by Miss Ida Clare.

At this point, Mrs. D. Evans, president of the Ladies' Aid appointed two captains to choose up sides for "Charades." This game was followed by others, all proving very entertaining and enjoyable. A delicious lunch was served.

Mail Held Up.

For the first time this season Mr. George Cockburn, mail-carrier from Warkworth to Colborne, was unable to get through to Colborne with the mail, last Thursday morning. Later on in the day the roads were opened and the mail from Colborne was sent out. Up to this time Mr. Cockburn had been using his car in his daily trips but on Friday he used his bob-sleighs for this purpose.

Joint Meeting.

A joint meeting of the Young Farmers' Club and the Young Ladies' Improvement Society took place on Thursday evening in Warkworth Council chambers. Aside from the organization meeting this was the first meeting of the young ladies in the Northumberland branch, of the Young Farmers' Association.

It was decided to invite the Hastings club to debate in Warkworth, on the fourteenth or sixteenth of February, whichever date would be more suitable for Hastings. The minutes of the former meeting, when the Young Ladies organized, were read and adopted. Miss Ina Bowen recited and Miss Margaret Richards presented two very acceptable monologues.

League Organized.

Last Tuesday evening a Young People's League was organized in the Myersburg United Church. The officers elected are as follows:

President—Mr. Owen Finlay.

Secretary-treasurer—Miss May Nelson.

1st Vice-President, Convenor of Christian Fellowship Department—Miss A. Pomeroy.

2nd Vice-President, Convenor of Citizenship Department—Mrs. O. Clark.

3rd Vice-President, Convenor of Missionary Department—Miss A. Blakely.

4th Vice-President, Convenor of Social and Literary Department—Mr. O. Clark.

Organist—Lillian Bertrand.

The committees chosen are as follows:

1. Christian Fellowship: Mr. Ivy, Mr. Fred Jones, Mr. Lloyd Finlay, Mr. Joe Bertrand, Mrs. J. Jones.
2. Citizenship Department—Mrs. Ivy, Mrs. R. Bateson, Mrs. Joe Bertrand, Mrs. Harry Jacques.
3. Missionary Department — R. Burleigh, Mr. Robt. Bateson, Mr. T. W. Dilworth, Mr. J. Jones.
4. Social and Literary Department—Miss Rose Bertrand, Miss Lillian Bertrand, Mr. Oscar Blakely, Mr. Jas. Finlay, Mr. H. Blakely, Mrs. T. Finlay, Mrs. C. Blakely.

Personals.

Miss Viva Sharpe of Pine Woods, spent the weekend in Norham with Miss Mildred Curtis.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT A.Y.P.A. MEETINGS

Junior Society at Marmora Holds Many Interesting Meetings.

MARMORA, Feb. 2.—Good attendances are marking the meetings of the junior A.Y.P.A. in connection with St. Paul's Church on Tuesday evening; these young folk, whose ages range from ten to fifteen, put on a very creditable debate.

"Resolved that fire is of more service to the community than water." The affirmative side was led by Percy Melville, those supporting him being Hugh Phillips, William Bonter and Homer Hewitt. The negative side to whom the verdict went by ten points to nine, had Sarah Hart as leader with Iva Phillips, Beatrice Caldwell and Grenville Melville as supporters. Following the lead of the senior A.Y.P.A. which is holding a Valentine Party on February 13th, the juniors have decided to hold a similiar party on the 15th of the month. By way of further diversion they are holding a skating party at the rink on Thursday evening.

WOULD PAY NATIONAL DEBT

The Ministry of Education of Japan has received a check from the head of a family in Formosa as the first installment on his share of the national debt. He wrote that he had read in the newspapers where Japan's foreign debt amounted to $2,820,000,000, which was $35.25 for every subject of the empire. He added that he and three members of his family were ready to pay their share, although it might take five years to do so. The Ministry of Education turned the money over to a women's organization promoting frugality.

EYE FATIGUE AND DISEASE

One is indeed fortunate who enjoys perfect vision, but even where there is no definite eye defect it is possible to produce headaches, lower vitality, reduce efficiency, and even produce functional or organic disease by abusing the eyes.

An almost unbelievable amount of energy is used by the body in the process of seeing.

As the light from objects strikes the eyes it makes an impression upon the sensitive retina, and through some mysterious conversion the optic nerve carries the impulse of vision to the brain.

The eye is unquestionably a marvelous organ, but is necessarily very sensitive and delicate, and easily injured or strained. I do not believe there is any way one can produce bodily enervation as much as he can through eye fatigue. When the eyes are strained the vital force is wasted, and the heart, stomach, intestines, and all of the other organs must suffer because of this. The sum total of bodily energy is reduced, and every functional activity impaired.

I consider eyestrain to be such an important factor in causing disease that this subject is discussed by me with every patient who comes to me in my private practise. No diagnosis of disease can be accurate if the physician does not examine the patient's eyes and inquire into his habits to ascertain the amount of energy which the patient is wasting through eye fatigue.

The average physician, be he allopath, homeopath, osteopath, chiropractor or naturopath, does not have the proper training to be qualified to make a good examination of the eyes. The only eyesight specialist of today who has the proper training and knowledge for such an examination is the optometrist, who spends at least two thousand hours in study of defects of vision, while only a few hours are required in the ordinary medical course.

The diagnostician who tries to analyze the cause and cure of any disease without a diagnosis of the eyes made by an optometrist is liable to blunder into making many mistakes, and will often err in not understanding causes of disease which come from eye fatigue. After such an examination, defects of vision can be corrected through properly fitted glasses, by electrical treatments, or eye exercises. The patient must then be instructed to stop abusing his eyes. The reader can profit by some of these suggestions which I give to my patients —

Be careful that the light you read by is neither too bright nor too dim.

Read, as much as possible, from dull paper, and avoid fine print and shiny paper.

See that the light is not shining in the eyes, but comes from over the shoulder.

Do not try to read in unsteady light, or with the sunlight shining directly on the paper.

Strong, dimmed light bulbs are the best to use.

Limit your time for reading so that you do not tire the eyes.

Learn to stop before your eyes feel tired.

Avoid doing fine needle work or any other work which requires close application.

Reading on moving trains may not injure your eyesight, but nothing is more enervating to the eyes and the nervous system.

Do not wear improperly fitted glasses. It is poor economy to buy your glasses in the five and ten cent store or from street peddlers.

A scientific examination of the eye is absolutely necessary, and great injury may result from wrong lenses, even though they seem to fit.

Questions and Answers.

Question Ted K. writes "I am bothered with constant nose bleeds? Will you tell me the cause?"

Answer You may be suffering from high blood pressure which would bring on the frequent nose bleeds. Otherwise they are caused by a chronic irritation of the membranes inside the nose. These mucous membranes become inflamed and the blood vessels more exposed so that bleeding comes on more readily.

Question H. O. P. asks "Is the expression, "bird's nest soup" merely colloquial, or is there such a soup, and of what is it made?"

Answer It is a fact there is a soup which is literally made from the nests of a species of swift called the Collocalia, found chiefly along the islands of the Indian Ocean and along certain parts of the Chinese coast. These birds construct little cup-like nests almost entirely from the secretions of their salivary glands, the results resembling isinglass in appearance. In their native lands these nests bring as much as $30.00 per pound for the selected grades. The Chinese believe they are exceptionally nutritious, but in fact their food value is no greater than gelatin.

Question H. E. M. writes "In your answer to "H.E.M." you state that the little sacks of clear mucus brought up in clearing the throat are exudations of catarrhal phlegm, and that catarrh can be gotten rid of by living on a mucusless diet. Please tell me what the mucusless diet consists of in the way of foods."

Answer The mucusless diet is composed of plenty of green vegetables with small amounts of meats, eggs and nuts. No starches, sugars or fatty foods should be used.

CANADIAN INDUSTRIES C-I-L LIMITED

SIX GREAT COMPANIES UNDER ONE DIRECTION

This advertisement is published to give the public a clear definition of Canadian Industries Limited; its products; the reason for its expansion and entry into new, though related, fields of commercial endeavour; and its aims.

THE main products of the six manufacturing entities operated by Canadian Industries Limited are: Commercial Explosives and Accessories; Ammunition and Track Signals; Pyroxylins, (sole Canadian manufacturers of genuine Duco), Lacquers, Paints and Varnishes; Pyroxylin and Rubber-Coated Fabrics (Fabrikoid); Cleanable Collars and Cuffs, Combs and Toiletware (Pyralin).

Probably few are aware that nearly all of these seemingly unrelated products have a common chemical origin.

Canadian Industries Limited, the majority of whose stock is owned in the British Empire and which is managed entirely in Canada, in addition to its own research staff, has the knowledge and research backing, for the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland, of two of the world's greatest chemical engineering organizations—Imperial Chemical Industries Limited of Great Britain, and E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Company of the United States.

To this unique background, Canadian Industries Limited in large measure owes its development.

The Canadian Industries Limited trade-mark therefore stands for the latest development and the highest standard of quality in the various lines which chemistry has allied with explosives manufacture.

Canadian Industries Limited enterprises are the means of employing very large numbers of Canadians, to whom its Welfare Plans bring a certain amount of comfort and security, and are keeping circulating in Canada many millions of dollars.

Canadian Industries Limited intends to serve its Canadian customers by selling its products at the lowest prices consistent with the maintenance of high quality and service standards, believing that in so doing it also serves its own best interests.

IN POLICE COURT

George Osterhout appeared in police court yesterday afternoon to answer to a charge of parking on an intersection and obstructing traffic, also a crossing for pedestrians. The charge arose from an incident which occurred about one o'clock in the afternoon of Monday, Jan. 16th, when the defendant stopped his truck to allow his daughter, who was riding with him at the time, to alight. Ed. Hubble, who had been following a short distance behind in another truck, collided with the rear of Osterhout's vehicle and damaged his radiator. It was stated in evidence that Osterhout had refused to pay for the repairs to the damaged truck and Hubble hailed him into court. But since Hubble had retained Magistrate Payne to write a letter to Osterhout, the case was tried before a justice of the peace, or rather three of them, Mayor Kingston, who also acted as court stenographer, T. J. Horkins and John Allan. Their verdict was a fine of one dollar and the costs of the court. This was the minimum penalty and with the costs of the court amounted to $13.95. N. Alec MacColl appeared for the plaintiff and D. J. Lynch for the defendant.

To the charge of violation of Bylaw 862, sec. 11, stopping a vehicle without making any visible signal, etc., Osterhout pleaded not guilty.

The Plaintiff.

Ed. Hubble, plaintiff, was the first witness called. He testified that he, in his truck, followed Osterhout's vehicle east across the bridge. Otserhoud had turned the "old man" and then stopped with the greater portion of his vehicle still on the intersection. He claimed that Osterhout gave no visible signal that he was about to stop and that his truck was five or six feet from the curb. This was as nearly as he could remember. The manhole on the intersection was open at the time since the Bell Telephone Company men were working on the cables. It was necessary to pass between the manhole and the silent policeman, the "old man." This made it impossible for him to avoid a collision by turning further to the left and though he applied his brakes, he was unable to stop the truck, which was extended eight feet south of the crossing. At this point Mr. Lynch, for the defence, voiced an objection that MacColl was leading the witness.

Hubble proceeded to relate how he had put on his brakes but had crashed into the rear of the obstructing truck and smashed his radiator. Osterhout had continued north on Front street as far as the residence of T. S. Baker. There Hubble overtook him and a conversation ensued. Hubble considered it funny that Osterhout should go on and leave the scene and asked him if he had made any signal for him, Hubble. Osterhout admitted that he had not made any signal because he was stopped when the second truck came along. Asked by Osterhout what he was going to do about, Hubble claimed he had offered to meet him half way. But Osterhout had merely cautioned him about keeping his eyes open in order to see where he was going. At that, Hubble informed Osterhour that the courts would decide the matter.

Questioned as to the speed at which he was travelling, Hubble said he was going between four and five miles an hour, and that he was always careful when crossing intersections or turning corners. When he had spoken to Osterhout he had been alone. Cecil Stephens, who had been in the truck with him at the time of the accident, had got out and gone on to school.

Mr. Lynch, for the defence, took over the witness. In reply to his questions, Hubble maintained that he was driving well within the speed limit, not more than four or five miles an hour. He passed between the manhole and the silent policeman and stated that he had taken the proper course to avoid an accident. There had been no opportunity or room to turn left since Osterhout's truck took up most of the space. He was certain of what he was saying, he stated, and claimed that the manhole had nothing to do with the accident. The extent of the damage to his truck was a broken radiator. He had had it replaced with a second-hand one and the total repair bill was $18.25. When Osterhout had refused to accept the account, Hubble had retained G. A. Payne to write him a letter, but there was no response.

Asked if he had expected to secure his money in the magistrate's court, Hubble made an unintelligible answer. Regarding his intentions to bring the case before the Division Court, he replied, "That is my business." Osterhout had made no visible signal, he claimed, and there was no other course but to hit him.

Justice Horkins asked the witness how far he was behind Osterhout when crossing the bridge, and Hubble said about thirty feet, approximately. His speed was five miles an hour, he claimed. To Mr. MacColl's question as to the distance between the trucks when Osterhout stopped, Hubble gave the same distance.

Cecil Stephens

Cecil Stephens, student at the High School, was the next witness called. Due to consideration for his lameness, he was allowed to give his evidence sitting down. He recalled the day in question and told how he was riding to school with Hubble in his truck. This was a regular occurrence during the cold weather when the walking was bad. His story was practically the same as Hubble's, but it was given haltingly and with downcast eyes. As to details, his memory was not very clear and he repeatedly confused the terms, sidewalk and crossing. He did not think Hubble had a chance to turn left, but admitter that he was not accustomed to driving a car though he often rode in them. He said he was surprised when he saw Osterhout stop, and remembered hearing the noise caused by the collision. But he could not say whether the inpact moved the front truck or not. Osterhout did not get out, he claimed.

To Mr. Lynch, he repeated practically the same story, and on further questioning, said he had only heard part of the conversation between Hubble and Osterhout when the two men met on front of Baker's residence. He had continued on his way to school and had arrived in time for his classes.

Mr. Campbell, teller in the Royal Bank, was the next witness sworn. He was able to recall the event, but had not actually seen the accident. He had noticed the trucks just as they came off the bridge and had paid no further attention to them till he heard the crash which was almost beside him as he walked along the street. His version of the location of the Osterhout vehicle was the same as Hubble had mentioned except that he, Campbell, swore that the rear of the Osterhout truck was only two feet over the crossing, not eight feet, as Hubble had claimed. Although the cab was north of the crossing, the crossing was obstructed.

Questioned by Mr. Lynch, Campbell told the same story, stating that he could not say whether there was room to avoid the collision as he did not know how easily handled Hubble's truck was. He did not really see the cars turn the corner, but admitted that if the manhole had been closed it would have been possible to have made a wider swing and thus made it possible to turn further to the left. In answer to Mr. MacColl he said he had neither seen nor heard any signalling from either driver.

At this point Mr. MacColl submitted a copy of the bylaw, alleged broken, which was a true copy, certified by J. F. MacGregor, town clerk. With this the plaintiff rested the case.

George Osterhout.

George Osterhout the first witness called by Mr. Lynch for the defence testified that he was the driver of the truck in question. He was employed by the Canadian National Express Company, and had driven a truck for ten years, he said. According to his evidence the cab of the truck was three feet north of the crossing in question and the rear wheels were resting on the north side of the crossing. This left about two feet of the tail end of the vehicle extending over the crossing. His reason for stopping there was to let his daughter out as he was going north on Front street, and she wisned to go along Bridge street to the office. His truck was equipped with a rear vision mirror, he said, and he had not seen any vehicle behind when he stopped. The other truck was just turning the "Old Man." He did not think it necessary to give any signal once he had brought his truck to a dead stop. His truck was about five feet from the curb, he said and there were 29 feet between the corner of his truck body to the "Old Man," measured diagonally the shortest possible distance.

His daughter had not stepped directly out on to the crossing as had been previously stated, but had stepped out on to the road and walked back to it. Hubble had given no signal of approaching trouble, Osterhout claimed or he would have seen or heard it. His reason for not stopping was the necessity for getting the express to the train due at 1.33 p. m., and the time was already one o'clock. Regarding his conversation with Hubble, Osterhout admitted having said "It was too bad." Witness then informed the court that the express truck had been damaged and would need a new tail light. He had not mentioned this to Hubble at the time of the accident.

Osterhout further claimed with assurance that he could turn his truck in twenty nine feet or half that distance if necessary to avoid an accident. After a few further questions it was agreed that both trucks were of the same make and not of vastly different dimensions.

At this stage of the proceedings Mr. Lynch stated that he realized that his client had broken the law in the matter, but claimed that it was only a technical breach. Ninety-nine men out of a hundred would do the same thing if placed in the same position. Quoting the bylaw, the defence counsel pointed out that his client was not guilty of an infringement of the entire bylaw but only of the second clause. He mentioned his belief that the plaintiff had every intention of bringing the matter into the division court in order to obtain judgment for damages, and on these grounds asked that his client be allowed to go with a minimum fine.

Mr. MacColl disagreed that Osterhout was innocent of the first clause of the bylaw, but expressed his opinion in favor of a minimum fine in view of the ten years' driving Osterhout had done, and not once been in court. This point was taken in Osterhout's favor, and he was fined $1 and the costs of the court, $13.95 in all.

Omemee

OMEMEE, Feb. 2.—The Adult Bible Class of Trinity United Church held their annual meeting in the church at the close of the Sunday School session on Sunday, January 15. The President occupied the chair.

The Secretary-Treasurer reported the collections from April 1, 1927, to January 1, 1928, $27.88. Amount given to missions, $6.70. The meeting closed with prayer by Mr. Weir, after which the election of officers resulted as follows:

Teacher, Mr. D. Weir; Assistant Teachers, Mr. F. G. Sandy, Mrs. W. Brandon; President, Mr. A. Scott; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. R. Wilson; Assistant Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. R. H. Williamson; Dev. Comm., Mrs. Rowland, Mr. Vaughan, Miss L. Race; Social Committee, Mrs. I. Rehill, Mrs. F. G. Sandy, Miss S. Rea; Membership Committee, the Class.

In memory of their beloved dead, Mrs. Charles Bent and family placed a beautiful bouquet of carnations on the altar of Christ Church on Sunday as a tribute to a loving husband and father who departed this life five years ago.

Mrs. J. Courtney spent the week-end with Lindsay and Toronto relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Langdon, of Lindsay, spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Laidley.

Mr. G. W. Devitt, of Toronto, was in town on business on Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. C. Tobey has returned home, after spending a couple of weeks at her former home in Collingwood.

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Gowans were in Toronto a few days of last week, where the former attended the Bank of Toronto conference.

Mrs. Jarvis, of Peterborough, visited her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Kells, in town, last week.

Mr. Harry Tinney, of Cavanville, was in town Thursday on business.

Rev. J. A. Kennedy is spending a few days in Toronto.

Messrs. Percy Stewart and W. White, of Ebenezer, were visitors to Omemee on Thursday.

Mr. Mossom Magee, of Swan River, Man., is on a short visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Magee and sister, Mrs. E. Jamieson, after having attended the Bank Conference in Toronto.

Miss Pearl Widdis, of Victoria Road, is spending some time with her aunt, Mrs. J. Widdis.

Mr. Myers, of Woodville, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. Haygarth, over Sunday.

Mr. Walter Reeds was a visitor to Toronto on Thursday.

Miss E. Stinson, of Peterborough, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. Bushnell.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Toole, of Oshawa, visited Mr. and Mrs. W. Irwin on Monday.

Friends of Mrs. Peacock, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. Joseph McConnell, on Sturgeon Street, will regret to hear of her serious illness. Her son, Mr. Arthur Peacock, of Hamilton, visited her on Saturday.

Mr. Arthur Pogue was a visitor to Peterborough on Friday.

Wooler

WOOLER, Feb. 2.—L. H. Rome, accompanied by Alden Arthur, spent Monday in Belleville.

Mrs. C. R. Terrill is slowly convalescing after an attack of rheumatism.

Miss Cora Valentine has been quite ill with a nervous breakdown.

The Ladies' Aid met on Thursday with a large attendance, and are planning greater things for this year. The President, Mrs. J. J. McColl, suggested that the members might send a card to a faithful member, Mrs. David Teal, who is now spending the winter in California. This was agreed unaimously, every one present wishing to do so. The Ladies' Aid "comedy" are playing their popular play, "The Colonial's Maid," at Codrington on Friday evening. It is hoped they will receive many engagements during the winter season.

Miss Frances Terrill is to be congratulated on her success in the "School of Economics" in Trenton. She has received honors in all the examinations—sewing (plain), dress-making, hat-making, and this month taking up cooking—the mystery of vitamines—simple desserts, meals for young children, etc.

The weekly prayer meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnley Masters, with an attendance of twenty of the neighbors. A story was given by Lucille Sharpe on How we may live to let our life shine for others. Memory verses, with the word "remember" in the verse, were recited by a large number of the young people. Then Mrs. S. L. Terrill gave the talk on the words of the Psalmist. Slippery walking is a common experience in winter: but it ought not to be a common experience in the spiritual life of a Christian. Indeed, God has made such abundant provision that no child of His need ever slip.

The Psalmist declared by inspiration concerning any one who trusts and obeys God. The law of His God is in his heart: none of His steps shall slide. (Psa. 37:31.)

Again, we read the word of the believer addressed to God, Psa. 56:13; at another time the Psalmist confessed of his own experience (Psa. 73:2 and 3). To sin is to slip and fall: but God will keep from sinning the man who surrenders to God's will and trusts Him fully; therefore the Psalmist says (Psa. 119-133), To walk without falling, always calls for God's will and guidance, as Jeremiah said in 10 chapter, 23 verse. One must be raised from the death of trespasses and sins before one can walk safely (Rom. 6:4). Then as we follow the example that Christ set for us (I. Pet. 2:21), our life will be an unceasing praise (Jud. 24). The words of the Psalmist leads us up to the opportunities and dangers of the popularity. For the time being, the popular, one can sway the whole crowd, toward any aim or object. And how seldom this popularity is used for anything more than more popularity. But boys and girls need to think, too, and seriously, of the dangers of being the self-conscious centre of an admiring following, and you can help them to do this in no better way than by helping them think of the final results of Jesus' popularity. Criticism, opposition, misunderstanding, loneliness, persecution, even death itself, came out of Jesus' popularity with those thousands who had heard him so gladly. But note well that all this suffering fell upon Jesus himself: His truth and love saved them from the very results they visited upon Him. Now, there are a few questions to ask ourselves: "Where am I in my crowd to-day? If I am leading, to what? Will my leadership lift or lower my crowd? If I am a follower—of whom? Where will my following take me? What will be its results in my life, in the lives of others?"

TRANSFER REFUSED.

Alimony Action Must Be Heard in Peterborough, Master Rules.

TORONTO Feb. 1. Canadian Press—The Master of the Supreme Court has refused the application of H. J. C. Connell for an order changing from Peterborough the venue of a trial of an action brought by his wife Mrs. Ada Connell for alimony.

He gives judgment for payment of interim alimony of $6 a week and $50 for disbursements. The husband is living in Toronto.

RUNAWAY TEAM DAMAGES CARS

Horses Themselves Come To No Harm on Campbellford Street.

FRIGHTENED BY BIRDS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2.—Fortunately no person was injured when the team of horses belonging to Andrew Hay, Rear Street, bolted from the rear of Meyer's Mill, and, pursuing a rapid course north on Front Street, finally came to an abrupt halt one on each side of a stout Hydro pole in front of Denike's grocery store. Three automobiles were more or less damaged during the course of events, but strangely enough the horses were not injured.

Mr. Hay told The Examiner he had gone to Meyer's mill about four o'clock on the afternoon of Thursday, the 26th, for the purpose of loading some feed to be drawn to Cordova. After tying his horses to the usual place in the rear, he entered the office to receive instructions and other business matters before loading his sleigh. He had not been in the office more than two or three minutes before he saw the team tearing madly past the front window on its road up Front Street. He followed as quickly as possible on foot, and finally collected his horses in front of the Red and White grocery store. On the way, the swaying sleigh box had collided with Marshall West's car, which was parked at the curb, and broken several spokes out of one rear wheel. A moment later Mr. MacFadden's car got a jolt in the rear. Finally the team came to rest with one horse pawing the top of a car owned by Mr. William Duncan, and practically ruining it.

Asked what had caused the animals to take fright, Mr. Hay said that a flock of pigeons had flown down from the roof and were picking at the bits of chaff that were lying on the roadway. One of the employees of the mill came out of the mill and the pigeons flew off suddenly right in front of the horses. The horses jerked back and snapped the halter shank. In a split second they were tearing out the lane and up the street, taking such a short turn from the street to the lane that several bricks were dislodged from the corner of the building. Mr. Hay believes that it was the noise of the pigeons that startled the horses, the mill being for the moment shut down and silent.

Regarding injuries to the horses, Mr. Hay said they were not injured but that his sleigh and box were pretty badly wrecked. The box and the bobs parted company approximately in front of the Royal Bank building.

LADIES' AID HOLDS MEETING

Contest Will be Held to Secure Members By Warsaw Ladies.

WARSAW, Feb. 2.—A large attendance of the Ladies' Aid members of the Warsaw United Church assembled at the parsonage on Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Herrington, was in the chair. Part of the opening exercises was the reading responsively of John, 15th chapter, led by Mrs. Anderson. The books used were gospels of St. John, donated by Mrs. Herrington. She has also donated a dozen of another gospel to the missionary society, and after a year's use the societies will exchange.

An itemized account of the circuit bazaar was read. A report of the receipts of the play "Red Acre Farm," put on by Carmel in Warsaw, was read, also a note that the executive had decided to accept but a small portion of the proceeds. Mrs. Herrington spoke of the New Year, and of work that should be done. Mrs. George Taylor moved and Mrs. James Hawthorne seconded a vote of thanks for the splendid way she has worked for the aid, and the amount of work which had been done. Mrs. Weller reported two dollars on hand for the flower fund. Mrs. Herrington suggested a Packard, Ford auto race to get members, and the money obtained to be put into the piano fund. The members' fees are fifty cents, and the men may be honorary members at twenty-five cents. There was some discussion, and finally it was decided to have the sides named Crysler and Ford. Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Weller lead the Chrysler side, and Mrs. Rufus Payne and Mrs. Arthur Payne, the Ford side. The contest will close with a banquet on the evening of the last Thursday in April. The supper and entertainment to be provided by the losing side. The leaders chose their sides from those present.

After a little discussion it was decided to purchase communion glass holders for the church. They will cost six dollars. Mrs. Herrington showed some designs.

Some people have spoken of a bulletin board. Mr. Herrington reported that he had been inquiring about prices of those which can be bought, and about the cost of material. While the manufactured ones are quite expensive, the material would cost between ten and fifteen dollars. There was a little talk of holding the decision until the February meeting, as it would not be put up until summer anyway. Mr. Herrington then, very kindly, told the ladies he would if they wished, purchase the material and make the board. He would charge for the material, and if it did go beyond the fifteen dollars, he would make it good himself, but he must do it soon, as later he would not have the time. His offer was gladly accepted.

Mrs. Roland Payne gave an instrumental, and Mrs. Robert Matthews read a selection on "Friendship."

Mr. Herrington closed with prayer.

Mrs. Herrington served Boston baked beans, with catsup and bread and butter, tea and afternoon biscuit, which all considered a delightful change from the usual sandwiches and cake.

The February meeting will be a "grandfather's day," held in the church basement on the last Thursday evening in February.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD COMMUNITY MEETING

Resolve Men Are More Clever Than Women is Debated.

WARSAW, Feb. 2.—The Community Young People's meeting, held in the United Church basement on Tuesday evening was well attended, and quite representative. Mr. Currie, president, was in the chair. After the opening exercises, the topics "Faith" and "On Reading of Books," were taken up. Rev. H. B. Herrington gave a talk on the latter, and Miss Young gave a paper on "Faith." She took the subject mostly from a religious point of view. A few of her points were on faithfulness to God and to man; God must come first. A faithless person would, if it suited his purpose, betray his master. Faithfulness necessitates honor, steadfastness, constancy and consistency—there must be a goal, something in which to have faith and something for which to strive.

God expects, even the humblest, to be faithful unto death. God does not expect us to be energetic beyond our strength, nor generous beyond our means, but He does expect us to use our strength and our means to the best of our ability. Many people who are faithful, are not rewarded in this life by others: often after their life has passed, great monuments are raised to their memory, praise and laurels are given them, but they have their reward in heaven, and the "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

In his talk on "On the Reading of Books," Mr. Herrington said his thoughts were principally for young people who had left school. He wanted to impress them with the idea of how much they could learn, and benefit by making good use of their spare time; how they might improve their minds by making companions of good books, reading and re-reading them. He stressed that while works of fiction were all right in their place, if people read a lot of that and nothing else, they would arrive nowhere. The books that really count, are those which "may give one a headache" over which we must pore, and of which one must think after reading.

Books, to do good, must not be hurried over. It is not the number of books one reads, but the type of books read, and the care in reading them, so that their meaning may be gotten, and the ideas fixed in the memory, that counts.

He gave several examples of men and women who had become learned, by making use of spare time and urged those present to make a practice of reading and studying something worthwhile every day. Those present showed a good deal of perception in their discussions of these topics.

Mr. O. B. McIlvena sang, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

Messrs. Herrington and Sargent were chosen leaders of an impromptu debate "Resolved that men are more clever than women," Mr. Sargent led the affirmative side and Mr. Herrington the negative. These leaders chose sides, taking all present, the time limit was one minute. Mr. Currie was judge, and reserved his decision. Was he a wise man or a fearful one? Some of the points brought out by the affirmatives were that since time immemorial, men have been the head of the house, the bread-winners. The great poets, authors, musicians and scientists have been men. Men have led the business world, have been the inventors and discoverers. Men cannot only provide but cook; all the cooks in large hotels are men, sew, mend, and do other necessary things.

The negatives brought out that though men were the providers, women had the laying out of that money, and preparing and making of the foods and clothes purchased, and the making of the comfort of the home. If need be, women can, and do provide for the home, and capably take the reins as head of the house. Women have taken their position among the poets, authors, musicians, scientists and teachers; women are found among the great inventors, and discoverers, and they were named. It is women who make the home. It is the mother who does the greater part of child training.

BIRD TOO FAST FOR FILM

Efforts of the Air Ministry of Great Britain to film the wings of a humming bird proved a failure recently because the slow motion picture machine taking 300 pictures a second was too slow. The bird's wings traveled so fast that they showed only a blurr in the pictures. The films were made with the hope of revealing the character of the bird's flying so that the principle could be used in perfecting a flying machine that could stand still in the air as does the humming bird when gathering food from flowers.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble, and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flue. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CUSTOMS SCANDAL CHARGED.

That employes of the custom house department are imposing fines on importers with the hope of getting the goods thrust into dispute, has just been charged by a newspaper in Buenos Aires, Argentina. It cites that when the importers appeal the fines to the Federal Court nine-tenths of the appeals are successful. Goods seized for breach of regulations are confiscated for the benefit of the employes of the custom house, and it is said that employes file many complaints on the chance that some will be successful. Merchants are complaining because they are put to additional legal expense and are unable to get their importations promptly.

PAINS MEAN SOMETHING

Pain is a symptom. It is nature's method of calling attention to some vital need of the body. When the blood is thin the nerves are undernourished. It is only through the blood that the elements they need can be supplied. Pains of lumbago in the back, rheumatic pains in the joints, sciatic pains down the thighs, neuralgic pains in the face, tell the story of thinning blood.

Build up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and see how these symptoms disappear. Don't neglect these symtoms or content yourself with pain killers. There is a cause for the pain which should be removed.

Send your name and address to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., for a free copy of the little book, "Building Up the Blood."

ENGLISH WOMEN DEFENDED.

English women are greatly agitated over the charge made by a prominent Frenchman that women are being deformed by English sports and games. The critic had been studying the fashionable French dressmakers' catalogs with their drawings of peculiar creatures with hollow chests, curved figures, sharp shoulder blades and crooked legs. They shocked him, he said, and he added that as these drawings were used by English dressmakers as a general fashion guide the English girls must like them. Englishmen have replied that the pictures were not those of the real woman athlete and gymnast, and they resent the liberty taken by French fashion artists in displaying them.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT GEORGE STREET

Rev. Howard Roberts, M.A., B.D., Special Speaker at Sunday School Services.

INTERESTING ADDRESSES.

Special Music Rendered, Members Attend Afternoon Services in a Body.

The Sunday school anniversary services of George Street United Church were held on Sunday with Rev. Howard Roberts, M.A., B.D., of Colburn Street United Church, Brantford, as the special preacher. The large congregation which filled the church at all the services were delighted with Mr. Roberts' eloquent and earnest sermons.

Before beginning his sermon Mr. Roberts said it was a great pleasure for him to be in George Street Church as he had supplied there for five Sundays when he was a student at Toronto University. He was also pleased to come to our Sunday school anniversary as he delighted in speaking to the boys and girls, realizing that they are the great hope of any church. His subject was "The Telegraphy of the Arrow" and his text was taken from I Samuel, 20th chapter, part of the 37th verse: "Is the arrow beyond thee."

Boys and girls, here and everywhere love games, not only inside but outside games and we are now building our Sunday schools so as to provide places for games. Jesus, as a young man was deeply interested in games. Boys and girls in those days played mock weddings, mock funerals I am telling you something of that wonderful game."Hunt the Arrow" which you heard read in the Scripture lesson. David and Jonathan were great friends. Jonathan was heir apparent to the throne like our Prince of Wales. He knew that God had chosen David to be king of Israel yet he loved him so much that he was willing to give up the throne and did so much to protect him from the wrath of his father, Saul. Saul was determined to take David's life so Jonathan and David made a plot so that David would understand the signs when Jonathan shot the arrow.

This is a great age for messages. Brantford, where I live, is called the telephone city. Near there is Dr. Bell's home, from which the first telephone message was sent into the city, not so many years ago. Now messages are sent all over the world. A man living in New York hears his father preaching in St. Francisco. Amery, who is now on a visit here, sent a message to the Antipodes, to the Governor-General of Australia.

This is certainly a great day for broadcasting, and if we have a world's hearing we must have a world's message.

Hunt the Arrow.

The deeper meaning of the game "Hunt the Arrow" is that God is shooting arrows or ideals into our lives continually. An idea is an ideal if you let it out. A successful life is one which is ever reaching out high ideals, love, loyalty, largeness. Let your ideals be clean, pure, Christlike. In your studies have you heard the voice saying: "Is not the arrow beyond you."

In religious service: "Is anyone here saying is not the arrow beyond you?"

In studying the life of John we find he was not a very good boy. He asked God to send down fire and brimstone upon his enemies. He wanted first place. He complained to God about a preacher saying he was not a member of his church.

Jesus took John and listening to Him he learned of Him until love filled his heart and he taught that love was the greatest, most Christlike thing in life. "Little orphans love one another." He heard the arrow whistling over his head, until he became next to Jesus, the greatest Christian this world ever knew.

When the game was over, in our story, the boy went away and David came out. The little boy did not know that life and death was involved. Boys often do not realize, while playing games, that God is teaching and leading them, having something wonderful in store for them.

I entreat you boys and girls to seek the highest things in life, in school, in church, in world. God has great ideals for you and me and he wants us to pursue them. If we are faithful and true we will be successful.

At 3 p.m. on Sunday afternoon 700 members of the Sunday School assembled in the Sunday school auditorium and marched in classes to the church, where already a large number of the congregation had gathered.

Mr. George Robertson, superintendent of George Street Sunday school, conducted the service, assisted by Mr. A. F. Hagerman, superintendent of Grace Sunday school. The Sunday school orchestra supplied excellent music. The primary class, under the leadership of Mr. Liddle, sang an opening chorus. After the reading of the Scripture lesson, the boys' sang a suitable selection. Mr. D. Carlisle delighted the large audience with a baritone solo.

Mr. Roberts was then called on to give a talk, and spoke on the Sunday school lesson for the day, "The Growing Fame of Jesus."

We all know what a great temptation it is to want to be popular. We preachers have a great deal of this feeling. So in all walks of life.

Was Jesus so tempeted? Yes, he was. One of the greatest crisis of his life was this, The lure of a great throne.

Over in Europe now there is a man named Carol who is seeking a throne. We must remember that Jesus did not seek the throne but the people of Israel tried to force it on Him. Jesus never performed miracles to gain popularity. When He saw the rising tide of popularity He slipped away. Despite all this they came by force to make Him king. What a temptation! Could He not have had a good excuse if He had accepted, saying: "They forced it on Me," or could He have not said: "He would use His earthly kingdom to further the kingdom of God." He refused because He came "To reveal God and God only." He would not take second place an earthly kingship. He would not lead reforms. His was to reveal, to inspire, not to lead. Instead of an earthly throne He received a heavenly kingdom.

In conclusion he told a story entitled "The Elephant Man", which he had read recently. It concerned a young man who had graduated in medicine and was taking a post graduate course in one of the large hospitals. Just across the street from the hospital was a show and one of the chief attractions advertised was the wonderful elephant man, a man so deformed that when women saw him they screamed, boys mocked him. The young doctor talked with him and tried to be his friend. Later when the show went defunct, and this man was out of work the doctor found him in rags, more animal-like than before. He took him to a hospital and surrounded him with all the beautiful things of life, and gradually his appearance improved under the influence of his new surroundings. One day he died and went to Christ, who makes everything new.

At the evening service the church was again crowded to hear the Rev. Howard Roberts. His subject was "Commanding the Morning". My subject is one of the old questions, one of Job's utterances, "Has thou commanded the morning", or as Mark would put it, "Hast thou taken possession of the day that is to be?"

Youth is life's morning, the Master once said, Would to God, we could have him again across the centuries. You young people stand in the golden dawn, the world is ripe for conquest. He who comes upon the stage in middle age can not dominate the world. He who moves the world must bring the buoyancy of youth. Jesus, as a young man, came to save sinners and to redeem the world. The Man of Galilee in the briefest time completed His work. "It is finished", He said. He cast the spell over the minds and hearts of men. What is that spell? Men of all ages felt here was a man, living a rich satisfactory life. The rich young ruler came to Jesus saying: "What is the secret of life", and young people of today want life. Did Jesus endorse life. He said: "I am come that you might have life more abundantly." Jesus had a rendezvous with life.

We have had a conscription for war. May God put on us the conscription of service. Young people, I wish to impress you, to command the morning and live the pure, simple life, making Jesus your example. People felt that Jesus knew this interpetation of life and life's philosophy. Example: When the forces went out to take Him prisoner they returned saying: "He teaches as a prophet." Young people you must know what you know if you wish to command the morning.

Do you know you are living in a new day? The day of insincerity and falsehood is gone. Study what is the characteristics of the new day.

Young people you often heard it said the "world is at your feet." Not true unless you are qualified, unless you know Christ and give Him your service. Young man, young woman are you living. Do you care? Have you commanded the morning? Help us to catch of Jesus the spirit to live, to know, to care.

The choir rendered exceptionally good music at both services with solos by Mrs. G. Liddle and Miss Daisy Murray.

CLAIMS BAKERY SUPREMACY

"Champion Baker of the World" is the title that has been assumed by J. J. N. Mackman, a baker of Hull, England, since he was presented to the Duchess of York recently. Mackman has won more than 4,000 bakery awards, and is now head of a large concern. He works from 10 to 12 hours a day, and much of his time is spent in the bakehouse of his plant.

Losing Every Day

Toronto Real Estate Broker Steadily Lost Health and Weight Until He Took TANLAC

During his business career, Mr. James Burns made friends by the hundreds, and they are glad to see "Dad" looking so remarkably well these days. He gives all the credit to Tanlac.

Writing from 418 Bay Street, he says: "Before taking Tanlac, my weight fell off from 160 to 130 pounds, and I had begun to feel the hand of old Father Time laying heavily upon me. I seldom ate more than one meal a day and that caused me hours of misery. Nights I would pace the floor too nervous to sleep; and many days I felt too worn-out to dress and go anywhere.

"I don't believe I could ever have pulled up to where I am now if it hadn't been for Tanlac. It has restored my health completely and built me up to 165 pounds.

"No one takes me for over 75 now; and I feel every bit as active and energetic as I did forty years ago. Tanlac is the best investment I ever made."

Tanlac is a big, bracing tonic for Stomach Trouble, Indigestion, Gas, Pain after Eating, Run-down Systems and Upset Nerves. It brings back lost appetite, helps digest the food and builds up strength and weight. Tanlac contains no mineral drugs—it is made of roots, barks and herbs—Nature's own medicine for the sick. It costs less than 2c a dose—and your money refunded if it does not give you perfect satisfaction. Get a bottle at your druggist's today.

NEGROES KILLED FIGHTING POLICE

One Man Kills Comrade and Himself and Wounds Officer.

IN POLICE STATION.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—One negro prisoner was shot and killed, another shot and killed himself, and a policeman was wounded when several prisoners in the Wabash avenue police station attempted to break for liberty to-day. Demcy Parker, a negro, held on robbery charges, leaped on Policeman McNeil as he and several other negroes were being escorted to the bull pen. As they grappled, Harry Stokes, a negro, Parker's companion, obtaineed a pistol and fired at the grappling pair, wounding the policeman and killing Parker. Other policemen summoned by the shot tossed tear bombs among the prisoners. When the fumes had cleared away Stokes also lay dead, having shot himself.

Notables To Attend Jenning's Funeral

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 2. — Canadian Press. — Plans for the funeral of Hugh C. Jennings, one of the greatest characters that baseball has produced, who died at his home here early yesterday morning were completed late yesterday Many notable figures in the baseball world have signified their intention of attending the services.

The funeral will be held Friday morning with a solemn High Mass of requiem in St. Peter's Cathedral. Burial will be made in St. Catharine's Cemetery.

Expressions of regret at the passing of one of the idols of the national pastime were received at the Jennings home from all quarters of the country.They came from men of high-standing in the baseball world with whom Jennings had been intimately acquainted during his long years both as player and manager.

Wherever men gathered yesterday the sole topic of conversation was the fact that "Hughey" is dead. Probably nowhere was Jennings more popular or held in higher esteem than in his own home town.

Economies in purchasing, production and distribution, due to the tremendous increase in sales of Rogers Batteryless Radios during the past two years, have made it possible to inaugurate an entirely new lower price level, thus passing on to the public these savings in the form of drastic

Price Reductions

On the 1928 Models of

Rogers {BATTERYLESS} Radio

Ranging from $26 to $50 on each Model

Here's the best radio news yet broadcast! Just study the new prices and specifications of these 1928 Models of the famous Rogers Batteryless Radios. These new prices mean that real, proven, dependable "Batteryless" radio is now within the reach of all. No more need to fuss around with batteries, chemicals, chargers or unsightly wiring, to save a few dollars; no more need to try and make an ordinary battery set into an "electrified" set. No more need to experiment with a new and unproven electric radio—for now you can get a genuine Rogers Batteryless Radio complete in one cabinet—with three years of proven performance behind it; all ready to "Just plug in then tune in"; with no extras to buy—at the same price as an ordinary, reputable, battery-operated set.

Think of it! The set which has outsold all other electric sets combined—the set that has proven its worth in thousands upon thousands of Canadian homes from coast to coast—the set which operates equally well on either 25 or 60 cycle A/C current—the only set which affords absolute regulation and control of voltages—the set which alone can offer the Rogers guaranteed A/C Tubes—the set which delivers coast to coast reception under normal conditions—the set which gives equal power the year 'round—always uniform—which costs less than 5c a week for power—the set which requires no batteries, chemicals, chargers, attachments (and in many cases no aerial)—and, most important, the set with a power and tone quality all its own—offered at less money than unproven electric sets.

MODEL "Two-Fifty" was $215.00 now $189
SAVING $26.00

MODEL "Two-Twenty" was $275.00 now $225
SAVING $50.00

MODEL "200-A" was $420.00 now $375
SAVING $45.00

No other radio has ever been able to offer all the advantages and features found in the Rogers. And now they do not even compare in price. To get the best for the least money is a rare experience—made possible only by the fact that the Rogers has a two-year lead in production, experience and distribution of Batteryless Radios. There might be some excuse for "gambling" with an unproven radio if you saved enough—there certainly is not when it costs you more.

Get a ROGERS—And Be Sure!

Every Rogers Set and every tube in these sets is guaranteed to function and give proper service. You take no chance.

Let us prove, by actual demonstration in your home, what the Rogers will do, and show you why it is the best.

Rogers "Two-Fifty"
A 5-Tube Rogers-Batteryless Receiver, with dual-dial control. Completely shielded audio amplification system. Attractive walnut-finished cabinet with power switch outside.

TRENT SYSTEM PLACED BEFORE MOTOR BOATERS

Association's Advertising at Motor Boat Show Seen By Thousands.

GOOD PUBLICITY.

Joys of Cruising Pointed Out By Exhibitors—Radio Talks Given.

Thus far the twenty-third annual National Motor Boat Show has proven to be an exposition of outstanding me both from the standpoint of sales of new and varied craft and the success which has rewarded the efforts of those in charge of the Trent Waterway Development Association exhibit placed at the Motor Boat Show to divert the greatest volume of this select tourist traffic to Central Ontario and the Trent municipalities.

Throngs have nightly visited the Grand Central Palace, New York, where the Motor Boat Show is held, and the attendance has greatly exceeded last year's figure. The daily average has been 22,000 paid admissions, which is a daily increase of about 5,000 over the records of attendance at the last year's show. Total paid admissions to date exceed 132,000, and during the closing days the attendance, it is expected, will reach a quarter million. The above figures are supplied the Ontario papers by the T.W.D.A. prior to release in the United States.

Cruising satisfies the wanderlust of those who learn its joys. Motor boats shown at the Grand Central Palace are summer homes that can take their owners with passengers anywhere from Maine to Florida or from New York and the connecting waterways to the Trent, which is undeniably the most unique, attractive and most enjoyable holidaying area in the whole of North America.

The spirit of wanderlust seems inborn in most Americans, which accounts, perhaps, for the fact that so few of them like to "stay put" when there is any chance of gratifying the urge to see new places, to explore unknown trails. In the last ten years or so the automobile has provided the most ready means of satisfying this desire, and has played its part in allowing an ever increasing proportion of the population to "see America first."

But now that the rapidly increasing number of cars crowding one off the highways and making the "great open spaces" no longer open and free, much of the lure of the long trail has departed, and those who have wanted to push forth into the unknown and to secure peace and quiet and rest at the same time, have had to turn to other means to satisfy their longing. The power cruiser is what now offers them this opportunity—and is a more satisfying measure than ever before.

Now the charm and the joy of cruising have long been known to the yachtsmen, or to those who have been in the habit of taking their recreation afloat. They are not so well known to those who have never owned a boat or who are not familiar with the possibilities that our long coast line or our inland waterways offer. Here one is not dependent on good roads, or on the indifferent hospitality of roadside hostelries or camps. Here are no traffic jams, no blue-coated officers of the law to regulate one's every turn or speed. Blinding dust and the heat of concrete roads are unknown.

Instead are the ever-changing surface of the water, the wide arc of blue sky overhead, the shore line slipping by close at hand or distant, and a quiet haven or peaceful cove when the day's run is over and the anchor down, with all the comforts which a snug cabin offers below deck.

The development of the small or medium-sized power cruiser has given us a means of using these waters that was never before possible. In the days of sail, the length of the day's run was always an unknown quantity, dependent on the direction and strength of the wind. A run of thirty-five or forty miles a day was a fair average. But with a good power cruiser of only average speed, say nine, ten or twelve miles an hour, 100 miles a day is not a high average, and on occasion 150 miles can be covered between daylight and dark of a summer's day. And there is vastly more satisfaction to be derived from completing a hard day's run through unfamiliar waters and bringing your boat to anchor in a good berth in a strange harbor at the end than in covering twice that distance ashore in an automobile in ten hours of hard driving.

A summer cruise from New York to the Trent Waterway is easily possible in a two-weeks' vacation with a small power cruiser of only average speed, anchoring in a different harbor each night of the outward and homeward voyage. As to the comparative expense of cruising and automobile touring, the former can be carried out at much less cost. While the cost of fuel a mile is greater in the cruising boat, the saving of garage and hotel bills and of wear and tear will make the total cost of the trip in favor of the cruiser, provided a paid hand is not carried; and in a boat, under thirty-five or forty feet in length, a paid hand is as much of an incumbrance as is a chauffeur in a car.

About the smallest boat suitable for such trips as those mentioned, or that can be really designated as a "cruiser," is one from twenty-six to twenty-eight feet in length. In this size one will now find several on the market that are admirably adapted for extended jaunts. They are of seaworthy model and reliable. Such a boat will have accommodations for four persons, which are all one should consider taking on a craft of this size. To carry more would mean too much crowding to make a long cruise a success.

From this size up—in fact, all the way up to the floating palace of a Croesus—one can find stock of standardized cruisers to suit every need in the matter of accommodations or fit most pocketbooks. The next step upward from the twenty-six-footer is the thirty-footer. Here one finds very much the same layout, but with a little more elbow room and more storage space for clothes, food, ship's gear, etc. And this matter of storage space is most important, for if there are not enough hanging lockers for clothes or not sufficient locker or drawer space, the cabin is always a mess. If you don't believe it ask anyone who has been there.

Berths Don't Make the Boat.

In 30 to 35 foot cruisers one can increase the number of sleeping berths to six. But do not be fooled into thinking the sleeping quarters are what make the limit of a boat's capacity. It is easier to provide berths than anything else, and yet what is most needed is enough room to take care of the crowd during the sixteen or eighteen hours they are not sleeping. There must be ample room to cook for and feed six persons and to stow them away comfortably when the boat is under way.

When one gets up to 38 or 40 feet of length there is room for two cabins, or a cabin and a stateroom, so that there can be some degree of privacy if there is a mixed party aboard. In a boat of this size one can have as comfotrable and well-fitted a sleeping cabin as one would get in a house or cottage ashore—except that there is less floor space.

When the size has risen to 45 feet in length suitable accommodations can be had for an extended cruise of a month or more with no discomfort. Above this size, or from 50 feet and above, a paid hand is more or less of a necessity—not for running the boat as much as for keeping her clean and in proper shape, for the daily work of upkeep on a boat of this size is likely to become a burden on the owner and a paid hand is well worth his hire. Above 50 feet one gets into a size where the layout and accommodations are more a matter of personal taste and requirements. While there are standardized cruisers up to 60 feet in length the bulk of them are fitted to meet the needs, both as to layout, power and speed, of the man who can afford to pay for his particular fancy and beyond the scope of this survey.

Safety, refinement, comfort have been the aim of the designer and builder of power cruisers for the last few years. How well they have accomplished this aim and how well the boats they have developed satisfy the needs of the cruiser is to be seen in the fine line of cruisers from 26 to 62 feet in length exhibited at the Motor Boat Show of this year.

That many of these craft will go into the hands of those who have yet to learn the joys of cruising is assured. But once the pleasure to be derived from a summer afloat has been experienced, there is no doubt that the newcomer will be in the future one of the most ardent exponents of power boat cruising.

Those in attendance at the Trent Waterway Exhibit at the Motor Boat Show report a very remarkable increase in the number of inquiries for information concerning the Trent Waterway—an increase in the number of prospective tourists, whether by motor car, train or in a boat.

The program of events at the Motor Boat Show brings the Trent representatives in touch with every phase of American motor boating in the world:

Program of Events.

During Radio Day, Jan. 25, Walter M. Fowlds, president Trent Waterway Development Association gave a talk at 9 p.m., descriptive of the Trent Waterway, over Station WEBJ, owned by the Third Avenue Railway Co., New York. This is the second occasion during which officers of the Trent Waterway Development Association have broadcast from New York, and the value of such publicity to the Trent cannot be overestimated. During the Motor Boat Show last week, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Trent Waterway Development Association, Frank G. Stinson, gave a talk on the Trent and the Motor Boat Show over station WOR 1440 Broadway, New York.

Those in attendance at the Trent Waterway Development Association Exhibit at the Motor Boat Show in addition to the secretary-treasurer in charge were: President Walter M. Fowlds Hastings Ontario and Mrs. Fowlds Honorary President Gordon K. Fraser Burleigh Falls and Hamilton, and Mrs. Fraser; Mr. N. K. Wagg, general manager, Georgian Bay Tourist and Steamship Company, Ltd., of Midland, Ont.

Visitor to the Motor Boat Show from Peterborough were: Mr. and Mrs. Claude H. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wood, Messrs. Robert Abbott, Ross Dobbin, Fred L. There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflammation of swollen toe joints and help get them down to normal and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning.

Ask Bond's Drug Store, C. M. Moncur, Bert McLeod, McDermid Drug Co. Ltd., McDermid & Jury, or any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if one bottle Emerald Oil does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to should get a bottle of Moone's veins should get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Campbellford

Campbellford, Feb. 2.—Mrs. F. S. Lazier, Miss Rose and Master Sam Lazier returned on Tuesday from visiting in Guelph and Niagara Falls.

Marion Lucy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lucy is seriously ill with pneumonia.

Walter Scott, who underwent a serious operation in the Belleville hospital recently, is reported as making satisfactory progress.

The United and Anglican churches are holding their Sunday school sleigh drive this Friday afternoon. Besides this the Presbyterian Boy Scouts are planning a tobogganing party for eight o'clock the same evening.

Mrs. Cowell is seriously ill.

Mr. Malcolm, Sr., is very ill at his son's residence Sebastopol Street.

The High School seemed to have things their own way Monday night, and the Hydro seemed to be in the opposite circumstances. The High School junior team took in the Hydro Cubs to the tune of two-nothing. This however, was not as big a score as the Grads piled up.

Although there has not been much snow falling lately the high winds have piled up what there is till some of the roads are almost impassable for motor traffic. Commercial men coming from Warkworth by car this afternoon report that they had to literally work their passage by helping push through the drifts.

Treble and Bass all There!

Fifes - - - clarinets and flutes, - - - as well as traps, - - - tympani - - - bass viols and gruff-throated tubas - - - all clearly heard.

Liquid trebles,—deep, low fundamentals,—these tones give Orthophonic Victrola music its beauty and color. So that today a public concert by famous artists and an Orthophonic Victrola performance by the same great artists,—are two things alike as twins,—and you need not stir from the lazy comfort of the fireside to hear the Orthophonic Victrola. It's really marvellous when you come to think of it. We moderns owe a tribute to the scientists who have contributed the rich gift of "matched impedance" or "smooth flow of sound" to the Victrola. To Victor was extended the privilege of developing this principle for your greater enjoyment.

As a result you may have beautiful, realistic music at home, and you may have it contained in graceful cabinets wrought in fine woods. Artistically designed models,—all equipped with a device which stops each record after playing. Electrical drive, if you wish,—at slight additional cost, eliminates winding. Prices from $1400 down to as low as $115,—on convenient payments from all His Master's Voice dealers.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Cherry's golden eyes widened incredulously, then glinted with indignation. "I didn't think you'd make fun of me, Faith. I—"

"I'm not making fun of you, honey," Faith protested, her arms going about her sister. "I'm entirely serious and sympathetic. Don't you think I've guessed how much you are being hurt by Nils? He asked you to marry him. Cherry darling, and you laughed at him. You've admitted as much."

"But it didn't make him angry," Cherry contended, a lovely light breaking over her woebegone little face. "He just smiled and said, 'If you change your mind, tell me. A farmer needs a wife, and it occurred to me you'd make a good farmer's wife.' That's what made me so happy. He never said a word about loving me—"

"Did you give him much of a chance?" Faith laughed tenderly, rubbing her cheek against Cherry's. "I think he's waiting to hear from you. He told you to tell him if you changed your mind. A man like Nils doesn't enjoy being rejected, and so far as I know, he didn't withdraw his offer before he left—did he?"

"No," Cherry admitted, a smile sparkling in her eyes and upon her lips. "Do you suppose he wanted to force me to come to him? The nerve of him! Well, I won't do it! Imagine me writing him a note like this: 'Dear Nils, I've changed my mind. I've decided to accept your kind offer of marriage after all. Sincerely yours, Cherry Lane." No, darling, I've got some pride left! How do I know he hasn't changed his mind and doesn't want me any more? If I hadn't disgraced myself before him, leading Bruce Patton on to kissme and then slapping him for doing it, I might write Nils and give him a hint, but I simply can't now. Oh, Faith, if I'd only been good and decent all my life, so that I could have been worthy of real love when it came along, I wouldn't be so miserable now."

The next morning—Monday—Faith was well enough to preside at the breakfast table. Cherry was called away from the meal by a sudden, shrill wail of infantile distress, and was still attending to Hope when the customary two short rings of the doorbell announced the morning visit of the postman. Rhoda, who rarely received a letter, walked unhurriedly through dining room and living room to the front porch, but when she returned she was running, her China-blue eyes shining with excitement.

"A letter from Nils!" she cried, waving a large square envelope.

"Thank the Lord! Now maybe Cherry won't moon around like a martyr," Bob applauded.

"It's not for Cherry. It's for Mrs. Hathaway," Rhoda interrupted, dropping the letter beside Faith's plate. "I wrote him you'd been sick."

"Any mail for me?" Cherry demanded, arriving breathless from her bedroom.

"Two," Rhoda pushed the letters toward Cherry's plate without raising her eyes.

Faith, fearful of the contents of her letter from Nils, concealed the envelope beneath her napkin. She would read it when she was alone.

"Bill Warren wants me to go to a masquerade ball with him Wednesday—the Marlboro Country Club," Cherry announced, a note of defiance in her voice.

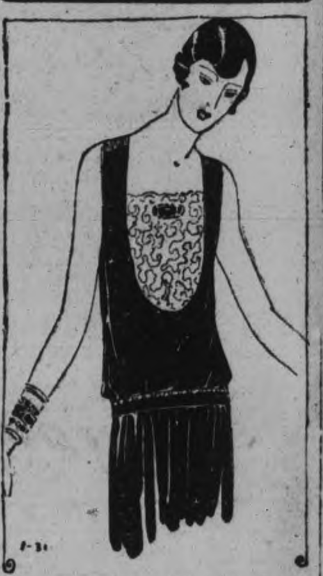
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



The deep U-line of this velvet frock is filled in with metal lace.

The wide U neckline is well established by this time but is still one of the fashions that may be called new. I do not know whether Chanel of Paris was the first to use it in its present form, but nowadays when one speaks of it one usually thinks of this French dressmaker famous for her smart youthful frocks. Sometimes the wide U neckline is fairly shallow at the front and deeper at the back, and sometimes it is quite deep at the front, extending almost to what used to be the normal waistline, and then the lower part of the U is filled in with lace of some sort.

Red shades are enjoying much popularity as winter goes on, both for evening and afternoon wear. When Miss Bina Deneen, daughter of Senator Deneen of Illinois, was presented to Washington society the other day she wore a velvet gown of a deep red—like the darker shades of a red apple. Flamme is the name of one of the new evening shades of red, and firefly is a bright red that is frequently seen.

Mrs. Coolidge sometimes chooses a pale blue shade for the evening, and at the New Year's Day reception at the White House she wore an afternoon gown combining a silver lame top and a velvet skirt.

Mrs. Longworth is apparently still loyal to the color that she made popular when as eldest daughter of President Roosevelt she gave world-wide fame to "Alice blue." For at the New Year's Day reception she wore a printed velvet gown showing pastel tones on a background of soft blue—not quite Alice blue, but still reminiscent of her once favorite color.

Parrot shades is the name given to a variety of clear bright tones that are used as trimming for some of the new French hats. There is a vivid green, a clear light red and a lovely clear orange.

It is not too soon to speak of yellow as by far the most popular color at Southern resorts. It is used for daytime as well as for evening.

Lyrics of Life - By Douglas Malloch

FIRST OR LAST

My mother thinks I'm awful brave;
  I think I am, at that.
It's not because I ever save
Some maiden from some watery grave,
  Or from some burning flat.
She thinks I'm braver, though, than Jake,
  And all the kids in town,
Because (although a face I make)
When I have castor oil to take
  I take the stuff right down.

My mother thinks I'm brave a lot,
  I think I am myself.
Not many mothers sons have got
Who, when they take it from the spot
  They keep it on the shelf
And measure out a tablespoon,
  Just down it like a man—
Don't start to crying like a loon,
But have it over just as soon
  As anybody can.

My mother thinks I'm brave. I guess
  Perhaps my mother's right.
When Mother mixed the awful mess
I used to holler more or less.
  And kick and scream and fight.
And then I thought it out one day:
  The taking's not the worst.
For, first or last, they always say,
You'll have to take it anyway—
  So why not take it first?

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1928.

Astrologers read this as a day unfavorable in planetary government, a time to be cautious about all sorts of ventures.

Many new avenues to wealth are open in 1928 and there may be temptation to indulge in wild speculation, the seers foretell.

Canada is to profit greatly from mineral wealth and new mines of tremendous resources are to be developed, if the stars are rightly read.

Under this planetary government the mind may be prey to depression, especially where financial matters are concerned.

This is not an auspicious day for dealing with banks or bankers, for the stars encourage financiers to be severely unaccommodating, it is pointed out.

Neptune is in a place stimulating interest in oil and its output. Stocks will fluctuate suddenly, while the rule prevails, it is foretold.

This is not an auspicious day for beginning ocean voyages. Astrologers again warn of wrecks and unusual accidents at sea.

Spread of communism on the continent of Europe is prognosticated and revolutions may be expected in more than one country.

Fever and smallpox may be prevalent before the end of winter and it is well to watch incoming ships.

Storms and floods even more disastrous than those of recent date may be expected in the spring, the seers prophesy.

All the signs appear to presage for the United States growth of international influence and increase in prestige as a world power.

Science is well directed at this time, which should be fortunate for those who are engaged in research work.

Persons whose birthdate it is should beware of scandals in the coming year, which should be fairly fortunate if speculation is avoided.

Children born on this day may have artistic talents that interfere with practical ambitiosn. They should be carefully trained in the moral code.

Jack Dempsey Retires From Prize Fight Ring

FORMER CHAMP THROUGH WITH BOXING WORLD

Tunney to Defend Title Against Winner of Elimination Contest.

HAS INJURED EYE

Philadelphia, Chicago, London Named Among Cities for Next Title Bout.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 2 (A.P.)—Tex Rickard yesterday announced that Jack Dempsey had retired from the ring and that Gene Tunney would defend his heavyweight title in June against the winner of the Sharkey - Risko, Heeney - Delaney elimination contest.

Commenting from Los Angeles, Dempsey said;

"It's O.K. with me. I told Rickard that I would not be ready in June. If my injured eye muscle improves, I might fight again or I may not. As things look now, I may never fight again."

Rickard said he based his announcement on word from the former champion that "he thinks it not advisable to engage in any further contests."

He expressed regret at Dempsey's "passing."

The next title bout, the promoter said, has not yet been awarded to any city but he named Philadelphia, Chicago, London and a undesignated place in Canada as all in the running.

Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, had conferred with Rickard during the day and the announcement came shortly after they had finished their discussion. Gibson said he and Tunney "had decided to string along with Rickard, who has what seems to be a very plausible method of developing one or more contenders this year." He expressed disappointment that a definite selection of an opponent was not made yesterday.

Tunney received the announcement with little display of interest. "My chief concern right now is my golf game," said he. "All Rickard has to do is to supply the boxers and I will do the boxing."

The question of Dempsey's retirement, he said, was of "more concern to Rickard than to me."

OFFICIALS FOR FLYWEIGHT BOUT

Certain Canadian Officials Will Act at Belanger-Genaro Scrap.

GIVE FAIR DECISION

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—Whoever the referee or judges will be when Frenchy Belanger and Frankie Genaro renew their flyweight feud next Monday night at the Coliseum with the world's championship the matter at issue is a deep dark mystery but it is a certainty that they will be Canadian officials.

Joe Jacobs, manager of the challenger, it is reported from New York has appealed to Mr. Thomas Donahue, chairman of the National Boxing Association, to appoint the "judge and jury" for the bout, claiming that his protege was discriminated against in his initial bout with Belanger.

Mr. Jacob's suggestion is not likely to get him anywhere.

Neither the Ontario Athletic Commission or Canadian fight fans are altogether enamoured of the idea. In fact, Mr. Tom Murphy, pugilistic pooh bah hereabouts, is distinctly peeved over the matter.

He had something to say about Mr. Jacobs and his bright thought yesterday that was not at all complimentary to the latter either as a boxing manager or sportsman.

Incidentally he intimated that Mr. Jacobs would be shown that he could not direct the affairs of the Ontario Athletic Commission, ditto Mr. Donahue. "We are quite capable of looking after our own interests," said Mr. Murphy, and it was evident that the "Big Boss" didn't mean maybe. "Jacobs got a square deal when he was here before and any talk to the contrary is just talk and nothing else. If Canadian boxers performing in the United States were treated as fairly as American fighters are when they come here there would be little cause for complaint either way."

Genaro Lucky Before.

In the opinion of Mr. Murphy Genaro was perhaps fortunate that he was not disqualified for holding when he boxed Belanger. He was warned repeatedly for his grapevine tactics, and if ever a boxer was beaten it was the former American champion.

Belanger forced the bout from end to end and well deserved the decision. "There will be a change in the officials on Monday night from their last meeting", said Mr. Murphy, "but the appointees will be men employed by our commission."

President Donahue was a spectator at the Jarvis-Belanger bout and went out of his way to congratulate all concerned on the admirable manner in which it was handled. He was pleased with everything that he saw, in our out of the ring, and made a special point of stressing the work of the third man.

DETROIT COULD HAVE TWO TEAMS

Border Town Said to be Better Baseball Proposition Than St. Louis.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Sports promoters who are interested in dabbing in the national pastime have just completed an investigation into the existing major league circuits that has brought to light some pointed observations on baseball conditions in the United States.

These promoters began with the idea that they could buy a major league franchise in an eastern city. They instituted a thorough examination of the territory and the assets of the club they were willing to purchase—and decided that the price asked was about two and one-half times more than the franchise was worth.

Then they searched further. The investigator reported some interesting findings. Among them are the following:

That two clubs in one city are not a good investment in certain cities now having franchises in both major leagues.

That if one club is prosperous one year, the other is not likely to be; and that if one club is prosperous year after year, the other club may exist but not as a producing corporation.

That the two best cities for baseball clubs are New York and Chicago; a fact that is pretty well known outside of baseball as in it.

That St. Louis is not a good city for two, but that Detroit might well be. Conditions, however, have changed in St. Louis. Once the city was all for the American Association and later for the American League; but now the National League has gained in strength.

The promoters were informed that it would be better for both leagues if there were two clubs in Detroit and only one in St. Louis. The investigator declared that the removal of the National League franchise from St. Louis to Detroit would benefit both organizations.

Detroit has gained in population and has such a tremendous baseball following—the population so largely of the male sex—that a sound argument was developed showing how the city would be one of the banner cities for both leagues if it were represented in them. The point was made that Detroit originally was a member of the National League and that it would return to its old traditions without much demur. It was also stated that Sunday baseball in Detroit had changed that baseball investment field completely.

The report considered the St. Louis Brown to be a better one club investment than St. Louis might possibly hope to be with two clubs. Philadelphia was not given much of a reputation for being a two-club city, despite the fact that the city has had two clubs for years. The two-club idea in Boston aroused on enthusiasm. The baseball situation for both clubs in Boston recently has been anything but good and the promoters there have hung on hoping that Massachusetts would pass legislation permitting Sunday baseball.

The men who made the Boston Nationals famous were in their day the most violent opponents of Sunday baseball in both major leagues. Messrs. Soden, Conant and Billings would not hear of Sunday baseball—which is exactly the reverse of the stand taken by the present owners of both clubs in Boston.

SPORT BITS

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 2.—The Badminton Club dance is postponed from Thursday to Friday night on account of the hockey match in Peterboro.

The annual fancy dress skating carnival it is expected will be held on February 10th. This is one of the most popular events of the winter season.

Leading Golfers Win In the First Round

HAMILTON, Bermuda., Feb. 2 (A.P.).—Ada Mackenzie of Toronto; Maureen Orcutt, metropolitan champion; Helen Payson of Portland, Me., and other favorites, disposed of their first round opponents yesterday in the annual Bermuda women's championship golf tournament played at the Riddell's Bay Golf and Country Club.

Miss Orcutt defeated Miriam McEneary, New York, 5 and 3.

Miss Payson overwhelmed Katherine Baun, Baltimore, 8 and 6.

Miss Mackenzie defeated Mrs. Willow Gage McLeod, Toronto, 5 and 4.

Mrs. Virginia Weltman Wells, Bermuda, defeated Mrs. E. B. Roughie, Ottawa, 3 and 4.

Report Is Denied Pirate Club Sold

PITTSBURG, Pa. Feb. 2 (Canadian Press). — Reports from Philadelphia and Montreal yesterday that the owners of the Philadelphia Arrows of the American-Canadian League had taken option to purchase the Pittsburgh club of the National Hockey League were denied here by Horace Townsend, president of the Pirates. "There is nothing to the report," Townsend said. "I have had no offers for the hockey franchise or players and am not in the market for any. There absolutely is no dicker under way for the sale or transfer of the club."

President Frank Calder of the National League announced at Montreal yesterday that the Arrows had taken an option to buy the Pirates for $150,000. George F. Sears, business manager of the Arrows, said at Philadelphia that his club had bought the Pittsburgh franchise for $50,000.

Association football is probably the most popular sport in Austria at the present time. It is a peculiar feat that the football clubs are to a large extent political. There are Catholic clubs, Socialist clubs, Jewish clubs and non-Jewish clubs.

PAY TRIBUTE TO JENNINGS

National League President Says "One of Most Lovable Characters in Game."

MADE PLAY FAMOUS

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 2. Canadian Press. — Tribute to Hughey Jennings as "one of the most lovable characters of the game," was paid yesterday by John Heydler, president of the National League in commenting on Jennings' death.

"Jennings was not only one of the great players of the game of all time but he was one of the most lovable characters of the game," said Heydler. "All followers of baseball mourn his passing. There was one play he used to make time and again while shortstop for the old Orioles that I do not believe was ever excelled, if equalled, by any infielders of them all. With the opposition runner on first, and all set to steal, the batsman never could tell who was going over to second to take the catcher's throw. That Oriole infield remained set until after the ball was either hit or the catcher had it in his hands ready to throw. Then if the runner tried for second it would be Jennings who would dart over to take the throw. He would snare the ball in one outstretched hand while on the run and clap it on the runner all in one deft lightning-quick motion. And he hardly ever missed his man. That play stands out still in my memory as one of the classics of the diamond."

OWNERS APPROVE OF 1928 SCHEDULE

Cash Award Voted to Future Winners of "Most Valuable Player."

CHICAGO, Ills., Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—Club owners of the American League approved the 1928 schedule of the American League, and a $1000 cash award to all future winners of the "most valuable player" contest yesterday, and began consideration of the perennial draft problem.

The draft conference of French Lick in January, 1927, was revived and, after debate of several hours, was referred back to the advisory board. League spokesmen said the failure to get this French Lick report before the Dallas convention of the minor leagues last December was the cause of the minors' mild insurrection over the draft at that time. Since then, the minors have voted to withdraw their ultimatum to the majors and the big five minors, which would have compiled the big five to accept the universal draft of players without restrictions, such as the smaller minors operate under now.

DETERMINE ORDER OF PLAY TO-DAY

Delegates to Draw for Places in Davis Cup Competition.

PARIS, Feb. 2. — Thirty-three ambassadors extraordinary to the courts of tennis, representing a like number of nations, entered in the Davis Cup competition this year, will attend a drawing at the Elysee Palace to-day by President Doumergue, to determine the order of play.

The president will draw the first number from the hat and then in alphabetical order the representatives of other competing nations, 12 more than ever before tried for the trophy, will take their numbers.

Rene Lacoste, one of the team that won the cup last year, has asked a business friend to represent him in New York upon the arrival of the trans-Atlantic French fliers. Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix so that he may remain over for the drawing. President Doumergue had requested him to remain in order to draw the second slip.

YANKS WANT MORE MAZUMA

Trouble Exists in the Ranks of World Baseball Champions.

TWO HOLD-OUTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Miller T. Huggins, the mite manager of the New York Yankees, came to town yesterday to personally see about his world baseball champions.

Almost furtively Huggins ducked around the corner of Broadway and slipped up 42nd street to the offices of the Yankees for a private conference with Col. Jacob Ruppert and Ed. Barrow.

Several members of the Yankees' all-star cast haven't been signed, but Waite Hoyt, star right-handed pitcher, and Mike Gazella, utility infielder, are the only out and out holdouts.

Hoyt puts his case plainly. "I won 22 games last year and I want more dough."

Gazella has only a .278 batting average to fling in the face of Messrs. Ruppert, Barrow and Huggins, but he, too, is dissatisfied with his wages.

The Yankees pay their players liberally, but since they will pay Ruth and Gehrig, the home run twins, almost a $100,000 between them this season, they may not feel in a mood just as this moment to meet the demands of Hoyt and Gazella, though trivial they may be.

Hoyt may be traded, and Gazella may be pitched in for good measure, for a left-handed pitcher. The name of Joe Shaute of the Indians has been linked in such a trade.

Tony Lazzeri and Mark Koenig, the keystone kids, are two other important members of the Yankee combination who haven't affixed their signatures to contracts, but they are expected to come into the fold shortly.

When all the Yankees are signed up the payroll of the world champions is expected to approach $300,000 and label the Yankees as the highest priced ball club of all time.

HOCKEY CONTINUES TO DRAW CROWDS

Lakefield Fans Give Real Support to Their O. H. A. Representatives.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 2.—Lakefield has shown her old time loyalty to hockey this season as the big crowds which have attended the games have shown.

Baseball and football died out for lack of local interest and even softball fails to bring a crowd from the village, but a hockey match draws a crowd and at every game, half an hour before the game the rink has been filled, and each game sees a bigger crowd. Tuesday night topped all previous records as besides the village people there were scores from the country for miles around. The team cannot complain of lack of support for it is given in every way most heartily.

The special train which carried the Lakefield team and their supporters to Peterboro for the game with Havelock on Friday night was crowded to capacity and the local team was greeted with loud cheers by their fans.

Apparently Lakefield cannot overcome the jinx of a special train. Twenty-two years ago the last special train took hockey fans to a match and as Lakefield had always lost when a special was taken, on the occasion of subsequent big games, every conveyance was preferable to a special train. Fans have changed and so have the teams but the jinx remains apparently.

STREET TO BE BALL ROOM

Entertaining guests together and using the street as the ball room is the plan being worked out by residents of one side of North Street, London. Under the shadow of Westminster the neighbors of the small and ancient street have become well acquainted, and as their homes are too small for entertaining on a large scale, they propose to cover the pavement with an awning and throw open their respective houses, which will be used as places for sitting out. Dinner will be served in each house so that guests will have the choice of at least a dozen meals.

GRADS SWAMP HYDRO 12 TO 4

Campbellford Town League Game Fairly Close in First Half.

IBEY SCORES SEVEN.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2. — The Town League fixture between the High School Grads and the Hydro Athletic Association, played at Davidson's Arena on Monday night was mostly a matter of disappointment for everyone but the Grads themselves. The local opinion of the majority before the game was that the struggle would be well worth the price of admission. But when the teams took the ice the Grads seemed to have the edge all the way through. Their team is more evenly balanced and shows the result of intensive training and practice while the Hydro crew was hardly able to hit the necessary speed to make the game really exciting. Johnson and Cowell did their full share for the electrical men, not to mention Sanders, who stopped considerably more than he allowed to pass. On the Grads' team it was hard to pick a man who outshone the rest of his teammates to any extent except Horkins at centre and Irwin in goal. The entire team seemed to be right on their game all the way.

Ibey for the Grads holds the season's record for goals. Of the twelve scored by the Grads seven came from his stick. Next in order is Cowell for the Hydro, with all four of the Hydro counts. Blute and Horkins got two each for the Grads and Davidson, right defence, got one which he scored as a grand finale to a solo rush.

Charles Holmes referee, came in for considerable howls from the sidelines when towards the close of the first period he refused to stop the game when Jack Cowell crumpled up on the ice. "'I know he's down, Holmes replied to some person among the spectators and did not make any attempt to halt the game to investigate the cause of Cowell's collapse. After the game, Holmes said that he had thought it a fake at the time, but had later realized that it was not.

Penalty Starts Things.

The first period did not start very interestingly till Davidson got sent to the penalty box for tripping, but his trip saved the goal, or at least did something towards saving it. The first shot Horkins got at the Hydro net he hit the top of it with a close in shot. The next one to attempt it was Blute and he scored a neat one from the corner. After the face off at centre there came a mad minute around the Hydro net, and Ibey pushed in the second one for the Grads. Bland subbed Ibey and Ayrheart got off for slugging. Horkins rushed straight up the centre, passing out to Bland on the wing. Bland took a backhand shot at the net but failed to score. Beatty (Hydro) made a beautiful rush, but shot too high. Ibey and Dewey subbed Bland and Davidson on an offside interval and Ingram got another penalty for boarding. Horkins' rush was ineffectual, and a moment later "Bud" Davidson took a solo trip along the side of the house for the third goal of the Grads. Horkins and Ibey got the fourth counter when Ibey scored on a rebound from Horkin's shot.

With the game four to nothing the game began to lose interest but Cowell came out with the first goal for the Hydro and the fans began to hope for a close struggle. Ibey followed with another for the Grads, and their lead was still four goals. Then something happened to Cowell. He began to double up and gradually sank to the ice. Holmes apparently did not see it till the crowd drew his attention. But he simply replied "I know he's down," and did not stop the play at all. Time came with the score 5 to 1 for the Grads, and the game losing interest every minute.

Second Period.

The goaltenders were the most prominent figures at the beginning of the period, and Irwin showed up very spectacularly. Horkins got a penalty for tripping, and long shots were the order of the day till Ayrhart got put off for the same offence, and fast hockey with five men to a side featured. Bland subbed Blute at the first offside, and Sanders had to stop a few trial shots. A minute or so later, Horkins took hold of the stick of the man who was trying to check him and he was put off again. He did not actually grasp the stick but pushed it away with his hand. Beatty and Cowell rushed and Cowell scored on Beatty's pass. Almost as soon as the play began again, Cowell got another goal by following in for his own rebound. This made the score more interesting and cut the Grads' lead to two goals. For a time they were hard pressed in their own defence area and close to their goal, but they broke away and Ibey scored the sixth goal for the Scholars. Cowell followed in again and scored on the rebound, leaving the margin between the teams exactly the same, but with the score getting hard to remember.

Horkins tried a long shot but it went high. Nevertheless, the Hydro gave Irwin plenty to occupy his mind for a few minutes, even though they did not score. Horkins and Ibey broke away from the danger zone and Horkins scored from centre as Ibey passed it in to him. Grads 7, Hydro 4. Sanders got hit with the puck and about two minutes had to be taken from the time till he was able to carry on with the game. In a few seconds Horkins and Ibey repeated their recent method for successful scoring and made their team's eighth goal. The Hydro tried hard to fool Irwin but he outguessed them till Horkins saved the day by one of his million-dollar rushes. Seeing that he was too far up to score, he continued his course right behind the Hydro net, but they were ready for him there as well and he failed to score at all. Ted Blute got the ninth goal for the Grads in a close in shot. Score: Grads 9; Hydro 4.

Third Period.

The final period had progressed considerably without anything serious happening than a broken stick for Cowell and a penalty for Beatty for tripping, till Ibey scored on a loose puck and a back hand shot, bringing the score for the Grads up to ten. Ingram got two minutes' penalty for kicking a stick when it appeared to him that Cowell had attempted to trip him. Horkins tried a long shot which Johnston got and rushed, but he shot past the front of the net. Ibey returned the rush a moment later, and with no one between him and the goal, Sanders made a wonderful save. Irwin managed to work out of a tight corner a moment later without having let anything past him. Horkins got sent off for bodying a man into the board and Ibey scored again for the Grads. He seemed to be able to score most any old time, for almost right away, he rushed and scored the twelfth goal for the Grads and the seventh for his own account. The only serious attempt during the rest of the game was when Davidson wanted to get another count to match his lonely goal, but his shot went wild and the bell rang with the Grads on the long end of the twelve-four score.

The teams:

High School Grads—Goal, Irwin; r. def., Davidson; l. def., Ingram; centre, Horkins; r. wing, Ibey; l. wing Blute; subs., Dewey and Bland.

Referee—Charles Holmes, Campbellford.

DO YOU REMEMBER THEM

The "Flu"
LEFT HER WITH A VERY WEAK HEART

Mrs. Beulah Demone, Pleasant River, N.S., writes:—"Having suffered with the 'flu' a few years ago, I was left with a very weak heart.

"I was unable to go about, and could not do my housework.

"I would get dizzy spells and would have to go and lie down.

"I could not sleep at night as the least little noise would wake me up.

"I tried different kinds of medicine, but they seemed to do me no good.

"A friend recommended MILBURN'S HEART NERVE PILLS

I have used five boxes and am much better; do not get those dizzy spells, and can do my own work as well as ever."

CARNIVAL HELD AT COSMOS RINK

First Fancy Dress Affair of Season is Great Success.

FEW IN COSTUME

MILLBROOK, Feb. 2.—Unfavorable weather conditions compelled the Cosmos Club to twice postpone the initial carnival of the season, which was to have been held early in the week, and was finally carried through successfully on Saturday evening.

The date first set, Tuesday, January 24, proved so stormy it was impossible to keep the ice in condition on an open-air rink, a duplication of the bad weather occurring on the following Friday when the carnival was again scheduled to take place.

There were about as many skaters as the ice would accommodate, but not many were in costume, probably owing to the uncertainty as to when the affair would really come off, and it was evident that a thoroughly good time was enjoyed by all.

Music was furnished by an orthophonic victrola through the courtesy of H. R. Armstrong, who loaned the instrument for the occasion, thus adding considerably to the pleasure of both skaters and onlookers throughout the evening. The booth where hot dogs and coffee were for sale had a steady patronage, the low temperature which prevailed on Saturday making this special feature a welcome addition to the out-of-doors event.

Among the prize-winners were Miss S. Muir, who represented the M.C.S., her costume being in the school colors of black and orange, and who was awarded the first prize for ladies' fancy dress; little Lenore Lambert, in black and silver, who looked like 'Mrs. Santa Claus,' had the girls' first; Henry Raper, as a quaint little old lady, had the boys' comic, and E. C. Richards, as a 'flapper,' had the men's. Best lady skater, K. Donnelly; best skating couple, Margaret Russell and W. Todd.

HOLDUP CASE IN BAD MIXUP.

Meting of justice in connection with a holdup in Buenos Aires, Argentina, is taking a course that is believed to be unprecedented in the world. Senor Porfirio Callado, charged with complicity in the holdup of pay checks of a sugar refinery, started a new suit in civil court seeking to have Dr. Arganaras, the judge trying his case in criminal court, declared to be of unsound mind and not responsible for his actions. The civil judge threw out the case on the ground that the necessary medical certificate and other proofs were lacking. Then Dr. Arganaras discovered that he is not on speaking terms with the defendant and excused himself from further proceedings.

WATSON PLAYS IN O.H.A. GAME

Former Granite Star Scores the First Goal in Ten Seconds.

MARLBOROS WIN.

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—Coach Harry Watson donned a uniform and stepped into the fray to help his Marlboro team to keep in the Senior O.H.A. race by defeating Kitchener last night at the Arena by 4 to 3. It was reminiscent of the great Granite team which won world honors at Chamonix in 1924 to see the curly-haired wing man swing down the ice, glide in on the goal and drill his deadly backhand shot.

Watson's appearance in uniform was unheralded and came as a pleasant surprise to the Dukes' supporters. He glided on the ice just before the play was started and unobtrusively took his place at centre. Referee Rodden dropped the rubber between the sticks and Watson secured possession. He circled cooly back to his own territory to size up the Kitchener defence formation. Then he started to go. He darted down the right boards, protecting the puck with his body in his characteristic style, and snapped a back-hand lift that sent the rubber into the cage.

Paves Way to Win.

A goal in ten seconds, less time than it takes to describe it, and the fans and the Kitchener team knew that the veteran goal-getter had lost none of his cunning. In fact, as the game progressed Watson commanded the attention of all eyes. He did not get any more goals but half a dozen times the Kitchener players were forced to bring him to the ice, chancing the resultant penalty rather than conceding an almost certain goal.

The ex-Granite star increased the interest in the proceedings by opening a good-natured duel with the bulky "Gammie" Seagram, the Greenshirts' scoring ace. They checked each other closely and, at times strenuously, but always coming up with a smile, for this pair are sportsmen of the highest type. Seagram, however, could not hit his stride and was unable to get his bullet-like shot on the net.

He bore the brunt of his team's attack as did Watson and fed his wings faithfully. The wily Watson outguessed him in the third period when the Dukes' coach dropped back on the defence and picked off the big Kitchener boy with a body-check that could be heard all over the rink.

AT THE REGENT.

FRISCO COMBED FOR CHARACTERS.

That the atmosphere for the Barbary Coast scenes in "Shanghaied" might be as realistic as possible, Ralph Ince, star and director, scoured the underworld sections of Los Angeles for his extras and assembled at the FBO studios what is said to be the roughest and toughest company ever brought together on the lot.

Not satisfied with the group of pseudo-roughs assembled for him by the casting office from the regular list of extras, Ince personally went on a scouting tour along the less frequented streets of the city and picked from the sidewalk loafers and bums more than 100 of what he considered the most picturesque types to be found.

"Shanghaied," which is now running at the Regent Theatre, has as its background the most colorful waterfront section in the country, San Francisco's Barbary Coast, where a few years ago the scum of the seven seas collected for their debauches and to hide from justice and the law.

Federal employes of Austria are asking salary increases averaging 17½ per cent.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

© Charles Scribner's Sons

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

THE STORY THUS FAR

The thing that baffles Vance most is the jewel case. It had been opened with a steel chisel after unsuccessfully being pried with a poker. Spotswoode had gone out with Margaret Odell the night she was murdered. When he left her he told Jessup to call a cab. They heard a scream from her room, but when they reached her door were told everything was all right. The next morning she had been found strangled. Vance believes two men were in the apartment, one in a clothes closet, the other the murderer. Investigation discloses that Cleaver has been seen with her the most, and fingerprints in the apartment lead to the identification of Tony Skeel.

CHAPTER XVI.

He hung up the receiver and rubbed his hands together.

"Now we're sailing," he rejoiced.

Vance had gone to the window, and stood staring down on the "Bridge of Sighs," his hands thrust deep into his pockets. Slowly he turned, and fixed Heath with a contemplative eye.

"It simply won't do, don't y' know," he asserted. "Your friend, the Dude, may have ripped open that bally box, but his head isn't the right shape for the rest of last evening's performance."

Heath was contemptuous.

"Not being a phrenologist, I'm going by the shape of his fingerprints."

"A woeful error in the technic of criminal approach, Sergeant," replied Vance dulcetly. "The question of culpability in this case isn't so simple as you imagine. It's deuced complicated. And this glass of fashion and mould of form whose portrait you're carryin' next to your heart has merely added to its intricacy."

(Tuesday, September 11; 8 p.m.)

Markham dined at the Stuyvesant Club, as was his custom, and at his invitation Vance and I remained with him. He had no doubt figured that our presence at the dinner-table would act as a bulwark against the intrusion of casual acquaintances; for he was in no mood for the pleasantries of the curious.

Rain had begun to fall late in the afternoon, and when dinner was over it had turned into a steady downpour which threatened to last well into the night. Dinner over, the three of us sought a secluded corner of the lounge-room, and settled ourselves for a protracted smoke.

We had been there less than a quarter of an hour when a slightly rotund man, with a heavy, florid face and thin gray hair, strolled up to us with a stealthy self-assured gait, and wished Markham a jovial good evening. Though I had not met the newcomer I knew him to be Charles Cleaver.

"Got your note at the desk saying you wanted to see me." He spoke with a voice curiously gentle for a man of his size; but, for all its gentleness, there was in it a timbre of calculation and coldness.

Markham rose and, after shaking hands, introduced him to Vance and me—though, it seemed, Vance had known him slightly for some time. He took the chair Markham indicated, and, producing a cigar, he carefully cut the end with a gold clipper attached to his heavy watchchain, rolled the cigar between his lips to dampen it, and lighted it in closely cupped hands.

"I'm sorry to trouble you, Mr. Cleaver," began Markham, "but, as you probably have read, a young woman by the name of Margaret Odell was murdered last night in her apartment in 71st Street. . . ."

He paused. He seemed to be considering just how he could best broach a subject so obviously delicate; and perhaps he hoped Cleaver would volunteer the fact of his acquaintance with the girl. But not a muscle of the man's face moved; and, after a moment, Markham continued.

"In making inquiries into the young woman's life I learned that you, among others, were fairly well acquainted with her."

Again he paused. Cleaver lifted his eyebrows almost imperceptibly, but said nothing.

"The fact is," went on Markham, a trifle annoyed by the other's deliberately circumspect attitude, "my report states that you were seen with her on many occasions during a period of nearly two years. Indeed, the only inference to be drawn from what I've learned is that you were more than casually interested in Miss Odell."

"Yes?" The query was as non-committal as it was gentle.

"Yes," repeated Markham. "And I may add, Mr. Cleaver, that this is not the time for pretenses or suppressions. I am talking to you to-night, in large measure ex officio, because it occurred to me that you could give me some assistance in clearing the matter up. I think it only fair to say that a certain man is now under grave suspicion, and we hope to arrest him very soon. But, in any event, we will need help, and that is why I requested this little chat with you at the club."

"And how can I assist you?" Cleaver's face remained blank; only his lips moved as he put the question.

"Knowing this young woman as well as you did," explained Markham patiently, "you are no doubt in possession of some information—certain facts or confidences, let us say—which would throw light on her brutal and apparently unexpected, murder."

Cleaver was silent for some time. His eyes had shifted to the wall before him, but otherwise his features remained set.

"I'm afraid I can't accommodate you," he said at length.

"Your attitude is not quite what might be expected in one whose conscience is entirely clear," returned Markham, with a show of resentment.

The man turned a mildly inquisitive gaze upon the district attorney.

"What has my knowing the girl to do with her being murdered? She didn't confide in me who her murderer was to be. She didn't even tell me that she knew any one who intended to strangle her. If she'd known, she most likely could have avoided being murdered."

Vance was sitting close to me, a little removed from the others, and, leaning over, murmured in my ear:

"Markham's up against another lawyer—poor dear! . . . A crumplin' situation."

But, however inauspiciously this interlocutory skirmish may have begun it soon developed into a grim combat which ended in Cleaver's complete surrender. Markham, despite his suavity and graciousness, was an unrelenting and resourceful antagonist; and it was not long before he had forced from Cleaver some highly significant information.

In response to the man's ironically evasive rejoinder, he turned quickly and leaned forward.

"You're not on the witness-stand in your own defense, Mr. Cleaver," he said sharply, "however much you appear to regard yourself as eligible for that position."

Cleaver glared back fixedly without replying; and Markham, his eyelids level, studied the man opposite, determined to decipher all he could from the other's phlegmatic countenance. But Cleaver was apparently just as determined that his vis-a-vis should decipher absolutely nothing; and the features that met Markham's scrutiny were as arid as a desert. At length Markham sank back in his chair.

"It doesn't matter particularly," he remarked indifferently, "whether you discuss the matter or not here in the club to-night. If you prefer to be brought to my office in the morning by a sheriff with a subpoena, I'll be only too glad to accommodate you."

"That's up to you," Cleaver told him, hostilely.

"And what's printed in the newspapers about it will be up to the reporters," rejoined Markham. "I'll explain the situation to them and give them a verbatim report of the interview."

"But I've nothing to tell you." The other's tone was suddenly conciliatory; the idea of publicity was evidently highly distasteful to him.

"So you informed me before," said Markham coldly. "Therefore, I wish you good evening."

He turned to Vance and me with the air of a man who had terminated an unpleasant episode.

Cleaver, however, made no move to go. He smoked thoughtfully for a minute or two; then he gave a short, hard laugh which did not even disturb the contours of his face.

"Oh, hell!" he grumbled, with forced good-nature. "As you said, I'm not on the witenss-stand. . . . What do you want to-know?"

"I've told you the situation." Markham's voice betrayed a curious irritation. "You know the sort of thing I want. How did this Odell girl live? Who were her intimates? Who would have been likely to want her out of the way ? What enemies had she?—Anything that might lead us to an explanation of her death. . . . And, incidentally," he added with tartness, "anything that'll eliminate yourself from any suspected participation, direct or indirect, in the affair."

Cleaver stiffened at these last words, and started to protest indignantly. But immediately he changed his tactics. Smiling contemptuously, he took out a leather pocket-case, and, extracting a small folded paper, handed it to Markham.

WIFE'S GUILT BRINGS JOKE

In the Bavarian Parliament recently a Nationalist member made a heated appeal to Bavarians to abstain from foreign food or foreign drink. "Eat German meat," he cried, and there came a response from a member of the Opposition, "and pour German water into German milk," a sally which was greeted with roars of laughter in the house when members suddenly remembered that the wife of the fervid Nationalist, who is a landowner, had recently been fined heavily for selling adulterated milk.

IRISH RESENT IRISH PLAY

As a result of a protest made by the audience against what they regarded as caricatures of the Irish people and the Roman Catholic clergy, "Biddy," a farcical comedy, has been withdraw by the Irish Players Company whic has been presenting it in Limerick, Ireland. The manager of the compan said that the play had been well received in other parts of Ireland. It wa written by an Englishman who ha lived for a time in Ireland, and wit one exception the players were al Irish and members of the Roma Catholic Church.

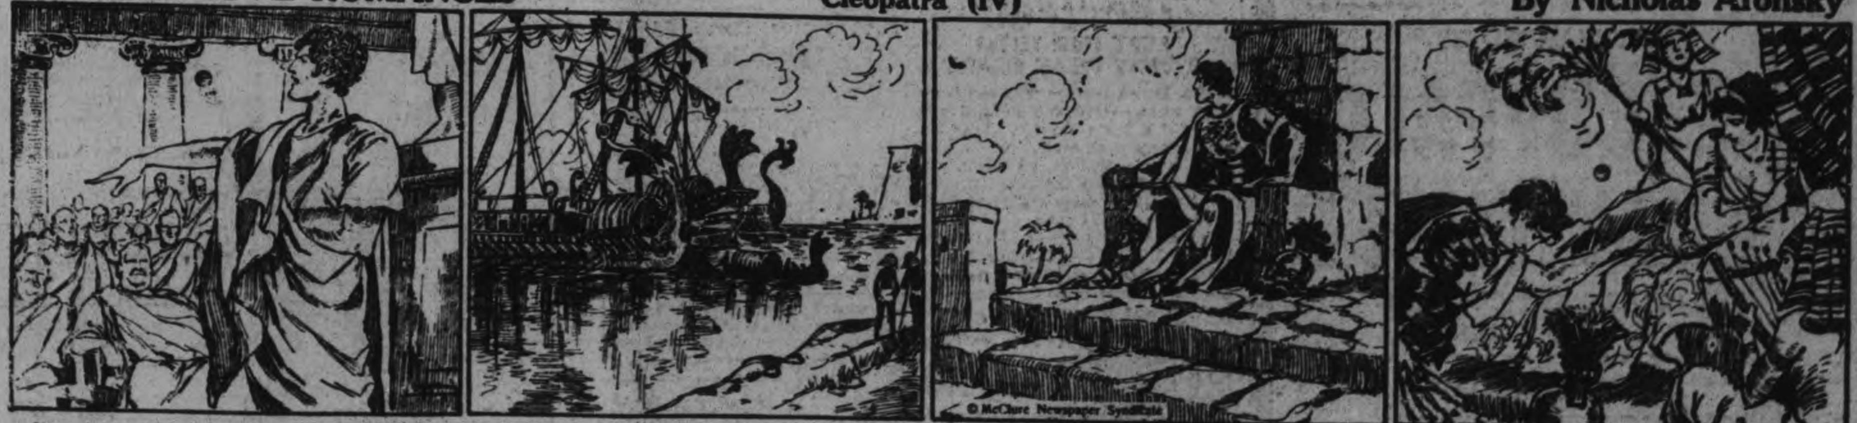
FAMOUS LOVE ROMANCES Cleopatra (IV) By Nicholas Afonsky



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Cleopatra, on learning of Caesar's death, fled to Egypt with her baby son to avoid trouble that might come from a civil war in Rome. Mark Antony, who had already met Cleopatra and found her fascinating, took up her cause, and declared in the Senate that Caesar had acknowledged Caesarion as his son.

But Antony seems to have lost interest in Cleopatra's cause. Two years later she left Alexandria, to meet him at Tarsus. He had apparently sent for her to demand an accounting of her failure to take sides in the Roman civil war. Her fleet anchored in the wide, lakelike river Cydnus at Tarsus.

Antony had seated himself on the public tribunal in the market place, expecting Cleopatra would land at once and pay her respects to him. But she did not come. The crowd that had gathered around him, hearing of the wealth of her ships, gradually went to the quays, and Antony was left sitting there alone.

So Antony sent, asking her to dine with him. She countered with an invitation to him and his friends. They found her, dressed as Venus, surrounded with slaves as nymphs. After a sumptuous feast the guests returned to the decks, where they drank in a lantern-lit transplanted forest far into the night.

AUXILIARY REPORTS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Has Substantial Balance To Start 1928—Officers Elected.

CAMPBELLFORD, February 2. — The annual meeting of Christ Church Women's Auxiliary showed by the reports presented that the society had enjoyed a very successful year. After meeting all obligations for the past year, there still remains a substantial bank balance to start the work of 1928. The members present were deeply interested in the plans for the present year, and the officers who were elected were assured of every co-operation during their terms of office. The ladies who will hold office during 1928:

Hon. President, Mrs. N. Clarke Wallace; president, Mrs. J. P. Archer; first vice-president, Mrs. Fred Linton; second vice-president, Mrs. Ed. Tait; recording secretary, Mrs. A. Hatfield; corresponding secretary, Miss Helen Campbell; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. A. Hatfield, Sr.; treasurer, Mrs. A. J. Jenkins; juior superintendent, Mrs. H. Moore; Little Helpers' superintendent, Mrs. F. S. Lazier; rector's appointees, Mrs. Charles West and Mrs. E. J. Free.

The next meeting of the auxiliary will be in the Parish Hall on Tuesday afternoon.

ALCIDE CHAUSSÉ, ARCHITECTE, MONTREAL.

ATTRACTIVE SEMI-DETACHED HOUSE

Alcide Chausse, Architect.

Here is a pair of semi-detached houses which because of their homely atmosphere, and practical convenient plan, are of more than ordinary interest. The feature of the exterior is a blending and feeling of harmony with the natural surroundings, a quality unfortunately rare among modern semi-detached homes.

Although the plans of the two houses are, apart from a few minor differences of dimensions, identical, it is difficult to realize that such is the case, so far removed is the design from the accepted unerringly symetrical type Merely so arranging the houses that what would be the back of one is against the side of the other achieves this result. This is a scheme so simple, yet giving such a distinctly different effect, as to merit the intended semi-detached house builder's full consideration. It does not, of course, necessitate a corner lot as the side entrance steps may be faced toward the street as shown on this plan.

The plan of each house is very simple and direct. One enters directly into a hall giving access to the living room, and kitchen, each of which is connected with the dining room. Every room is bright, cheerful, and convenient, the living room being particularly attractive, with a wide doorway to the dining room and a French door to the verandah.

Three bedrooms and a bathroom comprise the upper floor accommodation. The latter is exceptionally roomy and with a tiled floor and best quality built-in fixtures, meets the most exacting requirements.

These houses could be erected with very satisfactory results as detached houses, and being only 22 ft by 24 ft would have ample clear space on a 32 ft. lot.

Including slate roof, hot water heating, and oak floors, this home cost approximately $9,000.

Readers desiring further information regarding a house of this design should communicate with MacLean Builders' Guide, 345 Adelaide St. West Toronto, Ont. who will see that it is supplied. When writing please mention design number 109. Copyright, 1928.

M'NEILL BECOMES GOVERNOR-GENERAL

Installation Ceremonies at Leinster House Pass Without Incident.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 2.—(A.P.)— Simple ceremonies attended the installation yesterday of James McNeill as a governor-general of the Irish Free State, at Leinster House, meeting place of the Irish Parliament.

Accompanied by his wife, the new governor-general drove from his hotel to Leinster House. Outside the hotel, a company of mounted infantry saluted, and a great crowd gathered to watch the procession.

Escorted to the speakers' room by E. Blythe, vice-president of the executive council, the party was met by Chief Justice Hugh Kennedy. Mr. Blythe formally presented Mr. McNeill, and Judge Kennedy, acknowledging his credentials, administered the oaths of allegiance and of his office.

On his departure, the governor-general was saluted by the guard of honor, while the military band played the National Anthem. He then went to the Cenotaph and placed a wreath on the tombs of Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins, who figured large in the establishment of the Irish Free State. From there the governor-general and Mrs. McNeill were conducted to the vice-regal lodge. Dense crowds had assembled, but there was no untoward demonstration of any kind.

A NICE FELLOW BUT SO SKINNY

That's what the girls say about you fellows that need a few more pounds of good solid flesh and have never tried McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets.

A New Jersey Man was just as bad as you, but now he's got what the girls call a manly figure—he needed 28 more pounds and thanks to McCoy's he got them in just a couple of months.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets or 2 one dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked iprovement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

Ask McDermid & Jury, Lynch's, Giles' and Bond's Drug stores, or any good druggist.
